Guilty of Serious Crime.

Edmunston, N.B., Aug. 6.—Husband Michaud, charged with obstructing the free use of the Temiscouata Railroad, by placing ties on the track, was found guilty by a jury before Judge Carleton. The only direct evidence was given by a son, Paul Michaud, aged 14, who was at first arrested with his father, but later turned crown's evidence.

Ontario Wheat Yield Large.

Toronto, Aug. 6.—Fall wheat is being threshed in various parts of Ontario and the yields are larger per acre than for several years. The average, though, is less by several thousand acres in the provinces. Dawson's Golden Chaff has been the favorite wheat for some years. Alsike yields are also good. R. Guthrie & Sons of Whitby Township report 30 bags from one day's threshing. Samples of seed received in Toronto show a wide variation in quality. Price is offering about seven dollars.

Gold Fields In North.

Haileybury, Aug. 6.—Word has been received here of rich finds of gold quartz in Whitney Township, 12 miles west of Matheson, or about a hundred miles north of Cobalt. Other finds are said to have been made in Munroe and Ginbord Townships.

Haileybury men are heavily interested in the new gold fields, and it is reported here that some of the discoveries assay as high as 400 ounces of gold to the ton.

AMERICA'S CROP FOR 1909 THE BIGGEST IN HISTORY

Harvest Well Started and Shows That United States Farmers Will Pocket for Wheat Alone $222,000,000 More Than Last Year —Rush of Workers to the Yellow Fields — The Bonanza Farmer—Great News From the Farms.

Lift up your eyes and look on the fields, for they are white already to harvest.

And he that reapeth receiveth wages * * * * and both he that soweth and he that reapeth may rejoice together.—John 4, 35-36.

By J. V. Knight.

Chicago, Aug. 6.—Board of Trade men and commercial leaders in Chicago, the greatest grain market in the world, unite in declaring that the harvest of 1909 crops means a banner year for the American farmer.

The wheat crop, harvest of which already has started, will be the largest, both from a standpoint of acreage and value, of any crop since the first grain was dropped in American soil. From northern Canada to Texas, and from the Alleghanies to the Pacific slope, farmers are busy with harvesters and thrashers garnering it. Seventy-five millions of acres were sown in wheat this year.

Due to the plunges of Jas. A. Patten on the Board of Trade, a great foreign demand and the increase of the world's population, the price of wheat in this marketplace has been upheld.

"Its' a bumper crop," every grain man on La Salle street says, when he reads the morning bulletins in the Board of Trade building.

Railroads, elevator men, brokers, millers, and wholesalers of flour and breadstuffs all are in line waiting. A rush of harvesters through the yellow fields and the whirr of the thrasher will be the signal for huge moves in the world of finance and commerce, and Chicago will be the centre of it all.

The American farmer has ceased to be the homespun farmer. He's now the bonanza farmer. Secretary Geo. F. Stone, of the Board of Trade, discussing a big wheat raiser in Minnesota, said: "Yes, he's what we call a bonanza farmer, or one of those fellows who clean up from $20,000 to $40,000 a year on their wheat crop. They're getting to be so numerous now that we don't pay particular attention to them.

"The farmer of yesterday would think he was dreaming if he could see the way these men carry on their business."

Passenger agents of western railroads assert that there never were so many party tickets sold for harvest field workers from the east. College students by the carload are rushing to Kansas and the Dakotas. From the University of Chicago alone 173 students have gone out.

Experts here calculate the value of American cereals this year as not less than $8,000,000,000. This would mean a mean over 1908 of $222,000,000!

Nearly $880,000,000 will change hands in Chicago when the wheat crop is marketed. Compared to the time when the harvester was first invented, these figures are staggering.

Abraham Lincoln was 23 years old when the first harvesting machine was made. Man depended then on the ancient scythe to garner his crop. The farmer then was "the man-made machine. The change that has come over harvesting methods in a little more than 75 years is greater than in all the preceding history of the world. Before the American farmer started methods that have resulted in the bumper crop of 1909, he depended on the laws of nature to make him rich or poor. Now man-made processes have coaxed the soil and rotation of crops will yet conquer it.

Secretary Wilson's contention that the farmer is a great organizer is borne out by letters that are pouring into the Board of Trade. Some "bonanza" men use the telephone and the telegraph. They arrange for cars and sometimes special freight trains to deliver their wheat into the market at an advantageous time, and conduct their big business with department store system.

In 1854 there was grown in this country only 4 1-3 bushels of wheat per capita. This year with less than one-third of the people farmers, the per capita production of wheat is more than 10 bushels. The advance made in production is just as notable and no more than the advance of modern methods over the single plow and the scythe of Lincoln's boyhood.

This advance has given the country its steel mills, railways, and varied industries. It has raised the farmer from a place of ridicule and obscurity to the pinnacle of respect among his fellow Americans, and has made his children the masters of trade. It has furnished the material and the men for great schools and colleges, developed new and unheard-of means of saving the soil for the future, and has made the United States the chief bread-winner for the world.

Simple Advice To Men On How To Keep In Best Of Condition

Avoid Hard Work—Stop Short of Fatigue and Keep Fresh for Your Work—Novel Health Notes by Robert J. Roberts, Who Knows Their Value.

EAT IN MODERATION

The following article from "Association Men" for August should be of interest to men who desire a simple means of keeping in condition.

Mr. Robert J. Roberts, of Boston, the pioneer of rational physical training and a Young Men's Christian Association Physical Director for almost thirty-five years writes to a friend as follows:

I am 80 years (young) to-day and I don't see any abatement in my power to work hard. I think a few reasons why I always feel fit for my work is that in my older teens I made up my mind to obey all God's laws that governed my body. I received this idea largely by reading in Dr. Hall's Journal of Health (1857) these words, "Men consume too much food and too little fresh air. They take too much medicine and too little exercise." This set me studying more closely the good Christian doctor's sayings, and to him I largely owe all my hygienic ideas as to the care of my body, mind and soul. I have never eaten between meals nor have I ever used tobacco or alcohol. I have always eaten slowly (of any food I wanted), realizing that my stomach had no teeth. I have tried hard to avoid working too hard. This has always been my great temptation through life. I have worn out, for I feel young and look so for a man of my years (as they say). I often say to myself, "Nothing too much. Stop short of fatigue. Don't hurry so. You have all the time there is. Tired men never do things well. Keep fresh for your work. Pay out your life to reach 100. Always enjoy each moment as it goes by. To help others you be a good example."

I weigh, nude, 155 pounds. My chest measures 43 inches (natural) and my waistline about 32 inches. I have kept about this weight and measure for over thirty years. I keep close tabs weekly; others should do the same.

One need never step on the scales to find out if his weight is right who keeps his waistline at its normal size. The waistline should be about 7 inches less in measurement than the normal chest. The taller the person the less difference there is between the waist and chest measurement, as length of body is equivalent for circumference. A good tell-tale to show you whether your waistline is growing too large or too small is to wear your trousers belted at your normal girth, and keep it at that girth all the time, never changing to suit the changing of the circumference of your waistline. Just after meals your waistline will only be a little larger if you have eaten moderately (which you should always do) and in an hour or so your waistline will have returned to its normal size. When you find that your waist is growing too large you must eat less and work harder, doing all sorts of full bending body movements like rowing, abdominal let-down drill and whole waist work on the waist strap or these movements done without the apparatus in a strong, full-stretch way. If on the other hand you find your waist is growing too small you must eat your food slowly, sleep more, rest more, take life easier, and do the same work that is given to one whose waist is growing too big, only do it easier and in less quantities. The above exercises once every day in a leisurely way will slowly bring an over-large waist down to its normal size, and when done in a light way, a too small waist up to its right size. If the hints as to eating, etc., are not obeyed one will get poorer results. Exercise can't do the full business.

I use this daily with all my classes: "He is a wise young man who daily trains the powers of his body, mind and soul."

HER BABY HAD ECZEMA

Mrs. F. Clark, Belmont, Man., writes:—"My baby had eczema on her ear. She sore was very bad and nothing seemed to help her. Hearing of some remarkable cures Dr. Chase's Ointment had made we began using it and with the third application the sore began to heal. The cure was thorough and complete and we give all credit to Dr. Chase's Ointment."

SIR NIGEL

BY A. CONAN DOYLE.

But Sir Hubert de Burgh was not destined to test either his skill or his luck. The great bay horse which he rode was as unused to this warlike play as was its master, and had none of its master's stoutness of heart; so that when it saw the leveled lance, the gleaming figure and the frenzied yellow horse rushing down upon it, it swerved, turned and galloped furiously down the river-bank. Amid roars of laughter from the rusties on the one side and from the courtiers on the other, Sir Hubert was seen, tugging vainly at his bridle, and bounding onward, clearing gorse-bushes and heather-clumps, until he was but a shimmering, quivering gleam upon the dark hillside. Nigel, who had pulled Pommers on to his very haunches at the instant that his opponent turned, saluted with his lance and trotted back to the bridge-head, where he awaited his next assailant.

"The ladies would say that a judgment hath fallen upon our good Sir Hubert for his impious words," said the King.

"Let us hope that his charger may be broken in ere he venture to ride out between two armies," remarked the Prince. "They might mistake the hardness of his horse's mouth for a softness of the rider's heart. See where he rides, still clearing every bush upon his path."

"By the rood!" said the King, "if the bold Hubert has not increased his repute as a jouster he has gained great honor as a horseman. But the bridge is still closed, Walter. How say you now? Is this young Squire never to be unhorsed, or is your King himself to lay lance in rest ere his way can be cleared? By the head of Saint Thomas! I am in the very mood to run a course with this gentle youth."

"Nay, nay, sire, too much honor hath already been done him!" said Manny, looking angrily at the motionless horseman. "That this untried boy should be able to say that in one evening he has unhorsed my Squire, and seen the back of one of the bravest knights in England is surely enough to turn his foolish head. Fetch me a spear, Robert! I will see what I can make of him."

The famous knight took the spear when it was brought to him as a master-workman takes a tool. He balanced it, shook it once or twice in the air, ran his eyes down it for a flaw in the wood, and then finally having made sure of its poise and weight laid it carefully in rest under his arm. Then gathering up his bridle so as to have his horse under perfect command, and covering himself with the shield, which was slung round his neck, he rode out to do battle.

Now, Nigel, young and inexperienced, all Nature's aid will not help you against the mixed craft and strength of such a warrior. The day will come when neither Manny nor even Chandos could sweep you from your saddle; but now, even had you some less cumbrous armor, your chance were small. Your downfall is near; but as you see the famous black chevrons on a golden ground your gallant heart which never knew fear is only filled with joy and amasement at the honor done you. Your downfall is near, and yet in your wildest dreams you would never guess how strange your downfall is to be.

Again with a dull thunder of hoofs the horses gallop over the soft water-meadow. Again with a clash of metal the two riders meet. It is Nigel now, taken clean in the face of his helmet with the blunted spear, who flies backward off his horse and falls clanging on the grass.

But good heavens! what is this? Manny has thrown up his hands in horror and the lance has dropped from his nerveless fingers. From all sides, with cries of dismay, with oaths and shouts and ejaculations to the saints, the horsemen ride wildly in. Was ever so dreadful, so sudden, so complete, an end to a gentle passage at arms? Surely their eyes must be at fault? Some wizard's trick has been played upon them to deceive their senses. But no, it was only too clear. There on the greensward lay the trunk of the stricken cavalier, and there, a good dozen yards beyond, lay his helmeted head.

"By the Virgin!" cried Manny wildly, as he jumped from his horse, "I would give my last gold piece that the work of this evening should be undone! How came it? What does it mean? Hither, my Lord Bishop, for surely it smacks of witchcraft and the Devil."

With a white face the Bishop had sprung down beside the prostrate body, pushing through the knot of horrified knights and squires.

"I fear that the last offices of the Holy Church come too late," said he in a quivering voice. "Most unfortunate young man! How sudden an end! In medio vitae, as the Holy Book has it—one moment in the pride of his youth, the next his head torn from his body. Now God and his saints have mercy upon me and guard me from evil!"

The last prayer was shot out of the Bishop with an energy and earnestness unusual in his orisons. It was caused by the sudden outcry of one of the Squires who, having lifted the helmet from the ground, cast it down again with a scream of horror.

"It is empty!" he cried. "It weighs as light as a feather."

"'Fore God, it is true!" cried Manny, laying his hand on it. "There is no one in it. With what have I fought, father Bishop? Is it of this world or of the next?"

The Bishop had clambered on his horse the better to consider the point. "If the foul fiend is abroad," said he, "my place is over yonder by the King's side. Certes that sulphur-colored horse hath a very devilish look. I could have sworn that I saw both smoke and flame from its nostrils. The beast is fit to bear a suit of armor which rides and fights and yet hath no man within it."

"Nay, not too fast, father Bishop," said one of the knights. "It may be all that you say and yet come from a human workshop. When I made a campaign in South Germany I have seen at Nuremberg a cunning figure, devised by an armorer, which could both ride and wield a sword. If this be such a one——"

"I thank you all for your very gentle courtesy," said a booming voice from the figure upon the ground.

At the words even the valiant Manny sprang into his saddle. Some rode madly away from the horrid trunk. A few of the boldest lingered.

"Most of all, said the voice, "would I thank the most noble knight, Sir Walter Manny, that he should deign to lay aside his greatness and condescend to do a deed of arms upon so humble a Squire."

"'Fore God!" said Manny, "if this be the Devil, then the Devil hath a very courtly tongue. I will have him out of his armor, if he blast me!"

So saying he sprang once more from his horse and plunging his hand down the slit in the collapsed gorget he closed it tightly upon a fistful of Nigel's yellow curls. The groan that came forth was enough to convince him that it was indeed a man who lurked within. At the same time his eyes fell upon the hole in the mail corselet which had served the Squire as a visor, and he burst into deep-chested mirth. The King, the Prince and Chandos, who had watched the scene from a distance, too much amused by it to explain or interfere, rode up weary with laughter, now that all was discovered.

"Let him out!" said the King, with his hand to his side. "I pray you to unlace him and let him out! I have shared in many a spear-running, but never have I been nearer falling from my horse than as I watched this one. I feared the fall had struck him senseless, since he lay so still."

Nigel had indeed lain with all the breath shaken from his body, and as he was aware that his helmet had been carried off, he had not understood either the alarm or the amusement that he had caused. Now freed from the great hanberk in which he had been shut like a pea in a pod he stood blinking in the light, blushing deeply with shame that the shifts to which his poverty had reduced him should be exposed to all these laughing courtiers. It was the King who brought him comfort.

"You have shown that you can use your father's weapons," said he, "and you have proved also that you are the worthy bearer of his name and his arms, for you have within you that spirit for which he was famous. But I wot that neither he nor you would suffer a train of hungry men to starve before your door; so lead on, I pray you, and if the meat be as good as this grace before it, then it will be a feast indeed."

CHAPTER X.

It would have fared ill with the good name of Tilford Manor-house and with the housekeeping of the aged Dame Ermyntrude had the King's whole retinue, with his outer and inner marshal, his justiciar, his chamberlain and his guard, all gathered under the one roof. But by the foresight and the gentle management of Chandos this calamity was avoided, so that some were quartered at the great Abbey and others passed on to enjoy the hospitality of Sir Roger FitzAlan at Farnham Castle. Only the King himself, the Prince, Manny, Chandos, Sir Hubert de Burgh, the Bishop and two or three more remained behind as the guests of the Lorings.

But small as was the party and humble the surroundings, the King in no way relaxed that love of ceremony, of elaborate form and of brilliant coloring which was one of his characteristics. The sumpter-mules were unpacked, squires ran hither and thither, baths smoked in the bed-chambers, silks and satins were unfolded, gold chains gleamed and clinked, so that when at last, to the long blast of two court trumpeters, the company took their seats at the board, as was the presence, nature scene which these old black rafters had ever spanned.

The great influx of foreign knights who had come in their splendor from all parts of Christendom to take part in the opening of the Round Tower of Windsor six years before, and to try their luck and their skill at the tournament connected with it, had deeply modified the English fashions of dress. The old tunic, cyot-hardie and cyclas were too sad and simple for the new fashions, so new strange and brilliant cote-hardies, pourpoints, courtepies, paltocks, hanselines and many other wondrous garments, party-colored or diapered, with looped, embroidered or escalloped edges, flamed and glittered round the King. He himself, in black velvet and gold, formed a dark rich centre to the finery around him. On his right sat the Prince, on his left the Bishop, while Dame Ermyntrude marshalled the forces of the household outside, alert and watchful, pouring in her dishes and her flagons at the right moment, rallying her tired servants, encouraging the van, hurrying the rear, hastening up her reserves, the tapping of her oak stick heard everywhere the pressure was the greatest.

Behind the King, clad in his best, but looking drab and sorry amid the brilliant costumes round him, Nigel himself, regardless of an aching body and a twisted knee, waited upon his royal guests, who threw many a merry jest at him over their shoulders as they still chuckled at the adventure of the bridge.

"By the rood!" said King Edward, leaning back, with a chicken-bone held daintily between the courtesy fingers of his left hand, "the play is too good for this country stage. You must to Windsor with me, Nigel, and bring with you this great suit of harness in which you lurk. There you shall hold the lists with your eyes in your midriff, and unless some one cleave you to the waist I see not how any harm can befall you. Never have I seen so small a nut in so great a shell."

The Prince, looking back with laughing eyes, saw by Nigel's flushed and embarrassed face that his poverty hung heavily upon him. "Nay," said he kindly, "such a workman is surely worthy of better tools."

"And it is for his master to see that he has them," added the King. "The court armorer will look to it that the next time your helmet is carried away, Nigel, your head shall be inside it."

John Chandos, however, had a fresh suggestion, and he cocked a roguish eye as he made it: "Surely, my liege, your bounty is little needed in this case. It is the ancient law of arms that if two cavaliers start to joust, and one either by maladdress or misadventure fail to meet the shock, then his arms become the property of him who still holds the lists. This being so, methinks, Sir Hubert de Burgh, that the fine hauberk of Milan and the helmet of Bordeaux steel in which you rode to Tilford should remain with our young host as some small remembrance of your visit."

The suggestion raised a general chorus of approval and laughter, in which all joined, save only Sir Hubert himself, who, flushed with anger, fixed his baleful eyes upon Chandos' mischievous and smiling face.

"I said that I did not play that foolish game, and I know nothing of its laws," said he; "but you know well, John, that if you would have a bout with sharpened spear or sword, where two ride to the ground, and only one away from it, you have not far to go to find it."

"Nay, nay, would you ride to the ground? Surely you had best walk, Hubert," said Chandos. "On your feet I know well that I should not see your back as we have seen it to-day. Say what you will, your horse has played you false, and I claim your suit of harness for Nigel Loring."

"Your tongue is overlong, John, and I am weary of its endless clack!" said Sir Hubert, his yellow mustache bristling from a scarlet face. "If you claim my harness, do you yourself come and take it. If there is a moon in the sky you may try this very night when the board is cleared."

"Nay, fair sirs," cried the King, smiling from one to the other, "this matter must be followed no further. Do you fill a bumper of Gascony, John, and you also, Hubert. Now pledge each other, I pray you, as good and loyal comrades who would scorn to fight save in your King's quarrel. We can spare neither of you while there is so much work for brave hearts over the sea. As to this matter of the harness, John Chandos speaks truly where it concerns a joust in the lists, but we hold that such a law is scarce binding in this, which was but a wayside passage and a gentle trial of arms. On the other hand, in the case of your Squire, Master Manny, there can be no doubt that his suit is forfeit."

"It is a grievous hearing for him, my liege," said Walter Manny; "for he is a poor man and hath been at sore pains to fit himself for the wars. Yet what you say shall be done, fair sire. So, if you will come to me in the morning, Squire Loring, John Widdicombe's suit will be handed over to you."

"Then with the King's leave, I will hand it back to him," said Nigel, troubled and stammering; "for indeed I had rather never ride to the wars than take from a brave man his only suit of plate."

"There spoke your father's spirit!" cried the King. "By the rood! Nigel, I like you full well. Let the matter bide in my hands. But I marvel much that Sir Aymery the Lombard hath not come to us yet from Windsor."

From the moment of his arrival at Tilford, again and again King Edward had asked most eagerly whether Sir Aymery had come, and whether there was any news of him, so that the courtiers glanced at each other in wonder. For Aymery was known to all of them as a famous mercenary of Italy, lately appointed Governor of Calais, and this sudden and urgent summons from the King might well mean some renewal of the war with France, which was the dearest wish of every soldier. Twice the King had stopped his meal and sat with sidelong head, his wine-cup in his hand, listening attentively when some sound like the clatter of hoofs was heard from outside; but the third time there could be no mistake. The tramp and jingle of the horses broke loud upon the ear, even ceases in course where coming out of the darkness, which were answered by the archers posted as sentries without the door.

"Some traveler has indeed arrived, my liege," said Nigel. "What is your royal will?"

"It can be but Aymery," the King answered, "for it was only to him that I left the message that he should follow me hither. Bid him come in, I pray you, and make him very welcome at your board."

Nigel cast open the door, plucking a torch from its bracket as he did so. Half a dozen men-at-arms sat on their horses outside, but one had dismounted, a short, squat, swarthy man with a rat face and quick, restless brown eyes which peered eagerly past Nigel into the red glare of the well-lit hall.

"I am Sir Aymery of Pavia," he whispered. "For God's sake, tell me! is the King within?"

"He is at table, fair sir, and he bids you to enter."

"One moment, young man, one moment, and a secret word in your ear. Wot you why it is that the King has sent for me?"

Nigel read terror in the dark cunning eyes which glanced in sidelong fashion into his. "Nay, I know not."

"I would I knew—I would I was sure ere I sought his presence."

"You have but to cross the threshold, fair sir, and doubtless you will learn from the King's own lips."

Sir Aymery seemed to rather himself as one who braces for a spring into ice-cold water. Then he crossed with a quick stride from the darkness into the light. The King stood up and held out his hand with a smile upon his long handsome face, and yet it seemed to the Italian that it was the lips which smiled but not the eyes.

"Welcome!" cried Edward. "Welcome to our worthy and faithful Seneschal of Calais? Come, sit here before me at the board, for I have sent for you that I may hear your news from over the sea, and thank you for the care that you have taken of that which is as dear to me as wife or child. Set a place for Sir Aymery there, and give him food and drink, for he has ridden fast and far in our service to-day."

Throughout the long feast which the skill of the Lady Ermyntrude had arranged, Edward chatted lightly with the Italian as well as with the barons near him. Finally, when the last dish was removed and the gravy-soaked rounds of coarse bread which served as plates had been cast to the dogs, the wine-flagons were passed round, and old Weathersote the minstrel entered timidly with his harp in the hope that he might be allowed to play before the King's majesty. But Edward had other sport afoot.

"I pray you, Nigel, to send out the servants, so that we may be alone. I would have two men-at-arms at every door lest we be disturbed in our debate, for it is a matter of privacy. And now, Sir Aymery, these noble lords as well as I, your master, would fain hear from your own lips how all goes forward in France."

The Italian's face was calm; but he looked restlessly from one to another along the line of his listeners.

"So far as I know, my liege, all is quiet on the French marches," said he.

"You have not heard then that they have mustered or gathered to a head with the intention of breaking the truce and making some attempt upon our dominions?"

"Nay, sire, I have heard nothing of it."

"You set my mind much at ease, Aymery," said the King; "for if nothing has come to your ears, then surely it cannot be. It was said that the wild Knight de Chargny had come down to St. Omer with his eyes upon my precious jewel and his mailed hands ready to grasp it."

"Nay, sire, let him come. He will find the jewel safe in its strong box, with a goodly guard over it."

"You are the guard over my jewel, Aymery."

"Yes, sire, I am the guard."

"And you are a faithful guard and one whom I can trust, are you not? You would not barter away that which is so dear to me when I have chosen you out of all my army to hold it for me?"

"Nay, sire, what reasons can there be for such questions? They touch my honor very nearly. You know that I would part with Calais only when I parted with my soul."

"Then you know nothing of de Chargny's attempt?"

"Nothing sire."

"Liar and villain!" yelled the King, springing to his feet and dashing his fist upon the table until the glasses rattled again. "Seize him, archers! Seize him this instant! Stand close by either elbow, lest he do himself a mischief! Now do you dare to tell me to my face, you perjured Lombard, that you know nothing of de Chargny and his plans?"

"As God is my witness I know nothing of him!" The man's lips were white, and he spoke in a thin, sighing, reedy voice, his eyes wincing away from the fell gaze of the angry King.

Edward laughed bitterly, and drew a paper from his breast. "You are the judges in this case, you, my fair son, and you, Chandos, and you, Manny, and you, Sir Hubert, and you also my Lord Bishop. By my sovereign power I make you a court that you may deal justice upon this man, for by God's eyes I will not stir from this room until I have sifted the matter to the bottom. And first I would read you this letter. It is, superscribed to Sir Aymery of Pavia, noname Le Lombard, Chateau de Calais. Is not that you name and style, you rogue?"

"It is my name, sire; but no such letter has come to me."

"Else had your villainy never been disclosed. It is signed 'Isidore de Chargny.' What says my enemy de Chargny to my trusted servant? Listen! 'We could not come with the last moon, for we have not gathered sufficient strength, nor have we been able to collect the twenty thousand crowns which are your price. But with the next turn of the moon in the darkest hour we will come and you will be paid your money at the small postern gate with the rowan-bush beside it.' Well, rogue, what say you now?"

"It is a forgery!" gasped the Italian.

Sunshine grates have maximum strength

Sunshine Furnace has four triangular grate bars, each having three distinct sides. In the single-piece and two-piece grate no such-like provision is made for expansion or contraction, and a waste of coal always follows a shaking.

On the left- and right-hand sides are cotter pins, which when loosened permit the grates to slide out. These four grate bars are made of heavy cast iron, and are finished up with bulldog teeth. The teeth will grind up the toughest clinker; and because the grates are made in sections, not only can nothing but dust and ashes pass through, but after each shaking a different side can be presented to the fire. Also, with the Sunshine grate there is no back-breaking movements attached to the shaking. By gently rocking the lever, first on the left and then on the right, the ashes are released on both sides, and fall through into the pan.

FRIGHTFUL STOMACH TROUBLE

Stratford Centre, Wolfe Co., Que. May 13th, 1908.

I have been completely cured of a frightful condition of my stomach through this wonderful medicine, "Fruit-a-tives." I suffered for four long years with this trouble. My head ached incessantly. I could not eat anything but what I suffered awful pains from indigestion. I used every known remedy and was treated by physicians, but the dyspepsia and headaches persisted in spite of the treatment.

I was told to try "Fruit-a-tives," and I sent for six boxes, and this was the only medicine that did me any good. I am now entirely well, I can eat ordinary food and I never have a headache, and for this relief I thank this wonderful remedy "Fruit-a-tives." My case is well known in this vicinity and you may publish this statement.

THE GREATEST OF REFORMS

From Farm and Dairy.

(The Toronto Globe.)

Since the Act for the improvement of public highways went into operation some years ago over 2,800 miles of road have benefitted; 15 counties, Prince Edward, Halton, Perth, Frontenac, Lennox and Addington, Middlesex, Peel, Lincoln, Oxford, Wellington, Hastings, Lanark, Wentworth, Simcoe, and Waterloo, have availed themselves of Provincial aid. Had all the other counties received the proposition favorably over three times as much road would have been built or improved. As matters stand, enough has been accomplished to make possible a thorough examination of the work done with a view of future progress. According to the official reports, wherever good roads have been established they have received enthusiastic approval and support from the ratepayers. Private reports however, show an amount of fault-finding that is perhaps inevitable in work of this kind. Farmers living at a distance from the country roads claim that they do not benefit sufficiently from the improvements to justify the taxation involved, and in some cases it is asserted that the roads taken over by the counties are not in as good condition as when cared for by the townships. In no case, however, is there any argument against the value of good roads. The need for them is everywhere admitted, and where they have been established successfully the good results are manifest. Land values have increased, farmers are able to market their produce more economically and at a greater profit, and social conditions have been improved.

In his report for 1909, Mr. A. W. Campbell, Deputy Minister of Public Works, has produced a public document of unusual value. It is more than a report of the work accomplished. It is a manual of road-building that should be in the hands of everyone engaged in this kind of public work. Besides giving instructions regarding road-building, it contains much illuminating criticism of existing methods and conditions.

Ontario has reached the stage where future needs must be considered in all improvements of the public highways. The day for temporary and slipshod work has passed, and the campaign of education that has been started must be pushed with vigor. Railroads have been developed to a point where they can do little more to overcome delay and congestion in the handling of crops and merchandise without good country roads to facilitate the work of hauling and distribution. This makes the question of good roads one of the most urgent at present demanding public attention.

DETECTING COWS BELOW PAR VALUE

From Farm and Dairy.

In one cow testing association the average production of 126 cows was 590 pounds of milk and 20 pounds of fat, not very much below the average of exactly 126 cows in another association close by, which was 609 lbs. milk and 26 lbs. fat. But notice how tremendously that comparatively small difference affects the total yield; for in the one case the 126 cows gave in the month 86,845 lbs. milk and 3,267 lbs. fat, but the other lot of 126 cows gave only 65,546 lbs. milk and 2,510 lbs. fat; or allowing butter fat to be worth 25 cents a lb., actually a difference of $189.25 in one month. Why are not thousands more of our dairy cows made to earn an extra dollar and a half a month for their owners? When the owners are perfectly certain through having tested each cow in the herd individually, which animals are bringing in a good profit, then the average yield and the total income can be largely increased.

Another contrast shows that 100 cows in one association produced just 27 pounds of fat less than 72 cows in another association 10 miles away, there were thus 25 cows more to be milked, and to have capital locked up in, and to tramp round on the pastures, eating good feed that the other cows could have used to better advantage, for 27 pounds less fat. Weighing and testing is the quickest and surest way of detecting those that are below par value.—C.F.W.

Do not wait until trouble comes, it may then be too late. Sold by medicine dealers or by mail at 25 cents a box from The Dr. Williams' Medicine Co., Brockville, Ont.

JOHN DRYDEN, THE FARMERS' FRIEND.

From Farm and Dairy.

The farmers of Ontario have lost in Hon. John Dryden a wise, practical and experienced adviser and friend, and one who had their interests close at heart. As Minister of Agriculture for Ontario, and as a breeder and exporter of pure bred stock, he earned a reputation that made his name familiar throughout Canada, the United States, and other countries. For his sympathy with all lines of our varied agriculture he came to be recognized as the most successful Minister of Agriculture that Canada and her provinces have known.

Mr. Dryden combined a thorough practical knowledge of Canadian agriculture, a keen appreciation of the value of scientific discoveries, good administrative abilties, and a broad, dignified, hopeful outlook of the farmer's calling. In his constituency, the agricultural society, the public school, the township council, the village church, all felt the influence of John Dryden, and he in turn was moulded by them. In 1879 he was chosen to represent the constituency in the Legislature, and he occupied a seat there every year, with the exception of one session, till 1905. As Minister of Agriculture, he wielded a great influence for good, and the name of "Honest" John Dryden will pass on into the ages in the annals of a better agriculture. Possibly Mr. Dryden was best known as an advocate of advanced methods in agriculture. He believed that scientific farming would produce the best results. This feeling led him to become a persistent, intelligent and enthusiastic promoter of the Ontario Agricultural College and Experimental Farm.

Mr. Dryden served his country well. He was honored by his fellowmen. He lived an honorable, straightforward life. Even his political opponents pointed to him with pride as an example and an inspiration for the young men of Ontario. Canadian agriculture owes much to "John" Dryden.

APPLE OUTLOOK IN CANADA

From Farm and Dairy.

There has been a decided change in the outlook for apples in Canada during the past month. Profuse blossoming indicated an abundant crop, but drought in June and early July and insects have lowered the prospects considerably.

In Nova Scotia, where a record crop was expected, the quantity for export will be at least 200,000 barrels less than last year when over 700,000 were shipped. Dry weather caused the fruit to drop badly. Clean quality is expected as scab has not shown to any extent so far.

New Brunswick and Prince Edward Island will not have enough apples to supply home demands. Quebec expects only a small crop. These three provinces will not export more than small quantities this year.

In Ontario, conditions vary. The Georgian Bay District promises a big crop; much thinning will have to be done to get quality. The counties bordering on Lake Erie do not expect more than a fair crop. Conditions in Lake Ontario counties are similar, only a medium crop being expected.

In British Columbia a light crop is looked for in orchards near the coast and a fair crop in inland valleys. The yield will be much less than was anticipated earlier in the season.

Present indications in all Canada point to a light crop of early and fall varieties and a medium crop of winters. Apple aphis has helped considerably to cause a heavy drop. This pest is in evidence this year more than ever before and has done much damage to foliage. Codling moth is showing in Eastern orchards but is not causing any anxiety. Our fruit generally will be clean. Most growers in leading districts practise spraying. —A.B.C.

ECONOMICAL FEEDS FOR HOGS

Reports obtained from Farm and Dairy correspondents on the "Hog Situation," some of which were published earlier in the season show that in nearly all cases where mill feed had to be purchased hogs were produced at a loss. Complaints were frequently made against the packer for paying a flat price for all kinds of hogs.

Mr. Owen Caugler, Dundas Co., Ont., voices the sentiments of a number of correspondents when he says, "I shall go out of raising the bacon hog unless the packers discriminate in price between the fat hog and the bacon hog, as it costs more to produce the latter."

Mr. W. J. Cunningham, Simcoe Co., Ont., says, "Nothing but a steady market will give confidence to the farmers. It is clearly seen that the farmers do not forget the way the price went down in the autumn of 1907 when there was a large supply of hogs. If we blame the packers and endeavor to retaliate by going out of hog raising that will not put any money in our pockets. We must be doing some business and do it on the most approved lines."

A number of correspondents of Farm and Dairy report having made a profit last year out of hogs, but they were men who raised the feed on their own farms, consisting largely of clover, roots, skimmed milk, whey and grain grown upon the farm. Mr. James Scott, Cedar Creek Road, says, "I would not know how to dispose of the skimmed milk if it were not for hogs. Dairying and hog raising go well together. I believe that when well conducted it gives better returns than any other business on the farm, if taken for a period of years."

We have little control of the market, but we all can make an effort to produce hogs for less than formerly, by feeding a nutritious feed that costs little. Alfalfa, from its heavy yield per acre, the large amount of nutriment it contains along with its palatability stands out prominently above all others. Rape and red clover come in a good second. If these are fed along with skimmed milk or whey and a little meal added they will make cheap feed for hogs in the summer. Sugar beets, mangels and turnips will serve as green feed in winter. Cheap feed does not always stand for cheap hog production. Good care, clean and dry quarters, regular feeding and a hog with a good constitution are all essential to profitable hog production. —H.G.

FOUGHT ON TERROR ISLAND

(Copyright, 1909, by the New York Herald Co. All Rights Reserved.)

"THE Senator has given me his solemn vow that he will never fight again if he can possible avoid it," said Ellen Harmis, adjusting the cushions at her back.

The two young men, who were paddling lazily at the oars, looked up from their silent and absorbed occupation, mutual restraint in each other's presence fading before the interest aroused by the girl's statement.

"I'd as soon believe that he never means to eat again," remarked Jefferson Wall, laughing.

The girl frowned at him. Royce Craig, who sat on the thwart nearest to her, was quick to take his cue from her unwonted seriousness and the disfavor with which she met his rival's impulsive remark.

"If there is any one who can induce him to abandon the practice that person is yourself, Ellen," he said. "The sturdy old fellow has proved his courage on the battlefield and in many a private encounter and you did well to get the promise from him."

Wall became combative on the instant.

"You couldn't expect a man like Senator Jackson to put up with an affront just because you've teased him into such an admission," he said. "He's fought at least nine times and every one honors him for it. If the occasion should arise again he wouldn't hesitate a moment to pick up the gauntlet."

"But he will not," said Ellen, taking the extreme view with the enthusiasm that was part of her nature. "I am his ward and he is my guardian and he cares as much for me as if I were his own daughter. I told him what I thought of his brutal code duello and he acknowledged I was right. I'm not going to have it said that Senator James Jackson is the most notorious duellist in the State of Georgia. It ends right here," and the determined girl planted one little hand in the other with an air of finality.

"Good for you," said Craig, openly admiring. "I'm glad, both for yourself and for the Senator.

This was the point for Wall to drop the discussion. Ellen Harmis could hold her own course, as he might have known. But he persisted, partly because Craig had sided with her.

"He can't do it, Ellen," he said decidedly.

The girl was plainly provoked.

"But he has promised."

"The promise was only provisional and it must fall when it interferes with the necessity of honorable retort," continued Wall, a shade pomposity. He began to resent Ellen's stand against his own superior judgment. She had never adopted such a tone to him before and it was not to his liking that Craig, whom he had recently distanced in the race, should be the witness to a difference between them. He felt that he had won the right to direct her stand toward matters falling so wholly within the masculine sphere.

"You have never favored me with your opinions on the subject before, Mr. Wall," answered the young woman, coldly.

There was a sharp rebuke in her manner as in her words. The implication was not flattering. Wall caught the angle of a smile on Craig's cheek. His temper slipped another notch. It seemed suddenly that all he had gained during his month as preferred suitor had escaped him.

The Call of Honor.

But still his pride and his irritation overbore his caution and forced him to aggravate an unnecessary situation.

"Whatever you may say you'll see that the Senator will not be lacking at the call of honor. He couldn't ignore it. And I, as a friend of his, wouldn't want him to. And you, down in your heart, would be ashamed if he did."

Wall applied himself to his oar and gave no response to the scornful flash from Ellen. Craig alone was smiling. He nodded encouragingly to the girl. This was better than he could have wished. He had more than half expected the announcement of an engagement that very day. Wall's false tenacity in a trifling discussion gave him hope.

There were several minutes of silence, and then Craig made some personal, casual remark in lowered voice, subtly and neatly completing Wall's exclusion. Ellen took his lead and they carried on an animated conversation until the landing at the Jackson farm was reached. It was Craig who walked abreast the young woman up the path, while the other trailed disconsolately after.

Ellen tried to come to an understanding with herself that evening. She had been sure of her affection for Wall, but what she chose to regard as his brutality and his churlish opposition to her raised a doubt. She felt that she had been too precipitate in her choice. If the man was so utterly lacking in sympathy with her cherished beliefs in such a thing he probably would be in others. With the decision born of a new but intense conviction she attached much importance to her "conversion" of her guardian, and it was indisputable that even while differing from her Wall might have shown more gentleness and tact.

So she argued, and yet—gentler thoughts obtruded—fragments of phrases from him that had sung in tune with her ideals; a haunting impression of his face, strong, clearly outlined, with firm, aggressive chin and honest glance; a certain stroll along the river; word of praise for him from many, notably the Senator; her earlier, complete faith in her happiness with such a man. Still, at the end she could not yield the position she had taken. It seemed monstrous that he should set himself against her in such a matter. And thus thinking she cried a little, then took herself to task, and so to sleep.

Senator Jackson held his usual honored place on the veranda of the Palmetto House toward nine o'clock. The young men of the neighborhood, who had made a hero to themselves of the stern veteran and political leader, were gathered on the steps, while the Senator with others of the elder men, filled the spacious chairs in privileged ease. There existed a tacit conspiracy among the members of the group that when ordinary topics failed Jackson was to be led by cautious degrees toward reminiscences. He never boasted of his many famous quarrels, and too great an eagerness ever failed of effect. To-night the talk took its course from politics to parties and thence to personal disputes, and the auditors waited upon the statesman's word. He began at an angle that was new to them.

"You speak of satisfaction rendered upon the field, sir," he said to the postmaster, in reply to a remark. "It begins to worry me, this loss of brave men that are needed more urgently for better things. I trust I have shown that no man may question my honor with impunity. But there is a limit, sir. Certainly it is to be regretted that the code has come to have such an importance in our dealings one with another."

Surprise held his hearers silent a moment. Here was a matter for remark indeed when Senator Jackson, survivor of so many affairs upon the field, openly joined the ranks of the opponents of duelling.

"Do you mean, Senator, that you would refuse another challenge?" asked the Postmaster, with some trepidation at his own boldness. Jackson hesitated a moment.

My Last Duel.

"I mean that I shall make every effort to avoid a misunderstanding that shall call for the arbitrament of arms," he answered slowly, "and so I have given my promise. In no case shall I seek a quarrel or take the first step. I have reason to believe," he added slowly, "that if I am ever summoned to the field again it will be the last time."

There was that in his tone which stopped a curious question on more than one tongue. Craig, who had communicated Ellen's remarks to several of his friends, smiled superior. Wall could not bring himself to accept the vague suggestion of cowardice that all his training forced him to read in such a speech.

Apparently the subject was closed for the night and the group began to break up, those present hurrying to play a central part in some other circle that "Jim Jackson had said he wouldn't fight no more, 'r as much as said it." Opinion in the community was divided after the incident had been thoroughly discussed. One view was voiced by the Postmaster, at a discreet distance from the Senator and his personal allies.

"Jim'll have another duel on his hands inside of a week, an' that's what he's plannin' for. There's Colonel Watkins been runnin' counter to him at the conventions lately and just spoilin' for a set-to. Jim's only leadin' him on, encouragin' him like, givin' out the idea in a general way that he's laid down. Oh, he's a clever old fox, he is! Can't you just see Jim Jackson doin' the New Jerusalem business and turnin' the other cheek?"

Whether this was the interpretation put upon the Senator's statement by Royce Craig it certainly was not the one that he advertised during a brief visit to the home town of Watkins, some ten miles distant, which he made on horse early next day. He carefully emphasized the impression existing in some minds to the effect that Jackson would shun another fight, seeking as confidants certain members of the clan of Watkins for that purpose. To the perspicacious young man it appeared desirable that the breach between Wall and Ellen Harmis should be kept open, and to his mind nothing would so surely produce that result as a test of the Senator's real stand. He said nothing of his journey upon his return.

During the ensuing week Wall did not visit the Jackson home. For two days he kept away because the incident on the river still rankled. After that he found cause for offence in the fact that he was not invited to a junketing of young folks arranged by Ellen.

The implied predictions of the Postmaster and those who believed with him in Jackson's ulterior motives seemed amply justified when Colonel Richard Watkins, long a political enemy of the Senator, rode up to the Palmetto House one afternoon with several followers and took up a commanding position on the veranda. Their arrival was noised about and there was a large attendance when the Senator sauntered along the street for his usual evening drink. Jackson bowed coolly to Watkins, who returned the salute in kind and ordered refreshment.

The atmosphere about the hotel was charged with trouble. There were a few among those gathered who hazarded unmeaning remarks from time to time in an uneasy attempt to relieve the growing tension, but even these knew that their efforts would be futile. Watkins, a powerful man of middle age, maintained an air of portentous gravity. Jackson, who was his elder by ten years, was equally restrained in his attitude.

Hurling the Defiance.

The group was alert for the first move on either side. Presently Watkins turned with an aside to one of his lieutenants, his words being perfectly audible to all.

"What's the name of that new assessor just named the other day?" he asked, shifting his tobacco into the other cheek.

"Mason?" suggested the man.

Every one within hearing held his breath. A babbler on the outskirts of the crowd talked on in a shrill voice for a moment and then, noting the oppressive silence, ceased suddenly. Mason, as was well known, was a henchman and a friend to Jackson, and owed his appointment to the Senator's influence.

"A skunk and a herder with skunks," continued Watkins softly, as if wrapped in contemplative reverie.

The bystanders wondered. "Jim" Jackson, the firebrand, who had made stalwart men eat lead for a sidelong glance in the street, sat quiescent under this direct insult like one who had not heard, or, hearing, feared to answer.

The Senator turned a calm but steely eye upon the speaker.

"Do I hear you discussing Mr. Mason, sir," he asked.

"Yes, sir; you do, sir," replied Watkins, waking suddenly to briskness.

"Mr. Mason is a gentleman, and I must protest against such language in reference to him," said Jackson mildly.

Amazement sat upon the faces of the auditors. Had the Senator some deep design in mind or had he, as some had suggested, gone soft in courage. Half a dozen of the younger men who belonged to Jackson look well to the consequences. This is the way I choose for our settlement.

"My opponent and I shall proceed to the Mississippi to a point I have in mind. A small island lies almost dead in the middle of the stream. It is perhaps half an acre in extent, wooded and grown thickly with underbrush. Colonel Watkins and myself will start from opposite sides of the river after nightfall, each alone in a skiff and armed with double barrelled shotgun and hunting knife. Each will remain by his skiff for ten minutes after landing on the island, when he will start into the brush in search of his antagonist. The seconds will not approach the island until daybreak. That is all."

Accustomed as he was to desperate encounters and absolute indifference to the chances of deadly combat between private enemies the studied bloodthirstiness of the conditions named by his principal appalled Wall. But he fully understood the significance of the affair. It was well planned for the result Jackson had intimated. Should the Senator survive no swashbuckler in the country would have the temerity to challenge him again. But it was a red price for peace.

The young man made no comment, as, indeed, he could not, but signified that he would carry out Jackson's wishes. He did not enter the Jackson home, the thought of Ellen being in mind, excusing himself by the remark that he would meet the Watkins emissary at the gate. When the opposing second arrived a few minutes later he proved to be the follower of Watkins who had sat next the Colonel on the veranda. He approached with the usual formal salutations and tendered the defiance of his principal. Wall communicated the startling conditions made by Jackson in a few brief words.

It was plain that the other was unprepared for anything of the kind. He had come with the air of one who expected to find an unwilling adversary, ready to eliminate the likelihood of a fatal outcome as far as possible. And in this, as Wall understood the plans of Watkins, it had been thought to take the Senator at a disadvantage, since the Colonel was a famous shot at long range with rifle or pistol. The young man judged rightly, however, that the challenger could enter no objection and after returning to the hotel for a consultation with his principal the second for Watkins brought an acceptance. It was arranged that the meeting should take place a week later.

In the interval news of the impending event was carefully kept from the Senator's ward. Wall was absent and Craig, for some reason of his own, kept silence, while plying his belated suit assiduously. It was not until the early evening of the date of the duel that he made his final play. Jackson had left the day after the challenge, pleading a business trip. Craig rushed into the house with all the appearance of one who has but just learned of a fearful calamity. Ellen met him in the hall.

Learning of the Duel.

"Have you seen the Senator recently?" was Craig's breathless phrase.

"No," replied the girl, in alarm; "he has been gone a week. Is anything wrong?"

"Then, it's true," gasped the young man, sinking on the stairs. "He's fighting again."

"A duel? Again? With whom?"

"Colonel Watkins. I got wind of it but a moment ago and ran to tell you. I was wrong to do it. It is too late."

She wrung her hands.

"Are you sure? Where are they?"

"Hundreds of miles from here now. At the Mississippi."

"Did any one know of this? Why was I not told before?" asked Ellen in anguish.

"There was rumor of a quarrel," said Craig, "which I made sure you must have heard. But only one person in town besides the Senator knew the particulars."

"And who was that?"

"Jefferson Wall. He's acting as second."

Preparations for one of the most terrible conflicts between two individuals recorded in history were under way at the point indicated by Senator Jackson at the moment when his ward first received word of his intentions. Leaving Watkins and his second on the eastern bank at sundown Jackson and Wall rowed a light skiff to the western side, moving up until they were abreast of the little island. Signals were exchanged by pistol shot between the parties when all was in readiness and the principals in the encounter shoved off alone upon the river. It was dark before either had covered half of the intervening distance.

Jackson laid well to his oars, aware that Watkins as the younger man would be likely to reach the island first. When the bow of his skiff thrust in at the foot of the low, undereaten bluff, he disembarked and made fast. Besides the double barrelled gun and hunting knife he carried a bag of buckshot and a powder horn, as he had arranged. Both barrels of his firearm were heavily loaded before he started. He renewed his priming and stood near the boat studying his watch by the faint, reflected light of the river. As it moved the last second of the ten minutes that had elapsed since he stepped ashore he swung himself up the short ascent by a branch and threw himself. Indian wise, amid the underbrush.

At no place was the island more than a hundred feet wide. It was ridged along the middle, the ground sloping away laterally. A light evening air was stirring and the heavily massed foliage overhead was full of whisperings. Jackson crept swiftly but cautiously toward the downstream end, keeping close to the edge of the low bluff on his own side. With every sense alert, his gun at trail and triggers at half cock, he made all possible speed while avoiding the slightest noise. He had determined to reach the lowest point of the land before planning aggressive tactics or starting in search of his adversary, thinking thus to escape a surprise from the rear. He was not unmindful that in this he might be exactly duplicating the manoeuvre of Watkins, and as he approached the sandy, reed grown spit at the end he slowed his movements.

After gaining a safe position behind the last clump of bushes he lay flat and waited. There was no sound save that made by the wind among the leaves. Ahead of him the wooded hogback of the island showed only as a darker space against the sky. Neither ear nor eye gave him an indication of his enemy's movements.

For half an hour he held his ground and then began to advance, crawling with infinite care and pausing after every move. Under the trees the way was less thickly grown than in the open, but the almost unrelieved pall of darkness was a compensating protection. Toward the centre of the island he could make out a narrow, treeless lane which gave an unobstructed opening toward the east. He dug among the soil with his fingers until he had unearthed a stone about the size of his fist. This he threw in the direction of the bank, snapping his gun ready with the same motion. The clatter of the missile on the rocks of the shore might easily have been mistaken for the misstep of a man below the bluff, but there came no answering sound, no shot, no rush of feet. After waiting a moment Jackson sank to his knees again and resumed his blind stalking.

He waited once more at the upstream verge of the woods, keenly observing each clump of grass, each darker shadow until he had assured himself that Watkins was not lying there in ambush. Then he turned and began his return journey. This time he kept further toward the eastern bank, where Watkins had landed. He was beginning to lose patience.

The Terrific Battle.

He had made less than fifty feet on this track when he stopped suddenly, warned by an animal instinct of danger. Slowly he examined each visible object about him, raising himself a few inches. His roving glance was arrested by a small tree that stood out beyond the line of woods just ahead of him. In the fork, about a man's height from the ground, he could make out a man's figure. Slowly he brought up his gun and took aim. The instant before he pressed one of his triggers there came a flash of fire from the tree. He answered savagely with both barrels and then, abandoning all concealment, stumbled, staggered and rolled toward the bluff, receiving Watkins' second charge midway.

The Senator plunged over the bank, bringing up on the narrow beach below. His left arm was almost useless, but with all the haste he could master he set about reloading. Standing on the sand he could reach head and weapon above the bluff. He sighted carefully upon Watkins, who was partly protected by the tree, and fired one barrel. The other returned the fire instantly and both men, guiding their aim more accurately by the flashes, discharged their reserve shots simultaneously. Jackson reloaded again and shifted his position further down the bank. Here he was more exposed by a slope in the ground, but he also deprived Watkins of part of his defence by taking the new angle. The Colonel was ready this time and fired twice as soon as Jackson showed himself. The Senator thought to take two deliberate shots, but Watkins dropped from the tree and Jackson sent the double charge at random into the shrubbery at its base. Throwing aside his gun he unsheathed his knife and rushed forward.

He caught sight of the figure of Watkins, creeping away into the obscurity of the woods and flung himself upon it. The Colonel, turning agilely, just had time to release his own firearm and draw his knife. The next second they were interlocked, each with a hand on the other's throat and the knives at play.

Wall, who had spent the night pacing up and down the western shore of the river, clambered into the second skiff they had towed when the first streaks of dawn showed upon the sky. He had followed the fusillade anxiously, but had learned nothing of the outcome from the reports. Since their cessation he had heard no further sounds. The fact that the Senator had not returned argued ill for the outcome. The young man rowed out into the stream and saw the Watkins' second put off from the opposite shore. They met below the island and Wall was informed that the Colonel had not come back.

The two seconds then landed on the lower end of the island and began their search. They found the two duellists where they had fallen in the final, desperate struggle. Jackson lay underneath. Across him was Watkins. The clothing of both was ripped to shreds, while bodies and limbs were covered with wounds and gashes.

"They've fought their last duel," said Wall's companion, with a touch of sentiment, bending to lift his principal aside. And then a strange thing happened: the white, streaked face of Senator Jackson showed signs of life. His lips opened slowly and his lips moved. They bent to catch his words.

"I thought folks would see it that way," he said, and fainted again.

Six months later the Senator was about once more in normal health, actively engaged in laying plans for the management of his reunited party organization, from which the death of Watkins had removed the last obstacle. His first public appearance after his convalescence was at the wedding of his ward, Ellen Harmis, to Royce Craig. While receiving the congratulations of his friends he was heard to remark that the one thing he regretted was the absence of his late second, Jefferson Wall, who had left the country soon after the duel.

During the remaining years of a long and busy life Senator Jackson was occasionally engaged in political discussions, but it was noticed that his opponents carefully avoided carrying matters to extremes.

THE NEXT SECOND THEY WERE INTERLOCKED, EACH WITH A HAND ON THE OTHER'S THROAT AND THE KNIVES AT PLAY.

QUEEN VICTORIA'S FRIEND.

Mme. Albani Was Intimate With Her Late Majesty.

Mme. Albani, who is just now singing at the London music halls, was educated at the Convent of the Sacre Coeur at Montreal, and so beautiful was her singing at High Mass in the chapel that people came from all the country round on Sunday to hear her, says M.A.P. Friends subscribed to put her under the first singing masters at Milan; and Samperti, after instructing her for about a year, dismissed her with the words, "Go and prosper. You have a fortune in your little throat!" At Malta, when singing in "La Sonnambula," she attracted the notice of Mr. Gye, who engaged her to sing in the same opera at Covent Garden, which she did with amazing success. Her appearance in other operas followed, and her triumph was even greater in oratoria, there being those who declared that her exaltation in the soprano airs of "The Messiah" surpassed that of Jenny Lind.

In private life Albani was much liked, and more particularly by Queen Victoria, who treated her as an intimate friend, and never omitted to send her little gifts and cards at Christmas and the New Year. When the prima donna visited Berlin in the early nineties she was received by the old Empress Augusta, a ghastly figure pale as death, but draped from head to foot in red!—yes, even her bonnet was red!—and lying prone on a sofa. The brilliancy and charm of the old lady's conversation soon made the prima donna quite forget the uncanniness of her appearance, and the two chatted happily until in came Kaiser Wilhelm and the Kaiserin, who asked for a song, and yet another. When Albani had warbled her last ballad, the Kaiser, shaking hands heartily with her, said: "Good-bye, and, when you see her, give my love to grandmamma!"

Whilst on the subject of Albani, I may tell a little anecdote that I heard from the lips of Patti herself. In early days, Patti one fine morning was walking down Regent street, London, arm-in-arm with her first husband, the Marquis de Caux. At the windows of the Stereoscopic Company she stopped to look at the photograph of her rival there displayed. "Look," cried a young man standing by, who did not recognise the diva, "at that photograph of Albani! Oh, she's Al, and Patti's nowhere now!" Patti turned quickly on the speaker. "Thank you, sir," she said, with a smart little bow, and tripped off gaily.

Steel From Black Sand.

W. J. Shaw, a Toronto man, claims that he can produce fine tool steel from sand. The production is effected by means of a secret process of preparation of material, and of a specially devised patentable furnace. Shaw recently took a newspaperman through the entire operation, beginning with the separation of the magnetite from the silicate sand obtained on Hanlan's Island, showing the electro-magnetic separator, of his own invention, the furnace, the material as prepared and briquetted for the furnace, the first and most important product, steel bloom, and the forged steel; giving the productive capacity of the furnace, the cost of fuel and of material and labor; and sandwiching in reasons why, and technical information galore. It all seems to demonstrate conclusively that high grade tool steel ingots can be produced from this black sand, at about the market price of charcoal pig iron. Who can estimate the revolution which such a discovery is bound to make in the tool steel manufacturing interest in this country?

An End In View.

Life savers do not take their work as seriously as the newspapers make out, sometimes.

The three-masted schooner St. Louis was ashore on the Island (Toronto) sandbar the other Sunday. She is an old timber drogher of the Welland canal type, built to fit the locks without any more waste of planking than necessary; in fact her general model conforms to the famous description "built by the mile and sawed off in lengths."

When the tiny fishing skiff that the Ward brothers had rushed through the breakers hung like a gull under the jibboom of the schooner, watching the chance to snatch the crew from the jaws of the devouring waves, the squareness of the vessel's bows was very noticeable to the life-savers.

"Say, cap," one of them yelled as their craft was hove up on a wave crest to the level of the shipwrecked crew, "to decide a bet, would you mind saying which is the front end of this vessel?"

A Town of Meerschaum.

The town of Vallecas, in Spain, is almost entirely built of meerschaum. Vallecas has on its outskirts great quarries of a meerschaum too coarse for pipemaking, and a meerschaum built town is the result—an ivory white town that shines in the Spanish sun.

Sunset in "the Red City" of Bavaria.

The numerous entrances to the old town of Rothenburg are guarded by beautiful watchtowers, which are inhabited by impoverished old women, who rent their airy lodgings for a nominal sum. The red twinkle of their lamps high over the dusky streets of Rothenburg at night—for it is as mediaeval in its lighting as in many other ways—is very charming in effect. The walls of Rothenburg are a constant delight to visitors, who, by dint of much squeezing through narrow passageways and groping in darkness, are able to make a circuit of the city, getting glimpses on the way through loopholes of the green country outside. Wondrous views of the town are also to be had from many of the distant hills. At sunset the sight of its graceful towers and clutter of red roof tops is like a fair vision of romance. The city blazes for a moment in a fiery mist, then suddenly melts, mirage-like, in the gathering dusk, leaving a sense of something born of dream, the illusion of an enchanter's wand.—Rothenburg Letter to Vogue.

Thought She Had Arrived.

"I have moved into a perfect gem of an apartment on the sixth floor of one of those new houses," said the woman who paints china, "and am reveling in its liberal supply of fresh air and sunlight."

"But don't you find the stairs an overbalancing disadvantage?" asked an acquaintance.

"The thought of the cosy quarters at such moderate cost colors my climb with the roseate hue of optimism," laughed the artist, "but one of my customers, middle aged and filled with good food and the joy of living, evidently found it a harrowing experience.

"It seemed ages that I waited in the hall after the ringing of the lower bell, and upon hearing the labored breathing of my ascending visitor I ran back for the smelling salts.

"When I had administered all the means of resuscitation at hand she managed to articulate between gasps:

"'I thought St. Peter always opened the door.'"—New York Times.

Food of the Chinese.

In the Revue d'Hygiene Dr. Malegnon, who lived for many years in China, gives some curious details of the food of the Chinese. This is what he says of the sons of heaven and the way they eat eggs: "The Chinese are great eaters of eggs, which they take hard boiled. One finds them in all the roadside places for refreshment. The Celestials have an expression, 'Eggs of a hundred years.' The eggs are not always a century in age, but one is able to get them of many years' standing. The Celestials have a preference for the egg of the duck or goose. They are placed with aromatic herbs in slaked lime for a period, the minimum time of treatment being five or six weeks. Under the influence of time the yoke liquefies and takes a dark green color. The white coagulates and becomes green. The product of the eggs, which has a strong odor, from which a stranger betakes himself quickly, the Chinese eat as hors d'oeuvres, and it is said to have the taste of lobster."

Expense No Object.

During an inclement spell of weather a lady of the order of the newly rich was so unfortunate as to contract a painful affection of the throat, and she accordingly accepted the advice of a friend that she consult a great London specialist noted for his expensive fees.

"Your ailment is not a serious one," said the specialist after examination. "You'll soon be all right. I'll just indicate to your family surgeon precisely where to touch your throat with nitrate of silver, and I think that will meet the case exactly."

"Oh, doctor," protested the wealthy matron in a tone of mingled surprise and indignation, "do order him to use nitrate of gold! Expense is a matter, I assure you, quite immaterial to me!"—London Answers.

Spontaneous Combustion.

Spontaneous combustion can only occur when oxidation causes the temperature to rise to the ignition point of the material. Spontaneous combustion of the human body is impossible on account of the heat regulating effect of the 75 or 80 per cent of water contained. The enormous heat necessary to dry the tissues sufficiently would destroy life long before ignition could take place. An old idea was that the alcohol in a confirmed drunkard might promote combustion, but Liebig showed that even if the body could give off inflammable vapor and this could become ignited the body itself would not be set on fire.

Her Proposal.

"You've been courting me now for a number of years, George," remarked a girl to a young man, "and I want to make a little leap year proposal."

"I—I am not in a position to m-marry just yet," stammered the youth, "but"—

"Who said anything about marriage?" interrupted the girl. "I was going to propose that you stop coming here and give somebody else a chance."—Philadelphia Inquirer.

Man's Superiority.

"Woman," exclaimed the suffragette, "is the equal of man in every respect."

"Oh, I don't know," replied a man in the audience; "it takes a man to put an angleworm on a fishhook."

The Bronx River.

TOOK HIM BY SURPRISE.

A Fresh Young Lawyer's Unexpected Experience With a Witness.

A fresh young lawyer had the insane idea that bulldozing a witness brought about the best results. He was the defendant's attorney in an important case and naturally was anxious to win. One of the witnesses for the plaintiff was a youngster of perhaps sixteen years of age, red headed, had a pugnacious bang to his jaw, and as he took his seat in the witness chair he gazed about the courtroom as if he felt perfectly at home. Then the young lawyer got at him.

"What's your name?" bellowed the exponent of Blackstone.

"Bill," was the quiet response.

"Bill what?"

"Bill Watt," repeated the boy.

"Now, see here, young man, don't get new. I want your name, and quick too. Again, what is it?"

"Bill Watt—Watt—Watt—Watt—that is it. Do you want me to whistle it?" saucily replied the youngster.

"Oh, I see—your name is Watt—W-a-t-t, eh?" said the lawyer as the audience grinned.

"You're on!" spoke the boy.

"Now, Bill Watt, pay strict attention to the question I'm going to ask you. Listen! Isn't it true that you have sometimes been called a prevaricator?"

"Come again!" was the reply. "I didn't get in right on that."

"A prevaricator, one who tells fibs. You know what fibs are, don't you?" explained the attorney.

"Well, I guess I'm not one of those prevaricator things—not by a long shot! You've got the wrong child, old scout," saucily remarked the red head.

"Very well," replied the lawyer. "We will let that pass. But, now, isn't it true that your father never brought you up in a proper manner? Isn't it true that he is rather shiftless, never works, makes your mother take in washing and"—

"Say, you—you"— The boy tried hard to get the words in.

"And isn't it true," continued the lawyer, "that he is, in fact, a sort of loafer and a"—

"Hold on! Hold on, there!" cried the boy, this time so everybody could hear him. "What's the use of askin' me them questions. Why don't you ask pop himself? He's sittin' over there on the jury!"—New York Times.

Eccentric Count Bertrand.

Count Bertrand, who lived in Paris, was a very eccentric man, and to one of his eccentricities he ascribed his long life. Once a year he would betake himself to bed and stay there for three months. On these occasions he would see no one but his servant, who brought him his meals, and even him he forbade to speak. Just before the Germans began the siege of Paris the count went to bed, and the servant, true to his injunctions, said nothing of the events going on around him. One day the bread proved so bad the count demanded an explanation, whereby, of course, he learned that Paris was encompassed by the enemy. Springing out of bed, the count paced the floor, repeating, "What should a Bertrand do under such circumstances?" Suddenly he stopped, exclaiming, "We should go to bed!" and to bed he went and stayed there until the siege was over.

"Billy" Maclean's First Campaign.

The death of Dr. McMahon, of Osgoode Hall, recalls the fact that it was in a campaign against the doctor that Mr. W. F. Maclean took his first plunge into politics. It was about twenty years ago. Dr. McMahon had represented North Wentworth for some years in the Ontario Legislature, and was again a candidate—a very popular one. It was a summer campaign, and a former Wentworth man, who then resided at Dundas, says that the first thing W. F. did when he went into the riding was to buy a big, broad-brimmed soft hat, and start out canvassing the farmers. The fight was a lively one. About that time the late A. F. Pirie bought The Dundas Banner, and his first appearance before a Dundas audience was at a joint meeting, where he and Maclean had it "hot and heavy." The latter lost the election, but only after a hard contest.

Miners Off to New Field.

The discovery of a placer mining area, 15 miles by five, near Cochrane, or 150 miles northwest of Cobalt, is the latest mining news from the north.

A man from Cobalt says that from three to four hundred men have stampeded from Cobalt to Cochrane, and more are preparing to follow. One man came down to Cobalt and reported that $75 per pan was being secured. This man had $1,500 in nuggets.

One Week.

My lady Monday goes to bridge,
On Tuesday to a play,
On Wednesday to grand opera
And lunch and bridge Thursday,
On Friday to a dinner-dance,
She motors Saturday
Long miles into the country for
A week end party gay.
But Sunday she appears quite late
In finishing neglige—
She really must conserve her strength—
From church she stays away!

Making the Best of It.

When the young husband reached home from the office he found his wife in tears.

"Oh, John," she sobbed on his shoulder, "I had baked a lovely cake, and I put it out on the back porch for the frosting to dry, and the dog ate it!"

"Well, don't cry about it, sweetheart," he consoled, patting the pretty flushed cheek. "I know a man who will give us another dog!"—Brooklyn Life.

Handing in His Decision.

"Well, sir," began the budding novelist, who had come to see about his manuscript, "I suppose you have by this time finished my latest effort, and"—

"Pardon me, young man," broke in the editor, "I confess I have not. I commenced it, but it was such an effort I couldn't finish it!"—New York Times.

HEAT PARLOR TRICK.

Sleight of Hand Feat That Mystifies If Well Performed.

Lay the piece of wood across the palm of your left hand, which keep wide open, with the thumb and all the fingers far apart, lest you be suspected of supporting the wood with them. Next take your left wrist in your right hand and grasp it tightly for the purpose, as you state, of giving the hand more steadiness. Now suddenly turn the back of your left hand uppermost, and as your wrist moves in your right hand stretch out the forefinger of your right hand, and as soon as the wood comes uppermost support it with such forefinger (Fig. 1). Now shake the hand and after a moment or two suffer the wood to drop. It is two to one that the spectators will admit it to be produced by the action of the air, as you had previously stated, and try to do it themselves. But of course they must, unless you have performed the feat so awkwardly as to be discovered, fail in its performance.

If you have no objection to reveal the secret you can do it again and while they are gravely philosophising upon it suddenly lift up your hand (Fig. 2) and expose the trick. This will doubtless create much amusement. Observe that in doing this feat you must keep your fingers so low that no one can see the palm of your left hand and move your finger so carefully that its action may not be detected, and if it be not you may rest assured that its absence from around the wrist of the left hand will not be discovered, some of the fingers being naturally supposed to be under the coat, so that if the spectators only see two or even one they will imagine the others are beneath the cuff.

LOCOMOTIVE SIGNALS.

Meaning of the Various Whistle Blasts Blown by the Engineer.

The railroad manager took a piece of paper and jotted down on it in dashes the several whistle signals in common use by all American railroads, accompanying each with a few words of explanation. Then he read as follows:

"One long blast (thus: ——) must be sounded when approaching stations, junctions or crossings of other railroads.

"Two long and two short blasts (like this: —— —— — —) are sounded just before crossing a wagon road.

"One short blast (thus: —) is the call for breaks, and two long ones (like this: —— ——) order them to be loosed or thrown off.

"Two short blasts (thus: — —) are an answering signal and mean 'All right, I understand,' while three short blasts (like this: — — —), to be repeated until acknowledged by the waving of a flag or lantern, mean 'I want to back the train as soon as you are ready.'

"Four long blasts (so: —— —— —— ——) call in any flagman who may have been sent out to the east or north, while four long blasts and one short one (like this: —— —— —— —— —) call in a flagman from the west or south.

"Four short blasts (thus: — — — —) are the engineman's impatient call to flagmen, switch tenders or trainmen demanding 'Why don't you show the signal for me to go ahead?' or 'What is the matter?'

"When a train is standing, five short blasts (such as these: — — — — —) are the order for a brakeman to run back along the track and display a danger signal for the next following train."

A Musical Evening.

The next time you have company give each guest a sheet of paper and a pencil. Then show them a table on which are displayed the following articles and ask them to write down a musical term represented by each one:

A quire of paper—choir. An open knife—sharp. Pieces of rope—chords. A pair of scales—scale. A Yale key—key. A large cane—staff. Quantity of pitch—pitch. A tape measure—measure. A written letter—note. A potpourri jar—potpourri.

When you have allowed sufficient time for all to answer all the numbers collect the papers and award a prize to the one having most correct answers. The latest topical song is an appropriate prize.

An Easy Parlor Trick.

Balance a cane on the back of a chair and bet any one that you will make it fall without touching it, blowing on it or moving the chair.

All you need to do is to dry a card well before a fire, rub it vigorously with your sleeve and put close to the end of the cane, which will follow it, as iron follows a magnet, until, after losing its equilibrium, the cane will drop to the floor.

Riddles.

A word of one syllable, easy and short,
Reads backward and forward the same.
It expresses the sentiments warm from the heart
And to beauty lays principal claim.
(Eye.)

What is it that is so dangerous that all people fear it, but which a woman proudly wears about her neck with comfort? (Boa.)

Magnetism.

First Dancer—She's a very attractive girl.

Second Sufferer—Yes; her father was a big steel magnate.—Yale Record.

CANCER AND LEPROSY.

A Theory That Connects These Maladies With Blackheads.

A French surgeon named Borrel has recently delivered a lecture at the Ecole de Medicin in Paris, in course of which he advances a novel theory concerning cancer and leprosy. He declares it to be his belief that the benefits of either malady is concealed in the black pinheads or blackheads which often disfigure our faces and from which, particularly in the nose and chin, scarcely any one is entirely free. When extracted these pinheads or blackheads have the appearance of little worms. They consist of what is known as sebaceous matter, this matter being produced from certain glands with the object of supplying the skin with its due quantity of oil.

Dr. Borrel has been experimenting and has found, with the aid of a very powerful microscope, that this sebaceous matter nearly always contains a bacillus which is cancerous or crab-like in form.

After the age of fifty most persons, male as well as female, throw off much of this sebaceous matter in the ordinary process of aging. The face and chest in particular exude most sebaceous matter. It is about this age, declares Borrel, that cancerous developments begin to make their appearance, and the coincidence is worth remarking.

Hitherto heredity has been charged with being the real promoter of cancerous and leprous evils, it being asserted that the insanitary conditions of former ages were responsible for bringing the bacillus into being. The Metchnikovian theories of microbiasy and macrophagy have, however, threw new lights upon the subject. Given the theory, moreover, of Haeckel's—to wit, that the intelligence of all living organisms, no matter how small, enables them to secure the best opportunities for survival—it is conceivable that the crab bacillus of cancer may have found the sebaceous matter in the face the best region in which to promote his happiness and propagate his species.

Dr. Borrel advises those whose face and body are disfigured by blackheads to beware. A solution of alcohol with from 2 to 3 per cent of salicylic acid is, he says, an excellent preventive. Lemon juice is also good.—New York World.

The Interior of the Earth.

The University of Jena has just awarded the prize for the best essay on the condition of the interior of the earth. M. Thiene, who won the University of Jena's prize, did it with the following theory:

The mean density of the earth is known to be more than five times that of water. As the outer layers of the crust have a very feeble density—water 1, rocks an average of 2½—it follows that the interior must have a density of about 7.7, which is that of iron. Again, there is enough accurate information about the rigidity of the earth to make it fairly certain that this is slightly greater than steel. M. Thiene calculates that the crust of the earth is about 930 miles thick, though most of the best authorities are inclined to place it at about thirty miles. If his figures be correct, there must be inside the crust an exceedingly dense and rigid core, which he calls barysphere.—New York World.

Where Tipping Is Barred.

Tourists generally will be interested in the new regulations in force on the German railways. They are drastic, which is not an unusual quality in German rules, and on the whole they seem to be just and practical. Tipping of railway employees on trains is prohibited; passengers giving tips will be punished. The railways will be responsible for passengers' baggage for fourteen days and at all times responsible for luggage lost. Children over ten years will not be permitted to travel in compartments reserved for women. If a train is full a traveler, although he may have a ticket, may be compelled to wait for the next train. A friend taking leave of a traveler and remaining in the train until it moves will have to pay a fine of $1.50.—Milwaukee Wisconsin.

Animals as Seismometers.

Animals have again, in Sicily and Calabria, shown that they know more about coming earthquakes than men know. An official at Messina was worried by his dog on the eve of the disaster. The animal would not stay quiet for a moment, and his barking was such a nuisance that his master beat the wise brute. Their night was so restless that the man gave up all hope of sleep, and he and the dog left home soon after 4.30 a. m. As soon as the dog was out of doors he ran away, and the master followed him. Thus both were still outside the town when the crash came, and the man acknowledges that he owes his escape from (probable) death to his good, saintly dog.—Dundee Advertiser.

The Next Problem of Invention.

Certainly plenty of ridicule is being talked about aerophiles. England, forsooth, is to be de-listed in a year or two by the Zeppelins. Perhaps Mars is not safe from the intrusions of the aviators. We foretell that in a short time the new terror will be a subterrene ship, which will sail through the earth as easily as the others sail through the water and air.—London Saturday Review.

To deal honestly with others is not so difficult. To compel others to deal honestly with you—that is power.—Smart Set.

HER GREAT HAUL.

The Female Burglar Wasn't Looking For Diamonds or Greenbacks.

It was 2 a. m. on Easter morning, and all was not well.

Quiet reigned supreme, however, on Fifth avenue, the scene of our tale, and only occasionally was the silence broken by the moans of some female who tossed and turned and dreamed that the bull pup had devoured her new Easter bonnet.

As the hour rang out a man and woman muffled up to the ears and glancing suspiciously about them turned in from a side street, and that they were not out to buy a piano on the installment plan or to view the scenery would have been evident even to a policeman had one been in sight. The couple had walked a distance of three or four blocks when the man nudged his companion and softly said:

"That's the house, Lil; four doors ahead there, to the left."

"I see it, Bill," she whispered.

A moment later they stopped in front of a large brownstone residence, and after a careful look up and down the street the gate was opened, and they were soon at work. As they stood in the handsomely furnished front hall the woman said:

"You remain here on watch, Bill, while I get the swag. If all goes well we may be able to buy out that gambling house and become honest people."

"Take no chances, Lil," he cautioned her. "I'd do the trick myself, only I want to be near the door, where I can watch the moon."

With a dark lantern in one hand and a revolver in the other, she softly tiptoed up the broad stairway, and it was half an hour later when she returned to her companion with a large bundle in her hand.

"Anything doin'?" he asked.

"The best haul we ever made!" she excitedly replied. "Come, let's get out of this."

An hour later they were safe at home, and as the man removed his hat and overcoat he remarked:

"Sparklers and silverware, I suppose."

"No, Bill; I didn't see a diamond in a room I searched."

"Well, it's just as well. Bank notes are good enough for us, and it's no trouble to get rid of 'em."

"Nor did I come across any bank notes," said the woman as she began to unwrap the package.

"But—but I thought you said you had made the haul of your life. What have you got there, anyway?"

"Look, Bill—just look at that!" And she held up a woman's hat for him to see. "Isn't that just the swellest Easter bonnet you ever laid your eyes on? And today's Easter too!"—A. B. Lewis in Judge.

Called.

When they drew near an ice cream soda sign he started up an animated conversation to divert her attention. However, she was wise to the trick.

"Darling," he whispered rapturously, "you are the prettiest girl I ever met. You are as pretty as a picture postal card."

She smiled sardonically.

"Indeed!" she responded. "And do you know, Percy, that you remind me of a picture postal card."

"Ah! Because I am so handsome?"

"No. Because you are so cheap."

And after that there was nothing to do but take her back to the marble counter and set up the sodas.—Chicago News.

THE RIGHT BAIT.

She used a charming smile for bait;
She cast it very nicely.
He wouldn't bite—at any rate
It failed to work precisely.
She then threw out a line of wit;
She heard of that succeeding.
He nosed around a little bit,
But didn't feel like feeding.

She boasted a lot of furbelows—
Some shirt waists, perforated;
Frilled skirts and pretty silken hose—
But all in vain she waited.
A reputation as a cook
She tried as most inviting;
But, though he stayed about the hook,
He still was far from biting.

At this her spirits rather sunk;
She almost felt like crying.
But flattery—a goodly chunk—
Just then she thought of trying.
Then—phtt!—he made a sudden dart,
His eyes and mouth expanded.
And, with a wildly beating heart,
She had the big fish landed.
—Kennett Harris in New York Evening Journal.

It was in darkest Africa.

"The hunt shall not be in vain!" thundered Teddy, the strenuous.

"Aye, aye, mighty chief!" chorused the dusky guides.

"We shall bag a white rhinoceros and a white elephant."

"We shall!"

"And if for any reason we fail to sight a white rhinoceros and a white elephant we have a ton of whitewash in our caravan to use on the black ones. Forward!"

With a mighty thrashing of undergrowth Teddy and his band vanished into the forest.—St. Louis Post-Dispatch.

In a Draper's Shop.

At a draper's shop in Leeds they employed a small boy to run errands. The other day while he was waiting in the shop a lady came in and asked the shop assistant for a yard of silk. When it was placed in front of her she exclaimed:

"Oh, really, I must be mad. I want muslin."

On hearing this the boy rushed out of the shop and, seeing a policeman across the way, ran up to him, shouting:

"Come over quick! There's a girl in our shop gone mad. She wants muzzling."

All In.

The Hostess—I hope you will like this punch. My husband worked over it all the afternoon, making it with his own hands.

The Guests—It's grand! Where is your husband? We must congratulate him.

A Difference.

"I don't see why that idiotic swell set should turn down Nuritch."

"Well, he's a self made man, you know."

Yes, but so is Snodgrass, and they admitted him."

"Ah, yes! But he was made in England, don't you know." — Catholic Standard and Times.

Nothing Doing.

The Barber—Will you have your hair singed?

The Victim—Why should I?

The Barber—It'll make it grow better.

The Victim—Yes, and then you get to cut it oftener. Comb it dry, please, and hurry up!—Cleveland Leader.

Kept Him on a String.

"I kept my husband on a string five years before I consented to marry him!"

"Why so long?"

"Well, you see, I waited until I could see his way clear financially!"—Lippincott's Magazine.

Business Habit.

"When you asked the telephone girl to break gently to Mrs. Binks that her husband had hung himself, how did she do it?"

"She called: 'Hello, Mrs. Binks! Your husband's on the line.' "—Baltimore American.

Dessert.

"I say, Elsa, what are you going to serve for dessert?"

"Oh, the usual things—cakes, candy and opera singers; then teas, liqueurs and professional soloists; afterward fruit, coffee and poets."—Fliegende Blatter.

How Victor Hugo Proposed.

Adele, bolder and more curious than Victor (for she was a girl), wanted to find out what was the meaning of his silent admiration. She said: "I am sure you have secrets. Have you not one secret greater than all?" Victor acknowledged that he had secrets and that one of them was greater than all the rest. "Just like me!" cried Adele. "Well, come, now; tell me your greatest secret, and I will tell you mine." "My great secret," Victor replied, "is that I love you." "And my great secret is that I love you," said Adele, like an echo."—"Love Letters of Victor Hugo."

Women in Trousers.

In the pretty Alpine village of Champery, in the canton of Valais, Switzerland, the peasant women wear trousers and waistcoats in place of skirts and bolaros, and the only distinguishing badge of their sex is a scarf knotted around their hair, the bright red ends of which float coquettishly over their shoulders. The women of Champery work in the open air, performing the same kinds of labor as the men, and long ago their ancestors found that they could work more easily in trousers than in skirts.

Line of Least Resistance.

"A man will scrutinize the menu card for half an hour and then order a steak."

"Or examine a bushel of summer resort folders and then go to his usual place."—Kansas City Journal.

By Hook or by Crook.

"By hook or by crook" is an allusion to an ancient manorial custom which permitted the neighboring poor to take all the wood that they could reach and pull down from the forest trees, using only their shepherd's crooks.

If You Rid Poisons FROM THE BLOOD

By awakening the liver and kidneys, you will be freed of pains, aches and the tired spring feeling.

Poisons only accumulate in the blood. Pains and aches have the same cause.

Poisons only accumulate in the blood when the liver and kidneys get torpid and slow in action and when, as a result, the bowels become constipated.

When they fail because of the excessive accumulation of poisons in the spring, use Dr. Chase's Kidney-Liver Pills, and they will soon resume their natural functions with renewed energy and vigour.

No other organs of the body can filter the poisons from the blood so you must get the liver and kidneys active if you are going to restore healthful digestion, regular bowel action and free the body of pains, aches and feelings of fatigue and depressing.

It is only natural that the liver and kidneys should give out in the spring, when the blood is usually loaded with impurities, but you can quickly and certainly set them right by using Dr. Chase's Kidney-Liver Pills.

This is the greatest of spring medicines because it is unique in its direct and combined action on the liver and kidneys.

Put it to the test this spring, and you you will be astonished at its wonderful prompt and thorough action on the digestive and excretory systems. You can be certain that it will move the bowels, awaken the action of the liver and kidneys and completely purify the blood. One pill a dose, 25c a box, at all dealers or Edmanson, Bates & Co., Toronto.

Danger in Eye Poultices.

Do not poultice an eye in any circumstances whatever. Binding a wet application over an eye for several hours must damage that eye, the assertions of those professing to have personal experience in this to the contrary notwithstanding. The failure to aggravate an existing trouble by binding a moist application over an inflamed eye, which application is supposed to remain for an entire night, can only be explained by the supposition that a guardian angel has watched over that misguided case and has displaced the poultice before it had got in its fine work. All oculists condemn the poultice absolutely, in every shape and in every form. Tea leaves, bread and milk, raw oysters, scraped beef, scraped raw turnip or raw potato and the medley of other similar remedies popularly recommended are one and all capable of producing irremediable damage to the integrity of the tissues of the visual organ.—Family Doctor.

A Safe Method.

Stout—How did Fox get the reputation of being such a profound thinker?

Slim—By talking on subjects that nobody understands and thereby avoiding the chance of having his arguments definitely refuted.

Misconstrued.

"It is dangerous to kiss a peroxide blond," remarked the scientist.

"His wife is a brunette," commented an auditor who did not seem impressed.—Philadelphia Ledger.

SUN PRANKS.

Irregularities For Which Science Cannot Altogether Account.

The sun is generally looked upon as a model of regularity which never fails in its duty, but the ancient historians mention several instances when it failed to give forth its usual amount of heat and light for periods varying from three hours to several months. Data on the subject have been compiled by the St. Louis Republic.

According to Plutarch, the year 44 B. C. was one in which the sun was "weak and pale" for a period approximating eleven months.

The Portuguese historians record several months of diminished sunlight in the year 934 A. D., and, according to Humboldt, this uncanny period ended with "strange and startling sky phenomena, such as loud atmospheric explosions, rifts in the vaulted canopy of blue above and in divers other rare and unaccountable freaks."

In the year 1091, on Sept. 29 (see Humboldt's "Cosmos"), the sun turned suddenly black and remained so for three hours and did not regain its normal condition for several days.

According to the noted Helmuth's "Solar Energy," the days of seeming inactivity on the part of the sun (the days following the sudden blackening of the great orb) were noted for a peculiar greenish tinge and are marked in old Spanish, French and Italian records as "the days of the green sun."

February, 1106 A. D., is noted in the annals of marvelous phenomena as a month in which there were several days that "the sun appeared dead and black, like a great circular cinder floating in the sky."

"On the last day of February, 1208," says an old Spanish writer on astronomy, astrology and kindred subjects, "the sun appeared suddenly to go out, causing a darkness over the country for about six hours." In 1241 the Europeans countries experienced another siege of supernatural darkness, which the superstitious writers of that time attributed to God's displeasure over the result of the great battle of Liegnitz.

Even today there are certain irregularities of the sun that science cannot altogether account for. These are the so called sun spots—enormous dark splotches which appear from time to time on the solar disk and which are supposed to have great influence on the atmospheric conditions of the earth. Scientists have long studied these phenomena, but neither their extent nor periodicity has ever been determined.

MEXICAN HOTELS.

They Close Early, and Guests Out Late Must Tip the Porter.

"I'm glad to be back in the land of the latchkey," said a mining engineer who had been in Mexico for the past year. "In France, Spain, Italy and throughout Latin America there is a servant in every house and hotel whose business it is to open the door. In Mexico you would think, being so near this country, that the American latchkey would be common. But even in the finest hotels in the capital the big doors are closed at 11 o'clock, and to gain admittance after that hour you have to pound on them with the great knockers that hang outside. After five minutes you hear a sleepy grunt within, then some mutterings and the Spanish word which means 'I'm coming.' Finally the small door in the center of the big one will be unbarred, and you step inside. Then if you don't want to sleep in the park the next night you are kept out late you give the 'portero,' as the keeper of the gate is called, a piece of silver. Between 11 and midnight the fee is 10 cents. From 1 on until morning the gratuity, regulated by custom, steadily increases. Between 1 and 3 it is from 25 to 40 cents, and after 3 it is half a dollar.

"Many a night I have been awakened by the pounding of the knockers in the neighborhood of my hotel. I timed one man for ten minutes before I fell asleep. Probably he had neglected to fee the 'portero' or else the keeper of the gate was drunk, as he frequently is. These 'porteros' usually sleep curled up in blankets just inside the door on the stones with which every interior courtyard and entrance is paved, and all of them have colds. Yet it is a position much sought after, and the gatekeeper ranks highest among the servants."—New York Press.

The Honeymoon.

The honeymoon has no definite duration, but is longer or shorter according as the temper of the high contracting parties determines, or their relatives, or the weather, or the mode of the comparative cost of traveling and staying at home. Briefly, it is that interval during which the man, going out in the morning, remembers his kiss and forgets his overshoes as distinguished from the interval during which he remembers his overshoes and forgets his kiss.—New York Life.

He Doesn't Like Peanuts.

When, fifty-four years ago, Sir Robert Hart was first attached to the British Consulate at Ningpo, he had an experience which was the reverse of pleasant. He was traveling to Shanghai in a 150-ton schooner, and the voyage took three weeks instead of one, on account of a monsoon. Provisions gave out, and the ship's company were reduced for twelve days to an unsavory diet of water-buffalo and peanuts—all they could get from a nearby island. "Was it any wonder that Hart could never afterwards endure the taste of peanuts, or that at the sight of a passing water-buffalo his appetite was clean gone for the day?"

This is not the only occasion when Sir Robert has experienced some of the troubles of starvation. During the Boxer rebellion of 1900, when the Legation of Pekin was besieged by the fanatics, Sir Robert, in common with the other refugees, cheerfully stomached, "which was hatefully coarse when it was fat, and unutterably tough when it grew lean."

Lord Charles Beresford on Irishmen.

The Emerald Isle is proud of "Charlie," and "Charlie" is proud of his native land and countrymen. "Irishmen may have their faults," he says, "but give me an Irishman—the best fellow that ever was. Could anybody tell more stories than the Irish?" One of the best stories he ever heard was about a fellow who was fond of shooting. He said, "The first bird I ever shot was a squirrel, and the first time I hit him I missed him altogether, and the next time I hit him I hit him in the same place, and after that I took a stone and dropped him from the tree, and he fell into the water and was shot, and that was the first bird I ever shot." And Lord Charles is never tired of quoting the story of the Irish member of the House of Commons who compared a certain whisky to a "torchlight procession trickling down his throat."

Bedlam.

The word "bedlam" is a corruption of the word "Bethlehem" and originated as a synonym for chaos at the time when the priory house of Bethlehem, occupied by a sisterhood of London, became an insane asylum. The treatment of the insane in the early part of the sixteenth century was not well understood, and, according to the theories then prevalent, it was necessary to frighten the patient out of his lunacy. All sorts of awful expedients were resorted to, among them "surprise floors," which slipped from under the feet; "surprise baths" and floggings at the periods of most severe illness; hence the name "bedlam," the result of incorrect spelling, possibly, came easily to stand for awful things.

English Peers Can't Vote.

Disfranchisement is one of the peculiar disabilities under which a peer of the realm suffers. Lord Salisbury once attempted to secure a vote for Hertford and Middlesex, but the revising barrister at Hatfield refused the claim on the ground that time had given the disability the character of law and that peers, by the law of Parliament necessary for the dignity and freedom of the two Houses, were not permitted to vote for members of the House of Commons. Lord Salisbury took the case to the Appeal Court, but as he could quote "neither precedent nor authority" he was obliged to go back to Hatfield without his vote.—London Chronicle.

Toronto's Experiment In Putting Oil On The Streets

Ald. Gillespie Has Suggested That It Be Tried in Peterborough—Cheap, Clean and Satisfactory—Autoists Approve Of It.

HOW IT ACTS ON DUST

Toronto, Aug. 4.—After a trial of close on to two months, Toronto's experiment of oiling macadam streets for the purpose of laying the dust seems to have given entire satisfaction. This is the emphatic declaration of Dr. Sheard, who is officially the medical health officer of the city while for several years he has also fulfilled with complete acceptance the duties formerly discharged by the street commissioner. It was under his direction that the experiment was initiated and carried out, and it is probable that within a short time the system will be adopted permanently by the city.

Dr. Sheard yesterday gave The Journal a sketch of the city's experience. He began with a brief history of the use of oil as a dust layer. It was first used in Egypt for that purpose hundreds of years ago, but its first modern adoption was by the railways twenty-five or more years ago. While completely successful in abolishing the dust nuisance, it had to be dropped by the railway for several reasons. One was the cost of treating hundreds of miles of track, and another was the impossibility of keeping it off the rails, where it caused the wheels of the locomotives and cars to skid. On public roads and park roadways, however, it has been successfully used in California, Texas and in Philadelphia and other Pennsylvania cities where oil is native. The oils used have been of various kinds, but mostly petroleum. Various experiments have been tried by mixing it with other substances, such as tar, soap, fatty derivatives, etc., but the most general satisfaction has been given by the use of oil alone In Pennsylvania the oil has no smell while in Texas the crude oil is miscible with water. The latter oil has been tried in Buffalo with satisfactory results.

LARGELY A WASTE PROJECT.

The oil used for the Toronto experiment is called crude petroleum residue, and is a by-product of the distillation of petroleum, and owing to the small demand, it is largely a waste product! It is used occasionally for firing purposes, being called fuel oil, and producing an enormous heat. As it comes on the market as a product for which there is comparatively little demand, it is cheap, that used in Toronto being procurable in large consignments for 4 cents a gallon. It is put on the streets in the crude, undiluted state, by means of ordinary watering carts.

The oil is sprinkled lightly, the object being to have it deposited in separate drops and not in puddles. Where puddles occur by accident they should be broomed up by an ordinary broom and not allowed to remain. After an interval of three or four days this is repeated, and a third application is made about a week later This constitutes one full treatment, and on an ordinary road should last from one to two months. If the road is in good condition and is shaded, the treatment should last for the whole season. Better results are obtained by preparing the road surface by levelling ruts and removing holes and declivities. If a moderate coating of dust is left on the road it is better than if the oil is applied directly on the bare stones and packed

SATISFACTORY RESULTS

The oil has been found to give satisfactory results on a sandy road that has not been macadamized. As an experiment, St. Clair avenue, in the extreme north of the city, was oiled. Before the application there was a coating of about six inches of fine dust on the road. One watering only served to produce bead-like drops of mud on the dust surface, and the mash had to be sluiced with water to lay the dust. It required a heavier application of oil than a macadam bottom, but the result was to give a firmer and a dustless surface.

Two treatments of oil suffice for the average road for the season. The quantity of oil required for the three sprinklings embraced in one treatment is about 1,500 gallons per mile This costs $69, while the labor to put it on costs $10 more. As already stated, on an average road this will last for about six weeks, and in favorable circumstances longer. The cost of watering the street twice a day would exceed this figure, while there is the additional advantage that the dust is laid for every hour in the twenty-four, instead of only for two or three hours after each watering. Rain does not seem to injure the process. On the contrary, the rainfall seems to wash the oil to the surface again, and so rain is benefit rather than an injury to the oiled road.

CHEAPER THAN WATERING.

Up to July 13, 20,000 gallons of oil were applied to the streets of Toronto, and this quantity served to oil over 60 per cent. of the macadam streets of Toronto, and this quantity served to oil over 60 per cent. of the macadam streets of the city. The records to that date to date show that the oiling was 25 per cent. cheaper than street watering would have been Nine water waggons, costing $30 each per week to operate, have been dispensed with.

Of course, there have been objections to the scheme, based principally on the disagreeable and sometimes sickening odor of the oil when it is first applied to the road. With the oil used in Toronto, however this smell disappears in half a day or at most a day, as the oil soaks into the road surface, and no further annoyance is felt from it. Considering the extensive use of the oil in Toronto, the complaints have not been numerous, and Dr. Sheard states that he did not receive more than 15 in all. The objection on the ground of odor is practically the only one that can be urged against the use of the oil. On the other hand, citizens whose roadways have been oiled are enthusiastically in favor of the scheme and desire its continuance, while residents on other streets have clamored for its extension, and Dr. Sheard has more requests of this nature than he can undertake to grant at the present time.

Another minor complaint that is made is that ladies have their skirts soiled by the oil. To this Dr. Sheard answers that a dusty or muddy road is open to the same objection Skirts are allowed to trail, while he also states that the oil sinks so rapidly into the roadway that two hours after its application he found it impossible to soil a handkerchief by laying it on the road and standing upon it.

NOT THE CASE.

It was at first thought that the oiled streets would injure the rubber tires of automobiles and bicycles, but this has not been the case. One of the streets oiled six weeks ago was Temperance street, which in its length of a single block has three automobile supply houses and garages. There has not been a single complaint of injury to tires. On the contrary, automobile owners and drivers are among the most ardent supporters of the innovation, as apart from the physical discomfort caused by dust, they find that great injury is caused to the intricate machinery of their cars is caused by dust and mud splashes.

Ottawa is not the only municipality that is enquiring into the merits of oil as a dust-layer. The progressive town of Barrie has written for information, and other cities and towns are taking the matter up. Perhaps it is not too much to hope that the thrifty farmer may be brought to see the advantages of oil sprinkling and that thereby driving in the country may lose its most unpleasant feature.

Colonel G .C. Nugent has been promoted to command the Irish Guards, inp lace of Colonel Cooper, retired.

The death is announced of Sir Reginald Robert Bruce Guinness, who was a magistrate and deputy-lieutenant for the city of Dublin.

The area bounded by Grosvenor Road, Cullingtree Road, Durham St., and Falls Road, Belfast, was the scene of much rowdyism and disgraceful attacks upon the police on the twelfth of July.

A verdict of suicide whilst temporarily insane was returned at the inquest on the body of Mark O'Flaherty, wealthy builder and contractor, whose dead body was found suspended by a rope from the rafters of the stable at the back of his house in Galway.

There is to be seen at Benburb (Co. Tyrone) a curious structure in the shape of an old sentry hut, surmounting which was a sun dial. This hut, which was used by the military during stirring periods of Irish history, is situated in Main street, Benburb, and bears the date of 1703. It was considered advisable in later years to build in the door of the hut, which was immediately behind the pump.

In affirming a conviction for selling adulterated milk, the Dublin Recorder referred to what he described as the nefarious traffic of buying milk from persons by an arrangement that when one was caught the person who supplied the adulterated milk should pay the fine. It was a state of affairs striking at the lives of the children of thecity. He believed that fines were wholly inoperative, and the way to deal with the matter was by imprisonment.

SCOTLAND

Mrs. Mary Wilson, Methil, who died at the advanced age of 96 years, was at her death the oldest person in the parish of Wemyss, and also possibly in the county of Fife. Mrs. Wilson was somewhat of a "character," and had been familiarly known locally as "Mary Poute" to the past as well as the present generation of the inhabitants of Methil.

A. B. Millar, General Superintendent of the Local Government Board for the Highlands, who has been promoted to Lanarkshire and Hugh Fraser, Inspector of Poor, Inverness, who is retiring from the secretaryship of the Northern District Association of Inspectors of Poor Association, were entertained to a cake and wine banquet.

All but the most maudlin sentimentalists shrank from petitioning for a reprieve for Alexander Edmonstone, who the other morning was hanged in Perth General Prison. His was a crime of the most dastardly character. The lust for gold made him sell his soul, and he hammered to death a young messenger boy for the sake of a few paltry pounds.

The report of the annual meeting of the Aberdeen Football Club reads like that of the shareholders of an ordinary business company, only in place of explanations as to good or bad trade are allusions to accidents to players, the suspension of O-Hagan, the loss of Simpson, want of luck in the Scottish Cup-ties, and the disarrangement of the Scottish League fixtures.

The fourth annual Children's Mad was held at Inverness, when nearly 500 children took part in the various competitions, which included Gaelic singing and recitations. There were competitions for the playing of Highland music on the pianoforte and the violin, and there was also for the first time a Highland bagpipe competition, for which six youthful pipers entered.

HERPICIDE NOT A FAKE.

Unsolicited Testimonials Tell of Its Superiority.

Alf. R. Kelley, residing at 2195 Devisadero St., San Francisco, Cal., writes the following:

"When I first purchased Herpicide, I thought like the majority of hair preparations, it would prove a fake. I am happy to state that, on the contrary, it is all, and even more, than you claim for it. Quite a number of barbers throughout the section in which I travel have called attention to the new hair sprouting out on my scalp, and inquired of me what I have been using. I tell them 'Herpicide'; also give them your name and address." Sold by leading druggists. Send 10c in stamps for sample to The Herpicide Co., Detroit, Mich.

SUNDAY SCHOOL LESSON QUESTIONS

August 8, 1909.

Paul's instructions to the Thessalonians. I Thess. x:12-24.

Golden Text.—See that none render evil for evil unto any man; but ever follow that which is good. I Thess. v:15.

Verses 13-15.—What is the dominant note to-day between officials of the church and the pastor, is it official and business, or is it spiritual, that of felt tender love and warm esteem?

Do ministers as a class "labour" as hard, and suffer as their Master did, and thus compel the tender love and esteem of the church?

Does the average minister or not, actually "labour" as hard as the average mechanic, farmer, business or, professional man, and practise as much self-denial as these?

What is generally the real character of those who will not support the church because they do not like the minister?

What is the only way by which to have "peace" among brethren in a church or in a community?

Verse 14.—If you know anything against a fellow Christian what is the right thing to do, (1) say nothing about it; (2) talk about it to others; (3) correct him in the presence of others, or (4) see him alone and in love tell him what you have to say?

Jesus went about lovingly helping people, in their bodies, their souls, and circumstances; if you and I are not doing that, have we a right to conclude that we are not followers of Jesus?

Is it your duty, as a Christian, to take pains to "comfort" everybody with whom you come in contact, and if you are so doing, what is the effect upon your own life?

Verse 15.—If my neighbour sets his dog on my sheep, pulls down my fences in the night, shoots my chicken when one gets into his yard, is constantly slandering me and my family, and will not pay me a long standing just debt, what would Jesus do if he were I? (This question must be answered in writing by members of the club.)

Verse 16.—It is easy, Paul, for you to say, "Rejoice evermore," but is it practical for ordinary mortals, and if so, how?

Verse 17.—If a man is really in love with God and his fellows, does he not necessarily pray all the time, either consciously or unconsciously?

Is it necessary, or helpful, to have set times for conscious prayer?

Verse 18.—Are we to be thankful alike for pain and pleasure, for loss and gain, for enemies and friends, if we are "in Christ Jesus?"

Is it not an actual fact, based on the truest philosophy, that every sort of experience which comes to a true man, is in the highest possible sense, for his good?

In the light of eternal existence, are there any such things as accident, calamity, misfortune, or even regrettable circumstances, in the life of a man of God?

Verse 19.—Can any man retain the peace of God, who is not absolutely obedient to the leadings of God's Holy Spirit?

Verse 20.—Prophesying here means preaching, is there any sign in these days that it is being despised?

Why should a love for the preaching of the gospel be cultivated?

Verse 21.—Why should we not as Christians encourage the most absolute free thought, the most critical research, and welcome the teaching of true science?

Can the real truth ever be a hurt to a true man, and is not such a man as glad to change his opinion, when he finds he is wrong, as to change a worn-out garment for a new one?

Verse 22.—If we desire the right only, and are obedient to God's spirit, need we ever fear even the "appearance of evil?"

Verses 23-24.—Does God mean his children to live "blameless" lives and is the twenty-fourth verse not a promise that God will give the power to so do?

WILL CANADA'S HOPES FOR FAME IN AVIATION BE REALIZED TO-DAY?

McCurdy Ready to Try Out the Baddeck No. 1 at Petawawa This Afternoon---Firm Hopes for Successful Flight---Monday's Tests to be Witnessed by Canadian Officers.

Petawawa Military Camp, Aug. 7.—General Otter and Colonel Swatkin, of Ottawa, are expected here on Monday to witness the tests of the Aerodrome Baddeck, No. 1, that is now all ready for this afternoon's flight. General Buchanan of Montreal, will be amongst the officers to visit the camp either on Monday or a few days later. "Probably the flight will be about three or four this afternoon," said Mr. McCurdy. I do not see how we can get ready for one this morning. There are still some finishing touches to be put on, but unless something unforeseen occurs I look for a flight being made this afternoon. Mr. McCurdy will be at the wheel. Mr. William McDonald, of Baddeck will be the other passenger, and will likely operate the new engine from which so much is hoped. "Casey" Baldwin's leg, which was injured in the "Silverdart" smashup a week ago, is improving, but he walks with a limp yet, and will not make any ascent this afternoon. In fact it will probably be several days yet before he can do so. That Messrs. McCurdy and Baldwin may yet duplicate Blériot's feat of crossing the English Channel in an aerodrome is not by any means beyond a possibility. Mr. McCurdy does not deny that they are thinking of going to England, and if their aerodrome will fly in Canada it would cross the Big Pond. The possibility is of something interesting to Canadians to think of. "If you went to England would you make aerodrome tests before officials of the War Office?" McCurdy was asked, "Well, that is what we would go for," he replied.

McCurdy said at ten o'clock today: "I expect the ascent will be made at five this afternoon, short flights of half a mile each. Next week about Wednesday, we expect to make an endurance test to see how long our aerodrome can stay up in the air. The world's record for endurance is one hour and 12 minutes, held by Orville Wright. That of Messrs. McCurdy and Baldwin is 23 minutes.

Just Simply Forcing Consuelo And The Duke To Make Up

London, Eng., Aug. 6.—London confidently expects that the fall social season will see Consuelo Vanderbilt and the Duke of Marlborough re-united after their long separation.

Though the Duke objects to his wife's friendship for a well known English nobleman, and Consuelo is very angry at the Duke for lavishing money on an Englishwoman, it is thought that a truce will be reached so that they will outwardly, at least, be again man and wife.

W. K. Vanderbilt, the Duchess' father, has threatened to cut the Marlborough allowance from $200,000 to $50,000, which, with the renewed taxes proposed for landowners, will leave the Duke up against it financially.

King Edward and the Queen are helping in refusing to meet either the Duke or Consuelo till they are re-united. Between royal aid and parental pressure, it is thought the separation will end.

CONSUELO, DUCHESS OF MARLBOROUGH

CIVIC HOLIDAY'S EVENTS WILL ATTRACT PLEASURE-SEEKERS

Monday is Peterborough's Civic Holiday and if the Weather Man graciously serves up his best brand, the citizens will have a chance to enjoy themselves.

The monotony of the summer months is broken by four public holidays all of which are looked forward to with a great deal of pleasure. For the reason that they are but few in number they are that much more enjoyed. Shakespeare says:

If all the year were playing holidays,
To sport would be as tedious as to work.

The great majority of the citizens are looking forward to spending the day leisurely and without thought of the cares and work left at home. Fine weather is therefore necessary that all the outings may prove successful and it is sincerely hoped that Old Sol will reign supreme during the entire day. There are numerous ways by which the day will be spent, and the lakes adjacent to Peterborough will attract the greatest numbers. The regatta at Stony Lake will be the objective point for hundreds. This is one of the historic events of the summer season in Kawarthadom, and larger numbers than ever will likely take the trip.

The Printers' Picnic to Idyl Wyld promises to be bigger and better than ever. The steamer Otonabee will leave the Wolfe Street wharf at eight o'clock and the Street Railway wharf at 8:30. The Hibernians and Catholic Order of Foresters will spend the day at Jubilee. The boat leaves the Street Railway wharf at 8 o'clock sharp. These societies united have always conducted a pleasant outing and the coming event will undoubtedly prove no exception to the rule. The cheap rates on the railways will result in many going to Toronto and other places.

For those who remain at home there will be the athletic meet under the auspices of the Victoria Harriers' Club. It promises to be an exceptionally interesting afternoon of sport and should attract a large crowd. The Turf Club is holding a matinee at the Driving Park. Besides the local horses a number from Port Hope and other places are expected. This is in brief an outline of the opportunities for spending the day. Some have already decided on where they are going, others will probably wait until Monday morning and make a mad dash for the nearest train or boat. Such are the perversities of human nature. Then again the back-yard or garden will claim the attention of a certain class who perhaps will enjoy themselves in their own uneventful way, apart from the madding crowd.

HARRY THAW'S CRIME HAS COST HIM $525,000

THE THAW HEARING AT WHITE PLAINS BEFORE JUSTICE MILLS. PHOTOGRAPH SHOWS HARRY THAW IN THE WITNESS CHAIR, WITH DIST. ATTY. JEROME QUESTIONING HIM.

Here is a little matter of contemporary history—three years' history of a rich young fellow, who killed his man. No, he wasn't hanged or electrocuted.

He was indicted shortly afterward; it was six months, or Jan. 23, 1907, before he was place on trial. For two months and a half the country was amazed, shocked and disgusted by the testimony in the case, and then on April 12 the jury disagreed.

Eight months more passed by and on Jan. 4 Thaw was brought to the bar for a second trial. The hearing was expedited by Judge Dowling, and on Feb. 1, 1908, the jury found him not guilty on the ground of insanity and the justice committed him to the Matteawan asylum for the criminal insane.

Thaw considered this punishment too great for the crime. He thought the judge should have sent him rejoicing up Broadway.

Immediately steps were taken to remove him from such a coarse place as Matteawan to a nice, pleasant county jail a little way up state, and for a time he did have a very enjoyable holiday with a complacent sheriff.

Thaw's motions, demands and appeals have been incessant since his commitment to the asylum 18 months ago. He has appeared before three supreme justices and his case has been considered in two of the appellate courts.

It is figured that it has cost Thaw up to date $525,000 in his fight for liberty.

Drives 20 Miles To Local Market

John L. Calvert, of Reaboro, Leaves Home at 3 O'clock, Arriving in Peterborough at 8---Has Made $100 in Potatoes Alone During Last Ten Days.

PREFERS PETERBOROUGH

John L. Calvert is a farmer near Reaboro, who appeared on the Peterborough market this morning for the second time this week. This was his first venture here, having up to last Wednesday attended the market in Lindsay. To an Examiner reporter this morning he stated that his home was near Reaboro and he had to drive 20 miles to market this morning. To do this he left home even before the roosters were crowing in the new day. He started at three o'clock and saw the first gray streaks steal across the eastern sky while on the road south. Mr. Calvert arrived in the city at eight o'clock with a big load of vegetables and fruit. During the past ten days he has made over $100 in potatoes and remarked that had he confined his operations altogether to Peterborough in place of going to other markets he would have realized an even larger sum.

His position on the market is third from the west end on the north side of the Charlotte street walk. He had exceptionally fine potatoes and his other vegetables and fruits were of an equally fine quality. He expects to continue coming to the local market and should enjoy a large patronage as his prices are very fair.

EXCURSION TO HAMILTON.

A Trip on August 14th That is the Best of the Season.

On Saturday, August 14th, a special train leaves the G. T. R. station at six o'clock a.m., going via Port Hope, the Lake Front route, the excursion being under the auspices of the I. M. U. No. 991. Fare, adults, $2.40, children, $1.20, returning the train leaves the King Street Wharf, Hamilton, at 10 p.m. This is an excellent opportunity to see the ambitious city under most favourable circumstances. Tickets may be had from members of the Committee and at the station. 3d-st-f

CLEVER GANG OF CARD SHARPERS

Four Americans Netted Large Sums in France.

Paris, Aug. 6.—Four American card-sharpers have been arrested after a short but brilliant career.

When the Vichy season opened the attention of the police was drawn to four American bridge players, who were always faultlessly dressed, and who stopped at the best hotels. Their favourite rendezvous were the saloons of the Casino, where they professed to be novices in the art of playing bridge. In the evening, however, at the hotel, they all sat down to take a hand at bridge "in order to while away the time."

The unfortunate dupes who were persuaded to join in were always heavy losers—as much as £300 changed hands in a single evening's play.

Two detectives were set to watch the Americans, who presently removed to Aix les Bains. Thence they proceeded to Paris, always following the same tactics.

From Paris they went to Dinard, where, in a single evening, they netted £1,200. The detectives then thought it was time to interfere, and they arrested the swindlers.

The names are: Osborne Frank Kinsley, of New York; James Brodie, (alias Palmer), Mullin St. Clair and George Hubord, the two latter also of New York.

On Civic Holiday the Steamer Water Lily will not accept any freight. Return trip to Stony Lake Regatta 75c. 2 d-2t

GYPSY READ HAND

Was Also Five Dollars Out and Sought Court to Recover It.

Examiner Special.

Ottawa, Aug. 7.—The fortune telling habit of the Hull gypsies got one of their number, Mrs. Christo Sterrio, into trouble last night, a warrant being sworn out against her on the charge of stealing $5 from one George Bordeleau of Hull. Mr. Bordeleau went down to the camp at the baseball grounds last night and selected Mrs. Sterrio to read his hand. She impressed upon him the necessity of covering her own hand with money. He acquiesced ,and when the future was forecasted judged it to be worth one dollar, but found $5 of his money missing. Mrs. Sterrio refused to help him recover it, and he sought solace in a warrant.

WILL RUN LATE BOAT

Steamer Stoney Lake Will Leave Juniper Island at Midnight, Monday.

For the benefit of those who wish to remain over for the concert and dance at the Juniper Island pavilion on Monday evening, the steamer Stoney Lake will make a late trip from the Island, leaving there at 12 o'clock, and connecting with a special train at Lakefield for Peterborough.

Given An Hour To Leave City

Edward Wall Came From Cobalt Yesterday and Got Arrested—Filled Pockets With Potatoes At a Grocery Store.

ARRESTED YESTERDAY

Eddie Wall appeared before Magistrate Dumble at the police court this morning. He was charged with vagrancy. He was given an hour to leave the city, and on being given his release promised to do so at once. Wall is a former resident of Peterborough, and said he came here to his mother's grave. He came here yesterday from Cobalt, where he had been prospecting. He was arrested in the afternoon, the worse of liquor, with his pockets full of potatoes, which, it was stated, were taken from in front of Bradshaw's grocery store.

REQUEST NIGHT

Band Concert Last Night Was Appreciated by Large Crowd.

Request night at the 57th Band concert proved a hit. The programme was varied and the band was at its best. Henry Blossom's Yankee Consul music was heard again and was delightfully rendered. The other operatic selections were from The Explorers and was likewise greatly enjoyed. The attendance was very large, the regular Friday night musicale continuing one of the most popular forms of public amusement Peterborough knows. Mr. Gliddon struck a happy thought when he decided upon the request night.

OILING THE STREETS

Attention is Called to Article on Page 8 —Of Interest to Citizens.

On page 8 of this issue there is an article dealing with Toronto's experiment in oiling the streets instead of using water to lay the dust. Dr. Sheard gives his opinion of the method, which is meeting with considerable favour.

Now it appears that the city engineer of Ottawa has become an advocate and will recommend the council of the Capital to give it a trial. Peterborough's aldermen have been giving the new scheme some thought and it is expected that at the next council meeting there will be a report on the subject.

WENT UP THE LAKES

Many Yachts and Launches Went Up The Lakes for Regatta.

There was a large number of yachts and gasoline launches that went up over the lift lock to-day on their way to Stony Lake, where they will attend the regatta on Monday. A great deal of time and inconvenience was saved by all of them locking through together.

BOBCAYGEON RESIDENT SHOT AND KILLED WIFE

Joseph Hunter, Proprietor of the Hotel Royal, Now in Lindsay Jail With Awful Crime to His Account—Had Been Drinking Heavily and Said to Have Had Delirium Tremens—Wife Attended Him for Hours and Lay Down to Rest—Killed As She Slept.

Special to The Examiner.

Bobcaygeon, Ont., Aug. 7.—Joseph Hunter, of this town, proprietor of the Hotel Royal, deliberately shot and killed his wife, Rose Coulter, with a rifle, at 4.30 this morning, while sleeping in her bed. He was arrested later by Policeman McMullin, and taken to Lindsay jail. There is no apparent cause for the act. An inquest is to be held this evening.

Bobcaygeon, Aug. 7.—Joseph Hunter, proprietor of the Hotel Royal, shot and instantly killed his wife with a rifle at 4.30 o'clock this morning, while she was sleeping in her bed. It is reported that Hunter had been drinking recently and was suffering from delirium tremens. His wife stayed up with him, bathing his feet and head in an effort to relieve his condition, and after three or more hours constant attention she laid down on the bed to sleep and rest.

Shot Heard.

About 4.30 o'clock a tourist named Mitchell, occupying the next room, was awakened by a shot in the proprietor's room and hastening into the hall he was met by Hunter coming out of his room with the rifle in his arms.

"For God's sake, man, what have you done?" he asked Hunter, but did not wait for him to make an explanation. The wife, whose maiden name was Rose Coulter, was lying on the bed, her face showing the result of the ghastly act. The gun had apparently been held near her head as she slept on her right side, and the bullet had tire its way through her face on the left side of her nose.

Death was practically instantaneous and the unfortunate woman died as she slept.

Mother Escaped.

Hunter's mother-in-law and his own children, a boy and girl in their teens, were occupying the room where the shooting occurred. It is stated that Hunter tried to shoot Mrs. Coulter, senior, after she had been awakened by the report, but she promptly fled from him and eluded his belated attempts. The police officer was called and Hunter was placed under arrest, and later this morning was taken to Lindsay, where he was lodged in jail. An inquest will likely be held at noon to-day.

The hotel was filled with tourists, but this morning they practically vacated the place in a body and went over to the Rockland House. The shooting is the talk of the town and everybody seems to have something new regarding it. It is generally stated that Hunter was hardly in his right mind, as the result of recent heavy drinking. It is believed by others that there may have been some motive behind the awful affair, but the statements to that effect are only rumours.

TWELVE RURAL TELEPHONE LINES WITH OVER 100 SUBSCRIBERS

New Lines to Zion and Stewart's Settlement Have Recently Been Completed---Number of Subscribers Has Rapidly Increased Within the Past Year---Calls to Central From Each Station Average Six Daily.

Each year the progressive farmer is beginning to realize more and more that it is almost an essential thing to have a telephone in his house. It is an investment and one that none have ever regretted making. Not only is it a great convenience but the communication with the outside world keeps the farmer in touch with what is going on in town. The farmers in the surrounding country districts around Peterborough are not behind in the matter of progressiveness and enquiry being made by an Examiner reporter at the local office of the Bell Telephone, it was learned that there were twelve rural lines, with a total of one hundred and seven subscribers within a radius of ten miles from Peterborough. This number has rapidly increased within the past year. It is only a short time ago that there were but very few telephones in the country but the advantage of being able to talk to their neighbours, and their friends in the city, was a strong inducement to have a telephone in their homes. The requests for new lines, Mr. F. W. Doan, the local manager, informed the Examiner, were coming in very frequently and just as soon as there was a sufficiently large number of subscribers guaranteed, these would be commenced.

Last week lines to Zion and Stewart's settlement were completed and several farmers in that vicinity are enjoying the convenience of a telephone.

The Rural Lines

The rural lines of the local Bell Telephone Company do not include those to Stony Lake points. They are long distance to Lakefield, and then from there to the various resorts they are, what is known as toll lines. The rural lines are at the present time twelve in number, with one hundred and seven subscribers. These consist of two lines to the Zion settlement, three to Springville, one to Fowler's Corners, one along the river road, one to South Monaghan and two to the Stewart settlement. The calls to central, Mr. Doan stated, averaged about six per station. In addition the subscribers are able to talk with the other ones on the line without ringing Central.

The farmer does not now look upon the telephone as much as a luxury, but considers it of very material assistance to him in his work.

LIST OF SPORTS AND PRIZES FOR PRINTERS' PICNIC MONDAY

Every arrangement is complete for the best organized, best managed and most enjoyable picnic ever published—the Printers' Picnic to Idyl Wyld, on Civic Holiday, August Ninth—Next Monday at 8 o'clock from the Wolfe Street wharf—and 8:30 Street Railway wharf.

It is to be remembered that Mr. J. A. Halpany, entertainer, and the Halpany family orchestra have been engaged to accompany the picnic excursion party and will supply a vaudeville entertainment and excellent music.

After the delightful sail down the meandering Otonabee, and after dinner at Idyl Wyld, the following programme of sports will be run off in competition for the prizes mentioned:

1. Boys' Race (12 and under 15)—1st, watch.
2. Girls' Race (12 and under 15)—1st, shirt waist pins.
3. 100 yards dash (open)—1st, gold stick pin, set with pearls.
4. Married ladies' race—1st, Royal Nippon China platter (donated by P. H. Dobbin); 2nd, locket and chain.
5. Young ladies' race—1st, back comb set with stones.
6. Boot race—1st, cuff links.
7. Boys' race (12 and under)—1st, watch.
8. Girls' race (12 and under)— 1st, lace pin.
9. Boot race (open)—1st cuff links.
10. Sack race (open)—1st, gold chain.
11. Married men's race—1st gold cuff links.
12. Reporters' race—1st, box of cigars.
14. 100 yards dash (printers only)—1st, special prize, amethyst ring donated by G. Clark.

In addition to the above there will be a grand tug of war (Chestow and Times vs. Examiner), and a ball-rolling game of ball by the same performers.

A fitting climax to this long list of good things will be a grand prize drawing for the dinner set presented by the Hon. J. R. Stratton, M.P., now on view in the window of China Hall, George street.

"Peterborough Means Progress"

SATURDAY, AUGUST 7, 1909.

SOME ABOUT GOOD ROADS.

Half a century's efforts to make good country highways by "statute labour" have been as futile as would be an attempt to reap a western hundred-acre wheat field with the sickle our fathers swung in the days when "statute labour" was born. The County Roads System, a compound of government aid and self help has not met general acceptance, chiefly because municipal councils with the best intentions are afraid to adopt a county system, because public sentiment will not support such an action. It seems, therefore, that the progress of the country is to be impeded to the great extent to which the absence of good highways is a factor, unless some other means, such as provincial assumption of the construction of county roads systems is adopted. The County Roads System as now constituted throws the great bulk of the expense upon the rural ratepayer, except what the Government grants, and even the rural ratepayer has to contribute his share of that. If the Government assumed the responsibility and bore the expense of constructing county roads there would be gain of more kinds than one. The cities and towns—separated from counties—would thus have to contribute their share, which they should in justice do, for they receive direct commercial advantages which come from good roads permitting easier access to city markets, and then to city shops and business places. If the Government took charge of the County Roads System the local jealousies that interfere with local agreement upon what roads are to be selected would cease to operate; townships outside the route chosen would regard with more complacency the selection and construction of a route to whose cost they would not be required contribute. With the Government assuming and constructing County Road Systems, there would be a guarantee that the best possible system would be adopted. With the services available of a gentleman of the professional qualifications, the engineering ability, the interest and enthusiasm of Mr. A. W. Campbell, Deputy Minister of Public Works, and a veteran preacher—and practiser—of the Gospel of Good Roads, we could be certain that effective system would be adopted, the best methods applied and the best results secured. As pointed out in these columns recently, no new principle would be involved in the government becoming responsible for the cost and construction of county roads—if they pay a third of the cost under the Good Roads Act, they could justify paying the whole cost. The details of the application of Government assumption could easily be worked out; the adoption of the principle of state aid or rather state expenditure would be the more formidable step—everything else would easily follow. From the report of the annual meeting of the Ontario Good Roads Association it is learned that the State of Pennsylvania, has arranged to spend, in providing that state with good roads, five million dollars a year, until a total of forty-five millions of dollars is invested in the highest form of public improvement. Last year the Legislature of the State of New York voted fifty million dollars to be spent within three years in building first-class highways. Surely a rich province like Ontario might make a proportionate expenditure with general advantage. Those who would oppose the expenditure of provincial money to build provincial highways, are invited to mention any other manner in which a liberal share of the provincial revenue could be more justifiably or profitably employed.

BEAUTIFY THE CITY.

The divine seer of Patmos tells us the streets of Heaven are paved with pure gold—the type of supernal beauty. That is to say that, as the streets of an earthly city play a most important part in contributing to its beauty and attractiveness and desirability as a home, they should be of the first character.

It follows without saying that the streets, to be an element in civic beauty, must be well built, smooth clean, and tidy, and free from objects foreign to their purpose and usefulness as a thoroughfare, and that the private premises bounding the private residences bounding the streets, must be well grassed, well mowed and tended, well planted with shrubbery and flowers, free from weeds, and, for lawns and grounds, as well kept as the apartments of a model residence.

For the most part the private residences of Peterborough, and the environing premises answer the conditions mentioned; but unfortunately, for the most part the streets do not correspond. The road surface is rough and abounding with loose stones; and outside of boulevards and along the edges of pavements, rank grass and ranker weeds thrive, like evil things, and unmolested in soil fertilized by the washings of streets, held by lack of drainage to encourage weed growth.

On some streets outside the pavement line, there are to be found strong growing weeds, in some places at least, a yard in height, and these growing undisturbed on less frequented streets, and on others tramped down, but, like weeds, still viciously living and growing, present a ragged, dismal, and ugly effect utterly destructive of street beauty and tidiness.

Weeds are not allowed to grow in gardens or on lawns, or on the boulevards in front of residences occupied by good citizens. Why should they be allowed to grow and disfigure the streets by the million, as they do, on street sides, on vacant lots, and the street portion of vacant lots. The city property at the foot of Charlotte street, is the greatest weed swamp in five counties, and if the burdocks are left to mature will furnish enough seed to plant a township.

Why are these weeds allowed, contrary to the law of the land, and contrary to the law of tidiness and beauty, to grow and flourish, unimpeded? Every winter we have on the charity list a number of infirm men, who can not do much work, but certainly in summer might earn a little by cutting or rather rooting up weeds. In the spring men with scythes are sent around to clip the tops of weeds—only a temporary improvement. Instead of being killed the weeds only seem to thrive under the pruning they receive. One might as well expect to kill the nine-lived cat by cropping its ears as to kill weeds by snipping off the tops.

Another destroyer of civic beauty is found in the foul and untidy conditions of our lanes and narrow streets How many of these are ever cleaned? They need cleaning badly; they are made the receptable of ashes, house refuse, decayed vegetables, old boots, dead cats, and kitchen offal. The weeds that grow in riotous rankness, may hide the pollution, but it is there. These lanes are not only untidy, and repulsive to the eye, but like the Falstaffian buck-basket, contain the "rankest compound of villainous smells that ever offended nostril." These lanes abbuting on streets cannot be escaped by those who use the streets. Does the sanitary inspector ever risk his health by taking a stroll through these lanes? Not likely; judging by the condition in which they are allowed to remain. We cannot exepect the lanes to be looked after when a street in the very heart of the city was a day or two ago made the object of complaint by a citizen writing to a newspaper to call attention to the filthy and untidy condition of Chambers street.

No attempt is made to clean or rake up accummulated filth ar rubbish or loose stones in the greater part of the city. Some attention is paid to the central streets, and no one will withhold the warmest praise from Mr. James McCullough, who with his little omnipresent push-cart keeps the streets in the business quarter beautifully free from loose paper and other litter.

But all the other streets should be kept clean but not by hand picking and a push-cart. The Board of Works should provide some mechanical means for rapidly and cheaply raking or sweeping the streets.

The stranger who comes to the city to 'spy out the nakedness of the land" has the streets first thrust upon his view and if he notes the unkempt condition of nearly all our streets in the matter of weeds, heaps of rubbish, mounds resulting from badly filled trenches, loose stones, etc., etc., he will get a bad first impression of the city.

It is with no truculent intention or animus that aldermen are invited to go to Little Lake cemetery; but they should go there to learn how to beautify the streets. The sward and flower plots and shrubbery of the cemetery are beautiful but not more so, except in extent than many a private lawn. Their beauty, however, is not impaired by shaggy, slovenly rough undrained drives over-grown with weeds and made the dumping ground of weeds pulled out of flower plots, clippings of lawns, etc., etc.

Then the trees in the cemetery are cared for, and pruned and trimmed. What attempt at system in trimming street trees is made on our streets? In some places they are too close together, in other the foliage grows too low, shutting out light to such an extent as to deprive the street of any benefit from the street lamps. Trees on our streets need trimming with skill to secure uniformity of effect, to remove dead boughs, and to make them tidy. Besides on almost every residence street there are two or three dead trees of large size. These are left in their gaunt ugliness to disfigure the whole line of street.

One would like to have all these defects, little and great, attended to. It will cost comparatively little and we cannot claim credit for possessing beautiful streets when they suffer from so much neglect in the manner specified as well as in others.

It is no pleasure, but a disagreeable duty to be forced to call attention to these things. If they did not exist there would be no need to do so. The aldermen are invited to take a drive around the city with their eyes open and if they fail to see a thousand things to be remedied, that can be remedied with a little attention and little expense they must be blind.

THE PAINS OF THE AGED

Are usually due to the tendency of the kidneys to wear out as age advances, giving rise to the accumulation of poisons in the blood and causing backache, lumbago, aching limbs and rheumatism. Dr. Chase's Kidney-Liver Pills are particularly prized by aged people because they can be relied upon to invigorate the action of the liver, kidneys and bowels, and so remove the cause of pains and aches.

A FIRE ALARM.

Which Was Not Appreciated by One Fire Fighter.

"When I was a young man," said Smith as a fire engine dashed by in response to an alarm, "I lived in a little country town where the only means of fighting fire was an old fashioned hand pumping fire engine.

"One day, becoming enthused over the life of a fireman, I allowed myself to be talked into joining the volunteer company that was being organized to man the old canalboat. The leader who took charge of the movement was a person who is always to be found in country towns and whose hobby is running a fire department, and we made him our captain, much to his satisfaction.

"The first fire alarm that I responded to came one cold night in midwinter, when there was a howling blizzard raging. It took some nerve on my part to get out of my warm bed and answer the call, and I saw right there that the life of a fireman wasn't just what it was cracked up to be. But I hurried into my clothes and rushed away to the engine house.

"The engine, which weighed a couple of tons or more, was drawn by hand, and, obedient to our excited captain's commands, we seized hold of it and dragged it down the street as fast as we could through the drifting snow.

"The captain took the lead, and we blindly followed him, while he shouted words of encouragement. I think we must have dragged that infernal old machine around for over an hour, although it seemed much longer than that. Finally, when we did stop and I got the snow out of my eyes I found, much to my surprise, that we were back at the engine house.

"'Good!' cried the captain as he looked at his watch. 'For the first practice run that is hard to beat. I will call you out again before long, and we will see if we cannot lower the record.'

"I handed in my resignation right then and there and went back to my warm bed."—Detroit Free Press.

More Puzzled Than Before.

"Pardon my ignorance," said the lady passenger to the captain of the big ship, "but how do you manage to find your way across the trackless ocean?"

"By means of the compass, madam," answered the captain. "The needle invariably points to the north."

"But," queried the l. p., "suppose you wish to go south?"—Chicago News.

Hat Salvage.

"This hat may be the latest style, my dear," said her husband, "but isn't it rather expensive?"

"I'll admit it cost a lot of money," assented his wife, "but it will prove the cheapest in the end. After I am through wearing it just think what a lovely wastebasket it will make."—Judge.

Enough Said.

"You seldom hear Mr. and Mrs. Cashit's people speak of them. Looks like there had been a quarrel. Do you know anything about his relations with his wife's family?"

"I believe they are mostly poor relations."—Baltimore American.

The Mayflower, after her memorable trip across the Atlantic with the pilgrim fathers of New England, went into the West Indian cotton trade and was lost in a cyclone.

Intercollegiate Baseball.

The first intercollegiate baseball game ever played in this country took place at Pittsfield, Mass., June 1, 1859. The game was between the Amherst and Williams college teams, and the score was 73 to 32 in favor of Amherst.

The Dorowa Tree.

While the seeds of the dorowa, an East African leguminous tree, are extensively used for food, the pods and leaves form an excellent cement when mixed with crushed stone.

Washington Monument.

The cornerstone of the Washington monument was laid by President Polk July 4, 1848, and Dec. 6, 1884, the capstone was set in position. The foundations are 126½ feet square and 36 feet 8 inches deep.

Lazy Bug---Serious Menace To Soldiers And Workmen In Hot South---Must Go

Assistant Surgeon General Torney, U. S. A., Traces Lassitude and Sleeping Sickness to Hook Worm or Lazy Bug, and Has a Remedy.

FACTS ABOUT "LAZY MICROBE" FOUND BY ARMY OFFICER

WHAT IT LOOKS LIKE—Small, gray, spindle-shaped, with black spots; microbe with a hook-shaped, hair-like substance which gives its name.

WHAT IT DOES—Gets in man's blood, causes them to be lazy; in Africa causes deadly sleeping sickness, and has killed 200,000 natives.

HOW TO DRIVE IT AWAY—Salt water injections in blood; pure air, food and clean sleeping rooms and beds. DRINK TWO QUARTS OF BUTTERMILK A DAY.

SURGEON GEN. G. H. TORNEY, U. S. A.

Washington, August 7.—Physicians all over the world are waiting with great interest the report of Surgeon Gen. Geo. H. Torney of the army, because in that report he will announce a discovery that is relied on to banish forever the scourge of "sleeping sickness."

General Torney has made a life study of the hook worm, or so-called germ of laziness. Now he believes that the little microbe with the hooked end is responsible for more laziness than anything else known to science. Also for the fearful "sleeping sickness."

Experiments on soldiers from Porto Rico, the Philippines and in this country convince General Torney that the tsetse fly is not directly responsible for sleeping sickness.

When, recently, scientists at the Rockefeller institute of New York made the same announcement, the report was ridiculed. But General Torney bears out the Rockefeller institute report.

The hook worm germ is carried about by the tsetse fly, and the germ, not the fly, causes the disease.

The hook worm is the lazy bug of the microbe world. It has been corralled and even photographed by General Torney. Drops of blood of infected lazy persons show the little hook worm, mingling with the corpuscles in myriads.

Laziness in Army

Laziness of many recruits from Ft. Slocum induced General Torney to start his work there. Out of 140 lazy soldiers, 100 were found to be infected with hook worm. It wasn't the fault of the soldiers that they couldn't learn to handle a gun any quicker. It was the fault of the millions of hook worms in their bodies.

The hook worm disease has been familiar to negroes of the south for years, as well as to natives of Porto Rico. During the occupation of the island by United States troops the spread of laziness was noticed.

In America infection by the hook worm is not fatal. But in Africa the germ does not stay in the blood. It enters the spinal column, infects the spinal fluid and finally paralyzes the brain. The result then is the deadly "sleeping sickness," which has killed so many Africans. In Nairobi and Naivasha, where Roosevelt is hunting, the sleeping sickness has wreaked great ravages.

Fears for the life of Roosevelt were voiced recently by Professor Frederick Starr, the noted educator of the University of Chicago. Professor Starr warned Roosevelt against the disease, which he had noticed on his last trip through the Congo.

Ravages in Southern U. S.

General Torney estimated that 50 per cent. of recruits from the rural districts of the Carolinas, Georgia, Florida, Mississippi, Alabama and Louisiana will show hook-worm infection.

When General Torney had found the trouble caused by the hook-worm, Dr. Simon Flexner at the Rockefeller institute in New York found an identical microbe in serum frim victims of the deadly African disease. Mice, guinea pigs and rabbits infected with these microbes died with all the symptoms of sleeping sickness.

Sleeping sickness made its first appearance in Uganda, Africa, in 1901. Since then more than 200,000 negroes in Africa have been killed by it.

The only difference between the two microbes is that the African hook-worm is larger than the American, and the tropical climate makes laziness so much more intense that the disease ends in death.

Torney's Remedy

The cure for the American form of the lazy-bug disease, General Torney believes, is simple. Clean beds, clean food and fresh air are necessary. Salt injected into the blood vessels helps, and copious drinks of buttermilk will complete the work. All kinds of flies as well as mosquitoes should be kept out of living rooms and be avoided when out-doors.

By stopping the sleeping sickness germ in this country, General Torney believes he can make the United States army the best in the world.

REFUSED LIFE JOB AT $100 A MONTH

Billy Robelen, a red-headed brakeman on the Long Island railroad, found a hand-bag the other day full of diamonds and pearls and money. It was worth $30,000, it developed later.

What Robelen's thoughts were no one but himself knows. But what he did, and at once, is recorded in the records of the company. He hurried to the offices of the railroad and made every effort to find the owner.

Her son, in his gratitude over the recovery of the bag and its precious contents, not a stone nor a penny missing, couldn't do too much for the brakeman. He gave him money, offered him a vaction and pay, and lastly, a life job working for Schwab at $100 a month.

Now Billy Robelen is 22, and has a wife and baby. That $100 a month for life must have looked pretty good to him. He had knocked around long enough to know the uncertainty of work—and especially of railroad work, where one may lose not only his job, but his life, at a minute's notice.

But Billy Robelen refused.

After thinking the thing over fully, and talking it over with the little wife at home, he decided to steer clear of the job where he could never advance, try as hard as he might, and to take his chance of rising in the world by himself.

He may never have a job that pays him as much, but he will have the satisfaction of having rejected the sinecure, and trying, single-handed, for the bigger stake.

He will be his own man, he will have the joy of fighting his way, and if he wins, then he and his wife and the baby can have more respect for Wm. Robelen.

He ought to make good. He has shown that he is honest. Also—and this is not so common a trait—that he is ambitious and believes in himself. Likewise in the company's books there is a record of four years' faithful and efficient service credited to him.

It is pleasing to know that since finding the bag, Wm. Robelen has taken the next step toward being division superintendent or president of the road, or whatever is his ambition. He has been promoted to conductor.

Woman's Twenty-five Year Search For Father's Slayer

Long and Determined Quest for Vengeance Ends in Finding Convicted Murderer in Seattle—He Had Escaped Gallows in 1884 After Trial.

NOW SEEKS HER BROTHER

Denver, Aug. 7.—Bringing her twenty-five-year pursuit of the man who murdered her father, and who escaped while under death sentence, to a successful conclusion, a Nebraska woman has appealed to the Denver police to locate her brother Tom Murphy, who disappeared three years ago, in order to make her triumph complete.

Dr. Frank Murphy was killed at Valentine, Neb., in 1884, by Prosper (Frenchy) Marion. The latter was convicted and sentenced to hang. Marion broke jail and escaped. Cheating the gallows by a bit of subterfuge, Marion had succeeded in evading the clutches of the hangman until recently, when he was arrested at Seattle, Wash. Sheriff Rossetter, of Valentine, is now on his way home from Seattle with Marion in his custody.

The case is unique in criminal annals. Aroused by the great grief of the daughter of the murdered doctor and her bitter disappointment when her father's slayer escaped punishment for his crime, close friends and lodge brothers of Dr. Murphy swore to keep up the search for Marion.

Never Ceased Her Search.

The daughter was only in her teens at the time of her father's death, but she exhibited such spirit and stamina that the search she instituted has been carried on without a letup for nearly a quarter of a century. Although police authorities told them that their search was useless, these men continued quietly, year after year, to hunt for Marion by letter, word of mouth and personal tips to various parts of the country.

In all these years nothing has swayed the daughter from her determination to see Marion expiate his crime on the gallows. She grew to womanhood, married and reared a family. But always the face of her dad father was before her and always the murderer's liberty was a thorn in her flesh.

A few years ago one of the faithful little band of searchers chanced to be at the Seattle Exposition, and he discovered Marion. The police were called, Marion was taken to the Seattle City Jail and positively identified. Letters on his person showed that he, too, had been watchful during the twenty-five years. One told him that the old feling against him had not died out at Valentine, and that he must not return to Nebraska.

Now Seeks Her Brother.

Having used nearly all her means and influence to prosecute the almost unprecedented search, Tom Murphy's sister decided that she must have the support of her brother to secure certain justice. Now that Marion is again in jail she is determined that he shall not again escape punishment.

So the police are making an especial effort to find her brother. Nebraska is showing interest in the quarter-century-old murder case, and Chief of Police C. F. Darkan, of Chadron, has written a personal letter to Chief of Police Armstrong to locate Tom Murphy.

Tom Murphy, who was thirteen years old when his father was killed, was well known among railroad men in Denver several years ago. He was a contractor and made his headquarters at the Oxford Hotel, and handled several large contracts in the vicinity of the city. He left Denver three years ago to take up contracts in California, but it is believed that he has returned to Colorado from California.

Montrose Farm Hand's Romance of Years Ago is Recalled.

Fifty years ago at Blairstown, N.J., Joseph Kithcart won the affections of Jennie Stalford, who married the poor young man against her parents' wishes, throwing over a wealthy suitor named James Butler.

A short time after her marriage her parents persuaded her to leave Kithcart and marry Butler, and the former married, later separating from his second wife, coming to South Montrose and engaging as a farmhand.

Butler took his prize and went West where, in a short time, Mrs. Butler died.

Recently Butler died also, and Kithcart has been notified that Butler, in his will, bequeathed to him the sum of $2,000 as a partial compensation for stealing the affections of Mrs. Kathcart No. 1, and Kithcart last week received the money.

GENERALLY SPEAKING

"Peterborough means Progress." This phrase which by the way was framed by the Examiner and stands at the head of its editorial column is about as excellent a motto as could be found to quicken the moral, physical and commercial instincts of our young men. If it could be instilled into the hearts of all of us that the letter P is the initial letter not only of Peterborough, but of Progress in Purity of Private and Public Life, this city would be a long way on the road to true greatness.

One or two persons who own canoes and are partial to that form of recreation are wondering why the powers that be do not place a protection boom for the benefit of smaller crafts below Collins' Lock on the Otonabee. They say that at present, it is absolutely hazardous for owners of small craft to go to and from the Lock on account of the current which sweeps any but the strongest paddler against the rocky shore. Some sort of attempt, it is said was made last year to form a sort of bar but it does not seem to have proved very successful.

Sport at present in Peterborough seems to hold its own, every branch of it, with the exception of cricket, being well patronized. It is hard to say, why, with the great influx of Englishmen that has been going on for the past few years, cricket should not take its place again among the popular sports and pastimes of the city. There was a time, not so many years ago, when the Peterborough Cricket Club possessed a team that could hold its own with any team in Canada. The names of Sam Ray, Miles and Max Hamilton, R. B. Rogers, W. A. Stratton, and many others will be borne in mind by the older generation of cricket lovers, as first-rate players, and enthusiastic supporters of the game. Cricket may be voted too slow by the average Canadian, who believes in a quick and hustling game, but nevertheless, it is one which, like golf, can be indulged in to a more sedate age than is possible with lacrosse or baseball, and it certainly does not lend itself to the objectionable "ragging" of the umpire which seems inseparable from the nerve-racking and sensational features of the two pastimes referred to.

A determined attempt was made two years ago to revive cricket in the city, and last year a few matches were played with outside teams. This year, however, with a good ground to play on, and with all the accessories necessary for practice, such as bats, wickets, gloves, pads, etc., the club finds it impossible to arouse any enthusiasm amongst even its own members.

Two or three suggestions have been sent in for this column this week, and the desire expressed that we should give them publicity. One of them is to the effect that a park should be laid out for the benefit of the dwellers in the south end of the city. The writer states that now is the time to procure such a boon and possibly at some not distant date, a kind philanthropist will give $100,000 or so towards beautifying it and making it worthy of the great and noble public for whom it was created.

Another suggestion is to the effect that it is about time to have the shade trees trimmed. The genial alderman for whom this suggestion is meant is not looked on as a man addicted to failing in his duties, and no doubt when the right time comes he will give the word.

The following skit, taken from an English paper, on the methods of certain councillors in towns and cities shows that aldermanic incompetency in road overseership and management is not entirely unknown beyond the sea. Is it merely a pipe-dream, or have we seen something of the same sort in Canadian cities?

Nothing Like System

The two urban councillors were walking arm-in-arm.

"Hallo!" exclaimed the first suddenly, his eyes gleaming. "Here's a fine-looking street! What shall we do with it?"

"I know!" cried the second. "Let's have it dug up for a sewer!"

"But wouldn't it be proper to pave it first?" insinuated Urban Councillor No. 1.

"Of course, old chap!" agreed No. 2. "That's understood. Then, after it is paved, and a sewer's been put in, we'll have it re-paved!"

"Capital!" cried No. 1. "All in readiness to be dug up again for the gaspipe!"

No. 2 wept tears of joy.

"I see you understand the principles of municipal economy!" he exclaimed. "And after we have dug it up again—then what?"

"Why, then it will be all ready for widening!"

The two urban councillors shook hands with each other enthusiastically.

"There is nothing," they murmured, holding hands, "we admire so much as care and system in the improvement of our roadways!"

This is the height of the holiday season, and now, if at any time, we spend our money freely. There are few, however, who would be inclined to take such an easy-going method of procedure in the way of paying their way, as the two Lancashire workmen did, who were taking a short and well-deserved holiday in France not long ago. It was their first introduction to the land of mirth and sunshine, and they were absolutely ignorant of the language. They went to Paris, and proceeding to a restaurant, by dint of signs and grimaces got something to eat. It was a harder matter to find out how much there was to pay. "How much?" asked one of the men of the waiter. "Sept francs," that being replied. "I don't underston' him," said one Lancastrian to the other. "Here, you give him a bob—and then give him another and then another, and I'll watch his face and when he smiles we'll stop." It was an ingenious expedient but they got rid of quite a lot of money by the process.

Mr. John Burns has just stated in the Parliamentary papers, that the cost of maintaining and cleansing the public roads of London in the year 1907-8, was £1,469,291—about $7,000,000. These figures show more than reams of description could do the marvellous size of the modern Babylon, and the admirable system, that makes the streets as orderly as a church service and as clean as a church.

It is stated by a German biologist that the two sides of a face are never alike; in two cases out of five the eyes are out of line; one eye is stronger than the other in seven persons out of ten; and the right ear is generally higher than the left. There are very few mortals who have not blemishes far worse than these. And yet there are thousands upon thousands of human beings who consider themselves only a little lower than the angels.—Poor—Poor Angels!

Did Bwana Tumbo Have a Bully Time Here? He Did--He Fought Hippos, Met Queer People

MASAI WARRIORS, AND MASAI WOMAN WITH COPPER BOUND ARMS.

ADMIRAL ATTENBOROUGH WHO LET ROOSEVELT SHOOT HIS PRIVATE HIPPOPOTAMI;

By Warrington Dawson

Naivasha, British East Africa, June 28. The tiny town of Naivasha, which boasts a six-roomed hotel, a white store, four Indian stores, a postoffice, a railway station and perhaps 20 houses scattered in groups of four or five, with long stretches of stone-studded veldt between was the nearest point of civilisation to Colonel Roosevelt on the last two months of his hunting expedition to the north of Mombasa.

Naivasha used to be a great cattle centre, because it was the headquarters of the Masai tribe, and when the British took possession they profited by this circumstance to make Naivasha the chief point of a district. But now business has moved down to Nairobi and officialdom moved up to Nakuru, on the lake of the same name, between here and Lake Victoria Nyanza, and Naivasha has left to it only its delightful climate, since its altitude of 6,000 feet makes it tolerable even at midday, and at night a strong, cool breeze always springs up.

Best of all is its beautiful lake, also called Naivasha, with the volcano Longanot to one side and round it broad plains leading to tall distant mountains hemming it in on every side like the rim of a gigantic basin.

(Note—It was on Naivasha lake that Colonel Roosevelt had his exciting battle with five infuriated hippopotami, about the middle of July.—Editor.)

The lake is believed to be the crater of an old volcano, and scientists say that once it must have reached the distant mountains which shaped its bed, for many rocks now 10 miles away from the waters of the lake are marked by the wear of mighty waters.

Now it is very different, and while Lake Naivasha is eight miles across no soundings have proved it to be more than 30 feet deep, although it is probable that at different points there are rifts in the bottom of the old crater forming its bed which give it considerable depth. The shores, principally on the Naivasha side, are skirted with papyrus swamp and water lilies, the water being so shallow and the vegetation so thick than even where the shore is more or less free from papyrus one must wade out to a rowboat which cannot quite come in, and then go in the rowboat to a sailboat if one intends to go sailing.

Lake Naivasha boasts two or three little sailing boats, belonging to settlers along its banks, but its principal source of pride is a steam launch, belonging to a retired British naval officer, Commander Attenborough, who has created a superb estate on the southwestern side, just opposite Naivasha, where Colonel Roosevelt will come out from the Sotik, camping on Attenborough's ground. It seems odd that by retiring from the navy Attenborough should have got promotion; but whereas in England he was only a commander, here he is called "Admiral of the Lake Fleet."

Four miles from Navaisha is the great Masai village, where 400 members of that famous warrior tribe live in 40 little mud huts. The huts are built in a circle round a Kraal into which the cattle are brought at night. There are entrances from without at every 10 or 12 huts, the rest presenting to the outside world a solid wall of mud and tree branch. The huts are eight feet long by five or six feet in breadth, and some four or five feet in height, and in there 19 men, women and children will sleep quite happily, piled one upon another.

The Masai are very like American Indians, scorning all kinds of work and requiring their wives to do it all. You will see long processions of them, the men bearing their spears and shields and the women struggling after with the burdens of wood or blankets or whatever may be needed on the trek. About the only thing which a Masai will deign to carry for a white man is his gun, and this is a source of joy for him.

As for the women, they condemn themselves to burden-bearing all their lives. As soon as they are full grown steel and copper wire are wound round their legs from ankle to knee, and again round the arms from wrist to elbow and sometimes from elbow to shoulder also, forming solid coils of steel and copper, each section of which weighs seven or eight pounds. Their arms grow puffy and distorted over the edges, and their legs are so heavy that the women acquire in youth a shambling gait which they can never correct, although later in life they remove the leg ornaments and keep only those on the arms.

When the woman reaches maturity she adds a huge spring-like collar of steel to her equipment, the diameter being a foot or more. Under this are other steel or copper collars and in her ears are string after string of beads. Taken all in all, her steel and bead ornaments average a weight of some 50 or 60 pounds. This metal tubing almost suffices to clothe them but they wear also a leather apron stitched on with fiber, which they can never remove, and in which they live and sleep from youth to old age.

A short time ago, Dengina, the king of the Masai, came with his court into Nairobi to lodge a complaint against the Kikuyus for stealing some of his sheep. A few years back he would have sailed in with his fierce but now worthless warriors and wiped the Kikuyus out. It's different these days. Now they let the British Government settle their difficulties for them. Lenana is a fine old savage, with something mongolian about his cast of features. His royal robe is a gorgeous red blanket, and his insignia are a marquise ring of fine hammered steel which covers his middle finger from base to tip, and an ear ring in his right ear which causes his lobe to drop down to the shoulder.

When I was introduced to him by Mr. H. F. Ward, head of the Boma Trading Co., Lenana gravely shook hands with me and bade me welcome through an interpreter. He refused to let me photograph him though, pretending that he was not very well.

Expensive Living In Cobalt Owing To Prevailing Prices

Ordinary Houses Rent at $40 a Month—Poor Fare in Hotels of the $2.50 a Day Variety—New Potatoes Retail at 5 Cents a Pound and Other Necessities Correspondingly Dear.

COBALT IS A DRY TOWN

Cobalt, Aug. 7.—As all the world knows, Cobalt is a dry town, and the enforcement of prohibition here undoubtedly has a most beneficial effect upon the condition of the average miner. At night, instead of scenes of drunkenness and rowdyism, the streets present as orderly an aspect as those of Sudbury. Moreover, the hard-earned wages which would otherwise be blown in for booze are legitimately spent or deposited in a savings account at one of the banks. Visitors to the camp are loud in their praise.

Two per Cent. Beer

Although intoxicants are barred (it's Haileybury for yours if you want a snort), places abound ostensibly for the sale of soft drinks. In a certain section of the town almost every other shack—places without the slightest resemblance of saloons — are adorned with signs advertising in letters of home-made design, "Toronto Beer," "Montreal Beer," etc. Of course the hotels have their temperance bars, too, more pretentious affairs, where fizzy stuff and feather-weight claret, punctuated with quite unnecessary bromides, adorn the polished shelves and where harmless malt extracts take the place of the real stuff.

Fines Inflicted

Woe betide the unfortunate lemonade bar-tender who vends his insipid quantity of the demon alcohol, commingled; one-quart of one per cent. above the standard, and the minions of the law will descend, and the transgressor be hauled before the tribunal and summarily fined.

All this is right and proper, and most people in Cobalt wouldn't care if a further clause were inserted in the liquor law, absolutely prohibiting the sale of all amber-hued liquors of the near-beer variety.

Unfortunately, prohibition with all its beneficent effects on the community in general, is indirectly made a source of real hardship to hotel boarders. Cobalt hotel proprietors, seem to be almost without exception "to thrift and penury much inclined," for setting a lean table.

No Fruit and Vegetables

On the bill of fare, under the caption of fruits, one generally finds the succulent dried prune and evaporated apricot taking the place of fresh oranges; while such a luxury as berries of any variety is simply unheard of. Canned goods, day in and day out, throughout the year, with a lamentable disregard for the season and temperature, entirely supplant the fresh ubiquitous and essential potato of last year's vintage.

Cheap at $2.50

Its old and new comers to Cobalt say indignant things when they are asked to fork out $2.50 per diem for such fare. But hotelmen insist, despite the fact of their house being crowded all the time, that inn-keeping without the aid of a thriving bar business, is a most precarious undertaking.

To a certain extent the high rate of living in Cobalt bears them out, though even so, it is hard to see how the various "mine hosts" cannot provide a better line of goods for the price they charge.

Food Prices in Cobalt

In this connection it may be interesting to see how prices of staple goods compare with those of Sudbury. Prices of everyday articles, as the following, are: For bread, 10 cents a three-pound loaf; milk, 10 cents a quart; eggs 25 cents a dozen; butter, 25 cents a pound; beef, 15 cents; and last season's potatoes, $1.50 a sack. New potatoes are somewhat of a luxury yet, being 5 cents a pound. Green vegetables sell: Lettuce, 5 cents a bunch; onions, 5 cents a pound.

As for fruit, plums are doled out at from 12 to 20 cents a dozen; cherries, 15 cents a pound; pears, 50 cents a dozen, and oranges, 5 cents each. With the single exception of bananas, fruit is as expensive a luxury here as it is in remote prairie towns one thousands miles distant from the nearest orchard.

Some of the foregoing prices are not greatly in excess of those charged in Sudbury, all considered. But taken as a whole the cost of living is out of all just proportion to the salaries and wages paid here.

One excuse for high prices is of course the excessive freight and express rates levied by the T. & N. O. Railway—40 cents per hundred pounds freight and $1.50 per hundred express on goods shipped from Toronto to Cobalt. Everything edible is bought from the southern or eastern part of the province, the famous clay belt farming section of New Ontario being pretty nearly a cipher as far as its food production affects the mining district.

Board at Hotels

Assuredly Cobalt—where the humble copper of the Friday bargain is unknown and where the thirsty one must pay hard cash for pure drinking water, imported in bottles from Montreal—is an expensive place to reside in. Fourteen dollars per week is the easy terms on which one may secure a seat at the festive board and the occupancy of a sky-parlour at the hotel, while if one aspires to furnished rooms outside, he may obtain two comfortable little apartments for the modest sum of $35 a month.

Rents

These charges seem exorbitant for room in a cheaply constructed frame dwelling, and yet the owners assure one that by reason of the high rental they themselves are paying the prices they demand only gives them a fair compensation.

One man, the proprietor of a small restaurant which has a few rooms above it, informed the writer that he was handing out $85 a month rent for his little place, and on a back street at that. Dwelling houses of modest proportions bring $40, though for an office in one of the blocks the price charged is from $15 too $20 monthly.

Mines Hold Up Public

The fact that Cobalt lots are leased from the mining companies whose claims cover the whole townsite, has got something to do with the unreasonable figures of rents. These concerns charge a ground rent of some $5 monthly, while one well-known company assesses its tenants (recently turned out) the nice little sum of $25 a month for the privilege of erecting their shacks on its twenty-five foot plots of hillside and rock.

Won't Drop Prices

All the foregoing conditions militate against cheap living; but more than these is the fact that merchants and hotelmen insist on charging the same old rates for everything as in the early days of the camp.

FOSTER PROMISES DRY WEATHER FOLLOWING SUNDAY, AUGUST 15th

Examiner Special.

Washington, D.C., Aug. 7.—Last bulletin gave forecasts of disturbance to cross continent 6 to 10, warm wave 5 to 9, cool wave 13 to 17. The interesting feature of this storm period was expected to be its unusually cool weather, severe storms on eastern coast of the continent and the inauguration of drouth in parts of the corn belt. A high temperature wave was expected in the southwestern states from 4 to 10.

Next disturbance will reach Pacific coast about 10, cross Pacific slope by close of 11, great central valleys 12 to 14, eastern states and provinces 15. Warm wave will cross Pacific slope about 10, great central valleys 12, eastern states and provinces 14. Cool wave will cross Pacific slope about 13, great central valleys, longitude 105 to 85, about 15, eastern states and provinces 17.

This disturbance will bring another cool week with very little rain in large sections of the corn belt in which drouth will threaten damage to corn. Storms will be of no great importance till they reach the eastern states, the lower lakes and the eastern provinces of Canada where, about August 14 and 15, they will assume threatening and dangerous conditions. Between this and the following disturbance dry weather in large sections of the corn belt will begin to cause some uneasiness about the corn crop.

During the five days centring on Aug. 5, a hot wave will invade the states west of the lower Mississippi, including Texas, and following that hot wave showers may be expected in the states mentioned. Next disturbance will reach Pacific coast about 15, cross Pacific slope by close of 16, great central valleys 17, eastern states and provinces 19. Cool wave will cross Pacific slope about 18, great central valleys about 20, eastern states 23. This will be the most important disturbance of the month. It will be radical in all its features in its entire passage from Pacific to Atlantic coasts. It will not be a very dangerous storm on the continent, but severe tropical storms may be expected off our southern coasts.

Frosts are expected in northern sections, September 3 to 6, and 13 to 17. The later frost wave is expected to damage late corn and flax, and spring wheat, but the bulk of the northern crops will be out of danger by that time.

WILL APPEAL TO SUPERIOR COURT

Matthews Co. Fighting Hull City Over $55,000 Assessment Item.

The George Matthews Company of Hull has decided to take the matter of its assessment in that city before a superior court judge.

Last year the property owned by the firm was assessed at $80,000, but this year the 15 years' exemption from municipal taxes which it enjoyed expired and the valuators placed the assessment at $135,000.

The Messrs. Matthews thought this latter figure excessive and endeavoured to have the valuation placed at $80,000, which would be an increase of 33 1-3 per cent. The Board of Revision took the question into consideration, but decided to let the valuators' figures stand.

The result is the judge of the Superior Court will be asked to decide. The 15 years' exemption granted to the George Matthews Company was only on municipal taxes proper. School taxes, which are high, they have had to pay.—Ottawa Citizen.

MUSIC AND DRAMA.

NEW MUSICAL COMEDIES.

George M. Cohan promises several new musical shows next season. One of them will be The Christmas Doll, written for his sister Josephine; another will be The Harrigan Girl, devised for Edna Wallace Hopper; the third will be The Chorus Man, in which Raymond Hitchcock will perform, and the fourth will be made for the author's own use. Cohan also will provide new material for George "Honey Boy" Evans' minstrel troupe. George Parsons has written a musical comedy called Constantinople, which is listed for presentation. O. Henry, Franklin P. Adams and A. Baldwin Sloane are writing a piece called Lo, which Harry Askin will produce, and Stanislaus Stange and Ben Jerome are fashioning a musical piece called The Girl from Bohemia. George Ade is putting the finishing touches to a piece which will be produced with Montgomery and Stone as the principal players.

LILLIAN RUSSELL IN PARIS

Among the American artists traveling on the continent at present is Miss Lillian Russell, who will be remembered by local theatre-goers as appearing here in "Wildfire," during the past season. ## CHEMONG REGATTA

Annual Event Will be Held on Thursday Next—The Programme.

The annual Chemong regatta which will be held under the auspices of the Chemong Yacht Club on Thursday afternoon next, promises to be the best ever held. Great preparations have been made for it, and the committee, of which Mr. W. S. Davidson is secretary, is leaving nothing undone to make it far eclipse those of past years. The Fifty-seventh Regimental Band will be present, and in the evening, a dance will be held in the pavilion.

The programme prepared is an interesting one.

The Dinghy race is creating a great deal of interest and will likely be keenly contested. This event is for the Kawartha Lakes Challenge Cup and a dated flag presented by the Trent Valley Navigation Co. The cup is now held by Mr. Howard Hopwood.

The list of events will be as follows:

HAVE UNLUCKY DAYS OF ALFONSO THE 13th ARRIVED?

SPANISH MONARCHS WHOSE THRONES ARE IN DANGER—ALFON SO XIII., QUEEN VICTORIA AND THEIR OLDEST CHILD, THE PRINCE OF THE ASTURIAS.

San Sebastian, Spain, via Bordeaux, France, Aug. 7.—King Alfonso's farewell to the Queen and his children before his departure for Madrid was in itself as tragic as any of the history-making events of the recent crisis in Spain's affairs. For two nights before his enforced leavetaking from his family the young King paced the corridors of the royal villa Miramar, getting no sleep ,and consumed with pitiful impatience to be on the scene of action.

Finding it impossible to take rest during the trying hours of the mid-week, the King ordered all despatches to be shown him instantly on their receipt from Madrid, whatever the hour of their arrival. Each succeeding advice told of the increasing danger of the situation.

Queen Victoria was torn with emotion, realizing she must shortly be called upon to witness the departure of her husband and fearing the possible danger to their children that might follow his absence.

At first it was intended that the Queen should return with the King to Madrid, leaving the children here in charge of the Queen Mother, who could take them across the frontier at the first sign of danger. The Queen was quite ready to do this, convinced that her husband's danger would be more imminent than her children's. But on telegraphed advices from Senor Maura it was determined suddenly that the King would better make the trip to Madrid alone.

Believe He Has Gone to Death.

The royal entourage believe Alfonso has gone to his death. When the moment of farewell arrived the King and Queen were distracted with grief, embracing each other repeatedly and both weeping as if convinced by a common instinct that they would never see each other again.

The King broke down first when bidding goodby to his children. It was then, for the first time, he showed the frightful effect of the strain he has been labouring under. As he kissed each child he shook with sobs and his cries could be heard throughout the house.

The Queen found it out of the question to accompany her husband to the railway station, owing to the bad effect sure to be created by her distraught appearance. There was little use of dissembling. The events at the villa Miramar are common talk throughout the town. The royal entourage is so demoralized they seem to have lost all their usual reticence.

Panic Throughout Household.

The departure of the Queen and Queen Mother with the royal children for Bayonne, France, after the King left for Madrid created a panic here, though the statement was made that they crossed the frontier only to make a visit. In spite of this the people are sure they went really to look over possible villas for rent if flight for themselves or children becomes necessary.

It was reported that the Queen and Queen Mother, with the children and Infanta Teresa, would probably start for La Granja in order to be nearer Madrid, and not go to Bayonne, their ostensible destination. This is generally doubted here in view of the increasing dangers of the situation throughout Spain. It is said the King declared to the Queen before he left her:

"You shall never become another Marie Antoinette."

This is taken to mean that he proposes to take no risks with her among the populace of Madrid.

DROUTH IS COSTLY

Fruit Crop Suffers as Result of Dry July Weather.

LITTLE WHEAT DAMAGED

C.N.R. Grain Agent Acheson Thinks 70 Million Bushels Will Cover the Destruction by Hail in the West —Last Days of July Will Pull Fruit Crop Above the Averages of Previous Years.

Ottawa, Aug. 7.—The report of the Department of Agriculture on the fruit crop for July is not so encouraging as was the June report. The drouth of the early part of the month had its effect in reducing the crop materially. However, the latter portion of the month has somewhat revived the hopes of growers and a crop above the average is looked for.

Apples will be a light to medium crop, but the winter varieties promise to be a better quality than usual.

All over the Dominion the pear harvest will be light with the possible exception of Nova Scotia.

Plum, peaches, cherries and grapes will give a medium crop all over Canada, except the plum crop in British Columbia, which is light.

On account of shortage of fruit in European countries, there will be a good market for all the fruit Canada will have to export. The United States will be able to consume all its fruit products, but will likely export some to Europe on account of high prices.

Thinks Damage is Slight.

Winnipeg, Man., Aug. 7.—Thomas Acheson, general grain agent of the Canadian Pacific Railway Co. states that reports of any damage to the grain owing to the storm will not reach him until late to-day, but he does not anticipate anything serious.

Since the beginning of the season Mr. Acheson has kept faithful reports of all damage to growing grains and the amount covering the three large provinces of Manitoba, Alberta and Saskatchewan will not reach more than one per cent. of the total expected yield estimating the 1909 wheat crop at 120 million bushels, which is considered low. One per cent. damage is considered very light in comparison with other years.

"Of course," said Mr. Acheson, "the business communities generally will not feel such a slight loss. At specific points where the most damage has been done there will be a slight depression along the business men, but apart from the local points business men may go far rest easy."

Forty-Five Bushels to Acre.

Sterling, Alta., Aug. 7.—Reports of bumper crops in this district continue to arrive at the offices of the Townsite Syndicate. Word was received yesterday from the Wells' four thousand acre farm, three miles south of here, that wheat cutting will begin on August 8. It is expected that the crop will run forty-five bushels to the acre.

Two new elevators are being erected in Sterling and will be completed in time to assist in handling the big crop.

China Murders White Girl.

Frankfort, Aug. 7.—The murder of a white woman by a Chinaman, somewhat similar to the murder of Elsie Sigel in New York last June, occurred in this city yesterday.

Tien Yen, a Chinese merchant, of Berlin, actuated by jealousy, shot Hildegard Hoffman, a music hall singer, and then turned his revolver on himself.

Both died within a few minutes.

Waitress Jumps Into River.

Brockville, Aug. 7.—Miss Minnie Cassidy, aged 25 years, of Prescott, employed as a waitress at Alexandra Bay, attempted to drown herself at that place. Crazed with a toothache, for which she could get no relief, the young woman went to the Cornwall dock and in full view of scores of people threw herself into the river. She was rescued.

Train Kills Twelve Cattle.

Brantford, Aug. 7.—Thirty head of cattle belonging to a farmer named Simons, wandered through a defective fence on the farm between St. George and Paris, and bunched on the Grand Trunk track for the night. A freight crashed into them, killing 12 outright, and so badly injured four more that they had to be killed.

Suffocated In Well.

Drinkwater, Sask., Aug. 7.—John McWherter lost his life from suffocation in a well on the farm of T. Nagle, five miles south of here yesterday morning. He was engaged in coupling the cable in the well when the clasp became unhooked and he dropped 40 feet. McWherter came here from Shelburne.

Bank Manager Shot by Madman.

Logan, Kas., Aug. 7.—Thomas Mullen, president of the state bank, was shot and killed here Thursday night by Gus Beauges, a farmer, who then shot and killed himself. It is believed Beauges had been mentally unbalanced for some time. He had threatened to kill other persons.

North Bay, Aug. 7.—Eleven were injured in the wreck of the C.P.R. Atlantic express at Woman River Thursday. They are: J. Taylor and daughter, Victoria, B.C.; Mrs. Butler, Packenham; Mrs. Becket, Calgary; P. Glenn, Henry Smith, Winnipeg; three dining-car employes and Brakemen Wright and Chapleau.

Miss Taylor is suffering from a broken rib and others injured nursing cuts, bruises and ribs broken, but none of the injuries are of a serious nature. The cause of the accident has not been ascertained.

Bear Carries Off Baby.

Cheyboygan, Mich., Aug. 7.—Report reached here yesterday that a large black bear had carried away a baby eighteen months' old, while the father and mother was picking huckleberries on MacIntosh Plains, ten miles from here. The mother, a Polish woman, left the child in charge of another eight years old. Sheriff Clute sent a posse of ten men to the scene, but they were unable to find any trace of the child or the bear.

KITCHENER GOES UP

He is Made Inspector-General of Mediterranean Forces.

TO UNIFY IMPERIAL FORCE

Report is Current That Hero of Kandahar Will Be Put at the Head of the Entire Military Force of the Empire—Succeeds the Duke of Connaught, Who Resigned Because of Expense to Nation.

London, Aug. 7.—Lord Kitchener, commander of the British forces in India, has been appointed to succeed the Duke of Connaught as inspector-general of the Mediterranean forces, which post the duke recently resigned on the ground of "the ineffective nature of the work and the needless expense to the nation involved therein."

Lord Kitchener will take the rank of field marshal and also become a member of the committee of imperial defence. The inspector-general has command of the garrisons at Malta and Gibraltar and all the British troop in Egypt, the Soudan and Cyprus.

The appointment of Lord Kitchener is coincident with added importance being attached to the post. The Duke of Connaught, in an official announcement said: "In view of the new developments in the organization of the Mediterranean command assumed increased importance and will be taken up by Lord Kitchener in the object of giving it it's proper place in the scheme of imperial defence.

LORD KITCHENER.

It is understood that as a result of the Imperial Defence Conference which is now sitting, it is intended to co-ordinate all the military forces of the Empire and place Lord Kitchener at the head of an organization having the imperial army for it's special care. As a preparation for this work, for which he has gained valuable experience in India, on vacating the Indian command in September, Lord Kitchener will go to Japan to represent Great Britain at the Japanese grand manoeuvres in November and afterward make a tour of Canada, Australia and New Zealand to study the military organizations and consult with the colonial Government concerning them.

Lord Kitchener, who became 59 years old in June, is the youngest field marshal in the history of Great Britain. Lord Roberts was 60 years old when he was raised to the rank and Lord Wolseley 69.

Divorced In New York.

New York, Aug. 7.—Mrs. Alice Montford was yesterday granted an interlocutory decree of divorce by Justice Crane. The action was undefended. The defendant in the suit is William Sidney Montford, a wealthy manufacturer of automatic photographing machines. Named as co-respondent is Miss Anne McLean, the private secretary of the defendant.

Mrs. Montford testified that she married the defendant in Toronto, Canada, Feb. 23, 1888 and that there is one issue of the marriage, a daughter Edna, who is now 19 years of age. Because of the facts that she had ascertained concerning her husband's conduct she separated from him last February.

Put Feet on Desk.

Brantford, Aug. 7.—Principal Gent has been dismissed by the Paris public school board as a result of dissatisfaction among the trustees over alleged misconduct during school hours.

Mr. Gent stated that he would hold the trustees responsible for his dismissal. His letter was filed by a vote of 6 to 5.

The principal is said to have placed his feet on the desk during class hours.

His dismissal was not unanimous among the trustees, a number of whom have regarded the results shown as most satisfactory.

Will Not Use Whole Line.

Montreal, Aug. 7.—There is a story here to the effect that the C.P.R. will not use the whole distance of the line from Smith's Falls to Peterboro in the formation of their great grain line from Montreal to Victoria Harbor, but that a cut-off section will be built that will reduce the distance very considerably.

This week the company's double track from Vaudreuil to Finch, a distance of 55 miles, will be finished, thus completing the double track on the Montreal and Smith's Falls section.

Johnson Fined Again.

London, Aug. 7.—Jack Johnson, the champion pugilist, was arrested here Thursday night at the request of the Woodstock police for speeding his auto in that city, and was fined $50 and costs by Magistrate Love.

Crooks Leave Country.

St. Catharines, Aug. 7.—The three American crooks arrested at the regatta last week were chased out of the country by Magistrate Campbell yesterday morning.

Sunday Work Legal.

Quebec, Aug. 7.—In the Appeal Court yesterday Judge Lavergne decided that Sunday work in bakeries was legal.

BRIEFS FROM THE WIRES.

The Porte has sent a note to Greece demanding a formal declaration by that country of non-interference in Cretan affairs.

The Canadian Northern will open their line between Quebec and Montreal on the 22nd, the trains running in and out of the C.P.R. Place Viger station.

Following the four Ontario readers published a few days ago comes the "Ontario Public School Speller," issued last night by the Department of Education.

The London Times remarks that one important result of the American tariff has been to increase the feeling in Canada in favor of an imperial conference.

It is announced that Lieut. Shackleton, who got within 111 miles of the South Pole, has accepted an invitation to lecture in Canada and the United States.

Liquor valued at $1,200, and concealed in bales of hay, has been confiscated while being shipped to the transcontinental construction gangs near La Tuque, Quebec.

Japan yesterday officially notified the powers of her intention to proceed immediately with the reconstructing and improving the Antung-Mukden railroad without the consent of China.

Col. Hugh McLean, who arrived in St. John, N.B., from England yesterday, where he has been before the Privy Council, announced that while dining with Sir Thomas Lipton, that gentleman told him he would be in Canada this autumn.

Hotelman Goes to Trial.

Brockville, Aug. 7.—The charge of perjury preferred a week ago by Rev. Thomas Leech, Anglican clergyman of Lansdowne, against Robert H. Service, proprietor of the Island View House, Rockport, was taken up in the Police Court yesterday. The charge was that on March 13 last Service made an affidavit in which he accused the plaintiff of openly canvassing voters in the polling booth to cast their ballots in favor of local option on Jan. 4.

It was shown that the clergyman had twice entered the polling booth in a private residence during the day, on one occasion just to get a glimpse of those inside and on the other at a time when the poll was about to close and all the votes in. No one heard him canvassing and Plunkett, the man he is alleged to have openly canvassed in the booth, swore that Leech spoke to him concerning a relative who was ill.

Magistrate Murphy considered the evidence sufficient to send Service for trial and accordingly committed him. Bail was fixed at $2,000 and promptly furnished.

New King.

Vienna, Aug. 7.—Europe next year will have a new king. According to a report Prince Nicholas of Montenegro has decided to assume the title of king on the occasion of the 50th anniversary of his accession, which will occur on August 14, 1910.

Killed In British Columbia.

Belleville, Aug. 7.—News has been received here of the death of Harry Backus, a former Belleville boy, who was killed at Shoal Lake, B.C., by a tree, which he cut down, falling on him. He left here 11 years ago.

Rabies' Victim Has Chance.

New York, Aug. 7.—The Pasteur Institute yesterday handed out the following report on the case of the Brantford child, who was bitten by a mad dog.

"Bert" Martin's condition is satisfactory. No undesirable symptoms have developed so far. His delay in coming here was long, but we expect to confer immunity to this patient."

THIRTY-FOUR ARRESTED.

U. M. W. Pickets Taken In by Employes of Mines.

Glace Bay, N.S., Aug. 7.—With the exception that more men are reporting for work there is little change in conditions at the collieries. Another batch of men from Montreal were landed Thursday night and were taken to the mines.

The output on Thursday amounted to 10,463 tons, of which 5,900 tons came from the collieries, the rest being from the banks.

The cases brought by the Dominion Coal Co. against some of its tenants for eviction are still being heard before Judge Finlayson. Yesterday morning the court granted an order for the eviction of Alexander McEachren and Alexander McLeod, both of Reserve mines, and of Frank Baker of New Aberdeen.

Thursday night 34 men were arrested at No. 2 Mine, charged with loitering on the streets. These men were at the time doing picket duty for the U.M.W. The police committee of the Town Council, being all employes of the coal company, appointed 25 of the coal police as special town police. These sallied forth and arrested the pickets.

WOMAN IS DROWNED.

Kingston Boating Party Stand Up to Change Seats.

Kingston, Aug. 7.—By the upsetting of a skiff off Point Frederick yesterday afternoon, Mrs. Charles Steer, Rideau street, was drowned and her husband and Samuel Murray had a narrow escape.

Murray was rowing and was about to change off with Steer. As they stood up in the boat, it upset, and all were thrown into the water.

Steer hung on to his wife until he was so exhausted he had to let her go, and Murray clung to the boat. Harry Stanbridge heard cries, swam out and got them to shore.

Steer was almost dead, but came to after a doctor worked over him. Search was made for the body, but it was not recovered up to a late hour.

Deceased had a family of five children.

This is three rescues Stanbridge has made within two weeks.

Greer Investigates Death.

Bayfield, Aug. 7.—Interest in the strange death of Mrs. W. J. Burns, who was found dead in her home July 17 last, with a bruise on one of her temples, and a stocking knotted loosely about her throat, has been revived by the appearance of Provincial Detective Greer.

The detective was sent here at the request of the woman's husband, who desired to set at rest certain rumors. A coroner's jury a few weeks ago found the woman came to her death from causes unknown to it, but it is understood Detective Greer, as the result of his investigations, has decided that death was due to heart failure.

Sailors Cling to Rigging.

Cape Town, Aug. 7.—Five members of the crew of the British steamship Maori, which ran on the rocks Wednesday night off Slang Bay, are still on board that vessel.

Through the clouds of spray, dashed up by the terrific seas breaking over the wreck, the forms of the men can be indistinctly seen clinging to the rigging.

Their position is most perilous. Lifeboats are attempting to rescue them.

Dredge Columbia Damaged.

Amherstburg, Aug. 7.—The steamship Louisiana, bound up with coal, collided with the dredge Columbia off the Great Lakes Dredge & Dock Co., near Bar Point, yesterday morning. The dredge is being towed to drydock. The steamer proceeded with a badly twisted stem.

Port Arthur, Aug. 7.—Ten money bylaws, including the drydock bonus of $325,000 a year for ten years, and one plebiscite on the Carnegie library site, are to be voted on next Tuesday.

Hunting Baddeck No. 1.

Petawawa Camp, Aug. 7.—The finishing touches were given to Baddeck No. 1 yesterday afternoon, and J. D. McCurdy confidently expects to attempt flights to-day, when much is expected of the new aerodrome.

Casey Baldwin said yesterday that, "it was a refined product of the inventors' art."

As soon as the trials at Petawawa are concluded, Baldwin and McCurdy will visit England with an all Canadian aerodrome, to carry out a program of flights which will be arranged later. That they will surpass Bleriot's recent performance over the English Channel is earnestly wished.

Stringent Immigration Bill.

Washington, Aug. 7.—A bill providing for stringent exclusion of immigrants was introduced in the House Thursday by Representative Austin (Tennessee). It provides that all Asiatics, except public officials, merchants, students and travelers, shall be prohibited from coming into the United States, Porto Rico, Hawaii or the Philippines.

It also excludes European adults who cannot read or write, who are not industrious, and who have criminal records, as well as all members of the so-called "Black Hand" or similar organizations.

Girl Drinks Carbolic.

Chatham, Aug. 7.—Delia Howle, a 20-year-old girl, employed as a cook in a local restaurant, was found on Thursday night at a boarding-house suffering from a strange sickness, which proved to be carbolic acid poisoning. Medical aid was summoned and a stomach pump used. Dr. H. J. Sullivan thinks the girl will recover. Trouble over a young man is supposed to have led the girl to attempt suicide.

Quebec Timber Changes.

Quebec, Aug. 7.—At the next session of the Legislature the Government's new lumber policy will be introduced. Hon. Jules Allard, Minister of Crown Lands, declared Thursday that the stumpage duties would be considerably increased and some action would be taken to prevent the exportation of pulpwood in order that it might bring about the manufacture of paper in this province.

Two Boys Drown.

Ottawa, Aug. 7.—(C.A.P. Cable.)—Two sons of L. Beaudry of Montreal were drowned at St. Eugene. They were at their grandfather's farm, and were on a load of hay crossing Grace Bridge. The wagon topped over into the creek, with the boys, the hay on top of them. Mr. Cadieux, the grandfather jumped off in time to save himself.

Drowned in Rainy River.

Emo, Aug. 7.—Samuel Benneger, aged 14, was drowned yesterday in the Rainy River while bathing.

FEWER CIGARETTES

New Law 'Keeps' Weed Out of Hands of Youngsters.

THIRTY MILLION DECREASE

Although Consumption is Still Large, the Act of 1908 Caused a Drop of From Thirty to Fifty Millions in Number of Cigarettes Since Its Enactment — Operated Chiefly on Lads Under 16 Years.

Ottawa, Aug. 7.—There were thirty million less cigarettes smoked in Canada last year than the year before. The decline is held to be entirely among boys of sixteen years or under, and to be entirely due to the restrictive legislation put through Parliament by the Government during the session of 1908. It is believed that the law actually prevented the smoking of from forty to fifty million cigarettes by the boys of the country, as the consumption was increasing, and if it had not been for the law there would have been an increase of from ten to twenty millions instead of a decline of thirty millions. This is a fair assumption, as the consumption was increasing more and more each year, and during the six years prior to 1908 the increase amounted to over seventy-five millions.

The total consumption of cigarettes last year was about three hundred and seventy millions. There were three hundred and fifty-six and three-quarter millions of domestic cigarettes consumed, or a decrease of twenty-eight millions, and there were twenty and three-quarter millions of imported cigarettes smoked, a decrease of about two millions.

The results are more impressive when it is remembered that the law was in force for only eight months of the year. It became effective on July 20, 1908, and the year closed for statistical purposes on March 31, 1909.

Dies on Visit to Daughter.

Montreal, Aug. 7.—George Denmark of Belleville died while on his way to visit his daughter, a nurse in the Royal Victoria Hospital. He collapsed in the street, and a student picked him up and took him to the hospital in a cab. But he died on the way, and the daughter, who was waiting to welcome him, identified the body as that of her father.

C.P.R. Will Fight Viaduct.

Montreal, Aug. 7.—Information from C.P.R. sources indicate that the road will not accept the Toronto viaduct ruling, as was rumored, but will carry the case to the highest court.

No official statement has been issued, but there is activity in the legal department and it is practically decided to go on to the end.

Massive Gold Bricks.

Seattle, Wn., Aug. 7.—Gold bricks weighing 2,400 pounds and worth more than half a million dollars were received in the Government assay office yesterday, coming through the mail from Fairbanks, Alaska, via Vancouver, B.C.

Changed His Name.

Toronto, Aug. 7.—By paying 10 cents and signing a deed poll, David S. Kidd, who expects to erect a million-dollar rescue home for fallen women, yesterday changed his name to David S. Burn. The deed was done in the office of D'Arcy Hinds, judgment clerk at Osgoode Hall. The change was made in order to qualify him to a bequest of half a million dollars from Wellington George Burn of Melbourne, Australia.

In 1907, through evangelistic work, Mr. Kidd rescued a girl who turned out to be the daughter of the Australian millionaire, who in his will left him the money to build a rescue home. W. G. Burn desired, however, that Mr. Kidd adopt his name as the money is left to David S. Burn.

Mr. Burn was in some doubt as to whether he would have to be married again to Mrs. Kidd, his wife, but the wife has her name changed automatically.

Boy Lost Two Days.

Halifax, N.S., Aug. 7.—Earl Hines, six-year-old son of Mr. and Mrs. Hines, of this city, who was lost in the woods at Prince's Lodge, while attending the Sunday school picnic of the Park street Presbyterian Church on Wednesday, was found last night at five o'clock, three-quarters of a mile back of Prince's Lodge.

He was on the top of a rough stubble hill, eating blueberries. He was cool and undismayed, and in good physical condition, despite his two-day sojourn in the woods. The only part of his clothing lost was his hat.

Fifteen hundred soldiers and civilians took part in the search yesterday.

Bisley Men Home.

Quebec, Aug. 7.—Five members of the Canadian Bisley team arrived here yesterday morning on board the U. S. Tunisian, bearing with them the laurels and honors which they won in competition with the marksmen of the Empire. Among those who arrived yesterday were Lieut.-Col. Bertram, commander of the team; Major Mercer, adjutant; Major Jones, Prince Edward Island; Lieut. Morris, Bowmanville; Sergt. Russell and Private Gougeon. The unattached members who arrived were: Pte. Bloomfield, Lockfield, Ont.; Sergt.-Instructor [illegible], Toronto; Lieut. Mortimer, Quebec, and Col.-Sergt. Blackburn.

Gipsies Have the Colic.

Sault Ste. Marie, Ont., Aug. 7.—A band of gipsies came across from the Michigan Soo Thursday, and when held up by the Canadian immigration authorities produced $11,000 in cash. They are on their way to take up land in the Northwest. They were allowed to proceed.

Drowned at the Soo.

Sault Ste. Marie, Aug. 7.—Ed. Morris, employed by the Superior Drydock Co., on the Michigan side, while attempting to jump from the [illegible] Shaughnessy to the top of a launch, fell into the river yesterday morning and was drowned.

COST $1050 MARGIN WINS $10,000 STAKE FIRST POP

MARGIN, WINNER OF M. AND M.

If you dug down into your jeans for $1,050 to buy a trotter and the trotter handed back to you a cool $10,000 the first crack out of the box you'd like that equine pretty well, wouldn't you?

Well, that's the reason Lon McDonald, the famous teamster, is going down the big line very proud of his speedy mare, Margin. Also that's why every lover of the light harness horse is just crazy to get a look at Miss Margin.

When the pools were opened at Detroit for the classic M. and M. the talent fell over itself buying tickets on Marie N, Ed. Greer's good mare, known to have the speed of a runaway locomotive. Few thought enough of Marion to risk the price of sinkers and coffee on her.

But when the showdown came McDonald uncovered a speed marvel. She came home in 2:06 1-4 the first heat, but a quarter o fa second slower than the record made by Somona Girl, and did it so easily that old-timers vowed she was a two-minute performer.

Margin is destined to do things this summer sure enough. Her victory in the classic was impressive, and she showed such staying power that many see in her another Lou Dillon.

And just to think—it's only a little over a year ago that Mac purchased the mare at an auction in Lexington for $1,050.

GREAT FEATHERWEIGHT BOXERS---MORAN AND DRISCOLL--- TO FIGHT SEPTEMBER 13

London, Aug. 6.—As surely as beans is beans, Sept. 13 is going to be unlucky for either Jem Driscoll or Owen Moran. Also it is sure to be the date of the greatest battle of the year, from a scientific standpoint, when these great little men clash for the feather weight championship of Great Britain.

Following as it does upon the heels of the Welsh-Jospehs battle for the lightweight championship, the fight has stirred English sportsmen as they have not been since the days when Charley Mitchell was in his prime.

The fact that both boys have met Abe Attell, the featherweight champion of the world, and that Driscoll outpointed him in ten rounds and Moran secured two draws in 20 and 23 rounds, would indicate they aremany miles to see.

beautifully matched in their coming engagement.

Both little fellows have an enormous following and thousands of pounds will be wagered in all parts of the kingdom upon the outcome of the battle.

Both fighters are under the management of Charley Harvey, despite the fact that there is the bitterest of feeling between them, and no one doubts the fight will be well worth going

BILL O'HARA OF THE GIANTS TALKS OF HIMSELF AND HIS COUNTRY

Bill O'Hara of Toronto, is attracting a lot of attention from the New York papers. Says the Journal of the young Torontonian who has made good there:

"The lad O'Hara needs no education. He is the brightest little leaguer that broke into fast company this year. What he says will probably make the Irish mad, but O'Hara does not care. He has his own ideas and a level head.

"My name is Billy O'Hara, and I came from county Sligo, Ireland. My folks moved to Canada and when the Boer war opened I stuck to the English colours. Mind you, I don't say British, but English. There are a few Canucks in baseball right now. Gibson of Pittsburg, is from Guelph, Ontario; Bob Emslie is a native of St. Thomas; Jimmy Archer, catcher for the Cubs, is a Toronto boy; Ike Owens, the White Sox backstop, is from Toronto; Congalton, of the Boston Americans, is from Guelph, Ont. I don't know whether they are voters, but I am not. I believe in sticking to your mother country, and I consider that the English nation is my mother country because it governs us. I don't believe that any other country could have whipped the Boers any sooner than we did.

"I am an Irishman, all right, and not ashamed of it. But the Irishmen do not seem able to govern themselves, and I don't see why they should roast the stuffing out of England. Every man has his own opinion and that's mine."

O'Hara is a remarkably well read fellow on international politics. He is a great admirer of McGraw, but he is no sycophant, and willing to defend his opinions. He is an omnivorous raeder and a quick thinker. Thus far he has not hit the pill regularly, but he seldom falls down in fielding or using good judgment in throwing. But he is a great base runner, and McGraw believes that he will develop into a second Red Murray at clubbing. O'Hara and McCormick have a bachelors' flat up in Harlem, known as the Outfielders' Aquarium, since neither one drinks anything stronger than Croton.

O'Hara stole 53 bases in the Eastern League last season and hit .292 in 143 games.

He was turned down by Larry Lajoie of Cleveland, but that is no disgrace, as Larry has double-crossed himself on a good many champions.

WHITE SOX TWIRLER LONGS FOR RECORD

Smith Wants to Work in Seventy-five Games.

Chicago, Aug. 7.—Frank Smith, the present "iron man" of the White Sox, is out after the pitching record. He has his heart set on pitching in just half the scheduled games, which is going some, even for the piano juggler. Smith has confided to his friends that, if Manager Sullivan will let him, he will be willing to get into seventy-five games, as he is bound to make up this year for that little vacation of his last season, when he quit the team at a critical time in the race.

The big pitcher has asserted that he was never better in his life than he is now, and not only is he willing to go into any number of games asked of him, but he is ready to pitch full games out of his turn, every other day, if necessary. Smith is one of the Sox who thinks that the team has yet a chance for the pennant, and it won't be his fault if the South Siders don't land the bunting. Smith has not said anything to Sullivan or Comiskey about his ambition, but has told friends that he was anxious to find out how much he could stand. He has no fear about his arm giving out, and is certain that he can pitch and win a goodly number of over seventy games.

Up to this date it has been almost necessary for Smith to pitch in 50 per cent. more games than usually fall to the lot of the average pitcher, but the cheering news was announced yesterday that Walsh will be ready to take his regular turn in the box within a week. As a consequence, Manager Sullivan expects to take 'Big Ed' East with the team, something he had not expected to do until yesterday. During the practice in the forenoon Walsh worked out, and said after a rubdown that his arm troubled him less than it has any time this year.

TENNIS.

St. John's Tennis Club

Mr. Summerhayes, of Toronto, has been made welcome by St. John's Club, on the Oval Court this week. On Thursday he played in gentlemen's doubles and one game resulted in 17-15. Yesterday Mr. Summerhayes was umpire in the final city game between St. John's and the Y.M.C.A., when Richardson and Rudolph beat the brothers. Myles (Y.M.C.A.) 6-4; 6-3. It is not unlikely that the lady champion of this continent on this year's play will be seen on the Oval under the auspices of St. John's.

GOLF

The Peterborough Golf Club will play the members of the Lindsay Club at the links of the Peterborough Golf and Country Club on Monday afternoon, Civic Holiday. The following members of the local club are asked to be present: Messrs. R. J. Mcdonald, Sam Ray, H. D. Burnett, A. H. Stratton, T. F. Matthews, Dr. Gowan, Allan Campbell, D. Walker, J. N. Barber, W. H. Blanchette, T. C. Wainwright, A. Mowat, B. N. Boswell, S. T. Medd, W. H. Denham and H. C. Hill (captain).

OLD WORLD'S SPORTING NEWS

NORTHAMPTON WON.

Without the incomparable Jessop, Gloucester are finding their path strewn with thorns. At Northampton they were beaten by nine wickets. Mr. Manning, the Western shire's skipper, won the toss, and though the wicket looked difficult, elected to bat. The result was 98 runs, of which Langdon scored 32 after two hours' work. The "Cobblers" fared none too well in their turn, reaching a moderate 148. Gloucester's second attempt was even worse than their first, a poor 95. The first wicket fell at 53, the remainder adding 42. The necessary 46 runs were secured by Northants with the loss of one wicket. In Gloucester's second innings Thompson, the home bowler, met with poor success until he changed ends with Knight. From that end his figures read—16 overs, 7 maidens, 4 runs, 4 wickets. Knight took 3 for 13.

LANCASTRIANS DRAW AT LORDS.

Rain spoiled what might have proved a grand finish in the Middlesex-Lancashire match. Middlesex batted first, and made a good start, 123 runs being chalked up for the loss of two wickets. Then MacLaren again put Sharp on to bowl, and the Eve[illegible] took seven of the last eight wickets in all 6 for 51 runs. The innings realized 189. Hendren, the latest recruit, made a successful debut, scoring a splendid 99. Lancashire opened none too well; in fact, the whole side were [illegible] for 189. Sharp scored a fine 54, when Warner closed his career from [illegible] wanting but one run to complete his thousand. Everything pointed to a fine finish, as, on a bowler's wicket, Huddleston and Heap dismissed the Londoners for 137. Rain had curtailed the play when Lancashire required 120 for victory. The Red Rose lost two wickets for 18, and the match was left drawn.

Cricket Chips

Apropos of Northamptonshire's present successes, it is interesting to recall their first season in first-class cricket, now one three years ago. In a match with Gloucestershire at Gloucester, they made the unenviable record by being bundled out for 12 runs, which still holds good. A would-be wit sent the following rather unkind telegram to the unfortunate captain: "Send the children home.—Mother." Times have indeed changed.

An unusual incident occurred towards the close of Kent's second innings. Mr. B. L. Bisgood, in catching Blythe, took the ball over the boundary, and Mr. Johnson, the Somerset captain, called the Kent professional back to continue batting.

Some idea of the nature of G. L. Jessop's injury was gathered from the fact that until last Wednesday it was deemed inadvisable to remove the shirt he was wearing when he met with his accident at Leeds fourteen days before. At the same time the bandages put on by the specialist were taken off and plaster strapping substituted. This gave him much relief. He will undergo a course of massage shortly.

A. E. Relf has obtained his 1,000th wicket in first-class cricket. They have been taken at a cost of 21.89 runs each.

Belgium have beaten France by four wickets at St. Cloud, Paris. France have now won two matches, Belgium one, and one has been drawn.

The probables in the test match are: Mr. A. C. MacLaren, Mr. P. F. Warner, Mr. K. L. Hutchings, Mr. D. W. Carr, Hayward, Tyldesley, Sharp, Rhodes, Lilley, Barnes and Blythe

The leaders in the averages are:

EXCITING CROSS-FIRING BETWEEN POLICE OFFICER AND YOUNG MAN TO-DAY

There was excitement in the police court this morning for awhile, and there was some great cross-firing between the prosecution and the defence. Four young men were charged with loafing on George street, scuffling and otherwise obstructing the passage, on Wednesday evening last around six o'clock. They pleaded not guilty, Mr. G. N. Gordon appearing for one of the accused.

P. C. Newhall gave evidence as to their conduct, dancing and jostling among themselves. Three witnesses were called in direct contradiction of the police officer's statement. During the hearing of the case, Mr. Gordon, who was defending Neil Bratt, insinuated that the police had got free lunches at the restaurant where his client was employed.

Chief Rossel and P. C. Newhall denied the statement most emphatically, P. C. Newhall going into the box and stating that there was not a policeman who did not pay for every meal he got in a restaurant here.

While His Worship did not make any conviction, he spoke strongly against loafing and in reference to the remark made by Mr. Gordon, said that it was an uncalled for insinuation. It was a citizen's duty to protect every official and such a statement was not fair.

A Second Charge

While leaving the courtroom P. C. Newhall and Mr. G. N. Gordon, and his client, engaged in another tilt, resulting in a charge being laid against Bratt for using insulting language to the police officer, making use of such expressions as "I'll give you another free cigar," "Your lies don't count all the time," and "Do you remember the night I called you back for ten cents. That is how cheap you are."

Mr. Gordon, on behalf of his client pleaded not guilty. Witnesses were called who stated that they heard the above remarks made, but it was also shown that there was considerable cross-firing between the two.

His Worship dismissed the charge. "A policeman," he said, "should be more discreet. He has no right to answer back."

P. C. Newhall explained that he did not start the trouble.

For Spitting on the Floor

HE PLEADED GUILTY.

A man by the name of Campbell from Warsaw, dropped in to hear the evidence in a recent case in the police court, and while there was seen expectorating tobacco juice on the floor, by P. C. Newhall. A charge was laid against him, but he pleaded guilty before coming to court. Mr. Gordon was present in his behalf this morning, but His Worship refused to fine him unless the accused was present. Campbell did not think that he had to attend and the case was left over until such time as he was there.

AT ST. JOSEPH'S CHURCH

Rev. Father Schweitzer, of Berlin, Will Officiate There To-morrow.

At St. Joseph's Church, Douro, on the first Friday of this month two hundred people received Holy Communion. On Sunday, (to-morrow), August 8th, Rev. Father Schweitzer, a professor from St. Jerome's College, Berlin, will officiate in St. Joseph's Church.

BURLEIGH FALLS POWER.

There has been some idea prevalent that the City Council would be able to secure cancellation of the Government lease of the Burleigh Falls Power issued to and held by the Central Ontario Power Company. It is found, however, upon inquiry, that the contract with Mr. Culverwell, on behalf of the Company, for the Burleigh Falls Power, is not one that the Dominion Government can cancel. The ownership in fee, as pointed out in Mr. McLaughlin's letter, on Thursday, is vested in the Company irrespective of the lease. However, the development could not have been proceeded with except under the terms of the lease.

MINISTER "SPIELS"

Sells Lead Pencils on Street Corner in Aid of a Blind Friend.

Minneapolis, Minn., Aug. 6.—Rev. G. H. Morrill, chaplain of the Actors' Alliance there, and also of the Theatrical Mechanical Association, has chosen a new occupation, that of selling pencils on the corner of Sixth street and Nicollet avenue, in aid of Clire A. Clark, a friend of his, who became afflicted with blindness. Everybody in Minneapolis knows Rev. Mr. Morrill, and his rush of business has been almost a panic. Local theatrical managers agree that as a "ballyhoo," he would certainly be a tremendous hit.

NIGHT CONCERT AS IT WAS ANNOUNCED

George Atkinson, in The Billboard, Gives Truthful Version of the Afert Show at Circus.

Ladies and Gentlemen:—As customary with all large travelling shows and exhibitions of this kind and nature, we give what is known as a concert, or after-show, here on the elevated platform, and I wish to say to those having the nerve, courage and coin to remain that you will hear more and see less than ever before. It is with great pleasure that I present to you the world-famed Donna Sisters, Bella and Prima. These little ladies will attempt to sing a coon song, at the same time dodging an eight-horse team which is being driven over the horns and fiddle boxes of five or six thirsty musicians; and, as a special feature, I introduce Mlle. Beacon, the shining light of vaudeville. She will execute difficult jig steps over property boxes, stake pullers and quarter poles, and as you sit there in amazement, while the seats are being taken out from under you, the husky voice of the burly canvasman cries out: "All over!" You then find yourself cut in the darkness just in time to miss the last car for town, and you realize you were lucky that the canvas did not fall on your fool head. Everybody remaining will occupy the folding-back, hump-back, break-your-back reserved chairs, with no extra charge. The gentlemanly agents will now pass among you, treading on your toes and fingers, offering the tickets for sale at ten cents. I thank you for your kind attention.

How Is Your Watch Running?

Watch Repairing Always Has Been a Hobby of Ours to do the Best Work Possible.

Is it always fast or slow; never quite on time? Perhaps the watch is capable of very accurate running, but it is not in perfect order. You know the tiny mechanism of a watch absolutely demands that each of the dozens of little parts—jewels, springs, wheels, etc.—be just right, or good timing is out of the question.

"FROLICKING YOUTHS, OR SCHOOL-BOY PRANKS"

'A POLICEMAN'S ROMANCE'
A very thrilling drama. A policeman who is in love with a pretty maiden is accused by her of cowardice, and is asked to redeem himself, and he does, and you should see how well he does it.

"SLAVERY"
Another picture full of fun and exciting incidents, showing how "Mary Jane" the servant girl tries to run things to suit herself, and how she impersonates her mistress at a great ball. It is full of laughs from start to finish.

Mr. Loftus will sing "Good-Bye, Little Girl, Good-Bye."

Do not forget that we have installed a self cooled motor Fan, and that the Royal Theatre is the coolest place to go to.

SHOCKED BY 2000 VOLTS

Etienne Lefebvre Seizes a Metal Pipe Heavily Charged With Electricity and Is Forced to Hang on Until His Shouts Bring Employes to His Assistance—Power House Had to Cut Off the Current.

Montreal, Aug. 10.—To receive a shock of 2,000 volts and live to tell the tale is the record of Mr. Etienne Lefebvre, proprietor of the Windsor Hotel, Grand Mere, Que.

With the successful amputation of his right foot and arm, Mr. Lefebvre has more than a fighting chance of recovering, and the surgeons at the Notre Dame Hospital are sanguine that he will soon be able to leave his bed. The operation, which was performed yesterday morning was entirely successful.

About ten days ago Mr. Lefebvre, while taking a last look around his hotel and outbuildings, saw sparks and flashes proceeding from what he thought was his shed. The illuminations seemed confined to the vicinity of a short metal pipe, and he seized it to pull it out of the ground and throw it into vacant space, where it could do no damage. No sooner had his hands closed on the pipe, when his form became rigid, and thus imprisoned, he was held to the electrically-charged post until his shouts sent the hotel employes in search of him.

Realizing that their chief was being electrocuted, one of the men rushed to the telephone and advised the power company what had happened and they immediately cut off the current.

Lefebvre was unconscious and his hands were burned, nearly to the bone. For three hours two physicians worked over him.

Ashes Consigned to Sea.

Chicago, Aug. 10.—A metal box containing the incinerated body of Mrs. Ross Payton was sunk in Lake Michigan from the deck of an excursion steamer, while passengers looked on with bared heads and the steamship orchestra played a dirge. Twenty-nine years ago the husband of Mrs. Payton was lost in the wreck of the steamer Alpena, and the widow wished that her ashes be thrown in the lake near the place of the wreck.

McGuigan Denies It.

Toronto, Aug. 10.—F. H. McGuigan, who is building the Hydro-Electric Commission power line from Niagara Falls to Toronto, denied yesterday the rumor that he has been offered $25,000 a year to become head of the Lake Superior Corporation at the instance of London financiers.

No Flight at Petawawa.

Petawawa Camp, Aug. 10.—The prevailing high wind made it impossible to attempt any flights with Baddeck No. 1 yesterday. McCurdy is still plugging up leaks in radiators. As fast as one is repaired another develops.

Union Typos In Session.

St. Joseph, Mo., Aug. 10.—The fifty-fifth convention of the International Typographical Union convened yesterday in the Coliseum, St. Joseph's big convention hall. Addresses of welcome were made by Mayor Clayton, President Burnham, of the local typographical union, and others, and a response by President Lynch of the International Typographical Union.

The reports of President Lynch and Secretary-Treasurer Hays show great progress made by the union during the last year.

Canada's Mexican Trade.

Ottawa, Aug. 10.—Although general Mexican trade figures show decreases for last year, the trade of Canada with Mexico increased by $95,000, while that of Mexico and Canada grew by $48,000. The chief loss has been in the trade with the United States, which fell off by $16,500,000.

On Oct. 1 next, a direct parcel post system will be put into operation between Canada and Mexico. At present all parcels are sent via Great Britain.

Big New Assaying Plant.

Cobalt, Aug. 10.—Mr. Deysner, representing European capitalists, has purchased 20 acres on the lake shore, near Port Cobalt, and will establish an assaying plant, which will embody radical ideas in the business of separating metals from ore. His engineer is now on the way from Seattle, Wash. The plant, which, it is claimed, will revolutionize mining in the camp.

GREECE ABANDONS CRETE AT FIRST WARNING FROM TURKEY

Athens, Aug. 10.—The Greek Government yesterday handed to the Turkish Minister a formal reply to the Porte's note of several days ago, which asked Greece to express her disapproval of the annexation agitation in Crete and formally to declare that she had no ambitions regarding the island.

The reply protests formally against the complaints contained in the Turkish note and gives instances of Greece's consistent endeavors to maintain frank and friendly relations with Turkey and to draw closer the bonds uniting the two countries.

The note declares Greece has done and still wishes to do all in her power for the appeasement of Turkey and for peace.

In the Cretan question, the note continues, the Turkish Government itself several times has taken occasion to say that the conduct of Greece has been frank and loyal.

The note says that Greece can only leave the question of Crete to the protecting powers and conform to their decision, the note repeats the assurance that Greece, being in no way implicated in the annexation movement in Crete, will preserve the same current and loyal attitude as in the past.

The Greek flag was yesterday lowered in Crete in response to the representations of the powers.

Turkey Not Free.

Constantinople, Aug. 10.—The Greek reply to the Turkish note concerning Crete has not yet been received by the Turkish Government.

The ambassadors of the four protecting powers in Crete had interviews yesterday with the grand vizier and the Foreign Minister and advised moderation in Turkey's attitude toward the Greeks. The grand vizier gave the ambassadors his assurances on this point, but he pointed out the necessity of receiving some satisfaction from Greece, in order to calm the Turkish people.

The general feeling exists that the Government is not enjoying a free hand in the matter, but is acting under the pressure of the committee of Union and Progress, which is showing a headstrong tendency.

NEED 23,000 MEN IN WEST

Is Impossible, However, to Say What the Yield Will Be, Says Winnipeg Correspondent — Manitoba Alone Needs 15,000 Men This Year— Waiting For Eastern Hands—Change of Dates.

Winnipeg, Aug. 10.—Regarding a report sent out from here yesterday, that the crop of Western Canada will be only an average one, and less than last year's, it is clear that there is here a terminological inexactacy, for the crop of last year was below the average.

It is impossible just now to figure on what the general average of the wheat yield over a country a thousand miles long and half as deep will be, but it seems clear that a good average will be maintained, unless we get some very early frosts.

To talk of 140,000,000 bushels of wheat from this country is quite as absurd as to say that it is a poor, or even weak, season. It should be a mighty profitable year for our farmers.

Setting aside alarmist reports, it yet seems clear that the total damage to the crops by hail will exceed the average year, and will really affect the general average yield per acre. In some districts, authentic reports state that hail has been more widely distributed and more devastating than in any recent years.

Indeed, it is already evident that not only has hail damage been wide, but that it has cut a clean swath in many districts.

There is, of course, always a tendency to exaggerate hail losses and districts that in previous years have been reported at this season as completely hailed out have often shown up well, if not brilliantly, at threshing. Farmers think that a little "knocking" of crop just now may bring them better cash prices so soon as the rush of new wheat begins. But even thus discounting damage reports, enough certainly remains to show that the crop as a whole must suffer severely by hail losses.

Talk of rust, however, is all nonsense. Electrical storms have been accompanied by great heat and warm showers, bringing the grain along at a surprising rate, so that the season, after opening so late, can now hardly be described as backward.

Cutting In a Week.

Toronto, Aug. 10.—A hurry-up call for harvesters was received by the C.P.R. last night from their western crop experts, who telegraphed that cutting will be general next Monday.

The advisability of moving the harvesters' excursions ahead a few days from the dates originally set will be discussed by the railway and western Government officials this morning. The first excursion has been set for Thursday, the 19th inst., but it is possible that a few train loads of helpers will be rushed off within a week.

Manitoba is calling for 15,000 men. The other provinces, Saskatchewan and Alberta, have yet to be heard from officially, but careful estimates of their needs, show that work for from 7,000 to 8,000 outsiders will be offering in those provinces. This means a demand on the east for about 23,000 of her experienced farm hands.

James Hartney, Toronto, agent for the Manitoba Government, has just returned from a visit to Eastern Ontario, where he stirred up interest in the western excursions. He reports that while a large number of people are manifesting an interest in the excursions, he believes the lateness of harvesting here will hold a great number back and result in an unusually small contingent for the first excursion. Harvesting in Ontario he found will not be over before Aug. 20 at the earliest, and therefore thousands of farm helpers will not be at liberty to leave prior to that date.

Last year about 7,000 left Toronto with the first excursion, making up five or six trains, but the indications are that a less number will embark for the western grain fields next week. Mr. Hartney points out that the great bulk of outside help is required to carry on the threshing, cutting being the work of horses and steam. With a few thousand helpers on the scene early to man the reapers, the grain will not suffer damage if threshing does not commence for a week or two later, providing that continued rain and snow storms did not make their appearance.

The civic authorities of Paragould, Ark., may make it unlawful to be on the streets between midnight and 4 a.m.

Fred Somers was electrocuted by a 60,000 volts current in the power house at Syracuse, N.Y. His body was burned.

The International Tax Association, which met in New York last year, will fight the corporation tax at the Louisville meeting this month.

Summer residents along the St. Lawrence River are objecting to the use of soft coal by the river steamers, factories and hotels, as damaging to property.

After a ministry of 16 months Rev. C. R. Duncan has resigned his charge of the Baptist Church at Sherbrooke, Que., to continue his college course at McMaster University, Toronto.

Elevator Falls; Man Hurt.

Toronto, Aug. 10.—Because something went wrong with the elevator in the Stewart, Howe and Meek building, at King street and Spadina avenue, Morris Jackson, who was running it, is now in St. Michael's Hospital in a critical condition.

The accident occurred yesterday afternoon. Jackson had taken some of the employes up to the sixth storey. When they got out something broke and he fell with the cage to the basement. Several ribs on both sides were broken, and he also sustained a depressed fracture of the skull and a scalp wound about four inches long. The doctor's have not much hope of his recovering. He was still unconscious up to a late hour last night. As he is a new employe the firm does not know much about him.

Cool Wave Sweeps Toronto.

Toronto, Aug. 10.—The temperature got down to 85 degrees yesterday in Toronto, but the high percentage of humidity was oppressive and made the air seem much warmer. With evening came a cool wave, which will continue to temper the air making it cooler than yesterday.

Medicine Hat, Saskatchewan, was the hottest place in Canada last night, with the thermometer standing at 92.

Woman Grapples With Mad Dog.

London, Ont., Aug. 10.—Six little children were playing in the yard when Mrs. William Land noticed a collie snapping its paws and frothing at the mouth. She hurried out, and was putting a rope about its neck when it snapped at her. She held on and succeeded in winding the rope around a cherry tree.

Mrs. Land had to go some distance to get a neighbor with a rifle, and seven shots were fired before the brute died. A veterinary pronounced the case unmistakably rabies.

Murdered In Cemetery.

Rochester, Aug. 10.—Anna Schumacher, a 17-year-old girl, whose body was found yesterday morning crudely buried in Holy Sepulchre cemetery, was choked and beaten to death after being criminally assaulted. She had gone to strew flowers on her father's grave. There is a suspect for whom the police are looking.

Priest Supports Strikers.

Sydney, N.S., Aug. 10.—Rev. Father Fraser, the parish priest, Sunday, in the course of his sermon, exhorted the Dominion Coal Co. strikers to stand firm, and vigorously denounced the coal company and the P.W.A.

Stockholm Strike May Fail.

Stockholm, Aug. 10.—Many carts and street cars were moving through the street yesterday, despite the threats of the strikers to stop all traffic. King Gustave drove through the city yesterday, passing before the strikers' headquarters. He was without an escort.

The gas and electric plants are working without interruption and last night it seemed doubtful whether the employes of the railroads will join the movement.

Rumors are again in circulation concerning a probable collapse of the strike, the workmen being dissatisfied with the speeches and the methods employed by their leaders in carrying it on.

D.R.A. Bar New Bisley Sight.

Ottawa, Aug. 10.—The new sight used at Bisley, and which brought the back sight much nearer the eye than the former sight, will not be allowed at the D.R.A. matches. It extends from the sight bed some inches back, and the D.R.A. executive considers that it would not be suitable for active service, and therefore cannot be sanctioned. The chief executive officers of the D.R.A. meet, which opens here on Monday, Aug. 30, will be Lt.-Col. Brown of Ottawa, with Major H. Montgomery of Toronto, as assistant. The entire Canadian Bisley team will shoot.

THE HOPE OF ISRAEL

PASTOR RUSSELL PREACHES ON THE CHOSEN PEOPLE.

Persistency of Hebrew Race Is a Remarkable Thing—Hope of the Jewish People Is Built Upon the Covenant Made With Abraham—Considered Jesus a Brilliant Impostor—A New Covenant.

Brooklyn, N.Y., Aug. 8.—Pastor Russell preached to-day in Brooklyn Tabernacle to a crowded house from the text, "Comfort ye, comfort ye my people, saith your God. Speak ye comfortably to Jerusalem, and cry unto her that her appointed time is accomplished; that her iniquity is pardoned; for she hath received of the Lord's hand double for all her sins" (Isaiah xl. 1, 2.)

Explain it how we will, there is a persistency in the Hebrew race not found in any other. Many and great nations have risen and fallen since God's promise to Abraham, "In thy Seed shall all the families of the earth be blessed." The Hebrew race alone has continued. It is with us to-day—a power throughout the civilised world. In literature, medicine, science, and art, as well as in finance, the Jew occupies to-day a high position. No other nationality can make as good a general showing.

The Jew, willingly or unwillingly, is a witness for God and his Word—not that the Jewish traits are all amiable, or Godlike, or worthy to be copied, or worthy to be considered examples for the remainder of mankind, but because the race connects us up with the great promise of God, which is the hope of the whole world—the Oath-Bound Covenant made with Abraham, which is yet to be fulfilled.

The Jews know, and Christians know, that for centuries Israel was God's peculiar people, of whom he said, "You only have I known of all the families of the earth" (Amos iii, 2). Both know also that since the time of Jesus' death that favored nation has been cut off from the favors once enjoyed, has been a people without a country, held together indeed, but subjected to calamities and persecutions. But very few of either Jews or Christians have investigated and are aware that there is an exact parallel, or duplication, of time between the two experiences of Israel—that is to say, that the period of their favor ending at the Cross of Christ, and the period of their disfavor beginning at the Cross, are of exactly the same length, or duration. And comparatively few know that there are several distinct promises which foretold this parallelism, this division of Israel's history into two great, equal portions, one of favor and the other of disfavor, each 1,845 years long.

One of these prophecies marked the beginning of Israel's disfavor in advance, saying, "The days come, saith the Lord, when I will cast you off, and show you no favor" (Jeremiah xvi, 13), and render unto you double. Another of these Scriptures pointed to the exact date which constituted the turning point in their experience, saying, "Even to-day do I declare that I will render unto you double"—literary, and other sad of your experiences (Zecharish ix, 12). That turning day is distinctly noted by the Prophet as being the one on which our Lord rode to Jerusalem on the ass at the close of his ministry, when he wept over the city of Jerusalem and said, "Your house is left unto you desolate. Ye shall see me no more until that day when ye shall say, Blessed is he that cometh in the name of the Lord!" (Matthew xxiii, 38,39).

Our text marks the closing of Israel's period of disfavor, announces the forgiveness of Israel's sins and the return to that people of God's smile of favor and states the reason for this in the words, "He hath rendered unto her double for all her sins." Not double punishment, as though God were unjust to punish too severely, but a double, or parallel, of experience under disfavor corresponding to a previous period of experience under Divine favor as God's peculiar people.

Every Christian who is rightly informed and of proper heart will have three reasons for pleasure in speaking comfortingly to the Jew, in harmony with the exhortation of our text, at the present time.

(1) He should have that general sympathy for the Jew as for all others of the human family, and should therefore be glad to rejoice with him that the end of his tribulations is near at hand, even though the Scriptures distinctly declare that his tribulation will close with a very sharp experience.

(2) While the Christian remembers that the favors and promises which he cherishes belonged once to the Jew, and were forfeited by that nation because of unpreparedness of heart to receive the Messiah, it must cause a fresh sympathy. While rejoicing in the riches of God's grace which, through the failure of the Jew, was extended to the Gentiles, we should also feel pity and sympathy for them in their loss of the Divine favor, which has come to us and which we enjoy (Romans xi, 28-32).

(3) The Christian may well rejoice with the Jew additionally because the Scriptures clearly indicate that with the end of Israel's disfavor will come the end of the present order of things and the inauguration of the Millennial Dispensation of Divine favor to Israel, and through Israel to the world. And this will mean the completion of the Church, her change in the "First Resurrection" from mortal to immortal, from earthly to heavenly conditions as the Bride of Christ and as Zion in the Millennial throne of glory—first to bless Israel, and then through Israel to extend that blessing to all the families of the earth (Romans xi, 26).

Let us hastily review Israel's hope, noting the while that it is this hope which has energized that people for now nearly four thousand years. The so-called "Hope of Israel," which has held that nation together as a peculiar people in the world, is built upon the Scriptural fact that God made a special Covenant with Abraham, saying, "In thy Seed shall all the families of the earth be blessed." This promise God made oath to, and hence the Israelites felt it to be immovably secure. For century after century they held to that promise, believing themselves to be Abraham's promised seed, and looking forward with anticipation to the time when God would exalt them as a nation and make them the rulers of the world, to establish his laws of righteousness in all the earth, and thus to bless mankind.

In due time, when Israel realized that her hope for attaining this high position was a glimmering one because of her national vicissitudes, God explained a still further feature of his plan, namely, that it would not be executed by the nation of Israel alone, but that he would send them the Messiah, the Mighty Immanuel, whose dominion would be from sea to sea and from the river to the ends of the earth, and that Israel would, however, constitute his special nation, which he would use in connection with the blessing of the other nations. This is still the hope of Israel, although it has become faded and dim by reason of the disappointments of the long centuries which have intervened since their rejection of Jesus.

The Jewish rulers saw nothing in the Redeemer but fraud. They considered Jesus an Imposter, brilliant in some respects, but a deceiver of the people. They feared his ultimately raising an insurrection, which would bring against their little nation the strong power of the Roman Empire and take from them the few liberties and privileges still enjoyed as a people. The High Priest expressed the prevalent sentiment,—"It is better that one man should die than that our whole nation should perish" (John xi, 49-51). His words, however, were true in a sense which he did not understand; for only by the death of Jesus could salvation ever have come to the Jewish nation or to the world. The Lamb of God must die, "the just for the unjust," to make reconciliation for iniquity. The penalty of Adam's sin must be met, before its death sentence could be lifted.

As St. Paul points out, nothing happened in our Lord's experiences not foreknown to the Father. Israel's rejection of Messiah, and the consequent rejection of Israel by him, were all foretold through the prophets. Let no one suppose that Israel's rejection was a finality; let no one understand that Israel fell; but merely that Israel stumbled; for, as St. Paul points out, the gifts and callings of God are things he will not repent of—will not deviate from (Romans xi, 29). Israel was cast off merely for a time, merely until Spiritual Israel would be gathered. When that great work shall have been accomplished, Divine favor will return to natural Israel—forgiveness of their sins, the opening of their blinded eyes, their restoration to Divine favor as a people, and the fulfilment through them of the promised blessing of all nations.

The thing which the Israelites did not understand, and which, alas! comparatively few Christians comprehend, is distinctly pointed out by St. Paul as the Mystery hidden from past ages and dispensations, and now made known unto the saints (Ephesians iii, 3-5). The Mystery is this: That Messiah would not be one individual merely, but a composite Messiah of many members. Messiah will be spiritual, not earthly, and hence the heavenly promises would be his—"an inheritance incorruptible, undefiled, that fadeth not away, reserved in heaven"—in the heavenly condition. This will still leave the many gracious promises of God of an earthly kind for natural ne would write the Law in their hearts. Is it asked how the New (Law) Covenant would differ from the old one, and how it could bless them, when the old Law Covenant merely brought upon them a sentence of death? The answer is given by the Apostle that the Covenant will be practically the same—a Covenant to give them eternal life on condition of obedience to the law; but a difference will consist in the fact that the Mediator of the New (Law) Covenant will be more capable than was the mediator of the old Law Covenant. Not that Moses was unfaithful, nor that he did not do his best to assist the people, but because the new Mediator, Christ, having "died, the just for the unjust," has a residue of merit at his disposal sufficient to make good to justice for the unwilling defects of Adam and all his race. In this way the New (Law) Covenant will be much more effective to Israel than the old one was.

Thus the work of the glorified Christ during the Millennial Age will accomplish much more for Israel and for the world than could possibly be done along the lines of simple faith such as Abraham exercised, and such as the household of faith now must exercise. The inauguration of the Millennial Kingdom, the subduing of sin and of Satan, the releasing of mankind from the bondage of sin and death, the opening of the blind eyes and the unstopping of the deaf ears, will enable the world practically to walk by sight, and to come to an accurate knowledge of the Truth, instead of merely a faith knowledge. Thus many of Adam's children will be helped under the New (Law) Covenant arrangement who could not have been helped under the original Covenant without this added feature of the New (Law) Covenant.

earthly promises is deferred until first the Spiritual Messiah, the Spiritual Seed of Abraham, Spiritual Israel, shall have been developed, perfected, glorified. Then the blessing of God proceeding through Spiritual Israel, the Messiah, under the headship of Jesus glorified, will extend to natural Israel, and in turn pass through natural Israel, during the Millennial Age, to all the families of the earth.

No wonder the Jews, to whom only earthly promises had ever been given, were surprised and perplexed by the teachings of Jesus respecting his Kingdom. They were expecting one which would be the glory of the world, and whose capital would be located at Jerusalem; but Jesus declared, "My Kingdom is not of this world." And again, "The Kingdom of God cometh not with observation (outward show); neither shall ye say, Lo, here (it is), nor, Lo, there (it is) for it shall be in the midst of you"—everywhere present, but invisible. Such teachings were too deep for the Jews, except for the few who were deeply spiritual and accepted our Lord's teachings on the strength of his merits. Even these did not understand his teachings until endued with Divine blessing and enlightenment at Pentecost. Then they remembered the Lord's words and appreciated them, as we may now do under the same blessed guidance.

Here was the Mystery—that during nearly nineteen centuries God's plan, so far as Israel and the world were concerned, was deferred, while Spiritual Israel, of which they had no previous intimation, was called, tested, and glorified. To Israel it would appear as though God had broken his Covenant with that nation, the natural seed of Abraham; a matter which they could not consider possible, in view of the fact that the original Covenant was bounden by the Lord's oath.

Yea, how wonderful! When we come to see into the matter properly, we perceive that Israel and the world could not have obtained their earthly blessings otherwise. "It was necessary that the Christ should suffer and should enter into his glory" on the heavenly plane — the Head—and then his foreknown Members. Thus the prophets have foretold the sufferings of The Christ, which have now lasted for nearly nineteen hundred years, and the glory that should follow—the Millennial glory. (I. Peter, i, 11.) Our Lord Jesus, holy, harmless, undefiled, separate from sinners (and yet through his mother a member of our race), by his obedience to the Divine Law, became heir of all things—all things which Father Adam had once possessed and had lost by his disobedience—earthly life under perfect or Paradisaical conditions, everlasting life, the rulership of earth, etc.

But instead of keeping these earthly blessings to himself, Messiah, in harmony with the Father's plan, sacrificed them, giving his life and all that pertained to human nature as a Ransom sacrifice for Adam and his race, and all their earthly rights. When our Lord had finished his sacrifice and ascended up on high, he applied the merit of it to the household of faith,—to all who trusted and obeyed him. What he gave to believers was the earthly rights which were lost by Adam and which he had purchased. But in order to become members of his Body, these believers were required to sacrifice the earthly interests and rights which they received by justification. This they have been doing for the nineteen centuries of this Gospel Age. Soon the last member of the predestined number, having acquired the Divine likeness, having consecrated all their earthly interests, and having been accepted of the Father, will have finished their share in the sacrifice of Christ—the "sufferings of Christ" (I. Peter i, 11; Colossians i, 24).

The Law Covenant which God made with Israel, of which Moses was the mediator, St. Paul points out was an unsatisfactory one; not because the Law was bad, for it was perfect; not because the Divine proposition or Covenant connected with it was bad, for it offered eternal life to whoever would keep the Law. The difficulty lay in the facts that the Jews, like the remainder of the world, were imperfect, fallen, and unable to keep the Covenant, unable to fulfil the requirements of the Law. Hence, says St. Paul, "By the deeds of the Law shall no flesh be justified in God's sight" (Romans iii, 20).

God, however, assured Israel that at some time in the future he would make with them a New (Law) Covenant, which would be more satisfactory, and yield the desired results (Jeremiah xxxi, 31); that he would take away their stony hearts (not give them spiritual hearts, not make them "new creatures," but give them "hearts of flesh"); that at that time

Should Begin Here.

A commission has gone to Denmark to learn why we are not holding our own in the British bacon market. The reason is plain. We are ceasing to produce. Why are we ceasing to produce in the face of a strong and advancing market, and with general conditions apparently so favorable? That question cannot be answered in Denmark.—The answer can be given only by the Ontario farmer. If a commission is needed at all it would seem as if its enquiry should have begun in Ontario, if, indeed, the scope of its investigations should not have been confined to this province. —Weekly Sun.

A Bit Thick.

It was on one of the Clyde steamers. Some of the passengers were relating their experiences of fogs.

"Yes," said the old salt, "I've seen some pretty thick fogs in my time. Why, off the coast of Newfoundland the fog was sometimes so thick that we used to sit on the rail and lean against it! We were sitting one night, as usual, with our backs up against the fog, when suddenly the fog lifted, and we all went flop into the water. A bit thick, wasn't it?"—London Scraps.

Spinsters.

Medicated Air Will Cure.

These are common diseases, but not less dangerous and difficult to cure on that account. In our climate the weather changes quickly. We are careless. Disease attacks us before we know it. A large majority of our people have nose, lung, or throat troubles, and find it hard to get cured.

It's remarkable with what tenacity both the medical profession and the laity adhere to the old theory that these diseases can be reached and combated by dosing. And this despite the fact that failure to cure in ninety-nine cases out of a hundred attends this mode of treatment.

STOMACH MEDICINE CAN'T CURE.

At best it is a roundabout way of trying to reach the disease which is in the air passages of the throat, nose, bronchial tubes and lungs. Leave the stomach alone—use a remedy that air will carry into the minutest air cells, into the tiniest cavities of the affected organs.

LIQUID REMEDIES DANGEROUS.

CATARRHOZONE GUARANTEED.

Wouldn't it be wise to use Catarrhozone now—to-day—and be cured permanently?

You can send the soothing vapor of the pine woods, the richest balsams and healing essences, right to the cause of your trouble by inhaling Catarrhozone.

Little drops of wonderful curative power are distributed through the whole breathing apparatus in two seconds.

Like a miracle, that's how Catarrhozone works in bronchitis, catarrh, colds, and irritable throat. You simply breath its oily, fragrant vapor and every trace of congestion and disease flees as before fire.

So safe, infants can use it; so sure to cure, doctors prescribe it, so beneficial in preventing winter ills, no person can afford to do without Catarrhozone. Used in thousands of cases without failure. Try it yourself! 25c, 50c, $1.00 sizes. Sold by all dealers, or by mail from the Catarrhozone Company, Kingston, Ont.

The Man From Home

A Novelization of the Play of the Same Name

By BOOTH TARKINGTON and HARRY LEON WILSON

Copyright, 1909, by American Press Association

This romance deals with a curious admixture of American plainness and European high life; with a young Indiana girl dazzled by a title and in the clutches of a quartet of sharpers headed by an impecunious British peer; with the girl's Anglomaniac brother, a Russian noble in disguise, an escaped Russian convict and a faithless wife, and, most important of all, with the girl's shrewd, witty, courageous, resourceful guardian, Daniel Voorhees Pike of Kokomo. Daniel loves the Indiana girl and is determined to save her from the sharpers even against her own will. Read and you will learn how Daniel, with but a single friend to aid him, faced a most difficult dilemma and why he figured so prominently in an international romance in which heraldry was more important than hearts and cupidity far more conspicuous than Cupid.

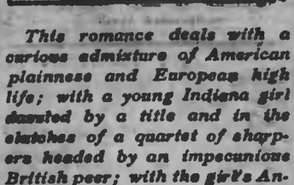
CHAPTER I.

"IT'S A GIRL!"



HIS feet on the desk of the office in the Central Bank building, the gaunt young man with the stern features and the kindly gray eyes that always seemed a perpetual rebuke to the face in which they were set ruminated over the letter he held in his hand. The pack was to the door—a half glass door which was also the main and only entrance to the room and which bore upon its translucent surface in ragged letters, worn by the polishing the glass had undergone, the words, "Daniel Voorhees Pike, Attorney at Law."

Pike himself had a queer twist of feature, a sort of whimsicality that pervaded the very atmosphere about him, and the smile with which he regarded the letter he held had a world of reminiscence and sadness in it.

As he gazed at it the letter seemed to fade into nothingness, and in its place there rose the picture of a day years before, a day that caused the dingy walls of the office to become tenuous and gauzy, and through the gauze he seemed to see another office—a ramshackle sort of place, with a tin sign showing through the window which informed the passerby that real estate was the commodity dispensed within. To Pike the picture grew yet more distinct, and in the broken bottom cane chair he saw the figure of a heavy faced man in his shirt sleeves engaged in smoking a corncob pipe.

In another corner of the room he could see a red headed boy poring over a pine table, laboriously copying in a round hand some title deeds. Then, through the reaches of the past, he seemed to hear the heavy faced man remove the pipe from his mouth and heard him speak.

"Dan," he said, "it's a girl"

And he heard the gasp the boy gave turn as he turned about on his stool and looked with startled eyes into the kindly blue ones that glimmered into his own.

"Show her to Dan."

"A—girl" he seemed to hear the boy say. "A little girl, Mr. Simpson?"

In his fancy he saw the big man nod, saw him place the pipe back in his teeth and extend his two palms until they were a foot or so apart.

"A girl, Dan," he heard, "'bout so long, Dan, and purtier than all get out. An' she's goin' to be a big responsibility, my boy. We'll have to sell a heap of lots to pay what she's goin' to cost, Dan—a whole heap of lots."

And gradually the picture seemed to fade away, and, like a dissolving view, its place was taken by another—the picture of a half timbered house that stood back among some trees at the corner of Main and Center streets. He could see the worn steps leading up to the veranda and himself approaching half fearfully along the gravel walk that led in from the rusty gate.

"SHE'S GOING TO MARRY THE HON. ALMERIC ST. AUBYN."

On the veranda sat the big man with the heavy features and the corncob pipe, and he heard the voice again hiccough and come up. And then there was a call to some one within, and a woman emerged with a white bundle in her arms.

"Show her to Dan," he heard the man's voice say, and then, when the woman had removed a bit of the flannel covering from the little face and he had looked upon it, startled, abashed and marvelously choking as to the throat, the big voice went on again:

"She's going to be Ethel, Dan, that bundle of infancy. And maybe some of these days she'll be getting herself in a tight place, and it's going to be up to you, Dan, to help her out, and you're going to promise me that you'll do it, boy. Horace, the other kid, he'll grow up maybe to have sense, and he'll look out for himself, but it's a tough place for girls, Dan—a mighty tough place."

He could almost hear the hushed voice in which the boy had given the required promise and the awe with which he heard that the newest atom of humanity to arrive was already motherless, and then the picture faded again. Then came a succession of similar views.

He saw the dingy real estate office grow into a respectable brick building, and then into a handsome stone edifice, and the heavy featured man turn grayer and grayer and more somber and more hardworking, and he could remember the day when the tiny Ethel was brought to the office for the first time and of the manner in which she began to grow up. He recalled the day when she reached the mature age of twelve and of how he had presented to her a Bible for a gift and of the manner in which he had blushed for all his twenty-five years.

And then he recalled the day when John Simpson had confided to him that the "kids" were to be given advantages and were to be sent abroad to school. There came a blank after that, but he recalled as if it had been but yesterday the feeling with which he had gone off into a corner and wrestled with the grief that had beset him. He could even see the fluttering hand that waved to him from the car window as the train took her and her brother away.

Suddenly the door behind him opened and shut quickly, and quick steps caused him to drop his feet to the floor. He turned and found a visitor at his elbow.

"Dan," said the newcomer, "it's all yours. Jenkins just got a telegram that the K. and G. has decided to offer you the representation for this end of the state."

"That so?" responded Pike aimlessly.

"Of course it's so, man!" replied the other, shaking him vigorously by the shoulder. "Wake up, can't you? It's worth fifteen thousand a year to you!"

Pike turned quizzical eyes upon his friend and folded the letter he held in his hand.

"Much obliged to you, Tom," he said. "I guess I'm kind of upset today. Got a letter here that—jolted me a little. I'm thinking of going away for a spell."

"Going away!" ejaculated his friend with wide eyes. "Going away! Where?"

"I guess I'll take a trip across the water," replied Pike dreamily. "Always wanted to see those foreign parts, those Venices and Romes and Londons. Must be a queer tribe over there, Tom. Not much like us plain folks here, eh? Lots of high and mighty dukes and earls and things and coats of arms and crowns and coaches with white horses, eh?"

Tom Perkins sat down in a chair with a gasp of astonishment. He stared at his friend with frank amazement written on his face and opened his mouth twice before his lips formed the words.

"Europe!" he said at last.

"Europe," he replied. "Say, Tom, you remember Jim Cooley? They sent Jim over there, didn't they? Made

A SECOND LIFE

"If I only had another chance!"

How often are these despairing words uttered when a man feels his strength ebbing, his vital forces depressed, his health undermined—often as the result of his own errors or follies—and he realizes the infinite possibilities which might lie in his grasp, could he indeed receive in Shakespeare's phrase, "a second life."

Happily for the world, this other chance, this "second life" is to b had for the asking by means of that which has been aply described by a famous physician as "the last word science has spoken" on the subject of such remedial agents, and to which by virtue of its health-giving properties, the name of Vitol—meaning life "health-producer"—has been given.

So potent is its force that it will not only restore the health and vigour which have been lost, but, if persevered in, will in addition impart the highest measure of nervous and physical vigour of which the individual is capable; for there is a maximum capacity of health for everyone, though he may not hitherto have had the fact impressed upon him. Doctors endorse this and daily prescribe Vitol in increasing quantities. The constituents which give this power are known to every physician, and one has testified to the supreme merits of Vitol as

after wasting illness and as a restorer of health, not only in nervous diseases (with their innumerable symptoms of discomfort and distress, including loss of memory, insomnia, irresolution, weakness of the will, &c.), but also in anæmia, digestive disturbances and consumption.

SUGGESTIONS for the GIRLS' OUT DOOR SITTING ROOM

How Balcony, Summer House or Veranda May Be Attractively Decorated and Furnished

An Italian Pergola

WHILE any outdoor sitting room from the smallest balcony to the largest allows great latitude on the question of expense, this is especially true of the one that is a little open air house in itself. Here the most charming architectural effects can be had, and they can be left to a real architect or the girl who is to own this delightful den can plan and design it herself and have a builder follow her ideas.

Or again, if she wishes to do it without great expense she can design something simple but effective and have it made by the village carpenter. In the same way the furnishings of a balcony or veranda may vary infinitely in expense, being ordered from the most artistic shops or cleverly contrived by some artistic girl.

The first and most important point of all is to suit the style of your open air room to the special part of the country in which your home is situated. What would be most charming in the mountains would be entirely incongruous at the sea shore and vice versa. And then the style of architecture of the house must be considered.

FIRST let us take a summer home in the mountains or somewhere in the country where there are many trees. Here nothing could be more charming than a Japanese pagoda effect, especially if one happens to be fortunate enough to have a pine grove on the property. Another design that is most effective for a house in the mountains or woods is a second floor balcony built right in the branches of a tree. Any girl whose father is building a home with a large tree very close to the house will be wise to try to secure the room on that side and have her balcony built as the house is built. She will want to spend most of the warm days on that balcony. This particular type of den, having no roof, can only be furnished very simply, but the cushions can be piled on the table at night and covered with a tarpaulin, which will also serve in small showers.

The balcony should have broad wooden corner seats, painted to match the balcony; a wooden table, also painted; flat seat cushions and square pillows for the back. All the cushions and pillows should be covered with denim, red being the best color, as a contrast with the green of the tree. No decorations are needed, the tree branches make all that one wants.

The Japanese open air sitting room (which is also most appropriate for mountain homes) is built entirely separate from the house in some woody spot. Pines are, of course, the most artistic trees for the Japanese effect, but any trees will do if they are close together.

A platform several feet up from the ground is built, with a little flight of steps leading up to it. At each corner and on the sides are log columns holding a roof with the pagoda curve, which projects considerably beyond the platform. All around, except where the steps are, there must be a strong rail. This room should be furnished with bamboo or wicker furniture, a few grass matting rugs and Japanese lanterns hung between the columns. The red cushions are also suited to this room, and a tea outfit on one of the tables gives a charmingly cosey look.

A Seaside Veranda

FOR the seaside an utterly different plan must be used. Here it is pretty sure to be a veranda or balcony that is to be furnished, and the main idea to keep in mind is to supply the lack of greenness always found at the seashore, where trees are very scarce articles. Everything possible should be green, the rugs on the floor, the covers of the cushions, and chairs or tables that are painted and bamboo screens that are indispensable. These screens that can be pulled up and down should be all around a seashore veranda to keep out all glare. A hammock is a necessary part of the furnishings of this room, and two hammocks will be even better if there is space enough. The best kind to use is the sail cloth bed hammock, which is made to hold a regular mattress and is extremely comfortable. The mattress should be covered with green to match the cushions.

To decorate a seaside veranda have as many green tubs as possible with small evergreen trees growing in them. The girl who is doing the planning can use her own taste about the plants; any kind that she likes will do—palms, small shrubs or anything of that kind—but the evergreens are generally most satisfactory. A pretty effect of summer greenness and freshness can be given by hanging in every available corner a fern ball, and by conscientiously spraying these every day so that they will look fresh and flourishing all summer.

This scheme can be elaborated in many details as the owner has new ideas and places to use them. A table with several shelves and handles by which it can be carried in and out of the house is a great comfort, for on this one can leave books, a work basket or writing portfolios.

A Japanese Pagoda Effect

ANOTHER charming design for an outdoor sitting room, not attached to the house, is in the form of an Italian pergola. This idea is best suited to a place in the country (neither seashore nor in the woods) where there are comparatively few trees. The framework of the pergola is a close lattice of wood thickly covered with vines. It may be either round like an arch or with straight sides and a flat roof, and the vines may be of any kind that will grow quickly and very close. The effect is quite as pretty when several different vines are used, the various leaves and flowers mingling together. An especially attractive vine for this purpose is the climbing nasturtium. This plant grows very luxuriantly and is full of flowers all summer; the lovely reds and yellows and the soft green of the leaves will be a constant source of pleasure.

The floor of this room may be either of wood or cement, the latter being best suited to the design. Along each side must be a straight seat, and the most practical way to arrange the furnishings of this little room is to have these seats really boxes, with covers that project beyond the sides and fastened on with hinges underneath the back edge. As the roof is not at all rainproof, the boxes are used to hold all cushions or other little things that are wanted when one is using the room. The boxes can be divided into compartments and one place used to keep a tea outfit, another for some magazines and books that are not valuable and another for some embroidery to pick up for a little while.

WHEN one intends to spend most of the crisp, cool days of the autumn in one's summer home a very delightful idea to use in making a veranda sitting room is an open fireplace. Of course this can only be done where the veranda is against the outside of a chimney, when an opening can be cut in the chimney, and the unusual pleasure can be enjoyed of sitting in the open air and sunshine before a cosey wood fire. This has been done in some Adirondack camps with great success. And a most convenient accompaniment to the fire is a glass screen, which can be so placed as to protect the fire from the wind and leave one side of it free to give out its warmth.

The girl who is interested in making one of these open air dens can modify any one of the designs to suit her special circumstances, and perhaps make some most original innovations and develop some very artistic ideas.

PRACTICAL TALKS BY THE APRIL GRANDMOTHER

"WHILE you are travelling why not discard that germ harbouring cloth and wash your face with your soap lathered finger tips?" suggested the April Grandmother as she sat on the edge of a Pullman stateroom berth and watched the toilet efforts of her youngest granddaughter. "That is the only really hygienic method of cleansing the cuticle bed of applying to it enough friction to bring the blood so close to the surface that its red glow will be delicately reflected upon the transparent scurf skin of the face.

"Too much care cannot be given to the face during a long journey by rail," continued the April Grandmother. "While it should be thoroughly washed morning and evening with soap and water at intervals during the day, the grime may be removed with a good soft face cream, as the only wafer available on a railway train is usually so hard that it roughens and coarsens the cuticle, causing it to catch the dust so quickly that it is actually a difficult matter to even look clean.

"The great risk which young girls run in regard to using cold cream when travelling is that they are apt to massage the skin too roughly," cautioned the April Grandmother, as she watched her fourteen-year-old descendant smear her features with cuticle food. "Harsh treatment of this sort loosens the skin—which in youth is tautly drawn over the muscles and flesh—and not only coarsens the pores but causes the tissues to sag and the cheeks to bag over the jaws. Such a condition ages a girl, in appearance more than a double chin or a wrinkled brow.

"Unless the face can be kept scrupulously free from dust it is a mistake to put any sort of liquid lotion upon it while travelling. One of the safest preparations is a mixture of rose water and cucumber juice to which glycerine may be added in case it agrees with the cuticle instead of making it warm and red. A raw cucumber rubbed over the face is both softening and purifying to the skin, but if it is possible to obtain a little tepid sour milk that is best of all for cleansing and refreshing a grimy, wind-roughened face.

"The girl who plans to spend most of her time on the platform of an observation car while travelling should provide herself with a red-brown or a rose-hued chiffon veil, which will not only ward off sunburn but preserve the most delicately textured cuticle from wind and dust. But for the sake of her eyes she should arrange the gauze as does the Turkish woman—protecting cheeks, chin and throat without interfering with the vision."

Rest House—Not Bungalow.

IF you wish to be up with the latest English wrinkle, which comes via India, you must not say bungalows any more in speaking of that type of architecture, but call them "rest houses." We, of course, got the word bungalow from India, but we use it indiscriminately to describe almost any sort of a small, artistic house, whereas it properly applies only to a one story house built close to the ground. Bungalows have grown so popular with us that they have cropped up like mushrooms o'er the land, but as we pride ourselves on being up to date we shall at once proceed to call them "rest houses."

AMATEUR CANDLE SHADES

CANDLE shade making is a new fad among girls who enjoy working with delicate materials. Beginners usually essay the circular shades of plain glazed, bright colored paper, which may be ornamented with applied scrolls, conventionally shaped flowers or Greek key borderings cut from black or white paper.

Folding shades of cretonne patterned paper or chintz are very easily made. They are put together on the same principle as are the folding scrap baskets, the four sections being joined with baby ribbon matching the shade of the tissue lining.

Those girls who are familiar with the art of basketry can readily weave charming wicker shades, which should afterward be bordered and lined with a decided color in linen or silk. Practically the same effects can be obtained by the use of raffia braids, a material which affords wider color choice than does wicker.

Lingerie shades are practical as well as dainty, as they may be laundered by simply ripping open the centre seam. They are made of finest handkerchief linen, hand embroidered with bow knots, grapes, violets, foliage and garlands in all white or colors; or rather heavy linen, boldly embroidered in eyelet hole and of allover muslin embroidery imitating Irish and Venise patterns. These charming shades are lined with rose, green or maize silk, and both edges are finished with points and scallops or with seam beading heading a Valenciennes lace frill.

Amateur workers on brass are turning out effective looking as well as fireproof shades of various shapes.

COUCH AND CRIB COVERS.

FOR a couch cover or for a crib blanket for a baby sister white serge, lined and bordered with a delicate shade of pink or blue satin, is exceptionally pretty. Serge can be had in such a very pure shade of white that for this reason alone it is preferable to other flannel or blanketing, and then, too, the pretty color of the facing shows through the more open weave of the serge most attractively. There are many varieties of weave and stripe from which to select, but a double or triple rib will give perhaps the best effect.

For the exceedingly small amount of labor required in the making of one of the tiny blankets they are always astonishingly effective. One yard of serge, the same amount of satin and about six yards of satin ribbon are all that is necessary. First the material is faced with the satin; next the ribbon border, which may be anywhere from two to six inches in width, is put on with a single row of feather stitching at the end, and then with what remains of the ribbon a large bowknot is made and placed either in the centre or at one corner of the completed blanket.

Delicate tones of pink and blue serge are also often made use of for crib blankets. These are not lined, but bordered on each side with satin ribon. White, however, is in the long run more satisfactory than a color, since it will not fade and can be more easily cleaned or washed.

NOVELTY FOR TEA TABLE.

A DELIGHTFUL accessory for a tea table in hot weather is a bottle of lavender salts, the stopper out of the bottle and the salts just sufficiently strong to exhale a deliciously pungent, cooling essence. Just as so many girls love to burn a stick of Japanese incense on their winter tea table, so in the summer time do these salts add greatly to the charms of the tray set with goodies and cooling lemonade or iced tea.

The prettiest receptacle for these salts is a glass flask or bottle such as were often seen on a dressing table of two or more decades back, but which have not been in use in recent years. Any flask or bottle, however, that has a fairly large opening will do for this purpose. First the flask is filled with little cubes of salts of lavender, which can be procured at druggists', and then the liquid is poured on. As this liquid will evaporate quickly in a bottle so often open to the air, an extra supply would better be obtained when the salts are purchased. When not in use the stopper should be kept in the bottle and removed only when the tray is brought into the room.

A flask of these salts makes a most acceptable prize or gift at any time of the year, and, needless to remark, it can be made as costly a gift as could be desired, for while the really old square glass bottles are comparatively inexpensive, there can also be bought all kinds of flasks of finest silver casing or iridescent glass, which are in themselves articles of real beauty. Even a plain glass bottle with a pretty ribbon tied about the neck, containing the fragrant, stimulating salts, will make a charming gift to friend, kin or any one. A flask about square, four inches wide by five in height, is best for these salts, but even more important than the actual size of the bottle itself is the width of the opening.

Motor Hoods of Crepe de Chene

FOR ordinary motoring a chiffon or chiffon cloth veil large enough to completely cover the hat and tie comfortably under the chin is all the protection necessary against dust and wind, but for any extended touring a real hood of silk, pongee or crêpe de Chine is obligatory.

Without a proper hood and veil a long automobile tour will be anything but a pleasure trip, and even more important than the coat itself is the veil or hood, which holds the hat firmly in place and protects both hat and hair from the dust which a touring car will raise on even the most perfectly oiled roadway.

The newest motor hoods are of crêpe de Chine lined with a thin, soft silk. The hood part is sufficiently wide to cover the largest hat, the material tapering down to two points on each side, one, in front, short to tie in a knot under the chin, that in back a full yard in length from where the tapering is commenced at the end of the hood, these strings to be brought around and also tied under the chin in a large bow knot. A great advantage in this hood is that it protects the collar of the dress as well as the hat. Naturally the crêpe de Chine must be of a fairly light weight quality so as not to be either thick or clumsy to manage.

The chiffon and chiffon cloth motor veils this year are about twice as large as any worn hitherto. Three yards long by two wide is but a conservative measurement and, indeed, with the present sized hats no smaller veil is of the slightest use. For a regulation motor hat which is considerably smaller than the average wide brimmed mushroom or sailor of to-day a yard square veil is generally worn, being so fastened over the hat that straw and trimming are well protected, with an end left to be drawn over the face if desired.

They are not cheap, these new three yard veils, but unless economy is practised in the quality of the material it is not often possible to make one for any less cost. Light ecru and coffee color make the best shades if there cannot be a number of these veils provided, for the soft tones can be worn with any costume. A light taupe is also good for a generally serviceable veil. Chiffon cloth is now preferred altogether to chiffon, save for a veil that is only to be worn over the face.

For short runs when it is desired merely to keep the hat firmly on the head short veils of heavy brussels net or dotted fish net are extremely pretty either in white or of the same shade as the hat; these have also the advantage of being considerably cooler than even the thinnest chiffon. With a simple morning hat in straw or linen, trimmed only with a bow or rosette of ribbon, a net veil is exceptionally pretty.

NEW AND PRETTY ROUND GIRDLES.

SASHES, that is to say, girdles with long streamers, are not worn so much this summer as are ribbon belts finished off with flat rosettes, fastened in back just a little to one side. From last year's long sashes, therefore, it is possible to make extremely pretty and smart round girdles. One width of ribbon is generally sufficient, provided there are three to five pieces of feather boning three or four inches in length to keep it from forming a narrow string about the waist. There should be a piece of boning at each end of the ribbon on which the hooks and eyes are placed; one again on each side and, if necessary, another in the centre, or perhaps, two in front placed about five inches apart.

A flat rosette is formed by covering a good sized bone or wooden button with a piece of the ribbon and around this placing a ruching formed of a gathered band of the ribbon, the selvage end being employed. This rosette differs in size and dimensions according to the width of belt that is most becoming. For a three inch belt the rosette may be slightly wider in circumference, the centre part, or button, being at least an inch large, the ruching the same width, or more.

A fashionable girdle of to-day is the same width all around, not boned so as to be wider in front or back. A small round waist line is now desired by all, and even though that waist line is still kept some inches higher up on the figure than by all the laws of nature it should be, still even then it must look round and have no perceptible dip up toward the shoulders.

Moire ribbon is in vogue once more, and in quality and weight this is excellent for all kinds of belts and girdles. A four to six inch ribbon is best for one of the new girdles, the material being folded in flat plaits into the desired width. Two widths of a narrower ribbon can also be used, and this is perhaps somewhat more economical if two pieces of identical color cannot be found, for otherwise so much of the wide ribbon would have to be wasted in making the rosette.

Dresden and flowered ribbons make extremely pretty separate girdles, and a girl should always have more than one belt for her white frocks—one pink, one blue, one plain white and one or more effective flower sashes being thought but a small number to wear interchangeably with one gown.

Footwear for the Young Girl.

BROWN walking boots are not quite exceedingly fashionable, but they are far less conspicuous than are any of the tan shoes. High topped lace shoes with three-quarter vamps and military heels are made up in darkest brown leather, Russia, suede and kid. Among the buttoned brown walking shoes are smart models of glazed kid with a patent welting of dull brown suede, with black patent vamps and of calf with mat kid, slant top and rather pointed toe.

If a girl has rather broad feet she would best wear a black walking shoe, of which the smartest looking are the three-quarter vamped lace boots of black Russia, demi-glazed calfskin or dull mat. But if she prefers buttoned shoes the most becoming type for a substantial foot are those of fine glazed kid with slant top and a narrow patent leather welting on all seams.

Afternoon house slippers of suede or cravenette are to be found in all the fashionable shades. They have buckles of bronze, silver, black, white or gold leather and are daintily lined with satin.

Bronze slippers, which harmonize with nearly any sort of afternoon frock, have dull gold, silver or bronzed metal buckles either perfectly plain or delicately chased.

Evening slippers for quite young girls are of white glazed or suede kid or of satin in a shade precisely matching the tint of the frock. They are ornamented with ribbon rosettes or flat bows or with Colonial buckles of silver or mother of pearl.

him vice consul or something over in London? I'd maybe get a chance to see Jim and talk to him about—about old times."

His voice died down, and he regarded the wall again.

"Never happened to hear of folks over there of the name of—of Hawcastle, did you, Tom?" he went on. "I don't know what sort of business they are in, but I guess they're well to do. Never happened to hear of them, eh?"

Perkins shook his head, and Pike went on:

"Maybe I'll write to Jim Cooley and ask him about these people. Jim 'd be likely to know 'em, I guess. Vice consul must be a pretty big bug over there."

"Law case?" asked Perkins suddenly.

"Sort of," answered Pike quietly. "I don't know that I'd call it just that. Perhaps the trip would be a change anyway. And I'd like to see this man Hawcastle."

"Where does this Hawcastle live?" asked Perkins.

"England. Got a house he calls Hawcastle Hall."

"What about the K. and G.?" asked Perkins suddenly.

"I guess the K. and G. will have to wait awhile."

Perkins stood up resolutely and faced his friend.

"There's something wrong with you Dan," he said emphatically. "There's something mighty wrong. It ain't like you to go running off this way unless there's something behind it."

He stopped, for Pike was whistling softly to himself, whistling like the man who is striving to recall some tune that is only half forgotten. Then he turned to Perkins.

"Remember that old tune, Tom," he asked—"'Sweet Genevieve?'"

"Get out!" snapped Perkins. "That's a million years old. Why don't you keep up to date if you're going in for music? What do you care about 'Sweet Genevieve,' anyway?"

"I used to know somebody that sang it—once—long ago," said Pike quietly. "I used to hear John Simpson whistle it years before he died and left all that money to me for those two girls"—he turned suddenly and transfixed his friend with an accusatory finger—"what would you think of a guardian that doesn't guard?"

Perkins regarded him rebelliously.

"Depends on whose guardian he is and whether the guardees want him to attend to business or not. If you're talking about those kids of John Simpson's, I'd say you've done about all you could be expected to. You've kept the money together, haven't you? You've made it grow. You've sent it along regular—over there. What more could any one want?"

"Maybe that isn't enough."

"When are those two coming home?" went on Perkins. "Why don't they come back and spend John's money where it was made—at home?"

"I don't believe they're coming back right soon," replied Pike. "Things sort of seem to attract 'em over there. It must be a mighty fine place."

"Huh!" replied Perkins disgustedly. "What's the matter with Kokomo? Why don't that girl come back home and marry and settle down? Tell me that."

Pike smiled queerly, and his head seemed to shrink into his shoulders a trifle as he thrust his hands into his pockets.

"I guess she's going to marry and settle down, Tom, all right," he said slowly. "From what I hear she's going to marry one of those dukes or earls I was mentioning."

"Marry a foreigner!" cried Perkins, jumping to his feet. "Why, I thought she"—

"Never mind what you thought, Tom," returned Pike. "I'm telling you she's going to be married. That's why I guess she won't be likely to come back to Kokomo. I guess Kokomo's a pretty poor looking place after some of those other places she's been seeing."

"How do you know?" asked Perkins, drawing his chair forward.

Pike lifted the letter he had folded up.

"I got this from her," he said simply. "Want to know what's in it?"

"Yes," answered Perkins.

"I can't let you read it, but it's from a place in Italy—Sorrento," he went on slowly, mouthing the unfamiliar word. "She says she's going to marry the Hon. Almeric St. Aubyn, heir to the ancient house of Hawcastle. And she wants to make a settlement on him. She can't marry without my consent, you know, Tom. If she does the money goes to the Kokomo Orphan asylum."

"Going to give your consent?" inquired Perkins.

"Don't know," answered Pike. "I've got to look the young man over first. I promised John Simpson I'd always look after her. That was when she was born. He said girls sometimes got into a tight place and they'd need some one to pull them out. Sounds good, doesn't it, Tom? Hon. Almeric St. Aubyn. Must be a member of congress or something over there. Maybe he'll be a senator some day. I can't object, Tom, if he's got a show to make a good living for her, can I? Say, what is a settlement, anyway? You don't suppose I've been keeping her short of money, do you, and she's had to borrow?"

Perkins shook his head gloomily.

"Don't ask me," he said. "I don't know anything about women. Why, Dan, I thought you'd mapped it out to marry"—

"That'll do for that," said Pike quickly. "We'll not talk about that now, Tom. Suppose you go down to Archie Toombs and ask him about Sorrento and how to get there and when a fellow gets there after he starts. I'm going to write a letter to Jim Cooley and get him to hunt up this Hawcastle."

When Perkins had gone Pike pulled open the letter and read it once again. It was the most formal of notes, beginning "Dear Mr. Pike" and ending "Yours sincerely." It contained a brief notice of the writer's intentions, or, rather, intentions in the event of a certain contretemps that to her seemed inevitable, and trusted that the end would meet with his approval.

He sighed as he folded it and returned it to its envelope.

"And that ends the guardianship," he muttered. "Wonder what I'm going to do with the old house now?"

From a drawer in his desk he pulled a framed picture that showed a delicately featured girl, with big, frank eyes and a wealth of light, curling hair that was half hidden by a big garden hat. There was a smile about the lips that seemed very engaging, and the muslin dress she wore had been accentuated in its simplicity by the art of the London photographer. Pike had preserved the picture, which had been given to him by old John Simpson the day before he died, and he sighed as he looked at it.

Then he laid it face down upon the desk and dropped his chin into an hand. It may have been an hour that he sat there, and in that time never a thought of his legal business crossed his mind. He was busy with a fanciful picture of an unknown city that in spite of his desire seemed to take on the aspects of a larger Kokomo, and in his fancy he could see a big, well knit young fellow bending eagerly over to look into the face of a girl, and he heard her call him Almeric.

"Must be a mighty fine man," he mused—"a fine big man—to capture her."

Then Perkins came in to ask if Pike wished to sail from New York for Havre in two days' time, stating that it would be necessary to leave that night if Pike wished to take passage on her.

"I'll go, Tom," he said. "Maybe you'll drop in here once in awhile and tell folks that ask for me that I'll be back in a month or so."

Then he sat down and wrote to Jim Cooley at London.

At 8 that night he stepped aboard an eastbound train and the next afternoon was in New York. Sorrento seemed a long way off, and it was with a heavy heart that he walked up the gangplank of La Provence.

CHAPTER II.

THE EXILES.

SIX years of life abroad, and these during the most impressionable period of their young lives, had left an indelible imprint upon the two young people.

Horace Simpson had taken to himself the manners of the Harrow and Oxford youth. He had eschewed the society of what he had learned, with parrot-like aptness, to call those "vulgar Americans" and had confined his social intercourse solely to such of the European "haut ton" as he could manage to scrape acquaintance with.

And this last was a somewhat uphill task, for, whatever else one may say about the English, they are inclined to view with very little favor the possessor of no other attribute than money. True, there are exceptions, and these but prove the rule.

Ethel, who had grown into a really beautiful young woman, had followed suit, so far as in her modest powers lay. Such of her school friends as would permit the half formed acquaintance to ripen she had retained. Such others of her own modest beginnings she had quietly but emphatically dropped. From plain democracy she had sought the antithesis, and the leap was all the more an earnest one because of its breadth.

The Simpsons—and they had added their mother's maiden name and linked it to the paternal nomenclature with a hyphen—had been deeply bitten with the aristocratic virus and after a long and arduous struggle had managed to meet Lady Creech.

This titled mondaine had the misfortune to be viciously short of patrimony and inordinately long of lineage, and, while her life of self denial had doubtless embittered her, she had a most inordinate value of birth and a distinct appreciation of cash; hence when it came her way to pick the Granger-Simpsons out of the slough of commonplace acquaintance she did it with a royal favor and for a stipulated consideration.

"Really, my dear Hawcastle"—she pronounced it as old sailors pronounce "fo'c's'tle"—she was wont to say, "really, of course, they are quite impossible, but the girl is an adaptable little thing, and I may be able to make something of her in time, while the boy—ah, I fear I shall have to leave him to you and St. Aubyn."

"Do as you like," replied the Earl of Hawcastle, with some choler, "but keep them out of my way as much as possible. I positively will not be badgered by these unbaked colonists."

"One might stand a quantity of badgering, Hawcastle, for £300,000," at which the genial earl would squirm nervously.

At any rate, the Simpson children began to be seen in the second stratum of London society and met endless numbers of the shopworn nobility, but, sad to relate, never one of the truly respectable. To those who knew their London there are several layers of nobility, and the layer the ordinary individual meets, who has no social prestige to begin with, is composed of that peculiar class that lends its name to doubtful directorates, to queer prospectuses, to struggling milliners with an eye on the main chance and who gladly extend unlimited credit to their patrons in return for modest and well put advertisement.

Strangely enough, the Hawcastle-Creech combination did not drag the willing Simpsons into the glittering presence of the real set.

On the contrary, with a somewhat deep in the manger policy, they awakened both the ennui and the shrewdness to the fact that they wished no sharers in those American dollars that John Simpson had sweated his brow for, and as a consequence they supposed a little trip—a quiet, semi-annual trip—to Sorrento, where not a guest would disturb them and where matters might be given a chance to right themselves.

And there, strangely enough, the Simpsons met the Countess de Champigny and were quite delighted to find the gifted and brilliant Frenchwoman an intimate of the earl's. The second morning of their arrival the gay countess put in an appearance and with a promptitude that was astonishing took young Horace under the widowly wing and marked him for her own. And that same morning the noble earl took his equally noble son into the shrubbery and spoke to him.

"You've got to do it, St. Aubyn," he said. "The family honor is at stake. For heaven's sake, marry the little fool! What if her wretched name is Simpson? You can make her forget it. We are stony broke, my good boy, and she has a hundred and fifty thou. That will keep us going for another year or two, and if Helene can capture the young ass, Horace, I'll force her to divide with me."

He was a pale, washed out youth with an inimitable drawl and a shimmering of intellect that might, if it had been given an opportunity, have resolved itself into a good working imitation of a brain. To his friends he was "that hopeless ass" and to his enemies and debtors—of the latter not a few—"that beastly bounder, St. Aubyn."

"You see, governor," the honorable Almeric went on, "it isn't as if I cared for the little gal. I'm a queer beggar,

"The family honor is at stake."

you know, and it's fearfully rough on a chap to pretend interest in such a little vulgarian. Of course I know we're awfully hard up and all that sort of thing, but"—

His noble father seized him roughly by the arm.

Consumption Cured

And all Other Lung and Kidney Troubles By the Wonderful Discovery made by a Canadian Doctor

DR. PELKEY.

Dr. Pelkey, a Canadian Physician, holding medical certificates in France, United States and Mexico, has made a discovery that promises to be the greatest boon yet given to humanity.

His great Consumption Cure is applied by means of an inhaler, the ingredients for which are contained in a tank, and the very first use made of it by the patient brings immediate relief, followed quickly by permanent cure. These inhalers are not sold to the people, but are placed in the home until they are not further needed, and then taken away.

Dr. Pelkey is exhibiting the invention, which is called the Peltier Inhaler, throughout the country. The inhaler is first a platinum tank, divided into 38 compartments, into which various chemicals and drugs are placed. Outside these compartments cold water is placed. The action of the cold water causes a vaporous gas to rise into an eight-part evaporator at the top, where it is purified and forced through tubes for inhalation. The gas forms pure oxygen, tasteless, and odourless, and the patient inhales this. So healing in its effect that it will almost immediately stop a tuberculosis coughs.

Most wonderful of all is the fact that Dr. Pelkey offers to treat his patients with the inhaler free of charge. The only thing for which he charges is a blood-purifier, and building up tonic, which he insists upon the patient's taking. He will even allow the person undergoing the treatment to take home the tank with him and be treated there.

Dr. Pelkey has been for 17 years in Mexico and Central and South America. He has Government certificates from Mexico, Brazil, New Mexico and Canada and many Latin-American republics, testifying to cures wrought by him with the inhaler. One certificate states that nearly half a troop of Mexican soldiers and American soldiers and Government officials of Montreal were cured under his treatment. Another is signed by President Diaz, of Mexico, himself, whom Dr. Pelkey cured. Dr. Pelkey can show hundreds of other testimonials of permanent people of Ottawa who were cured of lung troubles and kidney troubles after suffering for five years.

Drowning at Guelph.

Guelph, Aug. 10.—Thomas Webster, a young Englishman, son of Frank Webster, was drowned in the Speed River yesterday afternoon while out fishing with William Rendew and J. Hatch. Rendew and Webster were changing places in the boat, when Webster, losing his balance, went over the side of the boat head first, so completely that he appeared to have dived in. He never rose to the surface. Webster's young wife is crossing the ocean with her baby child.

Russell Gets Bail.

Lima, Ohio, Aug. 10.—William L. Russell, arrested here for the Ontario Government in connection with dubious Cobalt mine flotations, was yesterday released on $7,000 bail, and left on an auto tour. Ex-Judge Wing of Cleveland will represent the complainant in the extradition proceedings.

New Zealand Premier Coming.

Toronto, Aug. 10.—Premier Ward of New Zealand will sail from England on Aug. 21, for Canada, en route to New Zealand. He will likely be invited to attend the Toronto exhibition.

Three Years for Church Burglar.

Berlin, Ont., Aug. 10.—Frank Marshall, for burglarizing the R.C. Church at Preston was sentenced to three years in penitentiary. He pleaded that he had been drunk.

Found Dead.

Winnipeg, Aug. 10.—Gisli Olafson, an Icelandic pioneer and one of the wealthiest merchants of Winnipeg, was found dead in his library Sunday night, aged 54.

Montreal Children Succumb to Heat.

Montreal, Aug. 10.—Due to warm weather, there were 125 children, under five years of age, died last week, out of a total of 104 deaths in the city.

Chinese Won't Pay.

Kingston, Aug. 10.—The Chinese laundrymen have refused to pay the increased fee, from $5 to $50, and will be prosecuted. They have engaged counsel.

Will Not Stop Traffic.

Toronto, Aug. 10.—Any traffic arrangements the C.N.R. may make with other roads to secure the movement of their freight westward will not be allowed to retard or interfere with the construction of a C.N.R. connecting section between Selwood and Port Arthur. President Mackenzie said yesterday that the C.P.R. was handling the C.N.R. freight between Sudbury and Port Arthur, from which point it was being picked up by the C.N.R. again, but that was an arrangement very common among railways and would not weigh against the completion of an all C.N.R. line at the earliest possible date.

A stretch of line forty miles long from Selwood north towards Port Arthur, Mr. Mackenzie said, was being rushed along now and would be completed before the end of the year.

The president added that satisfactory progress was being made by a gang of surveyers in the readjusting of the route of the Niagara-Ottawa line, which will be started this fall.

Russian-Chinese Entente.

Vancouver, B.C., Aug. 10.—"Russian influence in China is steadily regaining the ground which it temporarily lost after the war, and in a short time the Muscovite will be stronger than ever in Pekin. On the other hand, Chinese antipathy to Japan is becoming increasingly bitter. The Chinese feel that Japan has broken every international rule by her conduct in relation to Manchuria. I have no doubt that the next great war in the Far East will see China and Russia in coalition against Japan."

This interesting statement in regard to international politics in the Far East was made by E. Backus, adviser to the Chinese Minister of Internal Affairs. Mr. Backus has been home to England for a brief holiday.

"The majority of Chinese statesmen feel that the Japanese occupation of Manchuria has been a great breach of faith on the part of the Mikado's empire," continued Mr. Backus, "and in this opinion most Europeans living in the Far East heartily concur."

Girl Charged With Embezzlement.

Brockville, Aug. 10.—The crown only got part way through with the preliminary hearing of the charges against Miss Grace Henderson of Gananoque, of embezzling from the Thousand Island Railway Co. of Gananoque, in whose offices she was employed until January last. Previous to that time shortages had been found, and almost the entire staff was dispensed with. Recent expert investigation of the books led to Miss Henderson's arrest. Yesterday she was committed for trial on a charge of having cashed and applied to her use a check for $500.

Testimony was introduced to show that she sent a messenger to a bank with the check and that he, after receiving the money, deposited it with the defendant, who was working under the general cashier, John Marshall, who has since left the country. The books show no record of the receipt of the cash.

Canada Wants Own Navy.

London, Aug. 10.—(C.A.P. Cable.)—Sir Fred Borden and Hon. Mr. Brodeur yesterday met Hon. Mr. McKenna, Sir John Fisher and other Admiralty officials in order to discuss certain technical points in regard to Canada's scheme of assistance in Imperial naval defence.

Canada is of the opinion that the Dominion should have a self-supporting navy, which should form an integral part of the Imperial navy in time of emergency, and the other dominions are inclined to the view. That a direct subsidy to Imperial defence should be provided.

Fine technicalities are now being discussed by the committee of experts, and at the close of their deliberations the report will be submitted to the full conference.

Doesn't Want British.

London, Aug. 10.—(C.A.P. Cable.)—The Premier of Western Australia, replying to a deputation of settlers from the old country, who brought a number of alleged grievances under his notice, became incensed and bluntly declared, "I have more trouble with British immigrants than any other class of settlers, and am going to tell the agent-general not to send out any more immigrants, no matter how much capital they have, unless he is thoroughly satisfied they are men who can make a success on the land."

Piano Agent Disappears.

Regina, Sask., Aug. 10.—Considerable anxiety has been caused by the disappearance of E. C. Corbeau, local agent of the Heintzman Piano Co.

Corbeau, together with his two little children, started for a drive on Sunday afternoon at three and expected to return home by six o'clock. They were still missing yesterday. The country around is well settled. He came here from Toronto.

Band Is Engaged.

Galt, Aug. 10.—Because the 29th Regiment Band of Berlin was not engaged for the Toronto exhibition the town authorities refused to allow an advertising streamer to be displayed there. Yesterday, however, following the band's engagement, the sign has been permitted.

Grain Elevator Merger.

Vancouver, B.C., Aug. 10.—The Brackman and Ker Milling Co. of Victoria and Vancouver, which has four cereal mills and an extensive line of elevators, has consolidated their elevators with those of the Alberta Grain Co.

New Fruit Company Build Cannery.

St. Catharines, Aug. 10.—J. B. Berry, Winnipeg, has formed the Ontario and Western Fruit Co., provisional directors being James Marlow, Grimsby, Geo. W. Keyes and W. H. Hough, St. Catharines, and A. M. Harris, Port Dalhousie, who will act as president. H. T. Hern, Port Dalhousie, is secretary.

TORONTO, Aug. 9.—Receipts of live stock at the Union Stock Yards to-day were 100 cars consisting of 2154 cattle, 250 sheep, 28 calves and 70 hogs.

Exporters.

Prices of export steers to-day may be said to have been nominal, the bulk of those sold going at from $5.50 to $5, and bulls at say from $4.30 to $5.

Butchers.

For butchers it cannot be said that there was any material decline, but cattle were hard to sell, and prime picked lots were said to have brought from $5.30 to $5.40. Small lots of good butchers brought from $4.70 to $4.90; medium, $4.20 to $4.65; common, $4 to $4.20; cows, $3.25 to $3.90, and for a few odd lots even more than that.

Milkers and Springers.

A few milkers and springers brought from $30 to $50 each.

Veal Calves.

There was little change in the price of veal calves and nominal figures prevailed. The range was said to be a wide one, running from $3 to $5.25.

Sheep and Lambs.

Export ewes sold from $3.50 to $4 per cwt.; rams, from $3.50 to $4; sheep and lambs, from $5.25 to $6 per cwt.

Hogs.

Selects, fed and watered, are quoted at $8.10 and $7.85, f.o.b., cars, at country points.

Strathcona's Potatoes.

From the Macdonald experimental farm at St. Anne's an expert has gone down to test the capacity of newly-adapted vegetables and fruits to survive and flourish in Labrador. In the old days, when Lord Strathcona was chief Hudson Bay trader, at Northwest River, he adapted some potatoes to the climate by cleverly cultivating only those whose leaves crawled on the ground instead of standing upright in the air as usual and so being nipped by the first frost that came along.

Sir Edwin Pears.

Few Englishmen know more about eastern problems and politics than Sir Edwin Pears, who has just received the honor of knighthood. For the past thirty-five years he has acted as Daily News correspondent in Constantinople. He has seen no fewer than three Sultans deposed, and it was his letters about the Moslem atrocities in Bulgaria which first aroused Europe. Mr. Disraeli characterized them as exaggerated; but Sir Edwin soon proved the truth of his assertions.

MIND OVER MATTER.

The Power of the Spirit in Helping to Retain Life.

The power of the mind over the body, as demonstrated in all forms of faith healing, was recognized in the seventeenth century by Richelieu's physician, Citois. Summoned to attend his master's constant fits of depression, Citois would solemnly call for a sheet of paper on which to write a prescription, and almost invariably after his departure the prescription would prove to consist of the words "One dram of Boisrobert," Boisrobert being a poet of small talent, but possessed of high spirits and wit. In those days, when the common remedy was bleeding, when it is known that Voiture, the poet, was bled to death and the Princess of Conti, suffering from apoplexy, was beaten till she died in the hope of rousing her from her lethargy, it is no wonder that a humane and a human physician like Citois should have been successful.

The famous frequenter of the French salons, Fontenelle, is, however, the best example of the power of the spirit in retaining life. At the age of ninety-five he fell when picking up a lady's handkerchief and made the historic remark, "Ah, que je n'ai pas encore mes quatre-vingts ans." A certain callousness marked his determination not to die, as on the occasion when, a friend dying beside him at the table, he requested his man to remove him and continued his conversation. He managed, nevertheless, to survive to within a month of his hundred years and then complained that he would have lasted much longer had not the outbreak of war "put a stop to pleasant conversation."—London Chronicle.

THE CUP THAT CHEERS.

Tea Flowers and the Way They Are Gathered in China.

Early writers speak of tea as having two varieties. One, Thea bohea, they supposed to be the source of the black and the other, Thea viridis, of the green tea. But Robert Fortune established the fact in 1843 that, while these two varieties existed, black and green were made indifferently from both.

The tea flower is small, single, white and has no smell. The seeds are three small nuts, like filberts, and have an oily and bitter taste. The leaves only are used. Only the young leaves are gathered, and the younger and tenderer they are the better. They are collected when the plant is three years old, the process being continued year after year until the bush becomes weak and diseased, when it is pulled up to give place to a new shoot.

In China there are about three crops annually, the first being gathered as soon as the leaves break in the spring, April to May, and the latter as new "flushes" (buds) are made by the plants which have been stripped of their earlier foliage, this harvest beginning in June or July and lasting as late as September or October.

An almond eyed oriental, Lo Yu, the earliest Chinese writer, pronounces this eulogism on tea:

"It tempers the spirits and harmonizes the mind, dispels lassitude and relieves fatigue, awakens thought and prevents drowsiness, lightens and refreshes the body and clears the perceptive faculties."—New York World.

SAD DROWNING ACCIDENT AT STONY LAKE SUNDAY

William Read, of Peterborough, Lost His Life While in Bathing at Hendren's Island--Got Into Deep Water and Could Not Swim---Had Just Arrived at the Lake to Spend a Vacation---A Most Distressing Fatality.

Stony Lake claimed its first victim of the season on Sunday afternoon, when Mr. William Reid of Peterborough, got beyond his depth while in bathing at Hendren's Island, and was drowned before assistance could be secured. The circumstances are particularly sad inasmuch as Mr. Read had just arrived at the lake, going up on the late boat Saturday night to spend a few days there. It was his first visit and he and his wife and child expected to have an enjoyable outing, such a terrible ending to the trip not being anticipated.

The other members of the party, which was composed of Mr. Read and family, Mr. William McLaren and family, and Mr. Wm. Yeates, arrived on Saturday, having rented Mr. Hendren's cottage, and Mr. Reid, who was unable to get away during the day, joined them that night.

Sunday was very warm and the men of the party determined to go in bathing, although they were ignorant of the nature of the water surrounding the island. Like at many other points in Stony Lake the rock shelves out gradually for some distance and then drops suddenly into the deep water. Mr. McLaren was some distance away and Mr. Yeates tried to rescue the drowning man. He seized him but could not hold him, and the unfortunate young man sank for the last time before the eyes of the other members of the party. Mr. McLaren kept diving but could not find Mr. Read. The alarm was quickly given in the neighbourhood and people from the islands around hurried to the scene. Mr. Acton and son, Messrs. J. J. and Reg. Turner and others were quickly on hand and every effort was made to find the body. Grappling irons and pike poles were called into play and several of the party who could dive, made repeated efforts to locate the body. It was finally found about twenty minutes after he had sunk, in deep water, and was carried to shore, where for two hours the rescuers used every effort to resuscitate the unfortunate man. They worked heroically over the body, but every spark of life was gone, and finally and reluctantly the rescuers desisted.

Mr. J. J. Turner's boat, "The San Toy" took the body and the members of the family to Young's Point, where it was met by Mr. Comstock's waggon and taken to Peterborough. The Misses Cox, of "Duluce Domum," kindly gave their services, as pilots, on the long trip, as Mr. Turner did not know the channels all the way.

The fatality has cast a gloom over the entire population of the Lake.

The late Wm. Read was a native of Manchester, Eng., from which place he came to Peterborough about five years ago. He was thirty years of age. Three years ago he was married to Miss Edith Burgess, also of Manchester, who, with one daughter, survives him. He was employed as a brass finisher in the Canadian General Electric Works, and was well and favourably known to a large number of Peterborough people. He resided on Chamberlain street.

The funeral took place this afternoon at 2.30 o'clock to Little Lake cemetery from the residence of Mrs. Sandiford, High street.

Former Peterborough Lady's Sudden Death While Visiting Here

The death occurred very suddenly at midnight on Saturday of Mrs. George H. Williamson, of Fort William, and daughter, of Mrs. J. Coyle Brown, 162 Smith street. She was visiting here at the home of her mother, when she passed away. Her death was quite unexpected, she apparently having been in excellent health. Her demise was due to an hemorrhage. She was 34 years of age and was born in Norwood, where she resided for a number of years. She came to Peterborough to live in 1888, and until nearly two years ago lived here. She was a woman of many estimable qualities, and was highly esteemed by all who knew her. Her many friends will learn with deep regret of her death. Her mother, husband, one son, and brother, Dr. J. Patterson, of Adanac, Sask., are left to mourn her loss.

The funeral took place this morning to the C. P. R. train for Norwood, where interment will take place.

Local Boy Lost Grip On A Rope And Fell Sixty Feet To The Ground

Mr. Harry Rogers, son of Mr. B. B. Rogers, met with an accident last week near Montreal, where he was engaged inspecting a bridge. He was coming down a rope about one hundred feet in length but when sixty feet from the ground he lost his grip and fell. He had a most miraculous escape, no injuries of a serious nature resulting from the fall. He was brought to the General Hospital at Montreal, where he remained until Saturday, when he came on to Peterborough, and went up the lakes with his father. While unable to walk, he is progressing favourably, and will spend a few weeks with his parents at Kawartha Park, Clear Lake.

Home Again After Attending The Trial of Gypsies in Ottawa

Messrs. Thos. Williams, Geo. Mitchell, and D'Arcy Dunlop have returned from Hull, where they have been giving evidence in the now famous Gypsy triel. They were treated in a princely way, being taken about Ottawa and Hull in motor cars, were stationed at a fine hotel, incidentally told the court what they had seen of the ceremony which has been the subject of all the discussion. They were secured by Queen Rosie's party and the other side had also three Peterborough people, Mr. Frank Hope, and Mr. and Mrs. Ozias Goselin. The court proceedings were burlesqued by both parties of gypsies and were highly amusing. They occupied opposite sides of the court room and frequently burst out at each other until one or more were forcibly ejected by the sheriff. While one case was being heard they would leave the court at an adjournment and trouble would commence as soono as the street was reached. This was so frequent that at one time there was a large number of charges and counter charges piled up. The lawyers are making their share out of the foreigners, one having received $800 for his share.

Mr. Williams states that he believes the Gypsies are having a big lark in everything they do. That is his opinion in regard to Queen Rosie's party. On Monday they had a big celebration in the Hull baseball grounds. It was something similar to the affair held in Peterborough and an admission of 10 cents was charged. It was stated in Peterborough that they hold these ceremonies, or whatever they are, in every town they visit. Mr. Williams has not a great respect for the Gypsies testimony. The Bulgarians swore there was no marriage here, no band present, in fact almost that they were not here at all. They denied everything absolutely and without a thought of what they were saying. Chief George says he is coming back to Peterborough to prove that a marriage was held here.

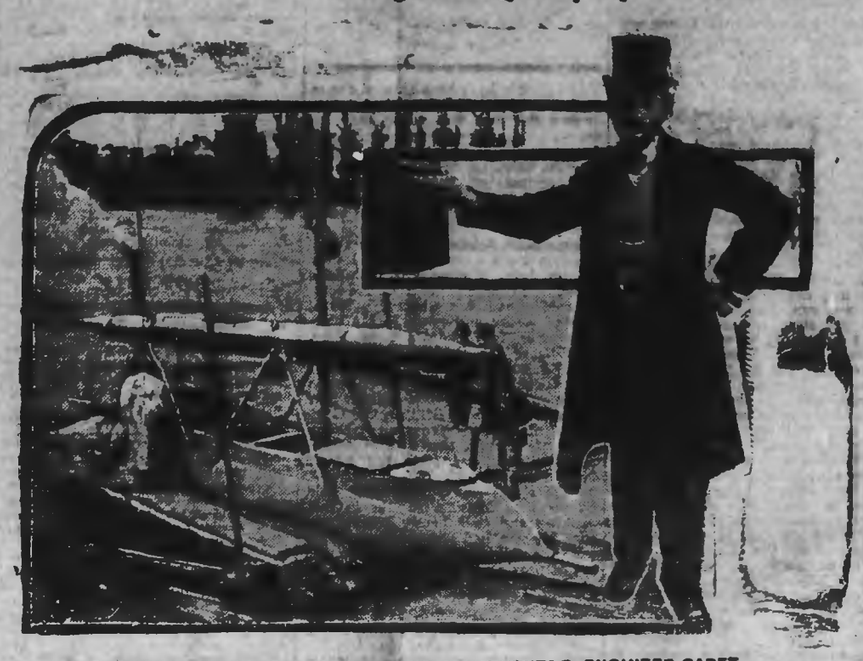
Sea's Newest Terror--Deadily Torpedo Guided Straight To Quarry By Wireless Waves



THE WONDERFUL NEW TORPEDO AND ITS INVENTOR, ENGINEER GABET.

Paris, July 26.—It's of no use to go on spending millions of dollars on battleships if the invention of a French engineer, M. Gustave Gabet, fulfils at its official trials, a few weeks hence, the promise just given at its unofficial trial.

The new engine of destruction is a radio-automatic torpedo, so sensitive to control at so great a distance as to be well nigh human. It can be guided by wireless waves at a distance of three and a half and even four miles, as completely as if the operator were on board instead of beside a telegraph instrument well out of harm's way.

Like the bee that is supposed to die when it has used its one and only sting, this costly vessel is expected never to make more than one "business" trip, and that trip is designed to be the most expensive voyage on record.

The preliminary trials took place some time ago, but the working model used on this occasion, and of which I have obtained special photographs for you, is much larger and considerably improved.

Imagine a little submarine, at the bottom a hull of 11 yards, on top of this a long thin cylindrical floater with two masts, each carrying lights that wink signals. In the compartment in the fore part of the hull there is accommodation for 200 pounds of explosives.

The second compartment contains the apparatus controlling the Hertz radio-active waves, which are now used in wireless telegraphy, and which will enable an operator to direct the vessel from a hitherto unprecedented distance. The third chamber of the hull encloses the accumulators." They have nothing to do with moving the torpedo boat, but regulate the manoeuvres aboard. The fourth compartment contains the petroleum motor. According to M. Gabet, with a motor of 200-horse-power, the rate of 20 knots can be easily attained.

The strange craft was slid down into the Seine on gently sloping rails and submerged to the upper compartment. On a small motorboat 100 yards off was the transmitter, with M. Gabet at the key.

Under the eyes of an astonished group of army officers, men of science and newspaper men, obeying the invisible current waves transmitted from the launch, the motor of the torpedo boat went or stopped as desired. Under the same mysterious influence at the will of the man sitting in the launch, the rudder turned slowly to right or felt. All the parts of the deadly machine obeyed his will.

A marvellous part of the invention is that the lights inform the operator ashore just how the boat is obeying his direction. So the torpedo is directed surely and with the utmost accuracy toward its giant adversary—the battleship.

"An engine such as this" continued M. Gabet, "can open a breach of 50 square yards in the hull of a battleship."

BOY LOST HIS LIFE

Little Elmer Northey, Aged Six Years, Slipped off the Steamboat Dock at Lakefield Saturday and Was Drowned—No One Saw the Accident.

BODY WAS RECOVERED

Special to The Examiner.

Lakefield, Aug. 10.—Elmer Northey, the six-year-old son of Mr. Azor Northey, of this village, lost his life by drowning near the Lakefield wharf on Saturday morning. The little fellow was accustomed to play around the dock, and it is supposed that he lost his balance and fell into the water at a time when there was no one around to witness the accident. Just when it occurred is a matter of conjecture. The parents of the little fellow miss him during the day, but thought little of it as he used sometimes to go on board one of the Stoney Lake Navigation Company's steamers for a trip around the lake. It was naturally supposed when he did not turn up that he had done so in this case, and accordingly no alarm was felt until evening. He not having arrived then his parents went to Young's Point and waited for the arrival of the night boats from the lakes hoping to get some intelligence of the missing youngster. However, when the Stoney Lake and Empress reached their moorings early Sunday morning it was learned that their crews had seen nothing of young Northey, and his parents, terribly alarmed by this time, returned to their home.

On arriving, Mr. Northey noticed the action of a dog with which the little fellow had been accustomed to play. The animal would look at Mr. Northey and whine, and finally Mr. Northey determined to follow the animal. The dog led him to the wharf and stopped at a certain point. Mr. Northey reaching down into the water with a pike pole, discovered the body of his missing boy, and succeeded in getting him out of the water.

A number of larger boys had been in swimming near the dock on Saturday morning, and it is supposed that the youngster had been watching them there and in some manner fell into the water. There were no witnesses to the accident.

He was a bright little fellow, known to nearly everyone in Lakefield, and the news of his death has been received with the greatest regret.

A NARROW ESCAPE FROM DROWNING DURING REGATTA

MR. DENNE THE RESCUER

In the midst of the regatta off Juniper Island, Stony Lake, yesterday afternoon, Mrs. (Dr.) J. A. Morgan, of Peterborough, had a very narrow escape from drowning. She was intently watching the races from a punt near the finishing buoy, when in some manner she lost her balance and fell backward into the water, catching her husband as she went, and both went into the lake. Dr. Morgan seized his wife with one hand, and the boat with the other and held on, managing to keep both himself and his wife afloat, although their position was most perilous. It was with the greatest difficulty that he kept Mrs. Morgan from going down, and had not help arrived the result would have undoubtedly been fatal.

Fortunately Mr. T. H. G. Denne of the Quaker Oats Company observed the accident, and paddled to the rescue and succeeded in getting both of them into his boat. It took Mrs. Morgan some time to recover from the effects of the narrow escape.

A new serial story is commencing to-day, one of the best that has ever been offered by this journal to its readers, and one that the people of Peterborough should be glad to have an opportunity to read. The new story is "The Man from Home," a novelization of the play of the same name by Booth Tarkington and Harry Leon Wilson, a play that has made a tremendous hit in New York. Those who have had the good fortune to read Monsieur Beaucaire" and "The Gentleman from Indiana," by Booth Tarkington, will welcome the chance to read something else from the same author. The first installments appear to-day on pages 3 and 5, and readers of the Examiner should lose no time in plunging into this fascinating story. Back copies, containing the first instalment will be kept for the benefit of those who may happen to miss the opening parts.

Two Nuns Drowned

Were Crossing the C. P. R. Bridge at Bourdeaux This Morning And Fell Into the Water.

Special to The Examiner (2.45 p.m.)

Montreal, Que., Aug. 10.—Two nuns from the Sault Au Recollect Convent lost their lives this morning, while crossing the C. P. R. bridge at Bourdeaux. They were overtaken by a train and either through fright or inabilty to hold onto the sides, fell into the water. The swift current carried them away and they were drowned before anything could be done to effect a rescue. The authorities have not yet learned their names. The bridge is commonly used by the public, being the only means of crossing the river at that point.

GASOLINE IGNITED ON LAUNCH WITH SLIGHT DAMAGE TO BOAT

Flames Were Extinguished Before Anything Serious Resulted --Mr. W. Sharpe's Hands and Face Burned--Gasoline Tank Overflowed.

The ignition of gasoline in the launch "Flirt" on Saturday evening, at 11 o'clock, at her moorings at the wharf of the Otonabee boat house was, fortunately, less serious than it is stated might have easily been the result. The boat belongs to Mr. Thos. Meredith, but it was being taken down the river by Mr. William Sharpe and several others, who were going to spend the week end on the Otonabee. The gasoline tank had been ordered to be filled and on preparing to start away Mr. Sharpe noticed what he considered to be water in the bottom of the launch. He lighted the lantern to examine more closely and put it on the bottom of the launch. Immediately a flame shot up and in a second the entire boat seemed to be enveloped. It was pushed out from shore to protect the other boats, and was drawn in further away and the flames were fought with sand and finally extinguished. The damage has been estimated roughly at between $15 and $25. Mr. Sharp was himself severely burned about the hands and face, and jumped into the river to save himself. He will likely be incapacitated for some time. It is stated by those who have heard of the affair that it is a wonder the accident did not assume larger proportions, owing to the gasoline tank having been filled and the blaze being immediately around it. The presence of the gasoline in the bottom of the launch has been explained as having resulted from over-filling the gasoline tank.

VICTORIA HARRIER GAMES WERE MOST SUCCESSFUL

Good Crowd and Finely Contested Races at Riverside Park Yesterday—The Sports Were All Good and Were Hard Fought—Thorpe Won the Mile But Was Forced to Drop Out of the Three Mile Event.

About two hundred paid admission to the Riverside grounds yesterday afternoon to see the Victoria Harriers' athletic meet. Considering the number of other attractions in and out of the city, there was a good crowd, and the men behind the venture were well pleased with the patronage handed out. The day was a little warm for the making of good time, but otherwise it could not have been better. The weather man certainly was very lenient to the promoters, as even the slightest downfall of rain would have completely spoiled the track. Thanks to his good behaviour, however, it was in excellent shape. The track was laid out in the form of an oval, just in front of the grand stand, and was fixed by a circle of bright coloured flags, which showed up very prettily against the green award. A straightaway track of one hundred yards was obtained by cutting diagonally with another track, and this, too, was marked out by the coloured bunting. The track being six laps to the mile, it was not too big to prevent the audience from following the runners throughout the whole distance, and, besides, allowed the officials to both start and finish the races in front of the grand stand. A section of the 57th Regimental Band was present and enlivened the proceedings with rag-time favourites.

The entry list was so large that it was necessary to run off several of the shorter races in a series of heats. In the initial event of the 100 yards handicap, W. Milburn was first, doing the distance 11 4-5 seconds, from three yards in front of scratch. Fred McGrath took the second heat in 11 7-10 seconds, Vincent Corkery the third in 11 1-5 seconds, and H. Wood, the fourth heat in 11 seconds flat. In the finals, the above four men qualified, although McGrath dropped out, his place being filled by J. Brownlee. H. Wood won, with Corkery second, and Holland third. The time was 10 4-5 seconds, which was very good, considering the fact that the track was a grass one.

The one-mile open brought forth considerable applause. There were sixteen entries, but only eight started. Charley Thorpe had no trouble in landing the prize. W. Parker, an Indian from Hiawatha, was second, and J. Simmons, of the Victoria Harriers, was third. Time, 5 minutes ¾ seconds.

There were only five starters out of twelve entries in the half-mile, but they provided some good entertainment. At the sound of the pistol an Englishman, named Reid, took the lead and set a furious pace, closely followed by Mahoney and Stewart. The pace, however, was too hot for the latter, and he dropped out at the quarter mile. Brown made the journey in two minutes 16 3-16 seconds; Mahoney was second and Walsh third.

There were two heats in the 220 yards handicap. In the first one Wood won, with Corkery a close second, in 25 3-5 seconds. Walsh and Holland tied for the position in the second heat, the time being 26 seconds flat. Holland was third. In the finals, Wood came first, Corkery second and Holland third. Time, 25 4-5 seconds.

In the third mile handicap, Charley Thorpe bit off a little more than he could comfortably chew. Starting from the scratch he gave Parker, the winner, one hundred yards, and Robinson, tie second man, one hundred and fifty yards. The handicap aided by the hot sun proved too much for him, and he was forced to quit during the third mile. However, even with an even start it is doubtful whether he could have beaten Parker, as the latter displayed all kinds of speed and was in great shape.

The quarter mile obstacle race provided a great deal of amusement. The runners were required to run a quarter mile in the course of which they had to leap over a wide hurdle, crawl through a barrel and struggle under a wide strip of carpet. R. Wright won the event, with T. Mahoney second, and G. Brown third.

There were eight entries for the married men's race. After a strenuous tussle F. Porter, captured first place, J. Pilling second, and W. Jeffries third. R. Wright captured the boys' half mile race, and Egbert Kelly the one hundred yard dash.

Ben Dusty made 37 feet 3 inches in the hop, step and jump. H. Wood was second, with 36 feet 2 inches. In the high jump Dusty was again to the fore, with Bill Bailey in second place.

On the whole the meet was a most successful one, and was most creditably handled by those in charge.

British Engineers Touring Canada Visit the City To-day

The British engineers, representing the British Universities' engineering trip to Canada, consisting of Messrs. N. M. Clougher and E. V. Reeves Smith, of London; H. Holcroft, of Swindon; J. T. W. Wrigg, Sheffield; and J. W. Mason and A. J. Daish, of Tunbridge, Wells, arrived in the city this morning. They are touring Canada. They were met at the station by His Worship Mayor Rush and Mr. J. H. McClellan, Superintendent of the Trent Canal. A visit was made to the Canadian General Electric Works. Luncheon was partaken of at the Oriental, after which the drove to the lift lock, where they "Bessie Butler" was waiting to take them on a trip around the lakes.

From here they go to Toronto and then to Cobalt.

SAD DROWNING ACCIDENT AT STONY LAKE SUNDAY

William Read, of Peterborough, Lost His Life While in Bathing at Hendren's Island--Got Into Deep Water and Could Not Swim---Had Just Arrived at the Lake to Spend a Vacation---A Most Distressing Fatality.

Stony Lake claimed its first victim of the season on Sunday afternoon, when Mr. William Reid of Peterborough, got beyond his depth while in bathing at Hendren's Island, and was drowned before assistance could be secured. The circumstances are particularly sad inasmuch as Mr. Read had just arrived at the lake, going up on the late boat Saturday night to spend a few days there. It was his first visit and he and his wife and child expected to have an enjoyable outing, such a terrible ending to the trip not being anticipated.

The other members of the party, which was composed of Mr. Read and family, Mr. William McLaren and family, and Mr. Wm. Yeates, arrived on Saturday, having rented Mr. Hendren's cottage, and Mr. Reid, who was unable to get away during the day, joined them that night.

Sunday was very warm and the men of the party determined to go in bathing, although they were ignorant of the nature of the water surrounding the island. Like at many other points in Stony Lake the rock shelves out gradually for some distance and then drops suddenly into the deep water. Mr. McLaren was some distance away and Mr. Yeates tried to rescue the drowning man. He seized him but could not hold him, and the unfortunate young man sank for the last time before the eyes of the other members of the party Mr. McLaren kept diving but could not find Mr. Read. The alarm was quickly given in the neighbourhood and people from the islands around hurried to the scene. Mr. Acton and son, Messrs. J. J. and Reg. Turner and others were quickly on hand and every effort was made to find the body. Grappling irons and pike poles were called into play and several of the party who could dive, made repeated efforts to locate the body. It was finally found about twenty minutes after he had sunk, in deep water, and was carried to shore, where for two hours the rescuers used every effort to resuscitate the unfortunate man. They worked heroically over the body, but every spark of life was gone, and finally and reluctantly the rescuers desisted.

Mr. J. J. Turner's boat, "The San Toy" took the body and the members of the family to Young's Point, where it was met by Mr. Comstock's waggon and taken to Peterborough. The Misses Cox, of "Duluce Domum," kindly gave their services, as pilots, on the long trip, as Mr. Turner did not know the channels all the way.

The fatality has cast a gloom over the entire population of the Lake.

The late Wm. Read was a native of Manchester, Eng., from which place he came to Peterborough about five years ago. He was thirty years of age. Three years ago he was married to Miss Edith Burgess, also of Manchester, who, with one daughter, survives him. He was employed as a brass finisher in the Canadian General Electric Works, and was well and favourably known to a large number of Peterborough people. He resided on Chamberlain street.

The funeral took place this afternoon at 2.30 o'clock to Little Lake cemetery from the residence of Mrs. Sandiford, High street.

Former Peterborough Lady's Sudden Death While Visiting Here

The death occurred very suddenly at midnight on Saturday of Mrs. George H. Williamson, of Fort William, and daughter, of Mrs. J. Coyle Brown, 162 Smith street. She was visiting here at the home of her mother, when she passed away. Her death was quite unexpected, she apparently having been in excellent health. Her demise was due to an hemorrhage. She was 34 years of age and was born in Norwood, where she resided for a number of years. She came to Peterborough to live in 1888, and until nearly two years ago lived here. She was a woman of many estimable qualities, and was highly esteemed by all who knew her. Her many friends will learn with deep regret of her death. Her mother, husband, one son, and brother, Dr. J. Patterson, of Adanac, Sask., are left to mourn her loss.

The funeral took place this morning to the C. P. R. train for Norwood, where interment will take place.

Local Boy Lost Grip On A Rope And Fell Sixty Feet To The Ground

Mr. Harry Rogers, son of Mr. R. B. Rogers, met with an accident last week near Montreal, where he was engaged inspecting a bridge. He was coming down a rope about one hundred feet in length but when sixty feet from the ground he lost his grip and fell. He had a most miraculous escape, no injuries of a serious nature, resulting from the fall. He was brought to the General Hospital at Montreal, where he remained until Saturday, when he came on to Peterborough, and went up the lakes with his father. While unable to walk, he is progressing favourably, and will spend a few weeks with his parents at Kawartha Park, Clear Lake.

Home Again After Attending The Trial of Gypsies in Ottawa

Messrs. Thos. Williams, Geo. Mitchell, and D'Arcy Dunlop have returned from Hull, where they have been giving evidence in the now famous Gypsy triel. They were treated in a princely way, being taken about Ottawa and Hull in motor cars, were stationed at a fine hotel, incidentally told the court what they had seen of the ceremony which has been the subject of all the discussion They were secured by Queen Rosie's party and the other side had also three Peterborough people, Mr. Frank Hope, and Mr. and Mrs. Ozias Goselin. The court proceedings were burlesqued by both parties of gypsies and were highly amusing. They occupied opposite sides of the court room and frequently burst out at each other until one or more were forcibly ejected by the sheriff. While one case was being heard they would leave the court at an adjournment and trouble would commence as soono as the street was reached This was so frequent that at one time there was a large number of charges and counter charges piled up. The lawyers are making their share out of the foreigners, one having received $800 for his share.

Mr. Williams states that he believes the Gypsies are having a big lark in everything they do. That is his opinion in regard to Queen Rosie's party. On Monday they had a big celebration in the Hull baseball grounds. It was something similar to the affair held in Peterborough and an admission of 10 cents was charged. It was stated in Peterborough that they hold these ceremonies, or whatever they are, in every town they visit. Mr. Williams has not a great respect for the Gypsies testimony. The Bulgarians swore there was no marriage here, no band present, in fact almost that they were not here at all. They denied everything absolutely and without a thought of what they were saying. Chief George says he is coming back to Peterborough to prove that a marriage was held here.

15 LB. 'LUNGE CAUGHT

By Percy Neil, East City, Near Idyl Wyld Yesterday

Percy Neil, Burnham street, East City, who, with Joe Hughes, is staying down at Idyl Wyld, landed a fine fifteen-pound 'lunge yesterday when out trawling. It was caught a short distance out from Idyl Wyld, and the young fellow had an exciting time in getting it into the boat.

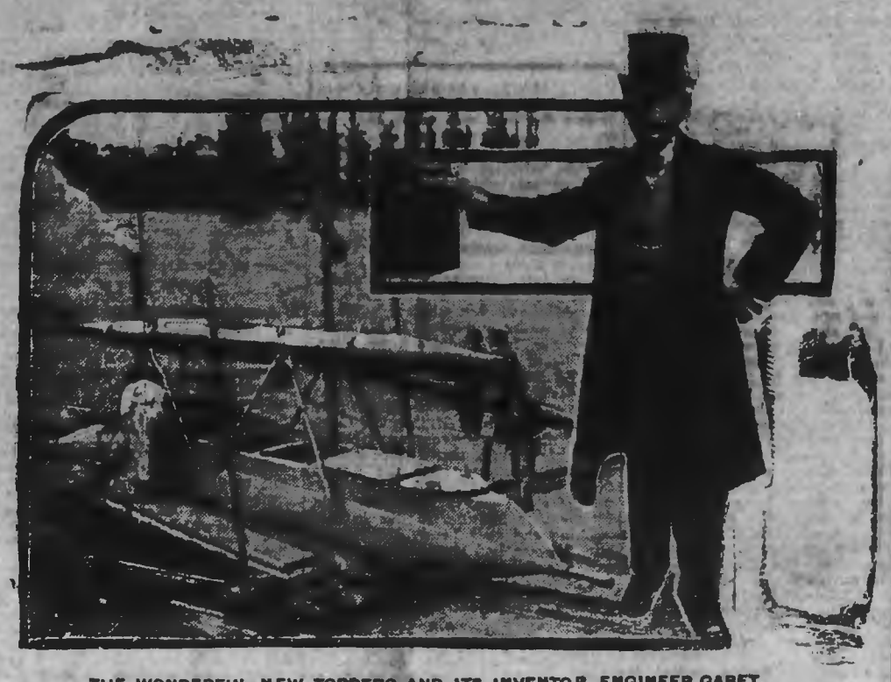
Sea's Newest Terror---Deadily Torpedo Guided Straight To Quarry By Wireless Waves



THE WONDERFUL NEW TORPEDO AND ITS INVENTOR, ENGINEER GABET.

Paris, July 26.—It's of no use to go on spending millions of dollars on battleships if the invention of a French engineer, M. Gustave Gabet, fulfils at its official trials, a few weeks hence, the promise just given at its unofficial trial.

The new engine of destruction is a radio-automatic torpedo, so sensitive to control at so great a distance as to be well nigh human. It can be guided by wireless waves at a distance of three and a half and even four miles, as completely as if the operator were on board instead of beside a telegraph instrument well out of harm's way.

Like the bee that is supposed to die when it has used its one and only sting, this costly vessel is expected never to make more than one "business" trip, and that trip is designed to be the most expensive voyage on record.

The preliminary trials took place some time ago, but the working model used on this occasion, and of which I have obtained special photographs for you, is much larger and considerably improved.

Imagine a little submarine, at the bottom a hull of 11 yards, on top of this a long thin cylindrical floater with two masts, each carrying lights that wink signals. In the compartment in the fore part of the hull there is accommodation for 200 pounds of explosives.

The second compartment contains the apparatus controlling the Hertz radio-active waves, which are now used in wireless telegraphy, and which will enable an operator to direct the vessel from a hitherto unprecedented distance. The third chamber of the hull encloses the accumulators." They have nothing to do with moving the torpedo boat, but regulate the manoeuvres aboard. The fourth compartment contains the petroleum motor. According to M. Gabet, with a motor of 200 horse-power, the rate of 20 knots can be easily attained.

The strange craft was slid down into the Seine on gently sloping rails and submerged to the upper compartment. On a small motorboat 100 yards off was the transmitter, with M. Gabet at the key.

Under the eyes of an astonished group of army officers, men of science and newspaper men, obeying the invisible current waves transmitted from the launch, the motor of the torpedo boat went or stopped as desired. Under the same mysterious influence at the will of the man sitting in the launch, the rudder turned slowly to right or felt. All the parts of the deadly machine obeyed his will.

A marvellous part of the invention is that the lights inform the operator ashore just how the boat is obeying his direction. So the torpedo is directed surely and with the utmost accuracy toward its giant adversary—the battleship.

"An engine such as this," continued M. Gabet, "can open a breach of 20 square yards in the hull of a battleship."

BOY LOST HIS LIFE

Little Elmer Northey, Aged Six Years, Slipped off the Steamboat Dock at Lakefield Saturday and Was Drowned---No One Saw the Accident.

BODY WAS RECOVERED

Special to The Examiner.

Lakefield, Aug. 10.—Elmer Northey, the six-year-old son of Mr. Azor Northey, of this village, lost his life by drowning near the Lakefield wharf on Saturday morning. The little fellow was accustomed to play around the dock, and it is supposed that he lost his balance and fell into the water at a time when there was no one around to witness the accident. Just when it occurred is a matter of conjecture. The parents of the little fellow missed him during the day, but thought little of it as he used sometimes to go on board one of the Stoney Lake Navigation Company's steamers for a trip around the lake. It was naturally supposed when he did not turn up that he had done so in this case, and accordingly no alarm was felt until evening. He not having arrived then his parents went to Young's Point and waited for the arrival of the night boats from the lakes hoping to get some intelligence of the missing youngster. However, when the Stoney Lake and Empress reached their moorings early Sunday morning it was learned that their crews had seen nothing of young Northey, and his parents, terribly alarmed by this time, returned to their home.

On arriving, Mr. Northey noticed the action of a dog with which the little fellow had been accustomed to play. The animal would look at Mr. Northey and whine, and finally Mr. Northey determined to follow the animal. The dog led him to the wharf and stopped at a certain point. Mr. Northey reaching down into the water with a pike pole, discovered the body of his missing boy, and succeeded in getting him out of the water.

A number of larger boys had been in swimming near the dock on Saturday morning, and it is supposed that the youngster had been watching them there and in some manner fell into the water. There were no witnesses to the accident.

He was a bright little fellow, known to nearly everyone in Lakefield, and the news of his death has been received with the greatest regret.

A NARROW ESCAPE FROM DROWNING DURING REGATTA

MR. DENNE THE RESCUER

In the midst of the regatta off Juniper Island, Stony Lake, yesterday afternoon, Mrs. (Dr.) J. A. Morgan, of Peterborough, had a very narrow escape from drowning. She was intently watching the races from a punt near the finishing buoy, when in some manner she lost her balance and fell backward into the water, catching her husband as she went, and both went into the lake. Dr. Morgan seized his wife with one hand, and the boat with the other and held on, managing to keep both himself and his wife afloat, although their position was most perilous. It was with the greatest difficulty that he kept Mrs. Morgan from going down, and had not help arrived the result would have undoubtedly been fatal.

Fortunately Mr. T. H. G. Denne of the Quaker Oats Company observed the accident, and paddled to the rescue and succeeded in getting both of them into his boat. It took Mrs. Morgan some time to recover from the effects of the narrow escape.

A new serial story is commencing to-day, one of the best that has ever been offered by this journal to its readers, and one that the people of Peterborough should be glad to have an opportunity to read. The new story is "The Man from Home," a novelization of the play of the same name by Booth Tarkington and Harry Leon Wilson, a play that has made a tremendous hit in New York. Those who have had the good fortune to read Monsieur Beaucaire" and "The Gentleman from Indiana," by Booth Tarkington, will welcome the chance to read something else from the same author. The first installments appear to-day on pages 3 and 5, and readers of the Examiner should lose no time in plunging into this fascinating story. Back copies, containing the first instalment will be kept for the benefit of those who may happen to miss the opening parts.

Two Nuns Drowned

Were Crossing the C. P. R. Bridge at Bourdeaux This Morning And Fell Into the Water.

Special to The Examiner (2.45 p.m.)

Montreal, Que., Aug. 10.—Two nuns from the Sault Au Recollect Convent lost their lives this morning, while crossing the C. P. R. bridge at Bourdeaux. They were overtaken by a train and either through fright or inabilty to hold onto the sides, fell into the water. The swift current carried them away and they were drowned before anything could be done to effect a rescue. The authorities have not yet learned their names. The bridge is commonly used by the public, being the only means of crossing the river at that point.

EXCURSION TO LINDSAY

All Round Trip via. Lake and Rail and Back to Peterborough Well Patronized.

Fully two hundred took in the lake-and-rail trip from Peterborough this morning on the steamer Otonshee. Following a holiday, it was a surprise to see so many excursionists ready to take in this popular trip. The steamer left Wolfe St. wharf at 7:40 and proceeded over the Lift Lock, and on through the lakes to Lindsay, where the excursionists will return to Peterborough via the G.T.R. regular train, arriving here at 9 o'clock this evening. One dollar was the price, including steamboat and train.

SAD DROWNING ACCIDENT AT STONY LAKE SUNDAY

William Read, of Peterborough, Lost His Life While in Bathing at Hendren's Island—Got Into Deep Water and Could Not Swim—Had Just Arrived at the Lake to Spend a Vacation—A Most Distressing Fatality.

Stony Lake claimed its first victim of the season on Sunday afternoon, when Mr. William Reid of Peterborough, got beyond his depth while in bathing at Hendren's Island, and was drowned before assistance could be secured. The circumstances are particularly sad inasmuch as Mr. Read had just arrived at the lake, going up on the late boat Saturday night to spend a few days there. It was his first visit and he and his wife and child expected to have an enjoyable outing, such a terrible ending to the trip not being anticipated.

The other members of the party, which was composed of Mr. Read and family, Mr. William McLaren and family, and Mr. Wm. Yeates, arrived on Saturday, having rented Mr. Hendren's cottage, and Mr. Reid, who was unable to get away during the day, joined them that night.

Sunday was very warm and the men of the party determined to go in bathing, although they were ignorant of the nature of the water surrounding the island. Like at many other points in Stony Lake the rock shelves out gradually for some distance and then drops suddenly into the deep water. Mr. McLaren was some distance away and Mr. Yeates tried to rescue the drowning man. He seized him but could not hold him, and the unfortunate young man sank for the last time before the eyes of the other members of the party. Mr. McLaren kept diving but could not find Mr. Read. The alarm was quickly given in the neighbourhood and people from the islands around hurried to the scene. Mr. Acton and son, Messrs. J. J. and Reg. Turner and others were quickly on hand and every effort was made to find the body. Grappling irons and pike poles were called into play and several of the party who could dive, made repeated efforts to locate the body. It was finally found about twenty minutes after he had sunk, in deep water, and was carried to shore, where for two hours the rescuers used every effort to resuscitate the unfortunate man. They worked heroically over the body, but every spark of life was gone, and finally and reluctantly the rescuers desisted.

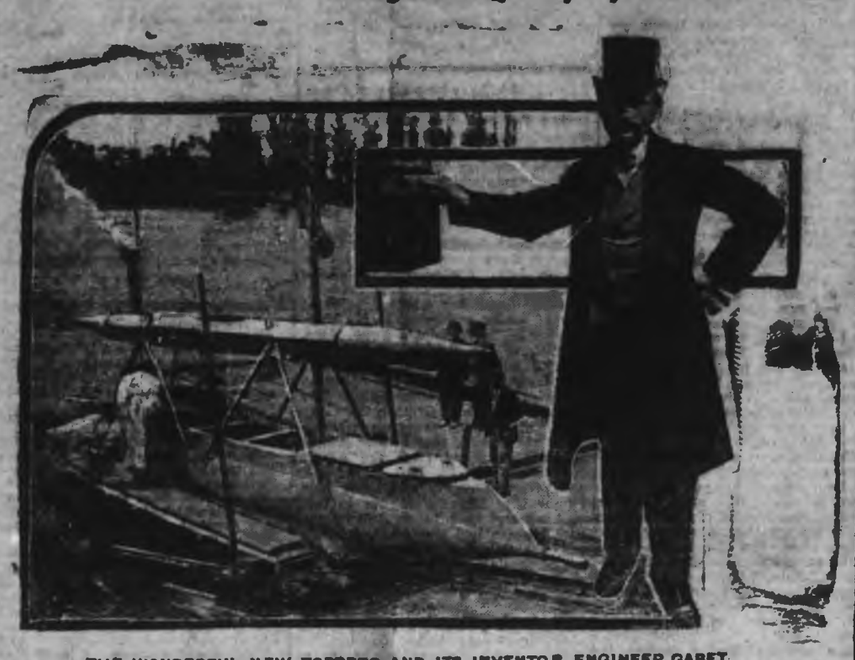
Mr. J. J. Turner's boat, "The San Toy" took the body and the members of the family to Young's Point, where it was met by Mr. Comstock's waggon and taken to Peterborough. The Misses Cox, of "Duluce Domum," kindly gave their services, as pilots, on the long trip, as Mr. Turner did not know the channels all the way.

The fatality has cast a gloom over the entire population of the Lake.

The late Wm. Read was a native of Manchester, Eng., from which place he came to Peterborough about five years ago. He was thirty years of age. Three years ago he was married to Miss Edith Burgess, also of Manchester, who, with one daughter, survives him. He was employed as a brass finisher in the Canadian General Electric Works, and was well and favourably known to a large number of Peterborough people. He resided on Chamberlain street.

The funeral took place this afternoon at 2.30 o'clock to Little Lake cemetery from the residence of Mrs. Sandiford, High street.

Sea's Newest Terror—Deadly Torpedo Guided Straight To Quarry By Wireless Waves



THE WONDERFUL NEW TORPEDO AND ITS INVENTOR, ENGINEER GABET.

Paris, July 26.—It's of no use to go on spending millions of dollars on battleships if the invention of a French engineer, M. Gustave Gabet, fulfils at its official trials, a few weeks hence, the promise just given at its unofficial trial.

The new engine of destruction is a radio-automatic torpedo, so sensitive to control at so great a distance as to be well nigh human. It can be guided by wireless waves at a distance of three and a half and even four miles, as completely as if the operator were on board instead of beside a telegraph instrument well out of harm's way.

Like the bee that is supposed to die when it has used its one and only sting, this costly vessel is expected never to make more than one "business" trip, and that trip is designed to be the most expensive voyage on record.

The preliminary trials took place some time ago, but the working model used on this occasion, and of which I have obtained special photographs for you, is much larger and considerably improved.

Imagine a little submarine, at the bottom a hull of 11 yards, on top of this a long thin cylindrical floater with two masts, each carrying lights that wink signals. In the compartment in the fore part of the hull there is accommodation for 200 pounds of explosives.

The second compartment contains the apparatus controlling the Hertz radio-active waves, which are now used in wireless telegraphy, and which will enable an operator to direct the vessel from a hitherto unprecedented distance. The third chamber of the hull encloses the accumulators." They have nothing to do with moving the torpedo boat, but regulate the manoeuvres aboard. The fourth compartment contains the petroleum motor. According to M. Gabet, with a motor of 200 horsepower, the rate of 20 knots can be easily attained.

The strange craft was slid down into the Seine on gently sloping rails and submerged to the upper compartment. On a small motorboat 100 yards off was the transmitter, with M. Gabet at the key.

Under the eyes of an astonished group of army officers, men of science and newspaper men, obeying the invisible current waves transmitted from the launch, the motor of the torpedo boat went or stopped as desired. Under the same mysterious influence at the will of the man sitting in the launch, the rudder turned slowly to right or felt. All the parts of the deadly machine obeyed his will.

A marvellous part of the invention is that the lights inform the operator ashore just how the boat is obeying his direction. So the torpedo is directed surely and with the utmost accuracy toward its giant adversary—the battleship.

"An engine such as this," continued M. Gabet, "can open a breach of 40 square yards in the hull of a battleship."

Flames Were Extinguished Before Anything Serious Resulted—Mr. W. Sharpe's Hands and Face Burned—Gasoline Tank Overflowed.

The ignition of gasoline in the launch "Flirt" on Saturday evening, at 11 o'clock, at her moorings at the wharf of the Otonabee boat house was, fortunately, less serious than it is stated might have easily been the result. The boat belongs to Mr. Thos. Meredith, but it was being taken down the river by Mr. William Sharpe and several others, who were going to spend the week end on the Otonabee. The gasoline tank had been ordered to be filled and on preparing to start away Mr. Sharpe noticed what he considered to be water in the bottom of the launch. He lighted the lantern to examine more closely and put it on the bottom of the launch. Immediately a flame shot up and in a second the entire boat seemed to be enveloped. It was pushed out from shore to protect the other boats, and was drawn in further away and the flames were fought with sand and finally extinguished. The damage has been estimated roughly at between $15 and $25. Mr. Sharp was himself severely burned about the hands and face, and jumped into the river to save himself. He will likely be incapacitated for some time. It is stated by those who have heard of the affair that it is a wonder the accident did not assume larger proportions, owing to the gasoline tank having been filled and the blaze being immediately around it. The presence of the gasoline in the bottom of the launch has been explained as having resulted from over-filling the gasoline tank.

VICTORIA HARRIER GAMES WERE MOST SUCCESSFUL

Good Crowd and Finely Contested Races at Riverside Park Yesterday—The Sports Were All Good and Were Hard Fought—Thorpe Won the Mile But Was Forced to Drop Out of the Three Mile Event.

About two hundred paid admission to the Riverside grounds yesterday afternoon to see the Victoria Harriers' athletic meet. Considering the number of other attractions in and out of the city, there was a good crowd, and the men behind the venture were well pleased with the patronage handed out. The day was a little warm for the making of good time, but otherwise it could not have been better. The weather man certainly was very lenient to the promoters, as even the slightest downfall of rain would have completely spoiled the track. Thanks to his good behaviour, however, it was in excellent shape. The track was laid out in the form of an oval, just in front of the grand stand, and was fixed by a circle of bright coloured flags, which showed up very prettily against the green sward. A straightaway track of one hundred yards was obtained by cutting diagonally with another track, and this, too, was marked out by the coloured bunting. The track being six laps to the mile, it was not too big to prevent the audience from following the runners throughout the whole distance, and, besides, allowed the officials to both start and finish the races in front of the grand stand. A section of the 57th Regimental Band was present and enlivened the proceedings with rag-time favourites.

The entry list was so large that it was necessary to run off several of the shorter races in a series of heats. In the initial event, of the 100 yards handicap, W. Milburn was first, doing the distance 11 4-5 seconds, from three yards in front of scratch. Fred McGrath took the second heat in 11 7-10 seconds, Vincent Corkery the third in 11 1-5 seconds, and H. Wood, the fourth heat in 11 seconds flat. In the finals, the above four men qualified, although McGrath dropped out, his place being filled by J. Brownlee. H. Wood won, with Corkery second, and Holland third. The time was 10 4-5 seconds, which was very good, considering the fact that the track was a grass one.

The one-mile open brought forth considerable applause. There were sixteen entries, but only eight started. Charley Thorpe had no trouble in landing the prize. W. Parker, an Indian from Hiawatha, was second, and J. Simmons, of the Victoria Harriers, was third. Time, 5 minutes 36 seconds.

There were only five starters out of twelve entries in the half-mile, but they provided some good entertainment. At the sound of the pistol an Englishman, named Reid, took the lead and set a furious pace, closely followed by Mahoney and Stewart. The pace, however, was too hot for the latter, and he dropped out at the quarter mile. Brown made the journey in two minutes 10 3-10 seconds; Mahoney was second and Walsh third.

There were two heats in the 220 yards handicap. In the first one Wood won, with Corkery a close second, in 25 3-5 seconds. Walsh and Holland tied for the position in the second heat, the time being 26 seconds flat. Holland was third. In the finals, Wood came first, Corkery second and Holland third. Time, 25 4-5 seconds.

In the third mile handicap, Charley Thorpe bit off a little more than he could comfortably chew. Starting from the scratch he gave Parker, the winner, one hundred yards, and Robinson, the second man, one hundred and fifty yards. The handicap aided by the hot sun, proved too much for him, and he was forced to quit during the third mile. However, even with an even start it is doubtful whether he could have beaten Parker, as the latter displayed all kinds of speed and was in great shape.

The quarter mile obstacle race provided a great deal of amusement. The runners were required to run a quarter mile in the course of which they had to leap over a wide hurdle, crawl through a barrel and struggle under a wide strip of carpet. R. Wright won the event, with T. Mahoney second, and G. Brown third.

There were eight entries for the married men's race. After a strenuous tussle F. Porter, captured first place, J. Pilling second, and W. Jeffries third. R. Wright captured the boys' half mile race, and Egbert Kelly the one hundred yard dash.

Ben Dusty made 37 feet 3 inches in the hop, step and jump. H. Wood was second, with 36 feet 2 inches. In the high jump Dusty was again to the fore, with Bill Bailey in second place.

On the whole the meet was a most successful one, and was most creditably handled by those in charge.

Former Peterborough Lady's Sudden Death While Visiting Here

The death occurred very suddenly at midnight on Saturday of Mrs. George H. Williamson, of Fort William, and daughter, of Mrs. J. Coyle Brown, 162 Smith street. She was visiting here at the home of her mother, when she passed away. Her death was quite unexpected, she apparently having been in excellent health. Her demise was due to an hemorrhage. She was 34 years of age and was born in Norwood, where she resided for a number of years. She came to Peterborough to live in 1888, and until nearly two years ago lived here. She was a woman of many estimable qualities, and was highly esteemed by all who knew her. Her many friends will learn with deep regret of her death. Her mother, husband, one son, and brother, Dr. J. Patterson, of Adanac, Sask., are left to mourn her loss.

The funeral took place this morning to the C. P. R. train for Norwood, where interment will take place.

Local Boy Lost Grip On A Rope And Fell Sixty Feet To The Ground

Mr. Harry Rogers, son of Mr. B. B. Rogers, met with an accident last week near Montreal, where he was engaged inspecting a bridge. He was coming down a rope about one hundred feet in length but when sixty feet from the ground he lost his grip and fell. He had a most miraculous escape, no injuries of a serious nature resulting from the fall. He was brought to the General Hospital at Montreal, where he remained until Saturday, when he came on to Peterborough, and went up the lakes with his father. While unable to walk, he is progressing favourably, and will spend a few weeks with his parents at Kawartha Park, Clear Lake.

Home Again After Attending The Trial of Gypsies in Ottawa

Messrs. Thos. Williams, Geo. Mitchell, and D'Arcy Dunlop have returned from Hull, where they have been giving evidence in the now famous Gypsy trial. They were treated in a princely way, being taken about Ottawa and Hull in motor cars, were stationed at a fine hotel, incidentally told the court what they had seen of the ceremony which has been the subject of all the discussion. They were secured by Queen Rosie's party and the other side had also three Peterborough people, Mr. Frank Hope, and Mr. and Mrs. Osias Gosselin. The court proceedings were burlesqued by both parties of gypsies and were highly amusing. They occupied opposite sides of the court room and frequently burst out at each other until one or more were forcibly ejected by the sheriff. While one case was being heard they would leave the court at an adjournment and trouble would commence as soono as the street was reached. This was so frequent that at one time there was a large number of charges and counter charges piled up. The lawyers are making their share out of the foreigners, one having received $800 for his share.

Mr. Williams states that he believes the Gypsies are having a big lark in everything they do. That is his opinion in regard to Queen Rosie's party. On Monday they had a big celebration in the Hull baseball grounds. It was something similar to the affair held in Peterborough and an admission of 10 cents was charged. It was stated in Peterborough that they hold these ceremonies, or whatever they are, in every town they visit. Mr. Williams has not a great respect for the Gypsies testimony. The Bulgarians swore there was no marriage here, no band present, in fact almost that they were not here at all. They denied everything absolutely and without a thought of what they were saying. Chief George says he is coming back to Peterborough to prove that a marriage was held here.

15 LB. 'LUNGE CAUGHT

By Percy Neil, East City, Near Idyl Wyld Yesterday

Percy Neil, Burnham street, East City, who, with Joe Hughes, is staying down at Idyl Wyld, landed a fine fifteen-pound 'lunge yesterday when out trawling. It was caught a short distance out from Idyl Wyld, and the young fellow had an exciting time in getting it into the boat.

BOY LOST HIS LIFE

Little Elmer Northey, Aged Six Years, Slipped off the Steamboat Dock at Lakefield Saturday and Was Drowned—No One Saw the Accident.

BODY WAS RECOVERED

Special to The Examiner.

Lakefield, Aug. 10.—Elmer Northey, the six-year-old son of Mr. Azor Northey, of this village, lost his life by drowning near the Lakefield wharf on Saturday morning. The little fellow was accustomed to play around the dock, and it is supposed that he lost his balance and fell into the water at a time when there was no one around to witness the accident. Just when it occurred is a matter of conjecture. The parents of the little fellow missed him during the day, but thought little of it as he used sometimes to go on board one of the Stoney Lake Navigation Company's steamers for a trip around the lake. It was naturally supposed when he did not turn up that he had done so in this case, and accordingly no alarm was felt until evening. He not having arrived then his parents went to Young's Point and waited for the arrival of the night boats from the lakes hoping to get some intelligence of the missing youngster. However, when the Stoney Lake and Empress reached their moorings early Sunday morning it was learned that their crews had seen nothing of young Northey, and his parents, terribly alarmed by this time, returned to their home.

On arriving, Mr. Northey noticed the action of a dog with which the little fellow had been accustomed to play. The animal would look at Mr. Northey and whine, and finally Mr. Northey determined to follow the animal. The dog led him to the wharf and stopped at a certain point. Mr. Northey reaching down into the water with a pike pole, discovered the body of his missing boy, and succeeded in getting him out of the water.

A number of larger boys had been in swimming near the dock on Saturday morning, and it is supposed that the youngster had been watching them there and in some manner fell into the water. There were no witnesses to the accident.

He was a bright little fellow, known to nearly everyone in Lakefield, and the news of his death has been received with the greatest regret.

A NARROW ESCAPE FROM DROWNING DURING REGATTA

MR. DENNE THE RESCUER

In the midst of the regatta off Juniper Island, Stony Lake, yesterday afternoon, Mrs. (Dr.) J. A. Morgan, of Peterborough, had a very narrow escape from drowning. She was intently watching the races from a punt near the finishing buoy, when in some manner she lost her balance and fell backward into the water, catching her husband as she went, and both went into the lake. Dr. Morgan seized his wife with one hand, and the boat with the other and held on, managing to keep both himself and his wife afloat, although their position was most perilous. It was with the greatest difficulty that he kept Mrs. Morgan from going down, and had not help arrived the result would have undoubtedly been fatal.

Fortunately Mr. T. H. G. Denne of the Quaker Oats Company observed the accident, and paddled to the rescue and succeeded in getting both of them into his boat. It took Mrs. Morgan some time to recover from the effects of the narrow escape.

A new serial story is commencing to-day, one of the best that has ever been offered by this journal to its readers, and one that the people of Peterborough should be glad to have an opportunity to read. The new story is "The Man from Home," a novelization of the play of the same name by Booth Tarkington and Harry Leon Wilson, a play that has made a tremendous hit in New York. Those who have had the good fortune to read Monsieur Beaucaire" and "The Gentleman from Indiana," by Booth Tarkington, will welcome the chance to read something else from the same author. The first installments appear to-day on pages 3 and 5, and readers of the Examiner should lose no time in plunging into this fascinating story. Back copies, containing the first instalment will be kept for the benefit of those who may happen to miss the opening parts.

Two Nuns Drowned

Special to The Examiner (2.45 p.m.)

Montreal, Que., Aug. 10.—Two nuns from the Sault Au Recollect Convent lost their lives this morning, while crossing the C. P. R. bridge at Bourdeaux. They were overtaken by a train and either through fright or inabilty to hold onto the sides, fell into the water. The swift current carried them away and they were drowned before anything could be done to effect a rescue. The authorities have not yet learned their names. The bridge is commonly used by the public, being the only means of crossing the river at that point.

CIVIC HOLIDAY

The good behaviour of Peterborough on Civic Holiday indicates that there is not so pressing need of introducing the moral reform movement expressed by some under the metaphor of the "water wagon." Yesterday everybody was idle, and everybody was subject to the temptation that finds employment for idle hands. Yet there was an off day at the police court this morning. Not an arrest was made by the police. If drink leads to crime and disorderly conduct, certainly the bibulous were "off the drink" yesterday. Civic Holiday was a great success, in that, though thousands were on the move—in the danger zone—on the railways—in the autos—on excursion steamers, in canoes and boats, yet not a single mishap is to be recorded, not an untoward incident to mar the general enjoyment of the day. People of all sorts and conditions, such as compose our population, must be generally well behaved, when they are turned loose, and relieved by the holiday character of the day, from th restraints supposed to obtain from day to day, and spend the term of relaxation so temperately and commendably. As a rule, our people are hard-working and sober, and they deserve a holiday—all the more because they know how to make good use of it. A season of work is before us with only one holiday — Labour Day—between the present and Thanksgiving Day, and we can afford to "buckle to" with unflagging energy.

OUR CHURCH BUILDINGS

The Brantford Expositor complains that "one of the weakest spots in Brantford, from an architectural point of view is its religious edifices." Per contra this is Peterborough's strongest point. Whether or not we live our religion in our daily lives as well as we might do, in the matter of material externals, we make a good display. We can congratulate ourselves upon our church buildings, especially if we can regard them as outward signs of an inward and spiritual grace. Within recent years all of our fifteen religious structures have either been built new or elaborately restored. At the present moment there are two fine church buildings of red-granite in course of construction, two were completed last year, and next year another church, built new only a few years ago, will be rebuilt or greatly added to. The same comments apply generally to many of our school buildings. Peterborough has no reason to be ashamed of either her religious or educational edifices.

BLACK-EYE TO PUBLIC OWNERSHIP

Public ownership and operation are only successful when the conditions permit of almost automatic working. The Whitney Government even before more than trying have given up operation of the Government mine on the Gillies Limit property. The Government, in advertising this mine for sale announces the failure of Government operation, in this matter at least. The Government expected to make "a pot" out of this mine for the people. When he announced in his Johnsonian elaboration of language, the reservation of the Gillies Limit, Premier Whitney said:

"I desire to say that the government have considered this matter carefully, with all the circumstances and conditions before them, and they have arrived at this conclusion —and they consider it their manifest duty to the people that they will not dispose of that silver-bearing land. It being ours, we are prepared to keep it, too use it, develop it, and mine it for the benefit of the people of the Province of Ontario."

The wisdom of the Government in withdrawing from dabbling in what it it unfitted to do—operation of silver mines is undoubted—all that mitigates the smart of humilation is receding from a policy announced, with no unconsiderable air of boast.

TO IDYL WYLD

The Mark St. Ladies' Aid will run an excursion to Idyl Wyld on Friday, August 20th.

CANADA AND CANADIAN WHEAT

(Finance Chronicle)

Already the air is a-throb "with argosies of magic sails." To-morrow may see the "heavens fill with commerce"—though, thus far, there comes no authentic word of any "pilots of the purple twilight, dropping down with costly bales." Themselves, they are as yet the only cargoes dropped. But the oars of the race are everywhere agog to hear.

"—the heavens fill with shouting
From the nation's airy navies grappling in the central blue."

Still, however high our race may carry its head in the clouds, its feet must remain on terra firma—if for no other than stomachic reasons. Aerial wheat-fields are not yet considered likely. Navies, whether "of circumambient air or circling sea," are but means to an end—that "possession of liberty and the land" in which the British Empire consists.

Little by little the Empire has come to include one-fifth of all the land there is. To preserve this intact is the purpose alike of motherland and overseas dominions. But preparedness for defence is not everything. Matters of commissariat are also important; the independence of the Empire as to food-supplies is an end not to be lightly considered.

"Canada alone could feed her," says Mr. Price Collier—an American whose frank observings of "England and the English" have given us one of the most interesting of the season's books.

"To be sure, the daughter will soon supply the mother's house," the average Canadian will assent. Yet, if asked to quote chapter and verse for the faith that is in him, his notion of Britain's requirements may be found vague indeed.

Even with prices ranging as high as during the past year, the United Kingdom consumes some 285,000,000 bushels of wheat yearly—an increase of over 15,000,000 since the beginning of the present century. But the Empire's wheat acreage in 1908 showed less than half a million increase over that of 1901, India's cultivation having fallen off after seasons of severe drought.

In Canada alone, within the Empire, has any steady expansion of wheat acreage recently taken place. Last year, well on to 7,000,000 acres were put to wheat-growing throughout the Dominion—more than double the 1901 area. This year would have shown a marked increase had it not been that many stretches of winter-killed fall wheat in Alberta were re-sown with coarse grains.

In 1901 Canada grew scarcely more than one-fifth as much wheat as India. Taking together the past three years, Canadian production has been well on to one-half that of the great Asiatic possession. In 1901 the United Kingdom, Canada and Australasia were practically on a par as to quantities of wheat grown. Taking the average annual production for the past three years, Canada scores an advance of 61,000,000 bushels over the 1901 showing, as against increases of less than 18,000,000 by Australia and only 3,000,000, by the United Kingdom.

Canada's present wheat yield is more than double what it was at the beginning of the twentieth century. But this affords no adequate index to developments of the near future. Taking the West alone, its wheat yield of 23,500,000 bushels in 1901 should certainly be more than quadrupled this year. Of late years the East's declension in wheat raising (owing to wise activity in dairying and mixed farming) has served to check the rate of growth for the Dominion as a whole. From now on, however, the West's contributions of wheat will so outweigh those of the East, that the country's rate of increase during the next few years s likely to correspand closely to that of the West. And a crop of 400,000,000 bushels ten or twelve years hence seems by no means impossible of achievement. As yet the Empire fails by one-half from supplying the United Kingdom with her wheat. Still, assuming that annual consumption by the United Kingdom will have reached 300,000,000 bushels by 1920, Canada alone might possibly make up the necessary supply—allowing for increased requirements here. Of course, "off" years have always to be reckoned with, but if irregation and more intensive agricultural methods can be made to increase gradually the output of Australasia and India, the Empire as a whole should certainly be able, in the not distant future, to feed the British Isles. In Canada, too, it may be hoped that improved methods of cultivation will tend not only to increase the yield per acre, but to check the "robbing of the soil" which is too prevalent a characteristic of wheat farming in any newly settled territory.

THE ROSS RIFLE.

The splendid achievements of the Canadian rifle team at Bisley this year have been put down to the excellent marksmanship of the members, armed with a firstclass arm of precision, the Ross Rifle. Some of the enemies of this rifle—and of the Government which introduced it, and armed our volunteers with it, still say the gun is no good, and give all the credit to the marksmen. This criticism might hold if it were not flatly contradicted by the shooters themselves who unequivocally approve of the Ross rifle, one of them enthusiastically remarking that "it is a dandy rifle." It is also interesting to note that Col. Sam Hughes, one of the most consistently bitter opponents, if not antagonists, of the Liberal Government, is a champion of the Ross rifle, and, as in the House, before the rifle had its last crucial and triumphant test, upheld it as "the best rifle in the world," now declares that its work at Bisley bears out his claim. He points out that it was there in competition with the best rifles made, and "demonstrated its superiority over them all." It will be inteeresting to quote the testimony of the members of the team as contained in the following despatch from Montreal:

Montreal, Aug. 8.—The members of the Bisley team, who arrived here to-night, were welcomed as conquering heroes returning from the spoils of victory. Owing to the fact that some of the members took different routes it was impossible to give them a civic welcome, but crowds of enthusiastic admirers greeted those who stepped off the Allan liner Tunisian to-night.

Among those to come up by boat were Sergt. Morris of Bowmanville, Russell, of Ottawa, Gougeon of Montreal, and Blackburn, of Winnipeg. Numbers of prominent military men were present to greet the victors, among them being Col. Sam Hughes, M.P., who came down from Ottawa to welcome the returning shots.

When interviewed Sergt. Morris was most enthusiastic over the trip and the results achieved. "We had a good team, splendid officers and a dandy rifle," were his opening remarks.

"Then you are satisfied with the Ross rifle?" he was asked.

"Well, I should say I am," he replied. "I used it in every match except in the Martin rapid fire, and I consider it the best rifle I ever used. If it had not been all right I would not have used it, but now I am satisfied it's the best in the country."

Private Russell, of Ottawa, was even more enthusiastic. "The Ross rifle is perfectly satisfactory; it's a stronger gun than the Lee-Enfield, and will stand far more abuse and hard usage. It is especially good at long ranges. I made 140 out of a possible 150 in the Mackinnon match, and, as you know, the Mackinnon match is shot over 800, 900 and 1,000 yards, and a rifle has to be good and true to do much at those distances."

Mr. Blackburn of Winnipeg, who went over unattached, but gave a good account of himself, said that what impressed him most was the good sportsmanship of the British soldiers. They were always ready to congratulate the Canadians, but rather envied the Canadian rifle. "It was certainly the rifle that put us ahead. The officers and men were good, but the rifle was splendid."

Private Gougeon of the Montreal Victoria Rifles, who, by the way, is a second-year McGill student, is also a convert to the Ross rifle, and was equally loud in his praises of the weapon. When asked for an account of his hasty interview with Lord Roberts, Gougeon smiled and said, "Oh, that was exaggerated. I was simply marking up our scores when a little old man in uniform came along and said, 'Well, how are the Canadians doing?' I was busy and had not time to look around, so simply said, "There's the board, showing us on top.' I then turned around and saw it was Lord Roberts."

"And what did he say?"

"Oh, nothing; he just smiled and walked on."

When asked if he had anything to say about the team's work and the prestige won by the Ross rifle, Col. Hughes said: "I have repeatedly stated in the House of Commons that the Ross rifle was the best in the world, and now it bears out my claim. It has been in competition with the best rifles in the world and has demonstrated its superiority over them all. I have such faith in it that I believe it will be adopted as the national arm of the empire." The latter significant statement was endorsed by the members of the Bisley team, who were present when the words were spoken.

After making this statement Col. Hughes went on to say: "Of course part of our success was due to the officers and men who composed the team. I believe Colonel Bertram, of Dundas, and Major Mercer of Toronto, are two of the best officers that we have, and I am sure that they did splendid wrok."

Sergt. Morris was also enthusiastic about the officers. "I have been over a number of times, but never under such able officers before. They coached us finely and watched over our interests in every way. Altogether we had an elegant time, and made a pretty good showing. Certainly no person can 'knock' the Ross rifle after this. We all used it, and have nothing but praise for it. We could not have won if the rifle had not been the very best."

Local military men were all enthusiastic over the victory, and warmly congratulated the members of the team.

With a team of markamen "made in Canada" and a rifle "made in Canada" the country has received an advertisement whose effect will be as lasting as it is important.

EXPLANATION

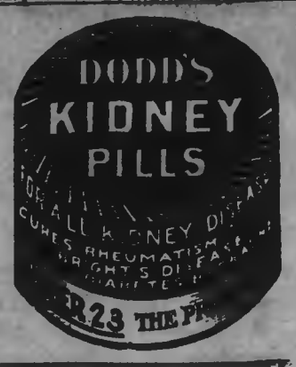
To the Editor of the Examiner,—

Sir,—Will you kindly insert the following: In order to make clear to the public my position in regard to my publicly rebuking the Salvation Army Sunday evening, August 1, 1909. Some statements were made in the Review by one signing himself "An Old Comrade." These statements (which were absurd) and so utterly untrue, scarcely call for attention, especially when they had no good end in view. In my endeavour to help and bless my felow comrades of the Salvation Army I am not meddling with other men's matters. I have been known for a long term of years in Peterborough and the surrounding country as a soldier of the Salvation Army. At the present time no doubt many do not know that I have been turned out of the Salvation Army. While this has been done publicly through the press, it has not been made known the reason for so doing, nor can it be proved that this this action on the part of the Salvation Army authorities, was just, either in a legal or a moral sense. It would be a misnomer if I had any animosity to any fellow man. With the underlying principles of love, I am fighting wrong doing in the Salvation Army. You can freely brand me a moral coward and an ingrate to the Salvation Army if I flinch or compromise one little iota in this fight against wrong. I have a measure of forebearance, patience and continuity that is not of nature, else I would not figure prominently in this fight. In the political and religious life of our country there are tmes when some one has to take their stand (sometimes alone) for the right and expose the wrong, in a very definite public sense.



Why I should have been singled out to perform the work I have had to do during the past five years, may, to some seem strange. I was used some few years ago as an instrument in getting the Salvation Army some six hundred dollars, which was their legal right., I have fought financial wrong doing in the Salvation Army for some four years. That work has been accomplished. While it has meant sacrifice in more ways than one, I only did my duty. Financial irregularities sometimes can be made right and losses made good, but what of spiritual loss of purity and power? My communication in Monday's issue, Aug. 1, 1909, of the Review, was written for the purpose of making it clear that I publicly rebuked the Salvation Army on my own responsibility. The person signing himself, "An Old Comrade," states such gross untruths, in regard to myself, that I leave his remarks alone, and state the simple fact: On July 18, 1909, a meeting on the street corner was being held by the City Mission. I was in that meeting and as a young lady of the City Mission had just finished speaking, the Salvation Army was in the act of passing by, and my part to act at that time was to say, not in a low tone of voice, "God's way is the best way." No other words were used by me, nor did I at all interfere wth the speaking of the leader of the City Mission, nor with the speaking of any of the company. Surely innocent people having the Spirit of Christ could not take any offence at the utterance of that truth, but could heartily endorse it. Even though I had committed an offence, the action taken by the S. A. the following second Sunday only goes to show the downfal spirituality of a people that was once a power for good. While I am heartily ashamed and heart sick in regard to the awful extent the Salvation Army as a whole in Peterborough has drifted, I am not forgetful of anv who may have still held fast their integrity. I believe God will give victory in the fight aganst wrong and will raise up wavs and emans whereby the spiritually hungry and starving ones shall have broken to them the true Bread of Life.

Please excuse my taking up so much of your space. In the future I cannot pay attention to any foolish twaddle in regard to myself that has nothing whatever to do with putting down wrong and building up right.

M. T. BUTCHER.

THE HEART A GREAT WORKER

What a wonder is the heart! Day and night it works away pumping tons of blood through the body and never tires or wears out so long as it is supplied with rich, red blood, such as is formed by Dr. Chase's Nerve Food. While sending supplies of nutrition to other parts of the body the heart renews and rebuilds its own wasted cells and so retains health and strength.

presents this opportunity to-day. This hustling little western city is expanding rapidly. Two great railroads, the Grand Trunk Pacific and Canadian Northern have thrown their lines of steel at her doors.

A municipality of rock-ribbed credit has sprung into being and the other day easily sold $100,000. of its debentures at $1,200. above par.

CANCER AND LEPROSY.

A Theory That Connects These Diseases With Blackheads.

A French surgeon named Borrel has recently delivered a lecture at the Ecole de Medicin in Paris, in course of which he advances a novel theory concerning cancer and leprosy. He declares it to be his belief that the bacillus of either malady is concealed in the black pinheads or blackheads which often disfigure our faces and from which, particularly in the nose and chin, scarcely any one is entirely free. When extracted these pinheads or blackheads have the appearance of little worms. They consist of what is known as sebaceous matter, this matter being produced from certain glands with the object of supplying the skin with its due quantity of oil.

Dr. Borrel has been experimenting and has found, with the aid of a very powerful microscope, that this sebaceous matter nearly always contains a bacillus which is cancerous or crab-like in form.

After the age of fifty most persons, male as well as female, throw off much of this sebaceous matter in the ordinary process of aging. The face and chest in particular exude most sebaceous matter. It is about this age, declares Borrel, that cancerous developments begin to make their appearance, and the coincidence is worth remarking.

Hitherto heredity has been charged with being the real promoter of cancerous and leprous evils, it being asserted that the insanitary conditions of former ages were responsible for bringing the bacillus into being. The Metchnikovian theories of micropagy and macrophagy have, however, threw new lights upon the subject. Given the theory, moreover, of Haeckel's—to wit, that the intelligence of all living organisms, no matter how small, enables them to secure the best opportunities for survival—it is conceivable that the crab bacillus of cancer may have found the sebaceous matter in the face the best region in which to promote his happiness and propagate his species.

Dr. Borrel advises those whose face and body are disfigured by blackheads to beware. A solution of alcohol with from 2 to 3 per cent of salicylic acid is, he says, an excellent preventive. Lemon juice is also good.—New York World.

The Interior of the Earth.

The University of Jena has just awarded the prize for the best essay on the condition of the interior of the earth. M. Thiene, who won the University of Jena's prize, did it with the following theory:

The mean density of the earth is known to be more than five times that of water. As the outer layers of the crust have a very feeble density—water 1, rocks an average of 2½—it follows that the interior must have a density of about 7.7, which is that of iron. Again, there is enough accurate information about the rigidity of the earth to make it fairly certain that this is slightly greater than steel. M. Thiene calculates that the crust of the earth is about 930 miles thick, though most of the best authorities are inclined to place it at about thirty miles. If his figures be correct, there must be inside the crust an exceedingly dense and rigid core, which he calls barysphere.—New York World.

Where Tipping Is Barred.

Tourists generally will be interested in the new regulations in force on the German railways. They are drastic, which is not an unusual quality in German rules, and on the whole they seem to be just and practical. Tipping of railway employees on trains is prohibited; passengers giving tips will be punished. The railways will be responsible for passengers' baggage for fourteen days and at all times responsible for luggage lost. Children over ten years will not be permitted to travel in compartments reserved for women. If a train is full a traveler, although he may have a ticket, may be compelled to wait for the next train. A friend taking leave of a traveler and remaining in the train until it moves will have to pay a fine of $1.50.—Milwaukee Wisconsin.

Guineas.

Guineas were first struck by Charles II., in 1660, from gold brought from Guinea. They were fixed at 21 shillings in 1717. The first sovereign was coined in 1817, in which year the guineas were finally withdrawn from circulation.

Monster Lizards.

Snakes of all sizes abound in the Sumatra jungles. Monster lizards are there, measuring six and seven feet. The house lizard is about twelve inches long and makes a noise like the bark of a toy terrier.

SOME CLERICAL BULLS.

Recent Bad Mixups That Have Disturbed Grave Ceremonies.

The proceedings at a recent Church Congress were enlivened by the intrusion of several very fine bulls, of which the following are samples. At one meeting Canon A. W. Robinson, in his opening remarks, warned his auditors that his speech would be "pointed to the verge of bluntness," while later in the evening Sir A. Ocote, explaining his presence at such a gathering, said that he was like "one of those satellites of Jupiter which, when they were visible, were always obscured."

The late Mr. Spurgeon was a keen collector of mixed metaphors, finding a rich field in the correspondence that daily overwhelmed him. A lady, enclosing a small contribution for his schools, wrote: "I hope this widow's mite may take root and spread its branches until it becomes a Hercules in your hands." The pulpit prayers of ambitious probationers added something to the great preacher's store.

One prayed that "God's rod and staff may be ours while tossed on the sea of life, so that we may fight the good fight of faith and in the end soar to rest." "We thank Thee for this spark of grace; water it, Lord," was the sententious, almost imperious entreaty of another promising young man. Still another prayed, "Gird up the loins of our mind that we may receive the latter rain." "As if we were barrels whose hoops were loose," was Mr. Spurgeon's laughing comment.

It was an Irish clergyman who remarked, sadly, "This is a sad and bitter world; we never strew flowers on a man's grave until after he is dead"; while another Hibernian cleric, preaching a funeral sermon while the corpse lay before him, exclaimed, "Here, brethren, we have before us a living witness and a standing monument of the frailty of human hopes!"

Equally unconscious of his humor was the parson who, at the close of his sermon, said: "And now let us pray for the people on the uninhabited portions of the earth"; as also the minister who, pleading for funds for a parish cemetery, asked his parishioners to consider the "deplorable condition of thirty thousand Christian Englishmen living without Christian burial."

Even more unfortunate was the clergyman who was addressing a woman's missionary meeting. "My sisters," he said, solemnly, "it is terrible to think that thousands of gallons of rum go into Africa for every brother who is sent there." "Rather a large allowance for one missionary," was the whispered comment of one of the sisters to her neighbor.

A Philosopher's Fable.

Arthur Aufl is responsible for this one:

"Folly, Genius and Common Sense once went walking and came to a stream. Genius, having his head in the clouds, naturally started to wade across, paying no attention to the depth. The waters soon went over his head, and he was drowned. Common Sense hunted for a safe way to get across, and finally he found a foot log. As he got out about the center of the stream the log swayed, and he fell into the water and sank to rise no more. Folly stopped at the bank of the stream to amuse himself by throwing pebbles into the water and watching the waves. He sat upon the moist, cold bank until he caught a cold which developed into pneumonia, of which he soon died. Moral.—It doesn't make much difference, after all, whether you are a genius, a sage or a fool. You'll get it sooner or later anyway."

The Simple Village Belle.

She is a simple village belle
Whom we, perforce, admire.
No splendid effort to be "swell"
Is shown in her attire.
Her shirt waist is both neat and white.
She wears a flowered bonnet.
In olden times so fair a sight
Would have inspired a sonnet.

She strolls along unconscious that
By all she is adored.
What think you if I tell you flat
She's here for summer board;
That, though attired with simpleness,
Expert dressmaking scholars
Assert her unassuming dress
Cost just two hundred dollars?
—Wilbur D. Nesbit in Judge.

Stood Up For Him.

Dolan—So Casey was runnin' me down an' ye stood up for me?

Callahan—Oi did. Oi sez to him, "Casey," sez Oi, "ye're honest an' truthful an' ye're no coward, an' ye work hard an' pay yer dibts, an' ye don't git drunk an' lick yer wolfe, but in other respects ye're no better than Dolan!"—Human Life.

The Vain Mosquito.

Said the July mad mosquito
As he hummed the way along:
"I wonder why the mocking birds
Don't imitate my song.
I sing all night, and so do they.
And I can beat them night or day!

"But the man there 'neath the coverlet
My music understands.
He's giving me an encore.
Just hear him clap his hands!
It's music I was born to teach,
But keep me from my pupils' reach!"
—Atlanta Constitution.

Summer Board.

"I'm an author, you understand, spending my vacation on a farm to get local color. How much will board be?"

"Ten per week," replied the farmer, "and $2 extra if we're expected to talk dialect."—Kansas City Journal.

How It Worked.

When Mr. Jones was out of sorts
His doctor ordered "change" and "rest."
So to the seaside Jonesey hied,
His pockets filled, of health in quest.
He got the rest, but—is it strange?—
His landlord 'twas got all the change.
—New York Evening Telegram.

Alice Alias Alys.

Mr. Squiggs—What's the little Nurox girl's name? I couldn't catch it when her mother introduced us.

Mrs. Squiggs—Plain Alice, only her mother's trying to pronounce it so you'll spell it "Alys."—Philadelphia Bulletin.

Same Old Grind.

I thought a thought, but another thought
From my mind the first did chase.
Now my second thought has flown the coop,
But I've filled four lines of space.
—Chicago News.

Airship Gossip.

"How is it she doesn't manage to get along very well with her husband?" said the porch lady.

"She says he's too slow. He always wants to be pottering round the United States in an automobile."—Puck.

Summer Reading.

I ask no novel when I'd win
Contentment in an easy chair.
Give me the weather bulletin
That says "continuously fair."
—Houston Post.

Past Cure.

"They say Buggins is a confirmed pessimist."

"He is that. He told me only yesterday that he never expected to hear an open say a single comfort thing."—Baltimore American.

NEAT PARLOR TRICK.

Sleight of Hand Feat That Mystifies If Well Performed.

Lay the piece of wood across the palm of your left hand, which keep wide open, with the thumb and all the fingers far apart, lest you be suspected of supporting the wood with them. Next take your left wrist in your right hand and grasp it tightly for the purpose, as you state, of giving the hand more steadiness. Now suddenly turn the back of your left hand uppermost, and as your wrist moves in your right hand stretch out the forefinger of your right hand, and as soon as the wood comes undermost support it with such forefinger (Fig. 1). Now shake the hand and after a moment or two suffer the wood to drop. It is two to one that the spectators will admit it to be produced by the action of the air, as you had previously stated, and try to do it themselves. But of course they must, unless you have performed the feat so awkwardly as to be discovered, fail in its performance.

If you have no objection to reveal the secret you can do it again and while they are gravely philosophizing upon it suddenly lift up your hand (Fig. 2) and expose the trick. This will doubtless create much amusement. Observe that in doing this feat you must keep your fingers so low that no one can see the palm of your left hand and move your finger so carefully that its action may not be detected, and if it be not you may rest assured that its absence from around the wrist of the left hand will not be discovered, some of the fingers being naturally supposed to be under the coat, so that if the spectators only see two or even one they will imagine the others are beneath the cuff.

LOCOMOTIVE SIGNALS.

Meaning of the Various Whistle Blasts Blown by the Engineer.

The railroad manager took a piece of paper and jotted down on it in dashes the several whistle signals in common use by all American railroads, accompanying each with a few words of explanation. Then he read as follows:

"One long blast (thus: ——) must be sounded when approaching stations, junctions or crossings of other railroads.

"Two long and two short blasts (like this: —— —— — —) are sounded just before crossing a wagon road.

"One short blast (thus: —) is the call for breaks, and two long ones (like this: —— ——) order them to be loosed or thrown off.

"Two short blasts (thus: — —) are an answering signal and mean 'All right, I understand,' while three short blasts (like this: — — —), to be repeated until acknowledged by the waving of a flag or lantern, mean 'I want to back the train as soon as you are ready.'

"Four long blasts (so: —— —— —— ——) call in any flagman who may have been sent out to the east or north, while four long blasts and one short one (like this: —— —— —— —— —) call in a flagman from the west or south.

"Four short blasts (thus: — — — —) are the engineman's impatient call to flagmen, switch tenders or trainmen demanding 'Why don't you show the signal for me to go ahead?' or 'What is the matter?'

"When a train is standing, five short blasts (such as these: — — — — —) are the order for a brakeman to run back along the track and display a danger signal for the next following train."

A Musical Evening.

The next time you have company give each guest a sheet of paper and a pencil. Then show them a table on which are displayed the following articles and ask them to write down a musical term represented by each one:

A quire of paper—choir. An open knife—sharp. Pieces of rope—chords. A pair of scales—scale. A Yale key—key. A large cane—staff. Quantity of pitch—pitch. A tape measure—measure. A written letter—note. A potpourri jar—potpourri.

When you have allowed sufficient time for all to answer all the numbers collect the papers and award a prize to the one having most correct answers. The latest topical song is an appropriate prize.

An Easy Parlor Trick.

Balance a cane on the back of a chair and bet any one that you will make it fall without touching it, blowing on it or moving the chair.

All you need to do is to dry a card well before a fire, rub it vigorously with your sleeve and put close to the end of the cane, which will follow it, as iron follows a magnet, until, after losing its equilibrium, the cane will drop to the floor.

Riddles.

A word of one syllable, easy and short.
Reads backward and forward the same.
It expresses the sentiments warm from the heart
And to beauty lays principal claim.
(Eye.)

What is it that is so dangerous that all people fear it, but which a woman proudly wears about her neck with comfort? (Boa.)

True bravery is shown by performing without witness what one might be capable of doing before all the world.—La Rochefoucauld.

PROTRUDING PILES

Read the evidence that this distressing ailment is cured by DR. CHASE'S OINTMENT.

Some people find it hard to believe that anything short of a surgical operation will cure protruding piles. The doctors have brought about this belief. There is any amount of proof that Dr. Chase's Ointment is a positive cure for this as well as all other forms of piles.

Captain Wm. Smith, Rowlandon, B. C., writes:

"It is with much pleasure I state that I have used Dr. Chase's Ointment for itching, protruding piles of many years standing, and it has completely cured me. I had previously tried many other remedies but they did me no good. I would strongly recommend this Ointment to those suffering from this complaint, for it is a good and genuine cure."

Mrs. Captain Chumsmith, Salvation Army, Hazel, Ont., writes:

"It is with pleasure that I write to you in praise of Dr. Chase's Ointment. Two years ago I was taken with a severe attack of protruding piles and became so bad that I had to keep my bed and could lie in no position except on my stomach. Doctors could give me no help and the various oils and ointments used proved of no avail.

"One Saturday night when I was suffering untold agony my husband went to the drug store for a box of Dr. Chase's Ointment, which I had heard of as a cure for piles. Although I had almost given up hope, to the wonder of those around me, I was able to be up on Monday and have had no difficulty from piles since. As a treatment for all kinds of sores and burns, Dr. Chase's Ointment works like magic."

SATURDAY SENSATION ON SIMCOE STREET

How a Baby Was Rescued From the Cellar of Kelly's Barber Shop and a Mother Made Happy.

Saturday evening, the business portiono of Simcoe street experienced somewhat of a sensation for a short time. It began with the fainting of a woman between Kelly's barber shop and George street. The woman, whose name was unknown, was attended to and, with the help of some cold water, soon restored to consciousness. She sat down on the door step to rest, and while sitting there another woman came rushing in the shop frantically exclaiming:

"I want my baby! I want my baby!"

The woman was followed into othe barber shop by Mr. B. Lastar, whose place of business is next door, and who, apparently, was acting the part of the Good Samaratan to the distressed woman.

"I want my baby! I want my baby!" was all the woman could say, and the spectators thought the woman must be under some delusion—as no baby was to be seen or heard in the shop, or anywhere else. Both Mr. Lastar and the woman made a dash for the rear portion of the shop where Mr. Kelly's bath rooms are located, and which were, at the time, being used by a gentleman enjoying the soothing influences of a shower bath.

"You mustn't go in there—there's a man in the bath tub," shouted Joe Kelly, who was busy curling the moustache of one of his patrons.

"For mercysake, where's your cellar door?" asked Mr. Lastar.

Mr. Kelly showed him where the cellar door was. Down he plunged, with the sped of a Longboat, and in considerable less time than it takes to make a close "dicker" with Mr. Lastar, up he comes with a baby folded in his arms.

It seems the baby's mother had been shopping next doore and in some unaccountable manner the baby fell on the grate in the sidewalk and rolled over into the cellar window down into the cellar below. After the reacue Mr. Lastar gallantly presented the mother with her baby, who was none the worse of its tobaggan slide.

Paris Shocked By Mysterious Crime

Girl Killed With Axe in a Crowded Tenement in Broad Daylight—Blood Penetrated Ceiling.

Paris, August 9.—As if the terrible tragedy in which two high police officials lost their lives was not enough, another sensation has been created in the same district of Paris by a mysterious murder. At a corner of two busy thoroughfares is a cafe, and one of the waiters, who was in a bathroom, noticed blood trickling from the ceiling. The proprietor of the cafe informed the concierge, and they went upstairs together. On entering a flat which is occupied by a person who keeps a registry office for servants, they noticed that one room was in great disorder and that an axe was lying on the floor. Reinforced by policemen, they broke into the place, and discovered a young woman, who lived with the tenant, lying dead in the kitchen. Her skull had been fractured, and her face was one mass of fearful wounds.

The tenant of the flat was in the habit of spending his Sundays with his mother in the country, and, during his absence, the poor girl, who was very timid, remained indoors. When he returned home shortly before midnight he was informed of the tragedy by the police, who invited him to accompany them to the Folie Mericourt station, where he was questioned for hours by the Commissaire. He was overwhelmed with grief, and could not furnish the faintest clue, his convention being that his premises must have been entered for purposes of burglary by some one acquainted with his habit of absenting himself on Sundays.

A strange fact reported by the concierge's wife invests the affair with even more mystery. When her husband ran downstairs for a moment, after having perceived that there had been foul play, he asked if she had noticed any one pass by their quarters, and she replied that a woman whom she had not seen enter from the street had stopped at the door of the lodge and had enquired if one of the servants of the house was out. She said that she was in, whereupon the stranger, after reflecting a moment exclaimed: "Well, after all, I shall not see her to-day. I shall return another time. Tell her that Miss Angele asked for her." And so she left. Now it turns out that this servant is not acquainted with any one with such a name. So there is a very natural theory that this unknown visitor may have had a hand in the crime.

INTERESTING PROGRAMME OF AQUATIC SPORTS AT STONY LAKE

Annual Regatta Held Yesterday Off Juniper Island—Fine Weather Brought Many People to the Lakes—Presentation of Prizes in the Evening.

IT WAS A GREAT SUCCESS

The annual Stony Lake regatta held off Juniper Island yesterday afternoon was one of the finest successes in the history one the Cottagers' Association. Favoured with splendid weather, and the events being all keenly contested, the programme of aquatic sports was run off without a hitch. The committee who had worked so unceasingly towards making this annual event the best ever must have felt greatly encouraged by the success that attended their efforts. Nothing had been left undone in preparation and all that was necessary after all the preliminary arrangements had been completed was a fine day. The Stony Lake cottagers were not disappointed in this respect. A more ideal day could not have been wished for. It was bright and sunny and while it was sufficiently breezy to run off the sailing events satisfactorily, it was not too windy to cause annoyance to the competitors in the other races.

The crowd was a large one, the Stony Lake regatta on Civic Holiday being a strong attraction for the citizens of Peterborough. The "Stoney Lake" carried its full quota of passengers, as did all the other boats up yesterday, the former remaining until eleven o'clock in the evening when numerous young people were given an opportunity to remain over for the presentation of prizes and dance in the evening. The Manita also brought a large number from Chemong and Sturgeon Point. The many launches and motor boats, each had its party and the skiffs and canoes were lined along the shore. Thus from all points on the lake the people came to Juniper Island and the cottages and resorts must have all been deserted. It was an inspiring sight to see so many people assembled on the island and floating around the lake in the boats. There was nothing occurred to mar the pleasure of the day, and every one appeared to be thoroughly pleased with the sport provided.

The Events and Winners

The judges' stand was erected at a point jutting from Juniper Island and the races were run off up and down in front of it. A float had been anchored out one hundred yards from the canoe wharf and between these two points constituted the distance for the swimming races. The sailing events were the first to be run off. Commodore Harold Knapman in the "Cygnet" successfully carried off the honours in the sailing race. He holds the silver cup presented by Hon. J. R. Stratton, M.P., for the next year. Mr. Clarke Acton in the "Tiggy" was second. In the dinghy race, the cup donated by Hon. Senator Cox was carried off by Sturgeon Falls, Mr. H. Hopkins winning it. Mr. Howard Hopwood, of Chemong was second. While all the races were exceedingly interesting, probably the best from the spectators' standpoint were the girls' swimming race, the ladies' and gentlemen's tandem canoe race, and the tilting tournament.

In the first of these the winner was not a foot ahead of the second. The tilting tournament furnished a great deal of amusement.

The events and the winners are as follows:

Dinghy Race—1st silver cup presented by Hon. Senator Cox, H. Hopkins; 2nd set yachtman's oilskins, Howard Hopwood.

Open Sailing Race—1st silver cup presented by Hon. J. R. Stratton, Harold Knapman (Cygnet); 2nd set yachtman's oilskins, Clarke Acton (Tiggy).

Canoe Sailing—1st cup presented by Association, J. Roxborough; 2nd skiff lamp, O. W. Rice.

Boys' Tandem Canoe—1st, H. Blewett and B. Blewett; 2nd, H. Matthews and H. Hill.

Ladies' Single Skiff—1st, Miss G. Sanderson; 2nd, Miss J. Hill.

Ladies' Tandem Canoe—1st, Misses M. and P. Deene; 2nd, Misses L. and G. Sanderson.

Crab Race—1st, Percy Stock; 2nd, C. Gordon.

Tilting Tournament—W. Watson and H. Hopkins.

Men's Single Canoe (16 ft.)—1st, A. Miller; 2nd, C. Gordon.

Boys' Tandem Skiff—1st, Rice Brothers; 2nd, Blewett Brothers.

Boys' Swimming Race—1st, Bruce Lees; 2nd, B. Mowat.

Girls' Double Skiff—1st, Misses G. Sanderson and A. Knapman; 2nd, Misses M. Deene and A. Minns.

Men's Tandem Skiff—1st, Clarke Acton and G. Fraser; 2nd, Roy and Stafford Rice.

Girl's Single Canoe—1st, Miss M. Denne; 2nd, Miss Olive Yelland.

Upset Race—1st, Percy Stock; 2nd B. Blewett.

Motor Race—1st "The Thief," of Fenelon Falls; 2nd "Elizabeth," Mr. Doodworth, Stony Lake; 3rd, Mr. Oxley.

Lady and Gentleman's Tandem Canoe—1st, A. Miller and Miss Davis; 2nd, Mr. Ingles and Miss G. Hall.

Tug of War—G. Hull, F. Hull, B. Simpson, F. Dunsford.

Presentation of Prizes

The presentation of prizes took place in the evening in the pavilion, which was filled to its utmost capacity. As the winners walked forward to receive their prizes they were accorded loud applause. The presentation was made by Mr. James Acton, of Toronto, and brief remarks of congratulatory nature on the success of the affair were made by Mr. Acton and Mr. Henderson.

After the presentation of prizes the pavilion was cleared and dancing was indulged in, excellent music for which, was provided by the Grand Opera House orchestra under the direction of Mr. R. J. Devey. During the afternoon tea was served by the Stony Lake ladies to the visiting ladies from Chemong and Sturgeon Point.

SPENT THE HOLIDAY AT JUBILEE POINT

Annual Excursion of C. O. F. and A. O. H. Yesterday Was a Great Success—Many Attended

The annual excursion of the Catholic Order of Forresters and the Ancient Order of Hibernians was held yesterday to Jubilee Point, per Steamer "Rainbow," and palace barge to Jubilee Point. It was a great success, and the day being an ideal one, every one thoroughly enjoyed the delightful trip down the Otonabee. Jubilee Point was reached about noon and, after dinner was served, a programme of sports that provided a great deal of amusement, was run off. An exciting baseball match between the C. O. F. and the A. O. H. resulted in a win for the Hibernians by the score of eleven to five.

The teams were as follows:

The following races, for which valuable prizes were given, were run off:

Men's 100 yards—1st, Ab. Quinlan.

Girls' race, 16 and under—1st, M. O'Dette; 2nd, A. Kelly; 3rd, M. Allen.

Married men's race, 100 yards—1st, J. Jones; 2nd, W. Whaley.

The committee who had charge of the arrangements deserve great credit for the splendid manner in which everything was carried out.

Messrs. W. O'Brien and P. Kane umpired the game satisfactorily.

Dancing was enjoyed on the barge, and at the Jubilee Point pavilion. Excellent music was provided by Messrs. C. Tucker and Kearney.

A POSSIBILITY.

That Became a Fact and Pleases Many People.

A. B. Lewis, M.D., in a lengthy article in the columns of the American Journal of Health, says concerning hair: "It's deterioration is a constant source of worriment to humanity, consequently bald people are readily deceived by 'fake' hair restoratives. The wish that a hair preparation will 'fill the bill' is father to the fancy that it is likely to do so. A rare case in point is that of Newbro's Herpicide, which actually does 'fill the bill.' It destroys the parasite that attacks the hair root, and prevents dandruff, falling hair and baldness." Sold by leading druggists. Send 10c. in stamps for sample to The Herpicide Co., Detroit, Mich.

NORTH BATTLEFORD IS FLOURISHING

Mr. A. D. Brunskill Says It is One of the Busiest Towns in the West.

Mr. A. D. Brunskill and Mrs. Brunskill, of Toronto, are registered at the Oriental Hotel.

Mr. Brunskill is a member of the firm of Brunskill & Co., stock brokers and financial agents, and recently returned from a trip to the West, where he was successful in securing the well known "University Park Annex," lats in the town of North Battleford, Saskatchewan.

Mr. Brunskill says that North Battleford is one of the busiest, as well as one of the most progressive towns in the Weast, and recently sold $100,000 of its debentures, at $1,200 over par, to install waterworks, sewerage, and electric lights, and should in a very short time, be one of the largest towns in the Province of Saskatchewan.

SUNDAY'S MEETINGS

Speakers at Services in Tent Next to Customs House.

The heat on Sunday was evidently responsible for the small attendance at the meetings held by the Y.M.C.A. for men in the tent next the Customs House, but those who were there were not disappointed in the quality of the addresses given.

In the afternoon at four o'clock, Mr. Soper, of George St. Methodist Church gave a very clear and impressive definition of "Conscience," dealing with conviction of sin as a fact of consciousness in the life of every man present and also in the lives of the world's greatest men, and forgiveness of sin following repentance as another fact of consciousness as testified to by Paul in Romans, 8:1, "There is therefore now no condemnation to them that are in Christ Jesus."

In the evening at a quarter past eight Mr. Bruce Quinn gave an address suggested by the motto, "Always act square," in which he showed that evidences of the christian life are acting "square" with God and fellow man.

Next Sunday will be the last that the Y.M.C.A. will conduct meetings in the tent and in the afternoon Mr. Alex. Haddow, a student at Woodstock College, will be the speaker, and in the evening Rev. Joseph Cordner, of Montreal, who is supplying in Knox Presbyterian Church during the absence of Mr. Keith, will address the men.

Printers Had Over 500 Persons On Annual Picnic To Idyl Wyld

Big Time at Favourite Rice Lake Resort on Civic Holiday—Delightful Weather, Refreshing Breeze and All Went Merry as a Marriage Bell.

FINE LIST OF SPORTS

Idyl Wyld was once more invaded by the Printers of Peterborough and their friends to the number of a round 500, and this popular annual event, like the circus, was greater and grander than ever. With all due courtesy to Printers, and recognising their dignity it would probably sound more lofty to say that the annual picnic of the Typographical Union of Peterborough for 1909 was a gratifying success, and that the Typos scored a "beat" on the other events of the day. Idl Wyld, under a different management from last year, proved a delightful holidaying ground, and it may be here stated that the Examiner's ball tossers, cooled by the glorious breeze from the lake did not give their undivided attention to the game. They were lured away by the inviting shade and the spray-laden winds that were swept across from the Hiawatha shore. But, in regard to the ball game, more anon. The picnic, itself was a record breaker and necessitated the chartering of two boats, the Monarch being pressed into service on her arrival at the Wolfe St. wharf from Rice Lake at 10 a.m. The Otonabee got away to a good start, and arrived at Idyl Wyld about noon. The second vessel, booked her arrival two hours later. There is no necessity of dwelling upon the picnic in general. It was expected that it would be a big success and this anticipation was more than amply realized.

Sports, Etc.

After that feeling of emptiness that manifests itself in the region of the stomach and causes thoughts of cold chicken and many etceteras that make the mouth water, had been aleviated, and there was in consequence not a single solitary discontented man or woman, too, on the grounds then did the over-trained Review ball team strut out on to the diamond to demonstrate their boasted prowess in this particular branch of athletics. As usual Jack Thompson had imported ringers for the occasion, but the Examiner did not object. They had not handled a ball since last year, and while they would no doubt have liked to have won the game, still they felt satisfied with a trimming of 5-4. The ball nine considers that they can afford to be generous in view of the splendid achievements the hockey team has given the pages of history. The glory of the Examiner's fame on the ice will "ne'er" be forgotten. Those victories stand out like Trafalgar, Blenheim, and Waterloo. You cannot win all the time, and it is better to win the classy event than a dozen baseball matches.

Bennie Taylor and Joe Maynard composed the Examiner battery, while Sam Little and Frank Halpenny represented the Review. Taylor deserved to win the game, but with the exception of Maynard, the Examiners were misfits, and the same may be said of the Review. Taylor had been told to do his best to lose the game, and it was hard work for him the way Little played. But enough of the ball game. The feature was Maynard, who has Wee Willie Keeler beat at every point and then some. His outfit was appreciated by the ladies and that made up for the loss of the game.

The results of the races were as follows:

Boys' race, 12 to 15—Herb Dennis.

Girls' race, 12 to 15—Alice Lundy, Gladys Healey.

Boot race—C. Wolfe.

100 yards dash—Dick Evans, Frank Halpenny.

Young ladies' race—Lillie Herren, Eva Outram.

Sack race—Jas. Hefferman.

Married women's race—Mrs. W. J. MacHarry, Mrs. J. Harrow.

Pie-eating contest—Jas. Hefferman.

A Special Race.

Mr. George Paxman, known to the members of the craft as "Paxy" was obtained for the day, as starter, and most satisfactorily he did his work. Not following up the occupation as printer at present, it was felt that he was necessary to the outing and he gracefully accepted the duties involved in the position of starter. In the young ladies' race an American young lady who may be called Miss Columbia, as her name was not known to the committee, entered that event, but got away to a poor start, was elbowed, and, as a result, did not finish within the money. It was apparent that there was class to her running if given a fair field, and Paxy suggested to her father—the family is staying at the hotel—that his daughter try a matched race with Miss Herren, who won first money. The girl was communicated with, and laughingly accepted. Her opponent was a little younger, was lighter and taller, and altogether of a different build, but, in spite of these handicaps, if such they were, in reality Miss Columbia put up a strong argument for the special prize. It was the feature race of the day, and the fair American cousin crossed the line only a "nose' 'behind Miss Herren. She was given an ovation by her friends and others upon her burst of speed.

The trip was made more pleasant by Halpany's orchestra. Instrumental and vocal selections were greatly enjoyed.

Breezes of the Day.

In preparing for the young ladies' race the girls passed their hands over those Psyche knots and behold—a transformation. They collapsed like a circus tent when the centre pole is dropped, and mother held the—what ever you call them—until the heat was over. Coming back on the boat it was noticed that Psyche knots were rebuilt.

The dinner set donated by Hon. J. R. Stratton, was drawn for and won by Mrs. J. Hardwicke, holding coupon No. 39. Miss J. Yeates won the piece of Nippon China, donated by Mr. F. H. Dobbin.

Bob Long and "Longboat' 'Myland, in the married men's race, displayed grand form. "Scotty" Galbraith, who won the special prize for printers alone, donated by Clark & Son, surprised his friends by his Bobby Kerr stunts. Those married men seem to run faster than the bachelors. Wonder?

No, Caroline, that was not one of the Chicago Cubs, it was our own Joe Maynard.

"Paxy," the old veteran, was ably assisted in starting the races by Mr. B. Rickey.

Charlie Brownlee, Ernie Bartlett, Jack Thompson, and the rest of the committee had a busy day looking after the races.

PRESENTED WITH A GOLD RING

Mr. Robt. E. Juby Remembered by the Members of L. O. L. No. 1175—The Address.

A pleasant feature of the semi-monthly meeting of J. W. Bell Memorial L. O. L. No. 1175 held on August 6th, was the presentation of an address and a gold ring, carved with the emblems of the Orange degrees, to W. Bro. Robt E. Juby, District Master, by the City of Peterborough District in L. O. L. No .251, at Halloway, in Hastings County.

Since his initiation eight years ago, Bro. Juby has taken a very active part in the Association. During his five years of membership in No. 251, Bro. Juby held the office of Rec.-Sec. for three years, Dist.-Sec. for two years, and Co.-Secretary for one year. Bro. Juby then withdrew from the Lodge in Halloway to become a charter member of J. W. Bell, Memorial L. O. L. No. 1175 of Peterborough. Since that time Bro. Juby has held, up to the time of resignation, the offices of Registrar R. B. P. No. 261, W. M. L. O L, No 1175, and the important office of Dist. Master of the City of Peterborough District Lodge. With the departure of Bro. Juby from Peterborough the brethren lose one of the most active men in connection with the order here and one of the most promising Orangemen in the Dominion. Bro. Juby was selected from among the many efficient Orangemen in our city to become the first W. Master of the City Dist. Lodge on its institution in July, 1908, which affords an exemple of the respect in which he is held by Peterborough Orangemen and the confidence they have in his ability. The following is the address which was read to him by Bro. H. Dodds, of L. O. L., No. 50. Bro. U. Hawley, of No. 1175. made the presentation:

W. Bro. R. E Juby, District Master L. O. L., Peterborough:—

Dear Sir and Bro.,—We the members of L. O. L's Nos 80, 1175 and 50, comprising the District of the City of Peterborough, desire to take this opportunity of expressing our regard for you and our deep regret on your removal from our city. We wish to express to you our high appreciation of the manner in which you have filled the honourable and responsible position of District Master and the courtesy and consideration at all times shown to the members of all lodges. We appreciate also the valuable services which you have rendered in the work of strengthening the noble order to which we belong and in building up the lodges in this city to their present strong position. We regret exceedingly that we are to lose your help here, but we know our loss will be gain to the brethren in the west, where the firm establishment of the principles for which our Order stands is of such great importance to the whole Dominion.

We wish to extend to you and yours our heartiest good wishes for success and prosperity and happiness and health in the Western provinces. We trust that you may enjoy a long life full of happiness and public service and that we may often have the pleasure of welcoming you in our lodges during visits to the old home.

We present you with this gift as a slight token of our regard for you.

Signed on behalf of the Districts and their respective lodges.

R. N. HOPKINS, L.O.L., No 50,
H. DODDS, L.O.L No. 50.
C. E. WILEY, L.O.L. No. 80.
W. A. KINDRED, L.O.L No. 80.
W. HAWLEY, L.O.L No. 1175.
H. PATTERSON, L.O.L., No. 1175.

W. Bro. Juby, although taken completely by surprise made a fitting reply, expressing his appreciation at the honour done him and said that although he was severing active connection with them he would always carry pleasant recollections of his stay among the brethren of Peterborough.

W. Bro. W. A. Kindred, P.C.M., then gave a short address dwelling on the work of Bro. Juby since his affiliation with the Peterborough brethren and predicted a bright and prosperous future for him He also gave some good advice to the younger members of the Order, commenting on the excellent qualities of the young men who were in connection with the association in Peterborough. After several short addresses from several present the meeting was brought to a close.

THE PARK ST. TEAM WON AGAIN BEATING STRATHS ONCE MORE

South Enders Trimmed Commissioners and Lead the League, as the West Ends and T. A. S. Had an Argument Over Umpires and Failed to Play.

Jack Pilling's aggregation of ball tossers assumed the leadership in the City League race, when they got away with the Strathconas, 9 to 7, after a hard up hill fight at Nicholls Oval Saturday afternoon.

The Straths were greatly handicapped by being minus three of their regular infielders. The men who filled their places performed well except in the fifth and last chapters of the encounter, when they took a little trip in the airship which has accompanied the team all season. Of the thirteen misplays credited to the nine, eleven of them were made in two bad innings.

Dusty cut another notch in his record stick Saturday. He pitched good ball all the way and kept his hits fairly well scattered. His support, barring the work of Bell was of high-class order.

"Paddy" Gorham seemed to treasure up all his good days, for the Park St. crew, and Saturday was no exception. The three-fingered boy curved the ball over the plate in deceptive fashion, but for his own two slip-ups he would have scored an easy win.

The Straths won the toss and took the field. Park St. were retired in order. With one down, Shaw got life on Bell's error. He stole second and third. Sheridan fanned. Ray beat out a nice bunt, Shaw scoring. Ray pilfered both second and third, but was left there as Allison struckout.

Both sides went out one, two, three, in the second and third.

In the fourth, after Park St. had been retired, Sheridan, who was first up for the Straths, flew out to Crowe. Ray singled over second, stole second and third. Allison hit the air. Bell threw to catch Ray at third, but the throw was wide, the runner scoring. Wettlaufer flew out to E. Pilling.

In Park St.'s first of the fifth Bell skied to Curtis. Wettlaufer made a sensational one-hand pick up of Pentland's grasser, but threw lot to first. Pentland stole second and scored on N. Dusty's safe hit to right. O'Brien lifted one to Ray. Curtis fumbled Jack Pilling's grounder, Dusty going to third. Gorham had a great chance to retire the side but dropped Ben Dusty's pop fly and before they got the next man Park St. had four more runs over the plate. Jim Pilling doubled to centre, sending Jack Pilling and Ben Dusty over the rubber. Crowe got life on Allison's error. Jim Pilling scoring. Crowe stole second, but was out trying to make third. Five runs.

Hickey unlocked the Straths' portion of the fifth with a double to left. Andrews sacrificed him to third. Gorham got a free ticket to first and stole second. Curtis fanned. Dusty hit Shaw, filling the bases. Sheridan singled( scoring Hickey. Ray ended the innings by striking out.

In the sixth both teams died with one of the bases occupied.

In the last of the seventh the Straths tied up the score. Gorham first up made the circuit when Bell allowed the third strike to get away from him. Curtis hit safely too right, stole second and third. Sheridan went out, Ben Dusty to Jack Pilling. Pentland fumbled a throw to catch Shaw napping, and the runner crossed the pan. Ray was safe on Bell's error, but Allison flew out to Ben Dusty.

In the seventh Simmons was sent in to bat for Crowe and uncorked a three-base hit to right. E. Pilling grounded out, Gorham to Allison. Andrus threw to catch Simmons off third but Ray's return was low and the tie was broken. Bell fanned, and Pentland was out, Curtis to Allison.

Wettlaufer, who was first up tied the score againg by driving the Spalding to right for a home run. The next three were easy outs.

In the ninth N. Dusty was safe when Curtis booted his grounder. O'Brien got life when Gorham threw high to Allison. Jack Pilling doubled to left scoring both runners. Ben Dusty got life on Wettlaufer's misplay, Pilling scoring. Jim Pilling grounded out, Allison. Simmons fanned. E. Pilling was out, Wettlaufer to Allison.

Curtis was first up for the Straths and fanned. Shaw got hit, he stole second and third, and scored when Ben Dusty dropped Sheridan's fly. Ray flew out to Jim Pilling. Allison grounded out, Ben Dusty to Jack Pilling, and the game was over.

Home run, Wettlaufer; three-base hit, Simmons; two-base hit, Hickey, Jack Pilling, Jim Pilling; sacrifice hits, B. Dusty, Bell, Andrews; struck out by Dusty 10, by Gorham 3; base on balls off Dusty 1, off Gorham 1; double play, Curtis, unassisted; left on bases Park St. 6, Strathconas 7; Umpires, Guerin, Davidson and McGill.

The second game of Saturday's double-bill ended up in a fizzle over the question of umpires. Manager Quinlan said Jack Mulhall had been agreed upon but Len' Dobson, Captain of the West End, said he would not accept him to act on the ball and strikes, but would agree to him to call the base decisions and to take any other man on the field whom Quinlan should choose to act with Mulhall and he named a number of capable men including Fred Davidson, Jos. Guerin, Jack Sheridan, Bill Andrews, Bell, Shaw, Jos. Picard, and a number of others, but Quinlan would not accept any one only Mulhall for ball and strikes, and when the West End still held out he quit. "Jack" Denneard assumed control of the T.A.S. then and agreed to Jack Sheridan as a second man. Dobson's suggestion being that they toss up for who should act on the bases and who should call the balls and strikes. Dobson won the toss, and choose Sheridan. Flaherty warmed up but his arm was too sore, and then there came another hitch, one thing led to another and finally there was no game, Sheridan went out called play ball and the West Ends went out and Kirn heaved the ball over three times and Sheridan forfeited the game to the West End. As the West End team left the diamond the T.A.S. went out and Mulhall called play ball. They went through the motions and were also awarded the contest.

Sparks from Baildom

Park St. leads the League.

Gorham's muff in the fifth was very costly.

O'Brien's batting average suffered a slight setback.

Games such as the second one will not tend to increase the attendance.

Wettlaufer is the makins of a good one.

Jos. Guerin's work on Saturday was of high-class order.

The Straths missed their regulars badly.

The League executive should act without delay.

TURF CLUB RACES ON THE HOLIDAY

Interesting Heats in Free-for-All and 2.50 Class.

The Turf Club's races yesterday afternoon attracted a fairly large percentage of the citizens, who remained at home, and the programme of events was well up to the average. In fact, the members of the club were more than pleased with it, as both events were fought to the very finishes The free-for-all was particularly interesting and exciting. The meet or matinee was prepared on short notice, and was particularly good. The events resulted as follows:

Animals as Seismometers.

Animals have again, in Sicily and Calabria, shown that they know more about coming earthquakes than men know. An official at Messina was worried by his dog on the eve of the disaster. The animal would not stay quiet for a moment, and his barking was such a nuisance that his master beat the wise brute. Their night was so restless that the man gave up all hope of sleep, and he and the dog left home soon after 4:20 a. m. As soon as the dog was out of doors he ran away, and the master followed him. Thus both were well outside the town when the crash came, and the man acknowledges that he owes his escape from (probable) death to his good, unruly dog.—Dundee Advertiser.

The Next Problem of Invention.

Certainly plenty of rubbish is being talked about aeroplanes. England, forsooth, is to be de-isled in a year or two by the Zeppelins. Perhaps Mars is not safe from the intrusions of the aviators. We foretell that in a short time the new terorr will be a subterrene ship, which will sail through the earth as easily as the others sail through the water and air.—London Saturday Review.

The Adirondacks.

The Adirondack mountains embrace an area of over 2,500,000 acres, and in this area fully 300 mountain peaks rise to altitudes ranging from 1,200 to 5,000 feet.

His Unimportant Million.

When Frederick built his famous palace of Sans Souci there happened to be a mill that greatly hampered him in the execution of his plans, and he asked the miller for how much he would sell it. The miller replied that for a long series of years his family had owned the mill, which had passed from father to son, and that he would not sell it for any price. The king used every solicitation, offered to build him a mill in a better place and pay him, besides, any sum he might demand, but the obstinate miller still persisted in his determination to preserve the inheritance of his ancestors.

Irritated at last by his conduct, the king sent for him and said in an angry tone:

"Why do you refuse to sell your mill notwithstanding all the advantages I have offered you?"

The miller repeated his reasons.

"Do you know," continued the king, "that I could take it without giving you a penny?"

"Yes," returned the miller calmly, "if it were not for the chamber of justice at Berlin."

The king was so flattered by this answer, which showed that he was incapable of an act of injustice, that he dismissed the miller without further entreaty and changed the plan of his garden.

An Inventive Genius.

There is a student in the University of Pennsylvania whose inventive genius, if directed in the right direction, is likely to bring him fame in after life. This youth was called before one of the professors, charged with being absent from more than the permitted number of classes. After lecturing him thoroughly and telling him the penalties that would have to be imposed, the professor asked the youth if he had any excuses to offer for his continued absences. "This hour comes from 9 to 10," said the youth, "and I am so peculiarly constituted that I can never get up for a 9 o'clock hour." "That is no excuse," replied the professor indignantly. "Why don't you get an alarm clock?" "I did try that," answered the student, "but it was no use. I never could hear the alarm go off. I have a weak heart and as a result am forced to sleep all the time on my right side, and I am totally deaf in my left ear." The professor knew full well that this statement was not confined to the strict truth, yet he thought one who could invent such a tale was deserving of better things and decided to give him another chance.—Philadelphia Record.

Caviare.

Caviare is the roe of the sturgeon prepared as a table delicacy. As a fish too rare to be known by the generality of people and the flavor of which would not be relished by an uneducated palate, Shakespeare makes Hamlet speak of it.

The Fox and the Hen.

A Fox, having crept into an outhouse, looked up and down for something to eat and at last spied a Hen sitting upon a perch so high that he could by no means come to her. He therefore had recourse to an old stratagem. "Dear cousin," he said to her, "how do you do? I heard that you were ill and kept at home. I could not rest, therefore, till I had come to see you. I pray let me feel your pulse. Indeed, you do not look well at all." He was running on in this impudent manner when the Hen answered him from the roost: "Truly, dear Reynard, you are in the right. I was seldom in more danger than I am now. Pray excuse my coming down. I am sure I should catch my death." The Fox, finding himself foiled, made off and tried his luck elsewhere.—Aesop.

Self Evident.

One of the dangers of a little knowledge is that its possessor rarely estimates it at its true value. Ignorance, it has been said, bestows her choicest gifts on those who value her least.

A conceited undergraduate once said to his teacher that he feared he had rather a contempt for Plato.

"I am afraid, Mr. Johnson," replied the teacher, "that your contempt has not been bred by familiarity."

The Attraction.

"You say you are in love with Miss Baggs?"

"I sure am."

"But I can't see anything attractive about her."

"Neither can I see it. But it's in the bank, all right."—Cleveland Leader.

A Relief From School.

Johnny—Hooray! Tommy—What yer so happy about? Johnny—I don't hafter go to school today. Tommy—Chee, y're lucky! Why dontcher? Johnny—I gotta go to th' dentist's an' have three teeth pulled!—Exchange.

Prodding Him.

Marie—But if you love Tom why do you go about with Jack? Madge—Well, you see, Tom is rather slow, and I'm using Jack as a pacemaker for him.—Exchange.

Getting an Early Start.

"Father, what do you wish me to be when I grow up?"

"The same as I am, my son—a lawyer."

"Then instead of wasting any more time on arithmetic, geography and such truck I'd better be getting at the hypothetical question, hadn't I?"—Judge.

Defying Death.

There is no use of reading any more rules about how to live a long time. An old lady 100 years old has eaten New England doughnuts all her life.—Birmingham Age-Herald.

The Official Goat.

"Your wife doesn't seem to care much for that friend of yours."

"No. He's the man I lay the blame on when I'm detained downtown."—Philadelphia Post.

How Is Your Watch Running?

Watch Repairing Always Has Been a Hobby of Ours to do the Best Work Possible.

Is it always fast or slow; never quite on time? Perhaps the watch is capable of very accurate running, but it is not in perfect order. You know the tiny mechanism of a watch absolutely demands that each of the dozens of little parts—jewels, springs, wheels, etc.—be just right, or good timing is out of the question.

M. PAPPAS, Proprietor

SPECIAL NOTICE

THE ROYAL has made new arrangements for its pictures; it will be an EXCLUSIVE. Up-to-the-minute service, and patrons of the Royal will see the latest pictures FIRST here.

"HIS LITTLE GIRL"

This is a very interesting picture. "Lou", a young bachelor, gets a note from his friend, that he is sending him his little girl to take care of while he goes to Europe. "Lou" prepares for an infant's arrival; the infant is about twenty years of age, and there are funny situations.

"SHE WOULD BE AN ACTRESS"

Mrs. Youngwife has become stage struck and wants to be an actress. The husband breaks up the first performance, thrashes a too ardent admirer, and then all is happy afterwards.

"FROLICKING YOUTHS, OR SCHOOL-BOY PRANKS"

Mr. Loftus will sing one of the latest illustrated songs:—"The Ivy and the Oak."

Do not forget that we have installed a self cooled motor Fan, and that the Royal Theatre is the coolest place to go to.

HANLAN'S POINT ISLAND SWEPT BY FIRE
OBLITERATING AMUSEMENT PLACES

Disastrous Conflagration Caused by Burning Sulphur in Little Theatre Wipes Out Almost Every Vestige of Canada's Coney Island—The Cashier on the Figure Eight Perishes in the Flames.

Toronto, Aug. 11.—Hanlan's Point was fire-swept yesterday afternoon, with the loss of one life and destruction of property amounting to well on to $200,000, probably one-half covered by insurance.

To-day the amusement park, with its scores of attractions, is a desolate waste. With the exception of the island ferry dock and offices, the merry-go-round and a refreshment stand, the maze, and a shooting gallery, the whole area from the docks through to the Hotel Hanlan, and all west to the extreme boundary of the athletic field, not a timber is standing.

Miss Clara Andrews of Cobourg, cashier of the figure 8, was cut off from retreat and fell just outside the ticket office door. She got into the passage leading to the cars, but before she could get over the fence a gush of flame struck her and she fell back.

The conflagration started outside the Gem Theatre and between that building and the figure 8, the very centre of the amusement park. Fanned by a strong northwest wind, the flames speedily licked up the flimsy structures, crowded together, and in less than two hours every building except those about the docks were a mass of black ruin.

The big Amusement Palace and School of Fun opposite the ferry wharf was the last to go. It made the hottest blaze of the afternoon. At that time it looked as if the course of the flames eastward up the main walk towards Centre Island, would not be stopped, and the proprietors of the Lake Shore Hotel, the first substantial structure in the way, were preparing to move out. The Argonaut Rowing Club formed a bucket brigade and soaked Durnan's boat house so that it resisted the heat and flying embers.

James R. Roard, 1 Badgerow avenue, "spieler" for the Gem Theatre (moving pictures), where the fire started, said it was caused by a pail of sulphur catching fire. "We use the sulphur for red lights for the ballet dance in front of the theatre," he said. "The sulphur that burned up had been made about five minutes before. It was in an ordinary fire bucket, and there was about five pounds of it.

"Bert Rippon, who lives on Park road, and operates the moving picture machine, mixed it. The flames caught on to the tent. I yelled and gave warning. The cashier, Miss English, fainted and I carried her out. The measure is canvas with wood framework. The sulphur was in the dress tent, but it soon spread from there to the theatre and then to the figure eight."

MISS CLARA ANDREWS,

When the Scenic Railway burst into flames all the employes of the nearby buildings started to get furniture away from the path of the conflagration. The fire passed right along to the Old Mill, and soon it was an Inferno on a small scale. From there it passed over to the grand stand surrounding the ball grounds. It soon was a circle of flames. Sparks and large sized cinders were carried by the wind to the roofs of the buildings to the south.

After the ball grand stand caught fire the Pavilion ignited. In a few minutes it was a mass of flames. From there the devouring element passed to the hotel. Efforts were made by many to kill the little fires on the roof, but the water in the jugs in the rooms was the only extinguisher at hand, and it was soon used up. From the hotel it passed to the Human Roulette wheel, and from there to the icehouse. It took about 45 minutes for the hotel to become a mass of red-hot embers. After the icehouse caught the flames traveled to the west end of the Japanese amusement parlors. The whole end was in flames before it passed to the roof. It did not stand long after that. The School of Fun, attached to the other place, and the Big Scream, in front of the amusement parlors, went too.

Hanlan's Point proper, by which is meant the area north of Heber Park and east of the aquatic course, covers about six acres, of which a considerable portion belongs to the ferry company, the remainder being held under a 21 years' lease from the city, at an annual rental of about $400. The portion owned by the company is the southwest corner, including the athletic grounds, this property having been filled in by the company.

A VERDICT OF MURDER

Mrs. Rosanna Coulter Says She Entered the Room on Hearing the Shot and Found Her Daughter Dying—Guest Says They Did Not Get on Together — Neglected His Business; Often Intoxicated.

Bobcaygeon, Ont., Aug. 11.—The coroner's jury inquiring into last Saturday's shooting tragedy, yesterday, after 30 minutes consideration, returned a verdict of wilful murder against Joseph Hunter, hotelkeeper, for the murder of his wife.

Milton Hutcheson, hostler at the hotel, said that the shooting occurred just as he had arisen, about 5 a.m., and that Mrs. Rosanna Coulter, Mrs. Hunter's mother, had screamed "that brute of a man has shot my daughter Rose." Witness said, Mrs. Hunter had told him that Hunter "had got something different in his head." "She told me," he said, "that she had gone to Bob Kennedy's store to change some stockings. Kennedy had had some other customers, and she had been detained. When she came back he cut into her."

Hunter was quite calm after the shooting.

John Mitchell, guest of the hotel, had heard the Hunters did not get on well together. He had often remarked that Hunter had a queer demeanor for a hotelman, being very morose.

Mrs. Rosanna Coulter, said her daughter had sent for her to accompany her home, but at Hunter's request, both had stayed. At tea, he had referred sociably to his wife's birthday, on the 26th. She said he was often intoxicated and slept a good deal, neglecting his business. Before retiring, she saw Hunter lying across the foot of the bed with a wet cloth across his head, and Mrs. Hunter looking very unhappy.

After the shooting, she ran in. "The blood was running out of Rose's mouth, and I shook her. She never moved. I screamed at him, 'You've killed my daughter! You've killed your wife! Rose speak to me if you can!'

"He was standing holding the gun, looking at her. Then he leaned over, and, taking her by the shoulder, shook her gently, as if to wake her. He said nothing, only stood looking intently at her, quite himself apparently."

Wanted Prisoner's Release.

Fort William, Aug. 11.—Yesterday afternoon 300 striking freight-handlers marched to the City Hall and demanded the release of a man imprisoned yesterday for carrying concealed weapons. The mayor, after hearing a statement of their grievances, offered his services, together with a man to be appointed by themselves, to endeavor to arrange a meeting with the C.P.R. officials. The men were willing to accept his offer, but still demanded the release of the prisoner, who was subsequently tried and fined $50 for carrying concealed weapons.

"Old Jed Prouty" Dead.

New York, Aug. 11.—Richard Golden, the actor, died suddenly yesterday on board the house-boat Strollet, in Gravesend Bay. He produced "Old Jed Prouty," of which he was part author, in 1889, in New York, and appeared nearly 5,000 times in it.

BIG HOTEL DESTROYED

Early Morning Conflagration in Okanagan Hotel at Vernon Results in the Death of at Least Eleven Men —One Dies Performing a Heroic Rescue—Both Stairways Burned Before Alarm Was Given.

Vernon, B.C., Aug. 11.—Fire broke out in the Okanagan Hotel here about 3 o'clock yesterday morning, resulting in the total destruction of the building and the deaths of at least eleven of the guests.

The building was of brick veneer, three storeys in height with about 40 rooms, was a mass of flames when the alarm was turned in and both back and front stairways were ablaze. Guests escaped from the burning building down fire escapes, or at the rear, where some outhouses made the descent less hazardous. The premises of the Royal Bank, P. Burns & Co., Morris Drug Store, and F. A. Loveridge, real estate, were considerably damaged.

The known dead are: Wilbur Smith, carpenter; J. J. Funsign, laborer; Jas. Anderson, delivery man for J. W. Clover; Julius Fuerst, bartender, relative of proprietors, from Wetaskiwin; Geo. Jarrat and Geo. McKay, Calgary; Geo. Settgas, A. Hickling, A. Chabbree and a Bohemian.

A. Hickling lost his life in his attempt to save one of the domestics in the hotel after having saved one of Sigalet's daughters.

The damage is estimated at $35,000, with insurance of $12,000.

The Man From Home

A Novelization of the Play of the Same Name

By BOOTH TARKINGTON and HARRY LEON WILSON

Copyright, 1909, by American Press Association

"You don't have to live with her, you know," he said savagely. "It will be easy enough to make it so unpleasant for the minx that she'll be glad to go back to the States, and she can't get back a penny. We'll have that right enough."

The Hon. Almeric laughed.

"Oh, all right, old chap!" he drawled. "I'll lift her to the infernal seventh heaven, or whatever you call it. Don't expect me to moon over her, though."

And that compact being settled, the earl went off for his morning walk along the cliff and Almeric to keep his engagement for a morning ride with Ethel Granger-Simpson.

CHAPTER III.
IN DISGUISE.

An hour later Mariano, the maitre d'hotel of the Regina Margherita, stepped out upon the terrace and began to lay a cloth upon one of the small round tables that stood close to the white marble balustrade. On the other side of the wall could be heard the mandolins and guitars of the fishermen, and Mariano glanced up crossly as the song arose upon the morning air.

"Silenzio!" he cried, and for a moment the music died down.

Mariano went at once to the table upon which he had spread the cloth and placed silverware and delicate china upon it, and he was thus engaged when Michele, the commissionnaire, appeared at the top of a flight of marble steps that led into the eastern wing of the hotel, fronting on the terrace.

"Here is M. Ribiere to see you, sir," he said softly, with a backward glance over his shoulder, and Mariano straightened up instantly, with a smile of welcome, for Ribiere was an old and valued accomplice in the gentle art of soft Italian legal stealing.

A tall, alert young Frenchman, clad in an English walking suit of gray and carrying a portfolio beneath his arm, ran lightly down the steps and approached the maitre d'hotel.

"Ah, Mariano!" he cried as he approached.

The genial Mariano bowed gracefully and rubbed his flexible hands together.

"M. Ribiere!" he chattered gayly. "This is one of the days of days"—

The music burst forth again, and he whirled about angrily in the direction of the lemon grove.

"Silenzio!" he cried, with waving hands. "Silenzio!" and turned again to Ribiere. Michele, with a glance at them, went back within the hotel.

Ribiere turned a warning glance toward the hotel and whispered in Italian:

"Let us speak Engleesh. Fewer understand."

Mariano again bowed and spread out his hands in assent.

"I hope m'sieu still occupy the exalt' position of secretar' to monseigneur the gran' duke."

The Frenchman walked quickly to one of the little wicker tea tables that were scattered about, sat down and opened his portfolio.

"We will not mention either the name or the rank of my employer," he said gravely. "There are reasons of state. You understand?"

The maitre d'hotel threw up his hands in despair, and his round eyes rolled heavenward.

"Again incognito! Every year he come to thees hotel for two, three or four day, but always incognito!"

Ribiere paid little attention to him, but opened a notebook and removed a fountain pen from his pocket. Mariano shrugged his shoulders and went on setting the table, then stopped and looked up.

"Each time we lose the honor to have it known," he went on. "In Naples, everywhere, are reech American people that would give large pourboire to mingle with his highness"—

The secretary lifted a warning finger.

"Have I not said it is to be incognito, and yet you prate of highness in the first breath. Would you wish he shall withdraw his patronage?" He looked staringly at the man opposite him. "See that you do not offend again." He consulted his watch.

"He comes in his machine from Naples. As on former visits, all is to be as before. No one must guess. To all he must be Herr Grollerhagen"—

"Herr Grollerhagen!" ejaculated Mariano quickly and with astonishment in his round features. "Herr Grollerhagen!"

"He wishes to be known as a German," went on M. Ribiere. "It pleases him to be so thought."

Mariano stood lost in contemplative astonishment.

"What a man," he sighed—"of caprice, eccentrique, so wonderful! Ha!"

The secretary smiled in a superior manner.

"You have said it. Last night he "Always incognito!"

there is an American signorina, Miss Granger-Scompsonb. Miladi Crosshe travel with her to be chaperon." Here he became enthusiastic as the memory of sundry pieces of gold and silver wakened his keen thoughts. "She is young, gnoorsoo; she five money to every one; she is multa bella, an pretty, wooth charm"—

"You mean this Lady Crosshe?" interrupted the Frenchman, with a puzzled frown.

"No, no, no!" cried Mariano in horrified amazement. "Miladi Crosshe is ole lady and does not hear so well; quite deaf; no pourboires; nothing. I speak of the young American lady, Miss Granger-Scompsone, who the English honorable son of Milor' Hawcastle wishes to espouse, I think."

Ribiere wrote rapidly in his notebook and without looking up said:

"Who else is there?"

"There is the brother of Miss Granger-Scompsone, a young gentleman from also North America. He make the eyes all the day at another lady, who is of the party, a French lady, Comtesse de Champigny. Ha, eet amuse me!" And he burst into a respectful titter.

Ribiere looked at him with grave astonishment and bent once more to his notebook, over which the pen flew with a practiced hand.

"Why?" he said shortly.

Mariano smothered his mirth with talked by chance to a strange North American in the hotel at Napoli. Apparently he is much interested. Today he has that stranger for companion in his automobile. I remonstrate. What use? He laugh for one-half the hour."

Again the maitre d'hotel remained lost in astonishment. For some moments he stood with the napkin in his hands gazing out over the wonderful bay that lay before the hotel.

"He is not like those cousin of his in Petersburg and Moscowa," he said at last, with a touch of awe in his tones "And yet, though monseigneur is so good and generoso, will not the anarchist strike against the name of even royalty himself? You have not that fear?"

The secretary shivered in the soft warm air and seized his companion by the wrist.

"I have!" he said quickly. "He has not. I take what precautions I can secretly from him. But of what use? You have few patrons?"

A smile crossed Mariano's face, and he shrugged his shoulders expressively.

"It is yet so early in the season. Those poor musician"—he pointed off beyond the gates—"they wait always at every gate to play when they shall see any one coming, but of late they are disappoint. Within, with us in the hotel, are but seex people, all of one party!"

An expression of relief crossed the Frenchman's face, and he opened his notebook quickly.

"Good!" he murmured. "Who are they?"

Mariano scratched his head with one ruminative finger and bent his brows upon the table in thought.

"There is milor', an English excellency—the Earl of Hawcastle; there is also his son, the excellency honorable Almeric St. Aubyn; there is Miladi Crosshe, an English miladi, who is sister-in-law to Milor' Hawcastle."

Quickly Ribiere jotted down the names in his book and then looked up.

"Three English," he said. "Good so far. Those English are safe."

Mariano went on:

the napkin he carried and with an effort controlled himself.

"Because," he answered—"because I have thought that madame the comtesse is so good a friend of the ol' English Milor' Hawcastle. A maitre d'hotel see many things, eh, and I think Milor' Hawcastle and madame have known each other from long perhaps This dejeuner is for them; also I think from what I hear that both have been in Russia one time. They spik togezzer in Russ."

"Pouf! They will not recognise my employer," said Ribiere. "no more than this North American who travels with him and who is as innocent as a babe. Set dejeuner on the table instantly, when he shall arrive, for two—a perch, petit pois, iced figs, tea. I will send his own caviare and vodka from what I carry."

"Va bene, signor!" answered Mariano and vanished into the hotel.

CHAPTER IV.
STRANGE NEWS.

The Earl of Hawcastle was nearly at the end of his financial rope. And yet to look at him as he entered upon the terrace from the lemon grove no one would have thought that a care in the world possessed him.

Added to the natural calm demeanor of the Englishman of station was a certain self possession gained by years of standing on the brink of events, and, while this brilliant morning his cares had hung even a little more heavily upon him than was his desire, yet he gave no outward hint of any troubles that beset him.

He was a well preserved man of fifty-six, with close cropped iron gray hair and a straight cut military mustache that hid certain cruel lines in his mouth and softened the severe lineaments. He carried himself with an erectness that bespoke pride in race, if not in deeds of his own. He was distinguished with that curious individuality that causes those in the THREATENED WITH PARALYSIS.

Peter E. Summers, of Kalamazoo, Mich., relates his experience:

"I was troubled with Nervous Debility for many years. I lay it to indiscretion and excesses in early youth. I became very despondent and didn't care whether I worked or not. I imagined everybody who looked at me guessed my secret. Imaginative dreams at night weakened me—my back ached, had pains in the back of my head, hands and feet were cold, tired in the morning, poor appetite, fingers were shaky, eyes blurred, hair loose, memory poor, etc. Numbness in the fingers set in and the doctor told me he feared paralysis. I took all kinds of medicines and tried many first-class physicians, wore an electric belt for three months, went to St. Clemens for baths, but received little benefit. While at St. Clemens I was induced to consult Drs. Kennedy & Kennedy, though I had lost all faith in doctors. Like a drowning man I commenced the New Method Treatment and it saved my life. The improvement was like magic—I could feel the vigor going through the nerves. I was cured mentally and physically, and I have sent them many patients and will continue to do so."

street do lounge one another and say in whispers who another may be, and he was unmistakably high bred.

Then, his sense of honor that would balk at cheating in a card game or the larceny of a traveling bag was not sufficient to debar him from conniving at the attachment of a young and helpless girl's money with the foreknowledge of a lifelong misery for her as the consequence.

This morning he was clad in an immaculate [illegible] lightly striped white flannel, with carefully pipeclayed shoes, and the passer neckt tie that he wore was a striking monument to the fact that the well-groomed Englishman knows no peer on earth, while the jaunty exactness of his snowy panama hat was a revelation in proper headgear.

As he entered the terrace his alert glance swept it from end to end, and he noted that there was no one about. He walked at once to the table that Mariano had set for him, and at the instant he sat down Michele ran down the steps of the hotel with a folded newspaper in his hand which he presented to milord with a low bow. Mariano entered bearing a coffee tray, and the earl greeted him with a cheerful good morning which Mariano acknowledged as one would a favor from a king.

"Milor' is serve," he announced with soft accents and took the hat and light walking stick, bestowing them with reverential care upon a side table. As the earl unfolded Il Mattino he glanced up.

"No English papers?" he said.

"Milor', the mail is late," answered Michele and bowed himself up the stairs.

"Also Mme. de Champigny," growled the earl as he glanced down the unfamiliar pages.

As he spoke the countess, clad in the very latest Parisian creation, swept down the steps and approached the table. She looked well, and she knew it.

Apparently about thirty-two, she would probably have confessed to five years more under pressure, but her fresh beauty [illegible] by the light colors she affected, and the tilt of her parasol revealed more to the capable eye of an observer than a ream of self description or admission.

She was of that type that causes the elderly dowager of any race to regard her with suspicion and to gather her male entourage beneath the protecting wings. Mme. de Champigny, raising her hand with a little gesture of greeting, paused an instant as she stood at the top of the steps and cried softly:

"Me voici!"

The earl jumped to his feet and bowed, inquiring at the same time:

"My esteemed relative is still asleep?"

The countess swept forward to her chair, which Hawcastle pulled out for her, and murmured:

"I trust your beautiful son has found much better employment — as our hearts would wish him, eh?"

Hawcastle laughed shortly and mirthlessly.

"He has. He's off on a canter with the little American."

Whereat the demure countess clapped her daintily gloved hands together and cried softly:

"Brava!"

That they were old friends, these two, was to be seen at a glance. There was no inquiring as to each other's tastes and dislikes. It was evident that long association had ingrained an intimate knowledge of the other into the mind of each, and they met as good comrades without more than perfunctory courtesy. The earl went on as he resegted himself.

"I didn't mean Almeric, however, Helene, but my august sister-in-law." Without further comment he turned to the paper again and read. The amiable countess smiled at him enigmatically and broke a roll with the gesture of an empress.

"The amiable Lady Hermione Trevelyan Creech has dejeuner in her apartments. What do you find to read, mon cher?"

Hawcastle threw the paper down upon the cloth with an exclamation.

"I'm such a duffer at Italian," he said, "but apparently the people among the coast are having a spare over an escaped convict, a Russian."

The hovering Mariano, who was flitting about the table like a wounded squirrel, started slightly and hesitated with a silver cover in his hand, then stepped forward.

"Si milor' will pardon me"— The cover[illegible] also started and sank down her fork with a slight rattle.

"A Russian?" she ejaculated.

"Yes," grumbled the earl. "An escaped Russian bandit has been traced to Castellamare"— He paused to insert the choicest bit of melon in his mouth, and Mariano's jaw dropped with the entlement.

"Castellamare—not twelve kilometers from here!" he whispered in awestruck tones, and the girl continued when he had masticated the fruit:

"And a confidential agent—secret service man, I dare say—has requested his arrest from the Italian authorities. But, to quote from our grandiose Il Mattino, 'the brigand tore himself from the hands of the carabinieri,' or something like that. I can't be sure, but it read to me"—

Mariano broke in excitedly. He had picked up the paper and was devouring it with avidity.

"If milor' permit, and madame"—he bowed like an automaton—"I shall translate."

"Quite right, Mariano," said the earl, and the maitre d'hotel went on avidly.

"The brigan' tore himself," he read excitedly, "from the hand of the carabinieri, and without the doubts he conceal himself in some of those grotte near Sorrento, and searchment is being execute'. The agent of the Russian embassy have inform' the bureau that this escape one is a mos' in-fray-mote robber and danger brigan'."

"What name does the paper say he was?" interrupted Mme. de Champigny, with a catch of her breath, and Mariano bowed again jerkily in her direction.

"It has not to say, madame," he replied. "That is all. And will milor' and Mme. la Comtesse excuse me? And may I take the journal? There is one who should see it."

Hawcastle smiled slightly at his excitement and nodded.

"Very well, Mariano," he said, and Mariano, with another jerk that was supposed to include both of the illustrious ones, disappeared with a speediness that was alarming. For an instant there was silence, and then the countess, with a quick upward glance of her dark eyes, said tremblingly:

"I should like much to know his name."

The earl smiled and went on with his breakfast.

"You may be sure it isn't Ivanoff," he said, but the assurance did not seem to carry weight with madame, for she leaned her chin in her hand and looked off over the bay, and there was a troubled look in her eyes.

CHAPTER V.

THE ENGAGEMENT.

"How did you know it is not Ivanoff?" she asked slowly, and this time the earl laughed aloud.

"He wouldn't be called an infamous brigand," he said, but the countess waved her hand.

"That, my friend, may be only Italian journalism."

"Pooh!" said Hawcastle. "This means a highwayman—not even an embezzler, Helene."

The countess arose from the table and moved about restlessly with her eyes on the blue expanse.

"I should be glad to believe it, my good friend, but I—I care for no more to eat. I have perhaps some foolish feeling of unsafety. It is now two nights that I dream of him—of Ivanoff—bad dreams for us both, my friend."

The earl looked up in amazement and then burst into a laugh.

"What rot!" he exclaimed. "It takes more than a dream to bring a man back from Siberia."

The countess looked at him with some sharpness.

"Then I pray there has been no more than dreams," she murmured quietly.

Even as she spoke there came the tinkling sound of the mandolins and guitars, and madame turned to the lemon grove in time to see a young girl in a fawn colored riding habit, with a soft felt hat upon her head and a riding crop in her gauntleted hands, enter, followed by three picturesque banditti with the instruments.

As she reached the terrace she paused and threw from her glove some silver which she dropped into the hand of the first villain with a laugh. Then she turned, smiling, as the musicians withdrew and waved her crop at the two who were watching her. The earl arose with a bow, and madame advanced with outstretched hand.

"Ah, the divine Miss Granger-Simpson!" said Newcastle with raillery in his tones, and the girl laughed with a happy, care free face.

"The divinely happy Miss Granger-Simpson," she said, and at the sound of her voice and the look in her eyes the countess ran to her and kissed her rapturously upon each cheek.

"Oh, I hope you mean"— she began, when Hawcastle interrupted her with some excitement.

"You mean you have made my son divinely happy?"

The girl extricated herself laughingly from the embrace of the countess and turned to the earl.

"Is not every one divinely happy at Sorrento," she cried, waving her crop, "save your self?" and with another laugh ran quickly up the steps and into the hotel, leaving the other two looking at each other with astonishment.

As they looked a piano from the music room that opened upon the terrace broke forth with Chaminade's "Elevation," and Ethel's voice took up the words clearly. The countess turned to her companion.

"She flies to her piano, mon cher. Ah, that is good for our little enterprise, eh? Listen!"

Hawcastle sat down with a grunt of satisfaction.

"It's time! If Almeric had been anything but a clumsy oaf he'd have made her settle it weeks ago."

The woman turned her dark eyes upon him with a flash.

"You are invidious, mon ami. My affair is not settled. Am I a clumsy oaf too?"

The earl laughed quietly.

"No, Helene. Your little American is so in love with you that if you asked him suddenly, 'Horace, is this day of night?' he would answer, 'It's Helene.' But he's too shy to speak. You're a woman; you can't press matters. But Almeric's a man; he can. He can urge an immediate marriage, which means an immediate settlement and a direct one."

Mme. de Champigny picked up a silver fork from the table and examined it carefully.

"It will not be small—that settlement? You have decided what sum?

Hawcastle looked up sharply and nodded with decision.

"I have—a hundred and fifty thousand pounds!"

From the countess came a gasp of astonishment.

"My friend! Will she?" And she turned and stared at the room where the piano was still playing. Hawcastle laughed grimly.

"Not for Almeric, but to be the Countess of Hawcastle. My ancient sister-in-law hasn't been her chaperon for a year for nothing. And, by Jove, she hasn't done it for nothing, either!"

And this time he laughed quite heartily as with a grim appreciation of the jest.

"But she's deserved all I shall allow her," he resumed. "You see, it was she who found these people. Indeed, we might say that both you and I owe her something. Even a less captious respectability than Lady Creech's might have looked askance at the long 'friendship' that has existed between us. Yet she has always countenanced us, my dear, though she must have guessed a great many things. And she will help us to urge an immediate marriage. You know as well as I do that unless it is immediate there'll be the devil to pay. Don't miss that essential. Something must be done at once. We're at the breaking point, if you like the words—a most damnable insolvency."

As he finished speaking the immaculate and various Almeric himself strolled into the terrace and, putting up his glass as he came forward, said softly:

"Hello, governor! Howdy, countess!"

With an affectation of boredom he sprawled into a chair and tapped at his boots with his crop.

"Out riding a bit ago, you know, with Miss Granger-Simpson. Rippin' girl, isn't she?"

MAKING A MEROVINGIAN PRINCESS GOWN

By Ella Stan

Drawn by Anna W. Speakman

DESCRIPTION OF GOWNS IN THE ILLUSTRATION

Reading from left to right:—

Second—Back of No. 5. Black straw hat trimmed with white feather pompon.

Third—Robe of soft gray silk. The vest and sleeves are of figured silk. In each plaid is a tiny pink rose. The sleeves and yoke are of white net. Hat of straw wheat and poppy trimming.

Sixth—Back of No. 4. Quaint little bonnet trimmed with ribbon and bunches of little pink roses.

The long-waisted waist line is no longer a matter for discussion, but an established fact, and, like all new fashions, has about it the charm of novelty.

The name under which these new lines come to us is "Merovingian" and the style is a delightful variation from the abbreviated and normal waist line with which we have long been familiar.

The characteristic feature of these gowns is the deep plaited skirt that joins the semi-fitted waist portion. Retaining the general features of the Directoire, they offer a welcome change from the unduly scant skirt that is neither pretty nor comfortable, and give us, on the whole, a more practical garment.

The majority of women who are not familiar with dressmaking hesitate to attempt anything that is out of the ordinary, believing that they are more sure of success if they adhere to conventional lines.

While this may be true if the garment is intricately cut, it does not hold good in the case of the Merovingian models, because if a design with good lines is selected it is more easy to obtain the desired results (a good fit and style) than it is with the ordinary separate waist and skirt.

The modern accepted version of this type is a long waisted gown that carries unbroken lines from the shoulders to below the hips, at which point it is joined by the characteristic plaited skirt.

The severity of this style is sometimes modified by the introduction of a panel at the front, extending the full length of the gown, on either side of which is joined the plaited skirt.

This style is sure to be becoming, and may be still farther modified for those to whom the plain lines do not appeal by cutting away the upper portion of the waist, so that the dress can be worn over a guimpe of tucked net, or all-over lace.

When planning a dress such as talked of it is best to select material having some body, such as the fashionable rough weaves of pongee, or heavy linen crash.

While frocks of the lingerie order may be made along the same lines, soft, sheer goods lend themselves better to the graceful folds produced by the Empire and Directoire models.

After selecting a pattern as near the style desired as can be obtained, one may proceed with perfect confidence of success, if due consideration is given to the details of the making.

As I have spoken in previous articles of the importance of accurately following the directions on the pattern label, it will not be necessary here to go into this matter.

The goods cut out, edges of seams notched and perforations indicating the line of plaits or tucks plainly marked, the rest is easy to accomplish.

The closing of these gowns is effected either at the center back, with buttons and buttonholes, or invisibly at the left side of front panel.

When closed in the former manner both the making and fitting are materially simplified.

However, when a side front closing is preferred the amateur need not hesitate if the work is gone about in the following manner:—

First baste the pieces of the waist together, commencing with the center back and working toward the front on either side, taking special care not to stretch the bias edges and placing the notches opposite each other.

The basting should be done with sixty cotton and a number nine needle.

In order to keep the seams from pulling apart while fitting the garment it is best to take three short basting stitches, each about one-half inch long, and then a back stitch.

The waist basted, next to be considered is the adjusting of the panel.

It must first be pinned to the right side of the front waist portion according to the notches and then basted from the normal waist line up to the shoulders and from the same point down.

The left side of the panel and waist portion are now finished with facings and the hooks and eyes sewed on so that the closing will be invisible.

Before placing the hooks and eyes it must be determined whether the dress is to have the appearance of folding over the panel or whether the effect desired is that of the panel being placed over the dress.

Either style of finish is good, the one to be selected being only a matter of preference with the wearer.

Whichever finish is decided upon, the opposite side of the panel must have the seam laid and stitched to correspond.

Hooks and eyes of various styles riveted to tapes may be bought by the yard, and when used in place of those that come separately one will be saved much time and worry when placing them on the garment.

They are first basted in position on the facing and then a row of stitching run along on either side of the tape, which keeps them firmly in place.

It may also be said in favor of these hooks and eyes that if the ones at the top or bottom are placed exactly opposite each other there is no possibility of the others being uneven.

The fastenings stitched on, the facings are then basted in position, but not stitched, after which the shoulder seams are basted and the garment tried on.

In all probability the garment will require very little fitting, as this style of dress hangs from the shoulders, strenuously avoiding any semblance of a curve at the waist.

Should the dress appear to span across the hips, or if it bags between the shoulders and the waist line, try raising it at the shoulder seams.

If it is too tight or too loose across the bust, the necessary alterations are made at the under arm seams.

When doing this great care should be taken not to lose the general contour of the garment, as the least bit too much curve at the waist will spoil the good effect.

When the fit is satisfactory the seams are stitched and pressed before the skirt is put on. This plaiting is made in the regular way, first being hemmed or faced and then the plaits basted in position.

For this a thorough pressing is essential, as there is no stitching to hold the folds in place. It is joined to the lower edge of the long body portion with an ordinary seam and to the edges of the front panel in a way that corresponds with the finish above.

The gown is now ready for any trimming that is desired, after which the facing at the closing is hemmed down by hand.

The neck and sleeves are finished in the regular way.

Dress Hooking Simplified.

"Silly! Of course, it is," said the woman, as she impatiently waited while her maid hooked the back of her frock. "If we women had sense we would boycott frocks fastened at the back or under the arm or in other impossible places. As it is we have to put up with the nuisance. Miranda, you need not tell me there are no eyes on this frock; I looked just before I put it on!"

"You should try my plan," said her friend. "I had a frock that was the terror of everyone who fastened it. It had buttonholed loops the color of the material in all sorts of queer places. Jack used to fly the room everytime I put it on, and it meant chronic warfare with my maids.

"The climax came one night when I was dressing for dinner in a strange house. I was late, but the maid solemnly told me: 'Mrs. Blaine, the dressmaker hasn't put a single eye on this here dress!' Nothing could convince her otherwise, until I tore the frock off in a rage and put a white pin under each loop, when she fastened me up without difficulty.

"Since then, as soon as I take a dress off at night, I put the pins in place, head out. They are markers that cannot be missed, and I am buttoned in half the time. The maid removes the pins when the dress is fastened.

"Takes a lot of time? Not half so much as to stand in maddening immateness while someone bungles at the back of your frock. What woman does not find it hard not to tell the person who hooks her frocks she is deadly slow and stupid. Try 'hooking up' for yourself, and you will find it no easy matter. If you must depend upon your husband to get you into your clothes, life will be more peaceful if you adopt my pin plan."

A Dainty Stock.

The Summer supply of stocks often needs replenishing by Midsummer. Here is a dainty one that can be made in a few minutes and need cost little or nothing.

Cut a well shaped collar of dotted swiss; bind it at back, sides and at each side of front and edge with narrow German Valenciennes or linen lace. Either button with small pearl buttons and loops at back or with the tiniest hooks and eyes.

For the tie, cut an oblong piece an inch and a half wide at top and three inches at bottom, and long enough to reach from bottom of collar to best line. Edge side and bottom with lace to match that on collar or a trifle wider.

Above oblong rab have a narrow run plaited piece of the swiss finished on bottom with lace and stripped with two rows of insertion to match. This tie launders easily and most women have remnants of lace and swiss from which it can be made.

Novel Dress Accessories.

Long silk gloves to match the frock, tucked in groups on the arm and buttoning at the side seam. When worn they give the effect of a sleeve.

Rosettes of all kinds from the tiny one for slippers to large fluffy affairs worn as a sash.

Stockings beaded with jet, steel, gold or silver.

Tasseled silk stockings. The fluffy silk tassel dangles from an embroidered design just high enough to show when dress is lifted.

Orange feather in the fad of the season and is shown both in French fad and in the new calfskin.

Colored suede shoes, with mother of pearl buttons tinted to match the suede.

There is a new white wash suede that has taken the place of silk and kid gloves with fashionable women.

Black dots on colored stockings make new and becoming veils.

Lace veils both in black, white and cream colored are much in favor. They are more stylish than becoming.

Black chantilly lace over white point d'esprit is used on some of the most fashionable new hats.

Starvation Treatment a Failure

The Sensible Cure for Indigestion is "Little Digesters"

Probably because the taking of food causes such intense discomfort, many dyspeptics think that by abstaining from this and that—practically starving themselves—they can cure the trouble.

Of course, where Indigestion is caused by sheer gluttony, cutting down the food would no doubt do good. But in most cases Indigestion is caused, not by overeating, but by lack of physical exercise, and consequent lack of vigor in the organs of digestion. Partial starvation still further impairs the bodily vigor, and makes the trouble worse.

The dispeptic needs plenty of good, wholesome food. He can eat it, and DIGEST IT, TOO, if he takes a "Little Digester" after each meal. "Little Digesters" help the weakened stomach to do properly that which it cannot do alone—digest and assimilate the food needed to build up the system.

KEEPING HIS BALANCE.

A Story With a Moral That is Told Among the Tartars.

There is a story told among the Tartars which has a moral for the civilized men of the present day. It is to this effect: Robo, cousin of the great mogul, was condemned to death for participation in a rebellion. The most skillful swordsman in the empire was provided for the execution, and the great mogul and his court were present as spectators.

The thin, keen blade flashed in the sunlight and descended upon the bare neck of Robo, who stood upright to receive the stroke.

The executioner's work was so deftly done that, though the head was severed, not a vital organ was disturbed. Robo remained standing.

"What, Robo, art thou not beheaded?" exclaimed the great mogul.

"My lord, I am," replied Robo, "but as long as I keep my balance right my head will not fall off."

The great mogul was placated. A band was put on Robo's neck, and he recovered. He afterward became a loyal subject and was made cashier of the empire because, as the great mogul remarked:

"He knows that if he keeps his balance right his head will not come off."—Exchange.

MAKESHIFT COMPASS.

Float a Magnetized Sewing Needle in a Bowl of Water.

If a thoroughly dry and clean sewing needle is carefully laid on the surface of water in a basin the needle will float in spite of the high density of steel—seven or eight times that of water. On close inspection it is found that the surface of the water is depressed under the needle, much as if there were a thin film stretched over the water and slightly indented by the weight of the needle.

This property of liquids of offering a certain resistance to a force exerted upon their surface is termed "surface tension." The magnitude of the force of surface tension varies from one liquid to another. It is greatest in the case of mercury. The cause of the phenomenon must probably be looked for in the attraction of the liquid molecules to one another.

A sewing needle thus floating upon water may be used as a compass if it has previously been magnetized. It will then point north and south and will maintain this position if the containing vessel is moved about. If the needle is displaced by force it will return to its position along the magnetic meridian as soon as the restraint is removed.

Locating a Broken Wire.

When a telegraph wire is broken or damaged, say, several hundred miles away, how does the operator, sitting in his office, know exactly where the accident occurred?

The explanation is simple. It requires, as every one knows, considerable force to send electricity through a wire. The longer the wire the greater, of course, must be the force required. This force is measured in units called by electricians "ohms." Let us suppose that a wire between a New York office and a point 150 miles away has broken somewhere. The telegrapher knows that when the wire was intact there were required, say, 2,100 ohms to facilitate the current, or fourteen ohms to the mile. He now finds that he can send a current with only 700 ohms. Dividing 700 by 14, he finds that the break in the wire is fifty miles from his end.

C.P.R. and Alberta.

The fact that Alberta should have been chosen as the chief field for Canadian Pacific activity in the West this season shows how much faith the C.P.R. puts in the possibilities of that province, for Sir Thomas Shaughnessy is maintaining his policy of building so far as possible without subsidies and only in such districts as a railway may be built on business lines where the resulting traffic amply compensates for the cost of construction. Thus there is the road north from Langdon to Alix, which will intersect the irrigation block near Calgary. Then there is the extension of the Stettler branch thirty-five miles eastwards. Then 135 miles of the line remaining to be completed between Hardistry and Wilkie will be finished, so that Edmonton will have direct communication with Winnipeg by September. The program also allows for forty miles of the new line from Calgary to Lethbridge, and the great bridge over the Belly River, the highest of its kind in the world, will put Macleod in close touch with Lethbridge. The Titan is evidently by no means weary yet.

"Mauretania" is the all-the-year-round collar. Men who wear it in summer for its style and comfort, wear it all winter for the same reasons.

HOLLAND'S "ORANGE BUD."

Little Princess Juliana's Start in the World.

Princess Juliana, the "Dutch baby," as she is universally known, is almost a month old, and every one still speaks well of her. The "Orange Bud," as her own people delight in calling her, has, like most babies, blue eyes and fair hair, and, although Prince Henry, her father, is reported to have exclaimed, "Only a girl!" the queen, her mother, greeted the announcement of the child's sex with a smile.

Juliana is not a common name in Holland, and practically every one expected as a matter of course that the baby would be named after her mother, but the parents preferred to give her as first name that of one of her most illustrious ancestresses. Juliana, countess of Stolberg, wife of William of Nassau-Dillenburg, was the mother of the five brothers, William the Silent among them, who helped to free Holland from the Spanish yoke. The baby's other names are Louise Emma Marie Wilhelmina, the first after Louise de Coligny, William the Silent's fourth wife, who, like Juliana of Stolberg, is noted in Dutch history for her piety and charity. The next two are the names of the grandmothers.

The Dutch custom of distributing muisjes, or caraway candies, on buttered biscuits was not neglected at court. Every one in any way connected with the court was presented with a bag of the little sweets with biscuits inclosed, the whole being put up in a bag of the national colors, red, white and blue, tied with an orange ribbon.

An enterprising Dutch astrologer cast the horoscope of the little princess twenty minutes after her birth. This is what he says: "Princess Juliana will be trustworthy, honorable and prudent in word and deed. She will possess great power of will, which, however, will not be uselessly employed. She will be sympathetic and philanthropic and will work disinterestedly and quietly for others without desire for reward, but seeking perfection in all things. The princess will also follow art and science and will have a special talent for music and poetry. Companionable and eloquent of speech, she will possess the knack of getting on well with all sorts of people."

A CLEVER ADAPTATION.

Jap Tradesmen Have "Caught on" to the Peach Basket Hat.

The subjects of the mikado know the secret of effective decoration in the home, and something of the charm that is associated with their homekeeping may be imparted by the introduction of articles of Japanese origin for service and ornament into the American home. The selection here made is particularly adapted to the country home, the bright colorings fitting in appropriately with the fittings of bungalow or cottage.

Reference is made to the doll seen in the sketch, which illustrates Japanese quickness and sense of humor. The modish peach basket hat has furnished newspaper writers and cartoonists with topics and subjects innumerable. All of this fun poking has not been lost on the stolid Japanese, it would seem, for the original of the doll here sketched was conspicuously displayed recently in a big Japanese shop, and it may be noted that the wastebasket that serves her for a hat is decorated in a style that can hardly be matched by the most extravagant production of the American milliner.

A Splendid Bluff.

Sir Walter Besant is said to have once settled a disputed cab fare in a novel manner. He drove from Piccadilly to some place in the suburbs outside the radius. On getting down he tendered to the driver 3s. 6d., which was a little over the proper fare. The man, however, wanted 5 shillings. Besant refused.

"I'd like to fight you for it," said the driver.

"The very thing," said Besant, who had never in his life put on a boxing glove and was almost as ignorant as Pickwick even of the fighting attitude.

"The very thing! Capital! We'll have the fight in the back garden. My brother will look on, hold the stakes and see fair."

The cabman got down slowly, as if he did not quite care about it after all. He followed into the garden, where there was a lovely bit of green turf. Besant placed the 5 shillings in his friend's hands, took off his coat and waistcoat and rolled up his sleeves, all with an air of cheerful alacrity.

"Now, my friend," said he, "I am ready as soon as you are." His anxiety was great, but it decreased as he watched the cabman's face express successively all the emotions of bounce, surprise, doubt, hesitation and abject cowardice.

"No, no," he said at last. "Gimme the three and six. I know your tricks, both of you. I've been done this way before."—London Mail.

NORTH BATTLEFORD TOWN LOTS

Do you realize that the coming of the Grand Trunk Pacific to North Battleford means that the population will probably be doubled. Consider the meaning of this to the man who owns real estate in North Battleford purchased on present rock bottom prices.

It costs $65 now for one lot in the central University Park Annex. Double the population and the land will increase out of all proportion. $15 down and $10 per month will secure a fine lot in North Battleford. The deeds are guaranteed by the Title and Trusts Co., Toronto.

With the Canadian Northern and Grand Trunk Pacific at North Battleford penetrating vast rich agricultural areas in four directions the town should become one of the great centres of population in the west.

This is a real estate proposition supported by a growing centre of population. Recently the town sold $100,000 of its debentures $1200 above par. This is the class of community in which we offer you a chance to become interested on the easiest possible terms. You may not own a foot of land to-day. Here is your chance to become an owner. You may have unemployed balances at the bank. Let North Battleford and its great railroad systems, its surrounding prairies and ranches help you to double this money.

The University Park Annex was acquired under favourable terms under conditions which enable us to make this offer to-day. It is the soundest investment one could imagine. The possibilities to make money were never brighter.

A STIRRING INCIDENT.

How a Child's Life Was Saved by a Blast of Bugles.

The drum major of a German regiment recently showed that he does not lose his head in an emergency, says the Chicago News. The regiment was on the march from one station to another and had halted on a country road to rest. Suddenly the men heard the terrified cries of a child, and, looking in the direction from which they came, they saw a little girl running for her life from a maddened bull. The animal was tearing along with lowered horns and was so close to the girl that rescue by interference or even by shooting the bull seemed impossible. Just as the men had given up the child for lost the drum major shouted to the buglers, who stood near by with their instruments in their hands, to blow a loud blast. Not realizing what he meant, but obeying mechanically, they blew a blast that would have waked the dead. The moment the bull heard the sound he stopped and looked in surprise at the men and then raised his head and bellowed with all his might. Meanwhile several of the men had reached the child, and when the bull had recovered from his astonishment at the unusual noise she was in a place of safety.

The Lost Balloon.

Up, up, way up in the air
My dear balloon went flying.
Perhaps you think that I don't care,
But it was new,
And it was blue,
And, oh, I feel like crying!

Up, up, way up in the sky
It never heard me calling.
It's dropping now, and that is why
Some other boy
Will see my toy
And catch it while it's falling!

What Cats Are These?

There's a cat very good for food, 'tis said,
And a cat marks the resting place of the dead.
There's a cat that makes a discordant sound
And a cat that is made to scatter round.
There's a cat that crawls beneath our feet
And a cat whose movements are quick and fleet.
There's a cat that blanches our face with fear
And a cat that wanders far and near.

The Skies of Colorado.

Our skies in spring are different from those of the rest of the world. We have not here the soft, gray mixture of sky and clouds which seems to hug the treetops and breaks into tears as naturally as the heroine of the old time novel. Each season has its own peculiar sky in Colorado, though the summer skies do somehow overflow and crop up unexpectedly in the midst of all seasons. Our winter sky is a steely blue, frank and kindly, yet warning one not to presume too far. When spring comes this metallic luster softens to a blue lightened with purple and just touched with silvery gray. A little later the summer sky will be here—a deep, rich, vivid, living, strangely glowing blue, a blue that has all the warmth and fire crimson. That is the mountain blue, and you seldom see it more than thirty miles from the foothills. Out on the plains the rich blue lightens and is streaked and glazed with gold. Then comes fall, and a gentle purple tone creeps into the deep blue of the mountains and the golden tints of the plains. And then comes winter, with its steel color again. And every now and then, no matter what the season, the summer sky suddenly opens above you, perhaps for hours, perhaps for weeks, a reminder that this is, after all, a summer land and that the empress of the seasons is keeping watch over her own.—Rocky Mountain News.

Elephant Ear.

The elephant ear is one of the most striking plants for use in bedding, borders or for clump planting on the lawn. It grows from six to ten feet high, and its large green leaves grow to be three or four feet long and two and one-half feet wide. It has been used with great success in subtropical gardening in the central and southern states. It makes an excellent plant for the margins of aquatic gardens, as it thrives best if given plenty of water.

It grows from tubers, which are best started in pots in sand and grows indoors until June, when they should be planted out in well drained, warm, light soil. A rich soil and frequent waterings with liquid manure will produce excellent results. In the fall all the leaves except the central ones should be cut back to within two inches of the crown. Let the plant remain in this condition for a few days to ripen and then take up and store in any cold frost proof place.

These plants have a variety of uses besides ornament. In the Pacific tropics they are made into a drink. The starchy roots are edible and in Japan are used much like our potatoes. The young leaves are also edible when boiled.

FIRE INSURANCE

"Two years ago an Ontario Market Gardener saved four cents an ounce on the cost of half a pound of Cabbage Seed. In the fall he admitted that he was over $400 to the bad on the crop because the bargain seed had lacked vitality. Thirty-two cents saved—one hundred dollars lost. WAS IT WORTH WHILE?

BRIEFS FROM THE WIRES.

John Widnall, aged 35, a laborer, at Milton, died from sunstroke.

Thomas Sidey was perhaps fatally hurt by a fall of 35 feet at Port Hope.

Mrs. Fanny Ferguson of London may lose the sight of her left eye. Carbolic acid splashed in her face.

The Duke of Abruzzi has established another record in mountain climbing. He ascended Mount Godwin-Austen, in the Himalayas, to a height of 24,600 feet.

Keith Furnival, aged 26, a former resident of Belleville, was drowned last Saturday near Portland, Maine, while on his vacation. He was cashier of a bank in that city.

It was announced yesterday that work will begin on Monday next on the $110,000 addition to the Rideau Club building at the corner of Wellington and Metcalfe streets, Ottawa.

Robert Womack, famous as the discoverer of Cripple Creek, died at Colorado Springs yesterday, aged 68 years, after a lingering illness. He never profited by his great discovery.

Stabs Elder Brother.

Toronto, Aug. 11.—Charles Davidson, 19 years, 286 Niagara street, is held at the Esther street police station under charge of wounding, which may at any moment be changed to one of fratricide.

While he and his elder brother, William, were eating dinner in their home yesterday, a dispute arose over the disappearance of William's razor. Suddenly the younger lad seized a table knife and stabbed his brother in the breast. The incision was made just above the heart.

Dr. Hawkins of King street was summoned and the wounded man was removed to Grace Hospital, where he is reported to be in a serious condition.

Policeman Lawlor was on the scene shortly after the tragedy occurred and immediately placed Charles under arrest and took him to No. 3 police station. He is stricken with remorse and feels his position keenly.

"It was all a mistake," he said.

Stockholm Strike Waning.

Stockholm, Aug. 11.—Perfect calm prevails throughout the country this morning, and there are further evidences that the general strike inaugurated a week ago will result in failure. The Answer, the organ of the trades unions, is the only newspaper published in regular form. The other journals yesterday issued small hand printed editions.

Efforts are being made with some success to improve the local street car service, and the street car employes have called a meeting to consider a proposal to return to work. The company has given them until noon to-day to take up their old positions.

The merchants of Stockholm have announced their intention of running their delivery wagons, and it is expected that the cab service shortly will be resumed. Foreign steamers are overcoming the dock strike by bringing their own stevedores.

Second-Hand Pipe for Canada.

Pittsburg, Aug. 11.—Because of the pipe mills of the country being so rushed with orders to accept new business for immediate delivery, the Union Petroleum Co. of Buffalo has purchased eighty miles from the National Supply Co. of Pittsburg. This pipe was made about 20 years ago and was laid in the Fort Wayne field of Indiana about 18 years ago. The pipe, however, is in prime condition. It will be laid from the Chatham gas field in Ontario to Sarnia, Ont. Only two companies bid on the order.

Woman Sent For Trial.

Brockville, Aug. 11.—Before the hearing of Miss Grace Henderson concluded yesterday in the Brockville Police Court another charge was lodged against her, that of falsifying the books of the Gananoque Thousand Island Railway Co. On this, as well as on three charges of theft of over $3,000, she was committed for trial to the high court. The business of the office of the railway appears to have been run very loosely. Bail was renewed at $6,000.

Veteran Editor Retires.

Montreal, Aug. 11.—W. E. Jones of The Richmond Guardian, and the oldest editor of the Eastern Townships, is about to retire from journalism. He is over 80 years of age. Before coming to Canada, Mr. Jones was on the staff of The London Chronicle. He has taken a deep interest in the educational institutions of Richmond and is president of the corporation of St. Francis' College.

Parry Sound's New Industry.

Parry Sound, Aug. 11.—The Algoma Wood Alcohol and Chemical Co. will begin at once the erection of a large factory here for the manufacture of wood alcohol and its chemical by-products, as well as charcoal, and there is every prospect of an iron and steel industry following.

A bylaw to loan the company $30,000 was carried by a vote of 407 for to 18 against.

Hotelman Fined, Loses License.

Chatham, Aug. 11.—Wm. Boyer, proprietor of the Montreal Hotel in Wallaceburg, was fined $200 and costs for selling liquor on Sunday, July 11. It was a third conviction and his license was cancelled. He threatens to appeal.

Fatally Shot.

Craik, Sask., Aug. 11.—Wilber Hubbard, a young farmer of the Long Lake district, was removing a gun from one boat to another when it went off, the whole charge entering his stomach. He died in an hour.

The Taxing of Travelers.

Ottawa, Aug. 11.—The old question of the right of a British country to tax commercial travelers, which has been often fought out here in Canada as between province and province, and city or town, crops up in a new form in New Zealand.

It appears, according to a report by Commissioner Larke to the Trade and Commerce Department that the Government of New Zealand is compelling Canadian travelers and commission agents to pay income tax upon the amounts of their sales to merchants in the new dominion. The matter will be brought before the congress of Chambers of Commerce of the Empire which is to meet in Sydney next month, with the view of securing some united action which will discriminate in favor of British traders.

Wheat Crop $112,000,000.

Minneapolis, Minn., Aug. 11.—Two prominent elevator men, F. O. Fowler and W. H. McWilliams, yesterday wired The Northwestern Miller an estimate of the wheat crop of the three provinces of western Canada, placing it at 112 and 110 million bushels respectively.

The indicated crop of 235 million bushels of wheat for Minnesota and North and South Dakota, is considered conservative here in grain circles. The milling quality is superior.

Cutting is quite general south and southwest of Minneapolis, with a little threshing this week in southern Minnesota. Rain only can harm the crop now.

Stockers and Feeders.

The market for stockers and feeders held steady at last Thursday's quotations.

Milkers and Springers.

There was a fair delivery of good to choice milkers and springers, that sold at last week's quotations. McDonald & Halligan sold 16 at $50 to $65 each, and 5 more, $55 to $60 each.

Veal Calves.

Receipts of veal calves were moderate, with prices a little firmer at $5 to $6 per cwt.

Sheep and Lambs.

Receipts of sheep and lambs were 916. Prices were easier for sheep and firmer for lambs, that is, the best lots. Sheep were quoted at $3.50 to $3.65; lambs, at $5.50 to $6 per cwt.

Hogs.

Mr. Harris quoted selects, fed and watered, at $7.90 and $7.65, f.o.b., cars, at country points.

H. P. Kennedy reports $7.65 for selects, fed and watered, and $7.40, f.o.b., cars, country points.

Farmer Killed by Engine.

Welland, Aug. 11.—Benjamin J. Patterson, perhaps the most popular farmer in South Pelham, was killed in front of his farm yesterday morning by being run over with a traction engine.

He was taking the machine to the farm of George Chambers, and placed the levers in charge of Walter Tunnacliffe. Mr. Patterson went out in front to oil the gearing, when he was struck on the top of the head by the pin of the piston. In falling he went under the large rear wheel. Death was instantaneous.

Desert Stock for Wheat.

Calgary, Aug. 11.—Burns, the pioneer meat packer of Alberta, states that farmers, attracted by $1 wheat, are selling off their cattle with a view to increasing their wheat areas. As a result the province will, if present methods of grain farming be continued, be forced to import beef within three years. Sheep have been imported from Australia and the United States for a number of years, and two-thirds of the bacon used in the province is purchased in the United States.

Coal Company Increase Output.

Glace Bay, Aug. 11.—A notable feature of the strike conditions from the Dominion Coal Co.'s point of view is that all local customers, including the steel plant, electric trams, ferries, cement plant, Dominion Tar & Chemical Co. and the wood factories and other industrial plants, have been kept full supplied with coal, and that an amply supply has always been found for domestic purposes. The company have still upwards of 175,000 tons at the hanking station.

MADE SHORT FLIGHTS.

Baddeck No. 1 Proves to Be In Fine Condition.

Petawawa Military Camp, Aug. 11.—Baddeck No. 1 aerodrome looks good to-day. At 7.20 last night she was taken out of her shed and given three trial runs of a quarter of a mile each across the country. No ascent was attempted, though, the aviators preferring to wait until to-day before making any flights. Only a few newspapermen besides the assistants were present. After a weary wait of nine days the patience of the newspapermen were rewarded at 7.10 o'clock last evening when Mr. Baldwin announced that Baddeck No. 1 would be taken out and given a few trials across the country. Shortly after 7.25 o'clock Mr. Baldwin mounted the seat and Mr. McCurdy started the propeller. The drome started off down the road beautifully, and within a couple of hundred yards had attained a speed of about fifteen miles per hour. The aviator then tested the feet of the engine, and after a successful stop another start was made. A couple of hundred yards more were covered, and then the machine was turned around. Mr. McCurdy this time took the seat, and Bill Macdonald, the mechanic, started her up. On the return a higher speed was made, and the drome and engine responded in a fine manner to every effort at control. Mr. Baldwin then suggested to Mr. McCurdy that a run across the country be made. Mr. McCurdy acquiesced, and the drome was headed across the plain, taking the bumps without any difficulty. About twenty miles an hour was the speed made on the last run. The drome was then returned to her shed for the night.

Japs May Visit Canada.

Ottawa, Aug. 11.—The news of the coming visit of Japanese merchants to the United States, a return visit by the way of the visit paid by U. S. merchants to Japan last year, has caught the eye of Sir Richard Cartwright, and he is moving to get the distinguished Japanese merchants to prolong their visit to America, so that they will tour Canada also.

Communications from Boards of Trade throughout Canada have been received at the office of the Minister of Trade and Commerce, urging that the Government co-operate with the merchants to the end that a proper invitation be extended to the Japanese merchants, and that their reception be such that they will be given every chance to see Canada industrially and socially.

In well-informed circles it is said that Hon. W. L. Mackenzie King is particularly anxious that the Japanese merchants should see Canada at her best.

Decline to Entertain Japs.

Seattle, Wash., Aug. 11.—As a result of the refusal of the officers of the New York, New Haven and Hartford Railroad to haul free of charge the special train bearing the delegation of Japanese business men, who are to tour America next month, it is probable that several large industrial towns along the line of the road in New England will be cut off from the itinerary of the excursionists.

In replying to the request that the railroads furnish free transportation over the line of the excursion the officers intimated that the visit of the Japanese business men would be of no political value to them, as their territory had no trade connection.

Five Shots Fired at Policeman.

Port Arthur, Aug. 11.—Early yesterday, when two city policemen were searching for a man for concealed weapons, five shots were fired on them from another quarter, none effective, and when the man was landed at the station, they found a new automatic 45 calibre Colt.

The striking freight handlers state there will be trouble if strikebreakers are brought in. Chief Andrews, C.P.R. police, Winnipeg, has arrived to take charge of the police work for the company here.

300 Egg Hen In Sight.

Niagara Falls, N.Y., Aug. 11.—The day of the 300-egg hen is close at hand, is the belief of the delegates to the American Poultry Association, now in convention here. The ordinary hen lays 50.

These officers were elected yesterday: President Chas. M. Bryant, Boston, Mass.; vice-presidents, L. H. Baldwin, Deer Park, Ontario, and C. K. Graham, Norfolk, Va.; secretary-treasurer, S. T. Campbell, Mansfield, Ohio.

Alas, Poor Evelyn.

New York, Aug. 11.—Evelyn Nesbit Thaw declared yesterday that there was no truth in the report that she would bring suit for $500,000 against her husband, Harry K. Thaw, or against any member of the Thaw family. She said, however, that her usual monthly remittance of $480 from her husband had not been received this month, that she was practically penniless, and did not know where her next dollar was coming from.

Prisoner Escapes.

Midland, Aug. 11.—Dehoe, the young man arrested Monday for forgery, escaped from the lock-up on Monday night. Yesterday a long bench was hanging from an upstair window by which means the prisoner had evidently escaped. It is a mystery to the authorities how he escaped from the cell with the door locked.

Toronto, Aug. 11.—Little Reginald E. Eaton, the 8-year-old son of John Eaton of Ashdale avenue, was drowned yesterday at noon while swimming in Coatsworth's cut. The little lad had just purchased a new bathing suit and was anxious to get into the water. He got beyond his depth and two companions who were fishing were unable to save him. One ran for help and the other marked the place where he went down. The body was recovered at 3.15 by Mait Ackroyd and taken to the home of the parents by P. C. Rapley of No. 3 division. They are prostrate with grief.

Englishman Will be Deported—Wm. Northcotte in Police Court This Morning Charged With Theft of a Bicycle—Has Been in Court Before.

HE WAS REMANDED

William Northcotte, who came from Sheffield, England, last December is to be deported. He appeared before Magistrate Dumble at the police court this morning, charged with the theft of a bicycle. It appears that Mr. T. Sabin left his bicycle standing a few minutes. Northcotte came along, jumped on it, and rode away. He returned in a few minutes. He was arrested by P. C. Meharry and placed under arrest. Northcotte said that he had not intended to steal the bicycle.

Mr. G. H. Howson, the local immigration agent, said that when he first saw the prisoner, Northcotte was drunk. He had been with four or five farmers, usually staying about a month with each one. His employers said that he was a good worker and are all willing to take him back.

Chief Rossel swore that the prisoner had been in court three times. He left Lindsay last Friday and came here. He had been drunk ever since. The Chief did not think that Northcottewou ld make a desirable citizen. He had a wife and two children in the Old Country.

His Worship remanded him for eight days and he will be remanded from time to time until the deporting officer arrives.

The Y. M. C. A. Directors Had a Banquet Last Night in Honour of Judge Roger, Who Has Long Been Connected With Association Work in This City

HE WILL BE GREATLY MISSED

In connection with the regular meeting of the Board of Directors of the Young Men's Christian Association last evening, the Directors met for tea at Hooper's through comopliment to His Honour Judge Roger, who will have to sever his connection with the Board on account of his removal to Cobourg. In replying to the many gratulatory remarks by Mr. Shook, the president and Messrs. Peck, Ackerman, McFarlane, Connal and Conway, His Honour expressed his appreciation of the fellowoship he has had in connection with the work of the Y. M. C. A. from its inception in Peterborough, and said that "he had got more out of the Association than he had ever put into it and that he would continue to be interested in the work of the Association in the city where he had spent so many years of his life."

After supper the Board adjourned to the Y.M.C.A. building to transact their business.

Regrets at being unable to attend were received from several of the Directors who are out of the city on business or vacation.

The resignation of Mr. G. W. Collings, physical director, who goes to the Y. M. C. A. Training School at Springfield, Mass., for a course of study was accepted to take effect September 1st.

Other routine business was transacted.

A FLIGHT TO-NIGHT

Baddeck No. 1 Was Given a Preliminary Trial This Morning and the Aeroplane Attained a Speed of 20 Miles an Hour Running Along the Ground.

THE OUTLOOK IS BRIGHT

Special to The Examiner (2.45 p.m.)

Petewawa Camp, Aug. 11.—Baddeck No. 1, the aeroplane from which Baldwin and McCurdy expect such great results, was given a preliminary trial this morning, running along the ground, but not rising into the air. With no other motor power than a big aingle propeller the airship attained a speed of about twenty miles per hour, and sped across the field for distances varying from one hundred to three hundred yards. Everything worked satisfactorily and aviators expect to make a flight this evening.

Mischievous Boys in North End Stretched Cable Across Roadway and Stopped Vehicles With a Bump—Automobile Was the First Victim.

MAY BE SOME TROUBLE

A number of North End boys, who seem to have a penchant for getting into trouble, amused themselves yesterday afternoon by stringing a cable across the Smith street bridge, a short distance from the ground, and then lying low to wait for developments. The latter were not long in coming. An automobile hove into sight and bore down on the wire, stopping with a jar that threatened to throw the occupants from the car. An investigation showed what the trouble was and the car succeeded in getting through. A farmer's team was stopped in the same way and then another vehicle bumped up against the wire before it was removed.

The boys are known to the authorities and are liable to get into trouble. Their prank might have caused a serious accident had a bicyclist happened to collide with the obstruction while moving fast. Fortunately no one was hurt, although there were some narrow escapes.

GIFT TO THE 57th BAND

Two Selections Received From the Band of the 19th Regiment of St. Catharines—Were Played Here at Special Concert Given.

WILL REQUIRE PRACTICE

Bandmaster Gilbert Gliddon of the 57th Band, has received from Bandmaster Peel of the 19th Regiment of St. Catharines the gift of two complete musical scores. One is the overture to Masaniello, by Auber, and the other is a fantasy, entitled "Souvenir de la Russie." It is a collection of Russian music, beautifully arranged. Both these selections were played in Peterborough and were well received. They are a present from the St. Kitts musicians to the 57th, as a memento of the visit here on May 24th and 25th. They will not be offered in concert here for some time.

TO HAVE A BEAUTIFUL SKIN
About one sixth of all the waste matter discharged from the human body passes through the pores of the skin. If the skin is to be kept beautiful the pores must be kept in healthful condition by bathing and by the use of Dr. Chase's Ointment which overcomes all chafing and irritations of the skin and cures pimples, eruptions and the many forms of eczema.

MOBBED YOUNG MEN

Six Fellows Fined in Police Court This Morning—Were Disorderly on Stewart Street on Sunday, July 18th—Attacked Three Young Fellows.

PAID THEIR FINES

For mobbing three fellows who escorted girls to their homes in the vicinity of the north end of the city on Sunday evening, July 18th, six young men were each fined two dollars at the police court this morning. They were charged with being disorderly on Stewart street. They pleaded not guilty. It appears that the defendants were accused of assaulting young fellows who went home with north end girls, and in order to live up to their reputation set in this Sunday night to mob the three from the other part of the city who had dared to encroach upon their rights.

They caught them, rolled them in the road, and, for some time there was great excitement. The residents went to see what the trouble was and testifying this morning as to the nature of it.

The boys all paid their fines.

NEW FORD MOTOR CAR

Alderman Gillespie Purchases 1909 Model T Touring Car Through Drummond & Duffus—Eighth Sold in City This Summer —A Handsome Auto.

THE ALDERMANIC FASHION

Alderman Gillespie received this morning a handsome Ford automobile, having purchased it through the local agency of Drummond & Duffus. It is a 1909 Model T touring car of dark green colour, is commodious and comfortable and in every sense is a splendid car. It was unloaded at Lindsay last night by Alderman Duffus and Mr. C. I. Fox, representative of the company.

Within a half an hour of the time the car was run out of the freight shed it was on the way to Peterborough just as if it had been running a week. Alderman Gillespie is the fourth of the city's alderman to obtain a motor car. The other three of the quartette are Aldermen Hicks, Bradburn and Duffus.

OTONABEE FARMER SUFFERED HEAVY LOSS BY FIRE YESTERDAY

Barns of Mr. Fred McIntyre, Near Mathers' Corners, Were Burned Down About Half Past Four Yesterday—Origin is a Mystery—This Year's Crop of Hay, Wheat, Clover and Barley Destroyed—Loss Over $2000.

The barns of Mr. Fred McIntyre, who resides one mile north of Mathers Corners in Otonabee, were destroyed by fire yesterday afternoon about four o'clock. How the fire originated cannot be ascertained. The barns, which had only been built a short time ago were completely swept away. The contents, which consisted of all this year's crop of hay, fall wheat, clover and barley, were burned as well as the implements and three head of cattle. As soon as the blaze was noticed every effort was put forth to fight the flames but the fire fighting appliances were not sufficient to save the building or the contents. The fire was fought by a bucket brigade but their work was of little avail.

The origin of the fire is unknown. Mr. McIntyre's loss will be heavy, amounting to over two thousand dollars. The loss will be partly covered by insurance.

Stony Lake Cottagers Take Part In Annual Tea Meeting

Special to The Examiner.

Crowe's Landing, Stony Lake, Aug. 11.—The annual tea meeting and concert of the Carmel Methodist Church in which the cottagers at this end of Stony Lake take an active part was held on Thursday evning of last week, and as usual proved a grand success. The attendance was very large, every island at the upper end of Stony Lake being represented, while many drove from Norwood, Warsaw, Lakefield and other points. The ladies of the congregation had prepared an elaborate repast and the cottagers and others present did ample justice to the many good things provided by the ladies, whose efforts were warmly commended on all sides.

Afterwards a very enjoyable programme was given in the church, the cottagers taking a prominent part. Every number was thoroughly appreciated and the enjoyment of the audience was indicated in no uncertain manner by the applause which followed each selection.

The programme was as follows:
Solo—Mr. J. E. Roxborough.
Address—Mr. W. Logan Craig.
Solo—Mrs. Gus Rapp, Cincinnati, O.
Solo—Miss Andrews.
Duett—Messrs. Doherty and Puffer.
Address—Mr. Rich Lees, County School Inspector.
Solo—Miss Ruby Jory.
Solo—Miss Una Duffield.
Solo—Mrs. Rapp.
Solo—Mr. Thomas Puffer.
Solo—Miss Jory.

Financially the affair was most successful.

Service was held in the pavilion here on Sunday evening conducted by Rev. Mr. Gibson. The attendance was large.

Mr. and Mrs. Rapp, of Cincinnati, Ohio, who have been spending the last three weeks here, left for their home in Cincinnati yesterday. They are very popular with everyone and will be greatly missed.

Mr. D. J. Lundy, of Peterborough, spent Sunday and the holiday the guest of Mr. R. J. Winch, of Yarrow Brae.

Mr. Leo. Young, of Peterborough, is spending his vacation at Bellevidere.

At McCracken's

This resort has a large number of guests at the present time. There are several from New York City and Rochester. Messrs. Bert Canniff, of Galt, and Stanley Canniff and W. Castor, of Peterborough, are holidaying at the Victoria House. They have the launch "Eko" with them.

Mr. and Mrs. Mansom Comstock and Miss Ethel Turner were guests at the Victoria House over Sunday and the holiday.

Messrs. W. Wareham, Ernie Tovey, Rollie Hunter and N. Greenhalgh, of the Belmont Club, Peterborough, are staying at the Victoria House.

Mr. and Mrs. Walker, Earl Walker and Frank Weaver, of Pittsburg, Pa., are spending a holiday at "Woodside," Kawartha Park.

Fell From Top Of Box Car And Left Arm Was Seriously Injured

James Craighead, a brakesman on the C. P. R. was brought to the Nicholls Hospital last evening suffering from severe injuries which he received in an accident at Central Ontario Junction yesterday afternoon. He fell off the rear end of a box, lighting on his left hand with all his weight. He was brought to Peterborough and taken to Nicholls Hospital in the Dan Spence ambulance, where, upon examination, Dr. Young found that the arm was broken above the elbow and just above the wrist. The bones were badly broken and he may have to have the arm amputated.

HUSBAND, HELPLESS AND ALONE, DESERTED BY WIFE WHO STRIPPED HOUSE OF FURNITURE

An unusual case of desertion has been brought to light in the south end by the authorities, but the name of the family is withheld upon the request of those who are trying to readjust matter or to at lease make the husband's condition easier if possible and more comfortable. A woman stated to Mr. Finch Miller on Saturday that she was going to leave her husband. He thought she was speaking lightly and did not pay much attention to her. "Wait till you see if I don't," she stated. "If you go down there on Tuesday you will find me gone."

Mr. Miller dropped the remembrance for a time, but on Monday it kept recurring to him and that evening he thought he would go down to the house in order to make sure that everything was all right. The house was deserted. The furniture had all been removed and nothing remained to break the monotony of the bare walls and ceiling. The rooms sounded empty and untenanted as the footsteps were re-echoed from hall to dining room and on through the house. Mr. Miller found that the woman carried out her threat.

Upstairs the husband, who suffers from paralysis and cannot move hand or foot was lying on the one lonely bed helpless and forsaken. He had not the power to even toss his head from side to side if he so wished, and this was apparently the woman's reason for deserting her spouse.

She had not looked for the "worse" part of the marriage bond to be hers and the burden which has been placed upon her by her husband's illness and incapacitation became irksome and hard ceaseless work was all that faced her. The duty she did not expect but which she cheerfully accepted was brought hime to her and she was unequal to it. The desertion was a heartless one and had apparently been completed that day. The house was stripped of its furniture with the exception of the one bed and it is not known what became of the articles. It is understood that the several children are with friends. Others are looking after the husband and something will likely be done to secure a proper place for him.

Fishing At Burleigh Falls Is Excellent Just Now

Burleigh Falls, Aug. 10.—The Park hotel has been the scene of much activity during the past week. Ninety five guests were there and every one has had a thoroughly enjoyable time. The young people have held nightly hops in the pavilion and picnics and shore dinners have been the order of the day. The fishing, too, has been excellent.

Mr. Harry A. Epstein, of Rochester, N.Y., who spent the past week with his family, who are summering at Burleigh, had several fine catches, one bass weighing five pounds. Mr. Lubeck and wife of Rochester, N.Y., have returned after two weeks stay at Burleigh Falls. They were very successful at fishing, getting their limit. Their largest lunge weighed 18 pounds, and their biggest bass tipped the scales at 4¾ pounds.

A young lady stopping with Mrs. J. Blewett was driving a horse the other day when the animal became frightened and she was unable to hold it. However, it was caught before it got far.

The following guests are registered at the Park Hotel, Burleigh Falls: P. K. Reid, R. E. Reid, R. W. Durtin, F. H. Scott, F. S. Dayer, Pittsburg, Pa. Arthur Brown, Misses S. Brown and E. Brown, Toronto; W. J. Samuels, wife and three boys, E. H. Turner, W. F. Gibson, J. D. Hurford, M. Pettitt, Youngstown, Ohio; John Madill, Mr. and Mrs. Chas. M. Mickel, Toronto, J. W. Stephenson and wife, Natrona, Pa.; John W. and R. E. Grove, and A. J. Soden, Pittsburg, J. M. Knox, Kilkinsburg, A. Hamilton, Jas. Elliott, Beaverton; M. Fanning, Toronto; J. B. Hall, Waterloo; Alex. Hall, Toronto; P. H. Coad, Saskatoon; J. W. Whitworth, Toronto; H. A. Middleton, Lindsay; E. A. Gordon, Toronto, and G. N. Gordon, Peterborough; Mr. and Mrs. F. W. Constantine, Buffalo; Thos. H. Ross, Jersey City; F. D. Cooper and wife, Buffalo; A. E. Richmond, Buffalo, N. Y.; M. M. Brown, and N. Greene, Peterborough.

DARING CONVICT REFUSES TO STAY CAPTURED

For Second Time Joe Smith Tricks His Captors and is Again at Large—Got Close to Gangway of Steamer in Order to Get a Better View of the Scenery and Surprised Everyone by Jumping Overboard—Reached Shore in Safety and is Now a Free Man Again.

Huntsville, Ont., Aug. 10.—Joe Smith, the convict who recently made the sensational escape from the Bracebridge jail by covering his clothes with whitewash and walking through the streets as a summer tourist, has added another to his list of novel escapades. This time his act was more daring, and equally successful, and gives him a new claim to fame as an expert evader of the law, by unexpected tricks.

His Claim to Champion.

Joe's chief claim to fame hitherto lay in the unique idea conceived while a convict at the district gaol, of transforming his convict trousers into lily white "ducks" by a coating of whitewash, applied when the jailer supposed he was whitewashing the fence. He escaped and his personification of the modern tourist was so perfect that he travelled about the Main street of Bracebridge enjoying all the privileges granted to summer visitors. He wended his way to Huntsville, where he took to the woods. No serious effort has since been made to arrest him until in response to complaints reaching here from the Lake of Bays District that chicken coops were being mysteriously depleted, a special officer was despatched to the scene. Smith was found in a boat on the lake and submitted to arrest without serious opposition. A despatch was sent to police headquarters here announcing the arrest, and asking that the prisoner be met on the arrival of the afternoon boat.

Leaped from Steamer.

Chief Watson was on hand. But "Joe" was conspicuously absent when the boat pulled in. The story was told by the disappointed deputy. Just after the boat had pulled under the railway bridge and within 500 yards of the station wharf, Smith and his captor were on the lower deck discussing the delightful scenery. The prisoner edged his way a little nearer to the gangway to get a better glimpse of the beautiful shore line, when suddenly he mounted the edge of the boat and leaped into the water. He reached shore in safety and the last the disconcerted officer and passengers saw of Joe he was gliding into the surrounding forest. There is a general feeling here that this agile prisoner has fully earned his liberty, but the law officers are not so sure that Joe may not yet be safely returned to his erstwhile abode at Bracebridge.

Chemong Regatta To-morrow Should Be Great Success

The annual regatta at Chemong Park will be held to-morrow afternoon and promises to be the biggest in a long list of successes. Every arrangement has been made by the committee in charge, and the affair should be most enjoyable and interesting. There is a long list of acquatic sports to be run off and as the high banks of the park afford a splendid view of the entire course there it is an ideal programme as far as the spectators are concerned, while the contestants, like the straightaway course course, without the troublesome turn that bothers so many.

Coming on the week half-holiday, as it does, the regatta will afford a pleasant method of spending the afternoon for Peterborough people, and the usual big attendance from the city is loked for. Arrangements are being made for a good transportation service between Peterborough and Chemong, and no doubt very many Peterborough people will avail themselves of the opportunity to have a pleasant afternoon at Chemong Park. There will be an excursion from Stony Lake and from other points.

In the evening the presentation of prizes and a grand dance will be held in the pavilion affording a fitting climax to the events of the day. Good music is being secured and a most enjoyable evening may be anticipated.

NEW OFFICES OF THE G. WALTER GREEN CO., LTD.

A Long-Felt Want Now Well Supplied—Business Growth Warranted the Change.

The new offices which have been in course of construction for the G. Walter Green Co., Limited, Founders and Machinists, McDonnel street west are now ready for occupancy. They are conveniently situated across from the former offices, and are well adapted for general head offices for the company. The building has been divided into four rooms—two in front and two in rear. The business offices and Mr. Green's private office occupy the front of the building, and a large drafting room for the superintendent and a safe and vault room occupy the rear. These offices present a well arranged interior for facilitating the rapidly increasing business of the company. The comfort and convenience of bookkeepers and stenographers have been specially considered, and all the rooms well lighted and ventilated. The new counters, desks, office furniture and filing cabinets have been specially fitted in position, and all the walls and ceilings papered, and woodwork painted in suitable shades. The office staff are to be congratulated on their pleasant change from their former cramped and noisy quarters.

SWIMMING AND DROWNING.

The epidemic of deaths by drowning that has prevailed during the whole summer, and which recent fatalities have brought home to us, emphasises the importance of learning the life-saving art of swimming. It goes without saying that everybody who goes upon the water—in steamer, skiff, canoe, launch, or otherwise, or in the water for bathing should know how to swim, an art as easily learned by an adult as walking is by an infant. It is thought by many that a knowledge of swimming is instinctive in land animals, such as horses, dogs, cats, etc., but it is probably not a natural gift. An animal, say a kitten, thrown into the water, instinctively employs the motions of walking, and, lo, it is swimming without knowing it, of course, rapidly gaining skill with practice. A human being with his or her superior intelligence can certaindo what a dumb animal does without special instruction. Swimming prudently pursued is a wholesome, as it is a delightful, exercise and is well worth while aside from its being an important factor in life saving. In case of aciodent in the water, the capsising of a canoe or other craft, the ability to take a few swimming strokes to reach a support, may make all the difference between life and death. A few days ago a gasoline launch took fire at Brockville. Fortunately all the occupants, men, women and children, could swim and swam ashore. Otherwise they would all have been roasted alive. In stating that no one who cannot swim, should go upon the water, especially in a canoe, is not to discourage a pleasant form of pastime. Learn to swim and then, in case of accident, one may save his own life without imperillig the lives of others.

SASKATCHEWAN.

The Examiner has received, with the compliments of the Commissioner of Agriculture, a copy of "Saskatchewan, Canada," a beautifully printed and plentifully illustrated pamphlet. It is issued to give some idea of the resources of the province, its fertility, its resources in the matter of soil, grain, fruit, stock, timber, game, etc. The beautiful photogravures illustrate the progress of the province. For instance, in one picture are grouped the original log shack, the succeeding frame house and the palatial permanent brick and stone residence. On one page is pictured the residence of a retired farmer as "grand" in appearance as may be seen in the residence streets of a metropolitan city. The pictures of the harvest fields, the farmsteads, the landscapes, parks, lumber mills, elevators, gold dredges and ranching scenes indicate the variety of the resources of Saskatchewan, one of the newest provinces. The increase of population and accompanying development have been rapid. The rural population greatly exceeds the urban. In 1906 Saskatchewan had 4 cities, 24 towns and 71 villages. To-day it has four cities, 42 incorporated towns and 92 incorporated villages. The book in fine contains all kinds of information likely to be of interest to those who want to seek a new home, where the conditinos combine to make prosperity, with reasonable industry and prudence, a certainty and wealth getting a matter of work and utilisation of the resources of a soil of prodigious fertility.

GOVERNMENT HELPS FARMERS

No other class of the community has more reason to be grateful to the fostering care of the Dominion Government than the farming class; and due to this attention, Canada occupies an enviable position of preference in the old world markets. One of the essentials demanded in these markets is quality. The Liberal Minister of Agriturture has taken steps to not only help increase the production of farms, orchards and ranches, but to secure better quality of all products with the result that the demands for the products of Canadian farms is on the increase, Hon. Mr. Fisher, with this object in view, procured legislation providing for the inspection of meats intended for export and canned fruits. The marks of the inspectors, "Canada; approved," has become a household word throughout Great Britain.

One of the most important results which may be attributed to the policy of the Government in relation to agriculture is very frequently lost sight of The indirect benefits which have resulted to the trade in food products are in many cases of more importance than the direct benefits which are more generally spoken of.

As an example take the cool curing of cheese. The illustrations of the system conducted by the department have not only had the result of encouraging a large number of cheese factories to adopt this improved system, but by the prominence which has been given the question of lower temperature in the curing of cheese, the importance of low temperature at other stages of dairy manufactures has been emphasized. The use of ice on farms and improved cold storage have been very marked during the past few years.

Dairymen have been taught to appreciate the value of low temperature when transporting dairy products. Previous to the time when the department commenced the supervision of shipment of perishable products very little attention was paid to the matter; either by the shippers or the consignees, or the transportation companies.

The publicity which has resulted from a careful system of inspection has had the effect of educating those who are interested in such matters to a marked degree, and a service is insisted upon now which was not thought of a few years ago.

The work conducted by the department upon the lines of the enlightened policy outlined here cannot be judged by immediate results. The educational influence which prefaces the way for better work in the future is of the greatest importance. The benefits which are derived from the expenditure in this connection accrue indefinitely, and the good work goes on.

The administration of the fruit marks act has been of immense value to the fruit trade of Canada. English dealers now have more confidence in the marking and packing of Canadian apples, and the result is seen in the difference in price between the Canadian and American apples. Canadian apples bring a higher price in the British market than American ones, in consequence of the better quality of the goods, the superior transportation service, and the improvements in packing.

EDITORIAL NOTES.

If Baddeck II. doesn't fly the paragraphers are ready to say that it is a Bad-egg, anyway.

The despatches say that the West wants Sir Wilfrid. Nothing remarkable in that; the whole country wants him.

Mr. McGuigan is booked for the management of the industries at the Soo. It is now up to the punster of the Toronto Star to remark that he is Soo-ted to the position.

One of the best things about the present position in Canada, remarks the Montreal Herald, is our unanimous adoption of the don't care a darn attitude towards American tariff making.

Premier Sir James Whitney, having failed in the mining business, has now set up as a hotel keeper. A Government official has been placed in charge of the Hotel Royal, Bobcaygeon, whose landlord recently shot his wife.

There is considerable family resemblance in air ships. They all fly more or less and all seem to have the faculty of alighting with more or less emphasis and general safety to the bones of the crews.

Port Arthur is to have a public meeting to consider the question of the secession of the northern part of this province and the erection of it into a new province. The cause of this action is said to be the objection to the forest policy of the Whitney Government. Tthe north country evidently wants to get control of its forest wealth before the Government dissipates it.

The present British cabinet is said to be the youngest ministry which ever conducted the affairs of state. The ages of its members, in the order of juniority, is as follows: Mr. Churchill, 35; Mr. Runciman, 39; Mr. Samuel, 39; Mr. Harcourt, 46; Mr. McKenna, 46; Mr. Lloyd-George, 46; Sir Edward Grey, 47; Lord Pentland, 49; Lord Crewe, 51; Mr. Burns, 51; Mr. Haldane, 53; Mr. Gladstone, 55; Mr. Buxton, 56; Mr. Asquith, 57; Mr. Birrell, 59; Lord Carrington, 66; Lord Lereburn, 66; Lord Moreley, 71; and Lord Wolverham, 79. The average age of the members of the cabinet is just under 57, while eight out of the nineteen are under 50.

Tgronto is to be the meeting place of the churches of Methodism throughout the world. In October, 1911, there will converge in the Queen City hundreds of delegates, representing Methodism, for the purpose of recording its progress, estimating the work and character of its varied activities and gathering strength and inspiration for its future work. The meetings are decennial, the last having been in London, the second at Washington, and the first also in London. The statistics for 1908 show that in Britain, Canada, the United States and Australia, Methodist membership totalled close on nine millions. There are now 52,000 adherents in its churches. It has built 96,000 separate places of worship and 7,000,000 children are taught every Sunday in its schools. Canada is one of the strongholds of Methodism, of its population of between six and seven million, nearly one-sixth belonging to that church.

The members of the House of Lords, the-born-in-the purple "representatives," have, to their minds, good reasons for not liking Lloyd George's budget. After centuries of immunity, of relief from bearing their share of the burden of national maintenance, it comes hard for them to do the fair thing. Take, for instance, Lord Tredegar, who, we are told, owns 40,000 acres of land. A mile of railway runs through Tredegar Park. It is the richest bit of line in the country—too Lord Tredegar—who neither built it nor owns it, but he levies a toll on the coal and iron which passes over it to the amount, as was admitted before a parliamentary committee in 1906 of £12,300 a year. He uses his power as a land monopolist to impose this fine upon industry, and, like many of his class, is bitterly opposed to any proposal that he should make some little return to the public treasury for benefits received. The threat of the Lords to kill the budget has a good deal the appearance of hari-kari.

CANADA'S IRON DEPOSITS

(London Advertiser.)

In a volume recently issued by the Dominion Department of Mines, some interesting information is given as to the consumption and supply of iron ore. A statement prepared by a member of the departmental staff, Mr. F. Hille, M.E., shows that the utilization of low-grade iron ore in the United States is rapidly increasing. for this three causes are assigned—the convinience with which low-grade mines can be worked, the exhaustion of high-grade ores, and the reservation of high-grade ores, the latter being considered the least influential factor n the case.

In Mr. Hille's opinion, low-grade ores will be very much more largely utilized in the future than in the past. According to an estimate made by a Swedish authority, Professor Toonebohm, the present iron ore reserves of the United States total 1,100,000,000 tons, so that if the present rate of increase of consumption is maintained, the ore supplies of the republic will disappear before the close of the second decade of the present century.

However near the mark the estimate may be, it is certain that sooner or later the iron supplies of the United States must become exhausted. In view of that, the report that the United States Steel Corporation has agents at present prospecting in North Ontario, British Columbia, and elsewhere in Canada, is not surprising. It no doubt also accounts for the attention being paid by the department of mines to the iron ore deposits of Canada, as shown by its latest report. Mr. Hille expresses the belief that if an estimate were made of what is already known of the iron ore reserves in the Dominion, this country would stand very high, if not first, among the nations of the world as a prospective iron-producing country. He sees no reason for doubting that in the Thunder Bay or Rainy River districts there will be found the duplicates of the great ore beds that have made famous the portions of the Lake Superior region. Mr. Hille deals with the Mattawin Range, the deposits of the Atikokan River, where the ores are magnetic, and the red hematite of the Animike rocks. The fact that water power abounds in that region is of immense importance, seeing that electric smelting is almost a necessity for ores in the Mattawin Range. The Atikokan deposits are classed as magnetic, and described as a counterpart of the Sudbury nickeliferous pyrrhotite deposits. Tests show as high as 62 per cent. of iron contents, and the ore is being used in the blast furnace at Port Arthur.

The development of the iron deposits of this and other provinces of the Dominion cannot now be long delayed, and with that development will doubtless come a most substantial expansion of the iron manufacturing industry of the country.

NECESSARY FOR THE FAMILY

If health is to be maintained there must be at hand in every household a medicine which can be positively relied upon to regulate the liver, kidneys and bowels. Dr. Chase's Kidney-Liver Pills have proven their right to first place in this regard, and already hold a secure position in the great majority of homes.

INTERESTING BUDGET OF NEWS FROM LAKEFIELD

Mr. and Mrs. H. Moore and Master Rexford spent the holiday at Millbrook.

Mr. Chas. Blomfield, Jr., who has been on a trip to England to shoot as an unattached marksman at the Bisley meet, returned to Lakefield last week. Mr. Blomfield did not have the good fortune to annex any of the prizes at that world-famed contest, but he reports having a good time. Canada, he says, notwithstanding the many excellences of England, is good enough for him.

Rev. A. W. Mackenzie conducted both services at St. John Baptist church on Sunday last.

The Daily Examiner has already published an account of the accident to little Florence Mackenzie, the youngest daughter of Mr. A. W. Mackenzie. At last reports the child was getting along splendidly.

Messrs Stuart Fraser and Charles Blomfield spent Sunday at Lovesick Lake.

A very sad drowning accident occourred here on Saturday last, when Dulmer, the five year old son of Mr. A. Northey, was drowned at the dock. The child was missing during the afternoon and no trace of him could be found until three o'clock on Sunday morning, when the little body was found at the bottom of the river. ## NOAH WAS BLACKBALLED

Detroit, Mich.—The Society of Naval Architects rejected Noah for honorary membership, when his name was proposed as the father of the ship designing profession. The reason given was "that Noah was a gamekeeper and not a ship designer primarily".

It all depends on the point of view. It is the same with "Fruit-a-tives".

Some people take "Fruit-a-tives" for Constipation and Biliousness. Others use them for Stomach Troubles and Dyspepsia. Still others find "Fruit-a-tives" an excellent tonic and blood purifier. Many more say that "Fruit-a-tives" are the best Kidney Regulator and a certain cure for Neuralgia and Rheumatism. For all these troubles, "Fruit-a-tives" may be said to be infallible.

Everywhere in Canada — in the crowded city—on the lonely prairie—in fishing villages and mining camps—people depend on "Fruit-a-tives" to cure them and keep them well.

"Fruit-a-tives" are sold by all dealers at 50c a box, 6 for $2.50, or trial size, 25c —or sent postpaid on receipt of price by Fruit-a-tives Limited, Ottawa, Ont.

Corn is reported to be an excellent crop throughout this section of the country, oats, also, are a much better crop than last year.

Up to Snuff.

A man in workman's garb one day called at a local dentist's, and the door was opened by a maid.

Workman—Is the gent in that draws teeth?

Servant—No, sir, but I expect he will be in shortly.

Workman (pausing on doorstep)—Does he give gas?

"Yes."

"What does he charge?"

"One dollar."

"What—one dollar! Do you mean to say, miss, a fellow's got to swallow over 1,000 feet of gas to have one tooth pulled out? No fear. I reckon I knows a bit about it, for I work down at the gas works myself. I'll go to another dentist and have it pulled out without gas."—Exchange.

Not Interested.

"I have called," said the book agent, "to see if I can interest you in a little work"—

"Young man," snapped the woman who answered the door, "just now I am interested in washing my dishes, dusting, cleaning up after the paperhanger, making six beds, polishing the hardwood floors, ironing my husband's shirts, getting two more meals today, darning nine pairs of stockings and stringing my sweet peas, and I might say that that's more work than you men ever thought of doing. No; you can't interest me in any more."—Detroit Free Press.

The Alaska Salmon Yield.

Seattle, Wash., Aug. 11.—Detailed reports from Alaska salmon canneries show that in the Bristol Bay district there is a decrease of 116,936 cases this year as compared with last year. The 1909 pack, however, shows an increase over that of 1907 of 342,000 cases.

A BEAUTY HINT.

How to Improve the Sallow Skin Without Medication.

The lucky possessor of a peach and cream complexion need not bother her head about what she wears on what she eats, but the girl of orange hue must consider both dress and diet if she would not resemble an exhumed mummy or a heap of saffron.

The sallow girl should look to her liver rather than to powder for light enlightener, complexion. A half lemon in a glass of water morning and evening and several quarts of plain water between will paint the cheeks better than the rouge pot.

Coffee must be cut off the sallow girl's list; so also should strong tea and too much chocolate. Rich foods, too many sweets and above all, hot breads should be shunned.

Fruit in season and out is the boon of the yellow head. Stint on everything else before you cut down your allowance of oranges and apples from the daily menu. The only possible exception in the fruit line is seedy berries, which are often too acid and clog the intestines. Quite as important as diet is becoming dress. Some girls with a skin like a clay bank persist in wearing ecrus, purples and greens.

Reds can generally be worn by the sallow girl, most shades of blue and, above all, a soft rose pink. The fancy for brown, which is prevalent with sallow women, while a better choice than ecru, does not give enough contrast unless high lights are there in whites.

White never fails to be becoming, as it seems to clear up the muddiest skin. It must be pure white, however, without a tinge of cream.

The woman with olive complexion will find the narrow line of black velvet ribbon that is now worn with evening gowns a positive boon. The black velvet up against the face—the band should be worn high on the throat—tends to whiten and clear her skin and makes possible a frock of a bad color. Gold beads should be chastely worn by the sallow girl. Certain tones of gold are hideously unbecoming, though the pale lemon tint is not out of the question.

One cannot lay down hard and fast rules as to color. To say blue is becoming does not mean Alice or porcelain tints, nor does the same shade of blue look well on every sallow person.

There is but one way to definitely know what can be worn. Test it in every light. Do not trust to your own judgment, but have with you an unbiased friend who is honest enough to say what she thinks.

Let no clever person tempt you by flattery into thinking you can wear with impunity colors that would try a milk and roses skin.

NEEDLEWORK NOTES.

When doing fine hand work keep a saucer of cornstarch near by, occasionally dip the fingers into it and wipe them with a soft towel.

A great amount of crossbar goods are used in women's underwear. Being so durable, it is highly recommended. There are medium heavy kinds and one variety more dressy because of the sheer material. This is, strange to say, generally embroidered, although nightgowns are usually lace trimmed.

When sewing many women place a needle in the machine and use that one needle for all kinds of work with all kinds of thread, from No. 50 machine thread to the very finest. This makes an ugly stitch, often a thread loop from time to time. Always use a fine needle with thread used to tuck fine lingerie. The stitch is smoother, and the goods do not have the large holes made by an extra large needle.

Charming little bootees of white kid are made for the baby and embroidered with the featherstitch in pink or blue silk. The patterns for the diminutive boots are the same as that used for the knitted slippers of older people. First the tiny sole is cut, then the upper. The one is sewed to the other, the seam is fastened at the heel, and the top is bound in ribbon. The feather or brier stitching is then put all around the seams and just below the ribbon binding, and baby's shoes are finished.

An excellent way of making children's bib aprons is by using the regular yoke patterns, cutting the back deep enough so that a narrow piece of the goods comes under the arm. Instead of the same depth yoke in front, cut the material as long as the child's dress, rounding the goods at the side if you prefer. Join the back yoke to the front piece, cut the sleeves and sew in. Face the yoke, neck and sides with bias strips of the material. Two buttons will be sufficient for the back. When finished you will have a bib that not only entirely covers the front of the child's dress, but also protects the sleeves.

Prizes at a Bridge Party.

How quaint are the Saxony china baskets or pots with remarkable rims of French gilt from which festoons of roses hang in contrast to the pure white of the china! These were the prizes at a recent bridge party, and in each bloomed a sturdy little plant of pink bachelor's buttons, as pretty a flower as one could wish to see in its springlike suggestiveness.

Where "Uncle Tom" Was Written.

The old Kennedy homestead at Covington in which Harriet Beecher Stowe wrote the first chapters of "Uncle Tom's Cabin" is to be torn down.

The house was built in 1787, with loopholes and lookouts. The heavy oak doors and window shutters still bear heavy indentations made by tomahawks, and dozens of arrowheads are still imbedded in hewn log sides.

Father's Opinion.

"Would you marry a somnambulist?" he asked.

"Then father must have been right," she replied. "He said you were asleep on your feet."—Chicago Record-Herald.

CANADIAN IN LONDON.

Journalist Tells of His Arrival in the Metropolis.

The following brief account of his arrival and welcome in London and of his first night in the world's capital, was handed in at the Daily Chronicle office by a Canadian journalist who had gone to England in search of work:—

"I arrived in England on Saturday last, having worked a passage as cattleman from Montreal. I had no money to draw from the shipping company (having walked aboard the vessel without going through the formality of obtaining the owners' leave), and I was therefore compelled to walk from Tilbury Docks.

"First impressions do not go for much with me, but from Tilbury to London is the worst stretch of scenery I've ever struck. It was a long and tiring walk, and when I reached Fleet street—about which I had heard so much—everybody except the inaccessible sub-editors had either just gone or was just going for the holidays.

"I had a Canadian quarter in my pocket, and an obliging firm of money changers gave me an English shilling for it—more than they ought to have done, I believe. I went to a neighboring restaurant and did myself well for 8d. Then I had a shave, which left me with 2d.

"Having heard much about the horrors of the Embankment, I determined to spend the night here. It was now nearly 10 o'clock, and as I walked along by the black river I was painfully struck by the contrast between the magnificence of this wonderful boulevard and the ugliness of its frequenters' poverty.

"Men and women slept in corners of the seats, and their huddled figures gave them the appearance of having become parts of the fixtures. All the time motor-cars whizzed by, and the feet of the hansom cab horses taptapped along the roadway.

"I sat down to rest, and soon began to doze fitfully, conscious even in my sleep that it was growing cold. Suddenly I felt a heavy hand on my shoulders, and the rays from a policeman's lantern dazzled my eyes.

"'Come, wake up; you can't sleep 'ere!' It was a police officer; and his gaze followed me curiously as I walked in the direction of the Parliament House.

"Under an arch stood a coffee-stall bearing the following inscription:

Coffee, 1-2d.
Slice, 1-2d.

"The brightly polished urn hissed an invitation which I resisted as long as possible. But I was wet and hungry, and the early morning hour (it was nearly 1 a.m.) was bitterly cold. How good that slice tasted! How delicious the coffee! I stayed quite a long time at the stall, for the man was communicative, and discoursed on the Budget, the lady suffragette, and international cricket.

"Then I made my way to the Charing Cross Railway Station, and, being fairly well dressed, was allowed to sleep unmolested in a waiting-room. When I awoke it was daylight, and the sun streamed through the window. I still had a penny in my pocket, and, as Oliver Twist reflected, 'a penny is a very comfortable thing to have.'

"And I was in London—the richest, the poorest, the happiest, the wretchedest city in the world. Shall I succeed? I wonder."

A NOVEL POLICEMAN.

Story About a Sagacious Dog and His Master's Money.

One day a man laid a wager with his friend that if he were to hide a silver half dollar in the dusty road his dog would find it and bring it to him. The wager was accepted and the coin secreted. When the two had walked some distance from the hidden coin the owner called his dog, explained that he had lost something and ordered him to find it. The dog turned back, while the two friends continued their walk.

Meanwhile a traveler driving along the deserted road saw the silver piece shining through the dust and picked it up and put it in his coat pocket just as the dog came to the spot. The man re-entered his phaeton and drove to the inn, closely followed by the dog. The dog scented the coin in the man's pocket and made wild leaps at him to obtain it, but the man, supposing the animal had taken a fancy to him and wanted a master, gave the dog food and caresses and took him to his bedchamber for the night. No sooner had the man undressed than the dog seized the coat and made for the door. The man opened the door to see if any one was without, when the dog bounded through the hall and did not stop until, coat in mouth, he reached his master's house. The traveler followed and accused the dog of robbery. "My dog is a very faithful creature, and if he ran away with your coat it is because you have money in your pocket which does not belong there."

The traveler grew angry, but when the master explained the burial of the half dollar and the dog's desire to find it he understood and cheerfully gave up the money, saying as he patted the dog, "You are indeed a novel policeman."—Philadelphia Ledger.

The Effect of Rats as Food.

The Lahore (India) Tribune quotes a Chinaman's explanation of the use of rats for food purposes as follows:

"What a carrot is to a horse's coat a rat is to the human hair. Neither fact can be explained, but every horseman knows that a regimen of carrots will make his stud smooth and lustrous as velvet, and the Chinese, especially the women, know that rats used as food stop the falling out of hair and make the locks soft, silky and beautiful. I have seen it tried many times."

Said the House-owner:

"Give me ten gallons of "English" Liquid White Paint.

"No, Sir! I won't take any other kind.

"Yes, that other paint may possibly be good paint, but if it is all right in every way, why don't the makers tell you, and tell me, frankly, what they are trying to sell us—namely, what is in the paint.

"I always use "English" Liquid Paint because the guarantee formula is on the can telling me that it is made of 70% white lead, 30% zinc white, pure linseed oil, pure turpentine and dryer. I know this formula is the standard in paint making and I know that I am taking no chance when I use that kind of paint."

"English" Liquid Paint made by Brandram-Henderson Limited, is very economical to use. Come in for a color card. 4

Ex-Convict Shoots Juryman.

Middletown, N.Y., Aug. 11.—D. A. Fenton, proprietor of the Elberton Hotel, was shot and fatally wounded on the street yesterday. His assailant, an ex-convict named McSorley of New York, then inflicted a fatal wound in his head. Fenton said he once sat a jury that sent McSorley to prison.

Judge Condemns Women's Jail.

Montreal, Aug. 11.—In sentencing two women to the Kingston Penitentiary yesterday to terms of two years, for robbing a man of $1,500, Judge Choquet made some severe comments on the women's jail in Montreal. He declared it was a "house of corruption."

Determined Suicide.

St. Thomas, Aug. 11.—Earl Gillett, the 23-year-old son of Mr. and Mrs. Orlando Gillett, farmers residing near Sparta, committed suicide by taking Paris green, afterwards knocking himself on the head with a heavy hammer.

MR. JOS. MANTELL IS VISITING FRIENDS

One Hundred Years of Age and is Now in London, Having Travelled Alone

Mr. Jos. Mantell, one of London's pioneers, who is now living in Peterborough, is visiting at the residence of Mr. H. Colquhoun, 9 Duke street, in South London.

Mr. Mantell left this city about 28 years ago, having lived here for about half a century. He is now 100 years of age and is hale and hearty.

Mr. Mantell speaks very interestingly of London in the earlier days, and says that about 75 years ago he could have purchased the site of the city hotel for a pair of boots. The land did not appear to be worth that much at the time and the deal was never closed.

Any gentleman who would make an offer many thousands of dollars better than that to-day would probably receive the boots, and swiftly.—London Advertiser.

WEDDING BELLS

WRIGHT—TEBB

A very quiet wedding was solemnized at the Gilmour Baptist Parsonage, when Miss Mary Banks, third daughter of Richard Tebb, of Smith, was united in the holy bonds of matrimony to Charles Burton Wright, of Peterborough. The ceremony was performed by the Rev. J. B. Bonnar. The happy couple will reside in Peterborough.

CLARK TAMBLIN

The marriage of Mr. Norman Clark to Miss Agnes Tamblin was quietly celebrated yesterday at St. Andrew's Manse by Rev. W. J. Bennett. They were attended by Mr. F. Horsman and Miss Jennie Mindel.

WHEELER—SHORT

The marriage oto Mrs. Short, of Lakefield, to Mr. George Wheeler, East City, was quietly solemnized at the home of the bride's brother, Mr. Geo. Doxon in Kinmount yesterday.

Mr. and Mrs. Wheeler will reside in East City.

TAFFEY—TURNBOLL.

A quiet but pretty wedding was solemnized yesterday afternoon at a o'clock in the presence of the friends of the contracting parties, when Mr. Lester Toffey, of Portland, was united in marriage to Miss Ellen Isabella Turnbull, of Kingston. The ceremony took place at the home of Mr. and Mrs. Jospeh Turnbull of this city, 485 Patterson street. Rev. W. C. Riddiford, of Park Street Baptist Church, officiated.

Nervous People

SALT OF THE EARTH

But when overstrained their highly strung systems give way and depression and suffering is intense.

Money is made these days at the expense of brain and nerve rather than muscular tissues.

The successful men and women are often of the highest strung nervous type—keen and active—but with two little reserve force.

A little extra worry and anxiety and snap goes the nervous system. Weeks and months are often required before energy and vigour are regained.

Rest helps, so does fresh air and exercise but the blood must also be made rich and red by the use of such treatment as Dr. Chase's Nerve Food.

Much as they may disagree on some points the best physicians are unanimous in claiming that an abundance of rich, red, life-sustaining nerve invigorating blood is positively necessary for the restoration of the exhausted nervous system.

There is too often little sympathy for the nervous sufferer. When as a matter of fact his sufferings are most intense, being of mind as well as body.

Headaches, neuralgia, indigestion, sleeplessness, irritability, pains and cramps are often the lesser felt because of the depressed spirits and discouragements which come with loss of memory and gloomy forebodings of the future.

The sufferer from nervous exhaustion and prostration can use Dr. Chase's Nerve Food with positive assurance that the benefits derived therefrom will be both thorough and lasting.

There is no reaction from this great nerve-builder because it is not a stimulant but a restorative and reconstructor of the wasted nervous system. 50 cents a box, all dealers, or Edmanson, Bates & Co., Toronto.

OUTDOOR SPORT AND ZAM-BUK

Every athlete, every ball-player, every swimmer, every canoeist, every man or woman who loves outdoor life and exercise, should keep a box of Zam-Buk handy.

Zam-Buk is a purely herbal preparation which, as soon as applied to cuts, bruises, burns, sprains, blisters, etc., sets up highly beneficial operations. First, its antiseptic properties render the wound free from all danger from blood-poisoning. Next, its soothing properties relieve and ease the pain. Then its rich herbal balms penetrate the tissue, and set up the wonderful process of healing. Barbed wire scratches, insect stings, skin diseases, such as eczema, heat rashes, ringworm, babies' heat sores, chafed places, sore feet—all come within Zam-Buk's power. It also eases and cures piles. All druggists and stores.

Stock Market Has Been Operated For A Decline

New York, Aug. 7.—(Special)—The stock market, which has advanced steadily for seven successive days, and absorbed extensive profit-taking, was subjected during the latter part of the past week to the test of energetic operations for a decline by the professional traders. The short selling was prompted by the apparent decrease of buying on the part of commission houses, which had been a feature of the market since the conference committees' report on the tariff bill and by the precedent that so long an advance as had been witnessed usually leaves the market vulnerable to attacks by professional traders. However, the short interest is not a big one, and the selling is not so determined as is ordinarily noted after a long advance for the reason that no money has been made out of bearish operations for the past six weeks.

Money Market Firm.

The mercantile demand for time money remains firm, as it has been since the report of the conference committee on the tariff, for many merchants who have withheld orders on account of uncertainty over tariff schedules do not care to postpone purchases, in view of the prevalent scarcity of stocks. On Monday $1,000,000 was transferred through the Sub-Treasury to San Francisco. This is significant at this time of the year and is a sure indication of the approaching flow of money into the interior, for crop-moving purposes.

Increased Activity in Steel Trade.

The railroads have placed more orders for heavy section rails aggregating about 20,000 tons; including 5000 tons more for the Harriman lines. There are still a few inquiries in the market for both heavy section and girder rails for domestic shipment aggregating about 6,000 tons; while the Baltimore and Ohio is about to ask for bids on heavy sections. The New Haven also will be in the market for a further supply later in the year. Rumour has it that the Burlington closed with the Illinois Company for 10,000 tons and is in the market for 10,000 more. The removal of the Southern Iron and Steel Company's red mills from Ensley to Gadsden, Ala., has brought the latter place into prominence as a steel centre. The foundations for the new plant have been started and additional blast furnaces are to be built.

Visible Supply of Copper.

The extraordinary increase in the foreign visible supply of copper, amounting in the month just past to over 20,000,000 pounds, is calculated to dampen the ardor of those who are looking for continued improvement in the world's statistical position of copper. Instead of copper going into consumption on the other side it went into warehouses and swelled the accumulation thus held to figures unprecedented in recent years. The general expectation of the supply in this country, according to the next statement of the Copper Producers Association, will show a decrease of 16,000,000 pounds.

The August cotton report of the Government, showing the condition of the crop at 71.9, which is the lowest condition reported on this date in many years, caused considerable excitement on the Cotton Exchange. The dry, hot weather in Texas and too much rain in the Mississippi Valley caused the cotton men to expect a small crop; but the Government figures were a complete surprise. The best authorities in Wall street interpret the figures to mean a crop of only 11,000,000 bales, as compared with 13,000,000 bales last year.

MARRIED.

FARR—SMITH.—On Monday afternoon, August 9, 1909, at the residence of Mr. Sherwood, 85 Gladstone avenue, by the Rev. J. G. Brown, of St. James' Church, William Herbert Farr and Alice Smith, both of Peterborough.

HOUSES FOR RENT ARE SCARCE IN CAMPBELLFORD

Campbellford, Aug. 9.—One of our citizens having been unable to accommodate himself with a dwelling house, has pitched a tent in the rear of a lot on Sebastopol street, and is making it his home with his family, after the manner of the new settlers in the tented towns of the far west. With the progress Campbellford is making, and the prospect of still greater growth the demand for houses will continue. Rents are consequently high, ranging from $6 to $15 per month. Any kind of a dwelling will command a rental of $5 or $6 per month.

Homes Burn in Chicago.

Chicago, Aug. 11.—Hundreds of persons were driven from their homes early yesterday by a fire that destroyed two rows of frame houses in Superior and Buffalo avenues, South Chicago. More than a score of homes, which were cottages and two-storey buildings of frame construction, were burned.

Wrights Can Fly 1,600 Miles.

New York, Aug. 11.—Orville Wright, the aviator, who sailed from New York yesterday, intimated as much by saying that their perfected machine could carry fuel enough to last 25 hours, which would enable it to travel a thousand miles if a 40 mile clip were maintained.

Tenders Will Be Called For Construction Of New Bridge

Board of Works Going Ahead With Erection of Smith Street Bridge Meeting Called Yesterday Afternoon—Several Matters Dealt With.

PETITION FOR WALKS

Ald. Phelan, chairman of the Board of Works, was authorised yesterday afternoon by his committee to advertise for tenders for the construction of the Smith Street bridge. The tenders must be in by August 30th, and the work will be proceeded with at once thereafter.

The Board met at four o'clock when several matters were put through. Those present were Ald. Phelan, McIntyre, Buller, Gillespie, and Turner.

A letter complaining of the north-east corner of Stewart and Wolfe Sts., was received from Mr. Lendrum. A new walk had been laid this summer and a hole was left between the walk and the street line. The engineer will look after it.

Ald. Buller moved that the stand pipe on the north side of Sherbrooke and East of George street be moved further east on Sherbrooke St. Ald. McIntyre seconded it and it carried. The water commissioners will be notified to move it 20 feet east.

Smith Street Bridge.

On motion of Aldermen McIntyre and Gillespie, the chairman was authorised to advertise for tenders for the construction of the Smith Street bridge.

The committee then figured on what length of time it would require for the contractors to figure on the specifications. It was thought that two weeks after the advertisement appeared would be long enough.

A contractor will be allowed to furnish any brand of cement and get it wherever he likes, providing it comes up to the standard test and passes the city engineer's inspection.

Ald. Gillespie suggested that the contractors be asked to submit two tenders, one with the city supplying the cement and the other with the contractor supplying it.

Rev. Father McColl applied for a sewer on Scott street. The petition was not signed by Mrs. Aaron Cox, who has property on the street, and Father McColl agreed to pay the frontage tax, which would be placed against the Cox property.

Ald. McIntyre moved that tenders be asked straight, specifying that the cement is up to standard test of the board of works tester, and that the chairman and the engineer look after the inspector.

Ald. Buller and McIntyre moved that the sewer on Scott street, between Rubidge and Reid streets be built.

A New Walk.

Ald. McIntyre and Ald. Turner moved that the walk on the south side of Charlotte street from Maitland avenue to Park street be built.

The chairman stated that it would be impossible to get to that street for a while yet, as they had the plant in another part of the city, and that there were other walks which needed building first.

Ald. McIntyre was very anxious and put up a big fight. Finally, he said if it could not be done now to cut it out entirely.

The chairman said he would build it if at all possible and this satisfied Ald. McIntyre.

PRUDENTIAL LIFE ANNUAL OUTING A GREAT SUCCESS

The Prudential Insurance Company enjoyed their first annual outing on Civic Holiday, Monday, August 9, at Chemong Park, where they indulged in games of all sorts, and races.

The principal feature of the afternoon was the ladies' wheel-barrow race, there being three ladies to go the finals, namely Mrs. J. I. Allen, Mrs. Camfield and Mrs. Freeman, but finally Mrs. J. I. Allen succeeded in landing first prize and was the proud recipient of a silk parasol. Mrs. J. C. Wood carried off the honours for throwing a baseball the greatest distance, reciving a beautiful belt buckle. Miss Daisy Robinson showed considerable class in the 50-yard dash for ladies, and was rewarded with a fountain pen.

The broad jump fell to the agile Michael Sharp, of Homewood avenue, and along with it a beautiful umbrella, which Mike was assured was just what he needed as it was considerably larger than the average. Mr. Wagner, of New York city carried off the running broad jump and is now sporting a gold headed cane; while the hundred-yard dash went to Mr. A. R. Graham, who come down the home stretch at a regular a-la-Longboat gait, and won in the remarkable fast time of 15 seconds; as a result, Mr. Graham now owns a fountain pen.

After a rest of half an hour Superintendent Allen and Assistant Superintendent Cornelius, marched on the field with their notable nines and indulged in a game of baseball, which ended 12 to 8 in favour of Superintendent Allen's fordes.

Those who were present were as follows: Mr. and Mrs. W. A. Bell, Mr. and Mrs. E. M. Freeman, Mr. and Mrs. W. Talbot, Mr. and Mrs. McNeilly, Mr. and Mrs. Lewis, Mrs. Fraelic, Miss Daisy Robinson, Mr. M. Sharp, of Peterborough; Mr. and Mrs. Wagner, of New York City; Miss M. Turner, of Stayner, Ont.; Mr. R. J. Graham and Miss Maude Graham, of Havelock, and Agent E. O. Freeman and wife, Agent J. H. Barkey and wife, Agent R. F. Sedgwick and wife, Agent W. F. McMullan, Agent J. C. Wood and wife, Agent H. Kingscote and wife, Assistant Superintendent Cornelius and wife, of Lindsay; Assistant Superintendent Leadbetter, of the Peterborough staff and family; Assistant Superintendent A. R. Graham and Superintendent J. I. Allen.

The outing under the management of Superintendent Allen proved a most decided success, in fact every person present said it was the most enjoyable day of the season for them.

POST CARD COLUMN.

Sir,—Your account of the successful athletic sports of the Victoria Harriers should have given me the credit for winning the third prize in the three-mile race. ## Hamburg Belle After Dillon's Record To Beat 1.58 1-2 Without Wind Shield

HAMBURG BELLE, 2:02¾

Hamburg Belle will endeavour to lower the world's trotting record at the new grand circuit track, North Randal, O., Thursday, August 12.

To perform this task she must trot a mile faster than 1:58½, the time made by dainty Lou Dillon at Memphis, Oct. 23, 1903, when the trotting queen followed a runner drawing a wind shield.

And—take note of this—Hamburg Belle will be sent after the glittering bauble, paced by runners of course, but the runners will be at her side, or behind her, and not in front, drawing a shield.

That the great daughter of the marvellous Axworthy, 3, 2:15¼, is right was demonstrated the first week of the grand circuit, when over the Detroit track she stepped a mile in 2:02¾ over a slow track and in the face of a strong wind.

Hamburg Belle will be driven by W. J. Andrews, who has been preparing the mare for her great effort all season, and who is confident that over the lightning track at North Randall, the weather being favourable, she will hang out undreamed of figures.

Hamburg Belle is a smallish, dark bay mare of exquisitely blood-like finish and rakish, racy conformation. She was bred by E. T. Bedford, of Brooklyn, at his farm near Norwalk, Conn., and is owned by Edward and Jos. Madden, of Hamburg Place, near Lexington, Ky., who purchased her last fall from her breeder. When purchased, the mare was known as Sally Simmons II, the name being taken from her dam.

SHERWOOD MAGEE, ONE OF GREATEST FIELDERS IN GAME

SHERWOOD MAGEE.

Philadelphia, Aug. 11. — Sherwood Nottingham Magee won't be a Giant—at least not for some time. The deal whereby Magee and Mike Donlin were to play roles in the comedy-drama entitled "A Fair Exchange Is No Sign Somebody Didn't Get a Lemon," has been called off.

The official announcement that Magee will remain here lets Philadelphia fans breathe easily again, and what threatened to be a municipal calamity proved to be nothing but hysterical chatter. With the country safe, Quaker fans can read the bulletins calmly.

Magee is a baseball prodigy, and Philadelphia appreciates him. He joined the local National league club in 1905, when but 20, coming straight from a semi-professional rank, and stuck like a burr to Harry Lauder's tongue without ever a hint of being sent to a minor league to ripen. Fact is, Magee was ripe when picked. He enjoys the distinction of being one of the very, very few major leaguers without minor league experience.

"Jim" Randall, a Philly scout, heard of the wonderful fielding and batting of a youngster named Magee, of the Lindener team, Carlisle, Pa. Randall piped Magee at work and signed him.

Magee made good from the first, and jumped straight into the hearts of the fans by his work. His best year with the bat was 1907, when he was second to Honus Wagner.

Baseball is more than a profession with Magee. It's a hobby. He is one of the easiest men to handle, although, like all great players, he has his whims and must be humoured. He never misses practice, and Murray has to order him from the field when practice ceases.

The deal which Felix Isman, the multi-millionaire real estate man, hoped to put over by virtue of an option he held upon the stock of the late Senator I. W. Durham, meant the retirement of Manager Murray and the trading of Magee for Donlin. When the other directors refused to part with Murray, Isman passed up the stock and dropped out as a figure in Philadelphia baseball. So Magee sticks.

NO HITS, NO RUNS AND NO ONE REACHED FIRST BASE—BUSH LEAGUERS' GREAT FEAT

Kenosha, Wis., Aug. 11.—The no-hit-no-man-reach-first class is base ball's most exclusive family. Confined to pitchers only a minority of players are eligible, but when you consider that out of the thousands who have worked in the box since base ball was first played and realize that only six are in the select class, the difficulty of the performance becomes as apparent as a $10 greenback on a pile of new fallen snow.

Until July 25 but five men were credited with this feat. They were Jimmy Galvin, Lee Richmond, John Ward, "Cy" Young and Adrian Joss. But when the shadows grew long upon the date mentioned, Joe Pulse of the Kenosha Lake Shore league team had qualified.

And in some respects, this baby member of the F. F. B. has pitched the most remarkable of the no-hit-no-man-reach-first games. At least, most remarkable of the latter day performances.

In the first place, a bush organisation does not afford the pitcher the support generally accorded in fast company, and Pulse depended largely upon his own efforts. In the nine innings he struck out 20 of the 27 men who faced him, had but one ball hit out of the infield and threw out three men at first.

Imagine the perfect control Pulse possessed to cause 20 batters to agitate the atmospheric envelope that afternoon. Spectators declare he made the ball do circus stunts and his catcher, Pete Herman, a famous minor league backstop, said, "Joe could have thrown the ball through a knot hole all day."

Kenosha was playing the Harvards at Harvard, Ill., when Pulse established his record in the game which really has no parallel in baseball history. The Harvard team is composed of ex-league players, who are terrors to pitchers.

The Harvard pitcher, Roland of the Wisconsin-Illinois league, was hitting the high spots, too, striking out 14 of the Kenosha men, but he permitted seven hits to be bunched and as many men scored.

Pulse was a famous college pitcher when he played with the De Pauw university nine as a member of the naughty two class. After he graduated he entered the services of the Waukegan Wire & Steel Co., and although approached often with tempting offers by major league scouts he has refused to join a big league team.

Several times Pulse has pitched no-hit games, but an error, or a pass, a fielder's choice or a man hit by a pitched ball, prevented him attaining his present distinction, until his now famous game.

For three seasons Pulse has played with Kenosha, and at the end of each year has declined a league contract. He is a member of a baseball family, his brothers, Frank and Ray, playing in minor leagues. At the end of the present season, the pitcher declares he will quit the game and devote his time to business.

looks as if the T.A.S. would have to play a double-header on the following Saturday. The Abstainers have a game to play with Park St., the one left over from the first of the season and there is last Saturday's scheduled fixture with the West Ends to dispose of.

Looking at the matter from an impartial standpoint the managers have themselves to blame for the mix-up existing just now. Early in the season they elected officers and for a game or two allowed the men they selected to look after the business of the League. The result was that everything went along smoothly and the prospects for a good season was particularly bright. However, the managers got their heads together, ignored the officers, made a fizzle of the umpire system, and finally have got things into a glorious tangle. The umpire agreed upon at the first of the season could not have been improved upon in Peterborough. He may have made mistakes, but they all do that from Silk O'Loughlin down, and there was absolutely no question of his impartiality. While he was handling the indicator there was no trouble, but the very first day he was unable to act there was a howl about bad umpiring and it has been kept up ever since. It stands to reason that two teams playing an important game can come to no agreement over selecting men from the spectators to handle the game, and the managers whoo are responsible for the present condition of affairs adopted a very short sighted pin-headed policy. If two umpires are needed they should be selected by the League and not picked out of the crowd by two hot-headed managers. The fans do not appreciate the delay and the quarrelling and if the League's action in regard to umpires is not carried out it might be well for the present officers to step out and let the managers take the blame for everything. They are the people who are to blame, not the officers.

The managers ofo the different City League teams are again reminded of the meeting to-night in the Examiner office for the purpose of clearing up the tangle in which the affairs of the League have been involved lately. As the situation stands now Park St. are at the head of the League, having played and won one more game than the T.A.S. Their last regular scheduled games of the season will be played Saturday, when the Strathconas are down to meet the T.A.S. and the West Ends will clash with Park St. So far, however, these have been two postponed games and it

THE TROUBLES AND TRIALS OF A SCOUT FOR MAJOR LEAGUE TEAM

The life of a baseball "scout" is no "joy party," if the word of Fred Lake, manager of the Boston American League team, is to be taken for anything. He has just been quoted as follows on the subject:

"About one of those chaps in a hundred lands a scouting job and that one usually lands it because the particular owner he is applying to is hard up for some one to do scouting duty and will grasp at a straw.

"The only men qualified for duty as scouts, according to my way of thinking, are old-time players or managers who have seen the national game from all angles. Men like Pop Anson, Pat Donovan and Tom McCarthy make admirable scouts, because they have seen all sorts of ball players, have been in all sorts of ball games and know from actual experience just what a player must be capable of before he can hope to hold down a position in a major lineup.

"A major league scout may be a fine judge of baseball talent and may be able to size up a winner in the bushes at a glance, and yet be a flat failure as a scout. This same scout that is such an expert judge of players must also be a diplomat if he is to succeed. A baseball scout needs as much diplomacy as a foreign ambassador.

"Oftentimes a scout may see major league qualities in a young player that have wholly escaped the notice of the manager of the club the lad happens to be playing with. Then if Mr. Scout can go about in a diplomatic way he can oftentimes secure the young player for a reasonable sum and land him without any delay. If Mr. Scout hasn't such an attribute as diplomacy up his sleeve he will probably blunder up to the manager or owner of the club where the youngster plays, tell him his business and try to buy the player.

"Thereupon Mr. Minor League Manager will tighten up like a clam, refuse to sell the player for less than $10,000 or more, and spring a lot of yarns about seven or eight other clubs being after the player just as fast as he can think them up.

"Another thing a scout must be able to do, and that is to refrain from picking up a bunch of lemons to turn over to his employers. A scout must be able to tell a nine-day wonder from a real young star every time.

"It isn't always the star players that a real scout is watching in these minor league games. Oftentimes things will be breaking badly for some young fellow who is working harder and coverig more ground than a half dosen of the other players. His batting may be the lowest, and yet he may be the best looking youngster on the team."

The Royal baseball team journeyed to Millbrook last evening and played a picked team of that place. The northern village has the baseball craze, so to speak, and a bumper crowd was in attendance to witness the contest. The Royals had things easy, winning out 19 to 4, but there was lots of sport which was thoroughly enjoyed by the spectators and players.

And out in Milbrook they have real sports and the chief among the number is our good friend R. H. Edmunds. "Bob" had the bees over at the hotel to convey the players to the grounds, and on reaching the scene of battle the first question he asked was "who would you like to umpire?" This is not usually the case, but the Millbrook men insisted that Fred Dickinson, a member of the Royal team, but who at present is out of the game through injury, should officiate. "Dick" took the position and he did the work fine, not a single objection being raised by either team. After the game the Port Hopers were taken for a drive about the village and everything was done to make the visit an enjoyable one.—Port Hope Guide.

"HIS LITTLE GIRL"

This is a very interesting picture. "Lou", a young bachelor, gets a note from his friend, that he is sending him his little girl to take care of while he goes to Europe. "Lou" prepares for an infant's arrival; the infant is about twenty years of age, and there are funny situations.

"SHE WOULD BE AN ACTRESS"

VESSEL IS WRECKED

People of Lingan, C.B., Sight Deserted Schooner Off Shore—Craft Driven Up on the Beach and Crew Are Believed to Have Taken to the Boats—She is Thought to Be a Nova Scotian Ship.

Sydney, N.S., Aug. 12.—Yesterday afternoon, people near the coast line at Lingan, C.B., had their attention directed to sea by the strange actions of a schooner which could be seen some distance off shore with sails partly set, careened in the blast of the hurricane which prevailed.

Owing to the manner in which she staggered shoreward, now pointing high in the wind and again yawning in the trough of the sea, it was evident that something was wrong on board.

The vessel ploughed her way into the bay and struck on the beach, several hundred yards from the shore. Huge waves continually broke over the ship and a rescue party was got ready, and the attempt to reach the stranded vessel was made, should there be signs of life on board. However, there was no call for assistance, and as the storm continued with unabated violence, throwing up huge seas in which a small boat could not live, those on shore did not put off to the wreck.

Late yesterday it was learned that the vessel's name is the Myrtle. She is apparently a new vessel, and has not been in the water more than a couple of years. The supposition is that the captain, finding his vessel on a lee shore, ordered his men to take to the boats, which were swamped. The vessel lies about a quarter of a mile north of the northern head of Lingan, and although exposed to the full force of the huge waves, it is not breaking up. Practically all the sails of the vessel have been torn to ribbons, and are flying in tattered remnants from the mast.

A Canadian flag is flying at half-mast in the main rigging. One dory in a wrecked condition had been washed ashore. It is evident that the craft is a fishing vessel from one of the Nova Scotia ports, but which one cannot be ascertained. Vessels of this description carry from ten to eighteen men, and it is feared here that the crew of the Myrtle have been added to swell the toll of the sea. However, small hope is held out that the men may have landed at some isolated point along the shore and may later be heard from.

Reference to the Canadian register shows several vessels bearing the name of Myrtle, but which of them is wrecked cannot be determined.

White Plains, N.Y., Aug. 12.—Harry K. Thaw must return to Matteawan. This decision was handed down by Justice Isaac N. Mills of the Supreme Court here to-day. Thaw's lawyers say that they will continue the fight for Thaw's freedom. Thaw was greatly grieved at the decision.

HORSE EXCITED BY NUMBER OF CARS

Broke Both Shafts But Did Not Get Away

Mr. and Mrs. Lillico had an exciting experience about a quarter to eight o'clock last night while out driving. They were passing the corner of Charlotte and George streets when the horse became frightened at the street cars and did some fancy side stepping, which made it lose its footing and caused it to fall. Both shafts were broken and the harness had to be removed before the animal could get up. Except to the shafts no damage was done. Mr. and Mrs. Lillico were both uninjured.

LABOURERS FOR THE WEST BEGIN TO LEAVE IN LARGE NUMBERS

They are scheduled to arrive in Manitoba on Sunday and will be distributed through southern Manitoba, where harvesting is urgent, in time to go to work Monday morning next.

The first excursion from Ontario will leave Toronto a week from to-day, and others will follow a few days later.

The western grain fields are turning much faster than was expected, with the result that large and urgent demand for helpers is already uppermost. James Hartney, agent for the Manitoba Government in Toronto, is receiving letters daily setting forth the need of labourers. They seldom fail to mention that the crop of wheat is an excellent one and much better than the average.

The farmers of Manitoba will require about 12,000 men from the outside and communications issued yesterday to be distributed as follows: G.T.P., 2,000; C.P.R.: Pleasant Hills Branch, 815; Moose Jaw to Outlook, 473; Yorkton to Shoal, 200; Main Line, 2,000; Arcola Line, 1,500; Weyburn, Reston, 200; Sec. Line, 1,000; C.N.R. Regina to Warman and Goose Lake District, 1,200; Main Line, 361; Brandon to Regina, 102.

Premier Roblin of Manitoba estimates that the wheat crop of the three northwestern provinces will aggregate 125,000,000 bushels, barring accidents.

A grain dealer's correspondent wired from Deloraine yesterday as follows:

"Wheat in Souris, Napinka and Deloraine districts better than an average year, crops even, good stand and fair length of straw, heads are little short but unusually well filled. Ten days more without frost will see whole crop safely made. Oats better than for some years. Harvest began."

MOORS FIERCELY ATTACK THE TOWN OF PENON DE LA GOMERA

Madrid, Aug. 12.—Advices received here from Penon de la Gomera, a Spanish island penal station on the coast of Morocco, say that the Moors are directing a fierce attack against the Spanish garrison there. The fighting began on Tuesday. At midnight the Spanish artillery seemed to have silenced the enemy, but the Moors dug trenches under cover of the darkness, and yesterday morning they reopened with a heavy fire and their bullets are falling in the streets of the town. Some of the projectiles are so large that it is thought the Moors possess light artillery. The civilians of Penon de la Gomera are aiding the soldiers in the defence of the place. There have been no Spanish casualties as yet.

A captive balloon in the Spanish lines at Melilla yesterday discovered two new camps of the Moors, which were promptly shelled by the Spanish artillery. The Moors were driven out, but they carried away their dead and wounded.

It is understood that Mulai Hafid, the Sultan of Morocco, has notified Spain of his readiness to send troops into the Riff region to chastise the Moors and establish peace. Spain, however, replied that this guarantee was not sufficient, and orders have been sent to Gen. Marina, who has nearly 40,000 troops at his command, to proceed against the Moors in the neighborhood of Melilla.

Alhucemas, Morocco, Aug. 12.—The unloading of stores here for the Spanish troops from the cruiser Extremadura has been most difficult, as the Moors have been harassing the men in charge of the work with a raking fire. The stores finally were disembarked, however, under the protection of a fire from the guns of the cruiser, the forts and the artillery on shore.

Russian Guards Killed Three German Balloonists

Special to The Examiner (2.45 p.m.)

St. Petersburg, Aug. 12.—Frontier Guards to-day fired on a German balloon carrying four men as it was crossing the border, killing three of the passengers and wounding a fourth. The guards fired thinking the balloon was a military airship. The affair has caused great excitement here, as it is taken for granted that Germany will call for an explanation and full reparation. There has been ill feeling for some time over the fact that German soldiers in balloons have crossed the Russian frontier, and it is even said that the Czar's government has protested to Emperor William's Foreign Minister, against this condition of affairs.

Poker Players Were Each Fined Fifty Dollars To-day

The four men charged with playing poker for gain came up before Magistrate Dumble at the police court this afternoon. Mr. Jas. Haverson, K.C., appeared for them and pleaded guilty. They were each fined fifty dollars to be paid forthwith.

Chief Roszel asked that the cards and money found on the table be forfeited, but His Worship would not consent to this and each one was returned his money.

Two Large Excursions In City To-day For An Outing

This city's reputation as a splendid objective point for excursions continues to keep up. To-day two more big excursions helped to swell the population of the city, and apparently all connected with them had a very enjoyable visit.

The largest was from Orillia, and was held under the auspices of the Orillia Fire Brigade and Band. About six hundred people took in the trip on two special G. T. R. trains, the first section arriving shortly after 11 o'clock, and the other some time after.

The band and fire brigade were with the first section and were met at the station by a reception committee composed of Mayor Rush, Ald. Buller, chairman of the Fire, Water and Light Committee; Ald. Hicks, and Fire Chief Howard, who extended the freedom of the city to the visitors, and expressed the wish that their visit to Peterborough would be an enjoyable one.

A procession, consisting of the band and firemen, who wore their dress uniform, was held up Charlotte St. to George street.

The visitors spent the afternoon in sightseeing, their itinerary, of course, including a visit to the fire hall, where Chief Howard and his men showed them all that was to be seen.

The band made a most favourable impression on the citizens of Peterborough.

The other excursion, which arrived shortly before the Orillia contingent, was under the auspices of the Baptist churches and Woodmen of the World, of Cobourg and Port Hope. About three hundred people took in the trip. Their train was taken direct to Jackson Park, where they disembarked for dinner. This afternoon they enjoyed a trip over the lift lock.

Two Young Men Charged With Assault And Attempted Robbery

On a charge of assaulting and attempting to rob Robert Desborough on Monday evening last, William Fallan and Tom. Conner were arrested by P. C. Newhall yesterday afternoon. They came up before Magistrate Dumble at the police court this morning. Mr. G. N. Gordon defending Conner and Mr. R. F. McWilliams appearing for Fallan. Chief Roszel was not ready to go on with the prosecution and an adjournment was made until to-morrow morning. They elected to be tried summarily and pleaded not guilty. Conner was allowed out on bail of five hundred dollars. Fallan was refused bail.

It appears that when Desborough was crossing Central Park on Monday night, the two prisoners attacked him and he states that they tried to take his money. Desborough swore out warrants for their arrest and the two were taken in custody by the police.

How Is Your Watch Running?

Watch Repairing Always Has Been a Hobby of Ours to do the Best Work Possible.

Is it always fast or slow; never quite on time? Perhaps the watch is capable of very accurate running, but it is not in perfect order. You know the tiny mechanism of a watch absolutely demands that each of the dozens of little parts—jewels, springs, wheels, etc.—be just right, or good timing is out of the question.

SPECIAL NOTICE

THE ROYAL has made new arrangements for its pictures; it will be an EXCLUSIVE. Up-to-the-minute service, and patrons of the Royal will see the latest pictures FIRST here.

"THE PLAIN CLOTHES MAN."
A very thrilling detective story and one of the best yet shown. It tells the story of the hard life of a detective, who, when duty calls must obey, and how he succeeds. The picture is full of exciting incidents and well worth seeing.

"HIS LITTLE GIRL"
This is a very interesting picture. "Lou", a young bachelor, gets a note from his friend, that he is sending him his little girl to take care of while he goes to Europe. "Lou" prepares for an infant's arrival; the infant is about twenty years of age, and there are funny situations.

"SHE WOULD BE AN ACTRESS"
Mrs. Youngwife has become stage struck and wants to be an actress. The husband breaks up the first performance, thrashes a too ardent admirer, and then all is happy afterwards.

Mr. Loftus will sing one of the latest illustrated songs:—"The Ivy and the Oak."

Do not forget that we have installed a self cooled motor Fan, and that the Royal Theatre is the coolest place to go to.

VESSEL IS WRECKED

People of Lingan, C.B., Sight Deserted Schooner Off Shore—Craft Driven Up on the Beach and Crew Are Believed to Have Taken to the Boats—She Is Thought to Be a Nova Scotian Ship.

Sydney, N.S., Aug. 12.—Yesterday afternoon, people near the coast line at Lingan, C.B., had their attention directed to sea by the strange actions of a schooner which could be seen some distance off shore with sails partly set, careened in the blast of the hurricane which prevailed.

Owing to the manner in which she staggered shoreward, now pointing high in the wind and again yawning in the trough of the sea, it was evident that something was wrong on board.

The vessel ploughed her way into the bay and struck on the beach, several hundred yards from the shore. Huge waves continually broke over the ship and a rescue party was got ready, and an attempt to reach the stranded vessel was made, should there be signs of life on board. However, there was no call for assistance, and as the storm continued with unabated violence, throwing up huge seas in which a small boat could not live, those on shore did not put off to the wreck.

Late yesterday it was learned that the vessel's name is the Myrtle. She is apparently a new vessel, and has not been in the water more than a couple of years. The supposition is that the captain, finding his vessel on a lee shore, ordered his men to take to the boats, which were swamped. The vessel lies about a quarter of a mile north of the northern head of Lingan, and although exposed to the full force of the huge waves, it is not breaking up. Practically all the sails of the vessel have been torn to ribbons, and are flying in tattered remnants from the mast.

A Canadian flag is flying at half-mast in the main rigging. One dory in a wrecked condition had been washed ashore. It is evident that the craft is a fishing vessel from one of the Nova Scotia ports, but which one cannot be ascertained. Vessels of this description carry from ten to eighteen men, and it is feared here that the crew of the Myrtle have been added to swell the toll of the sea. However, small hope is held out that the men may have landed at some isolated point along the shore and may later be heard from.

Reference to the Canadian register shows several vessels bearing the name of Myrtle, but which of them is wrecked cannot be determined.

HORSE EXCITED BY NUMBER OF CARS

Broke Both Shafts But Did Not Get Away

Mr. and Mrs. Lillico had an exciting experience about a quarter to eight o'clock last night while out driving. They were passing the corner of Charlotte and George streets when the horse became frightened at the street cars and did some fancy side stepping, which made it lose its footing and caused it to fall. Both shafts were broken and the harness had to be removed before the animal could get up. Except to the shafts no damage was done. Mr. and Mrs. Lillico were both uninjured.

LABOURERS FOR THE WEST BEGIN TO LEAVE IN LARGE NUMBERS

They are scheduled to arrive in Manitoba on Sunday and will be distributed through southern Manitoba, where harvesting is urgent, in time to go to work Monday morning next.

The first excursion from Ontario will leave Toronto a week from to-day, and others will follow a few days later.

The western grain fields are turning much faster than was expected, with the result that large and urgent demand for helpers is already uppermost. James Harney, agent for the Manitoba Government in Toronto, is receiving letters daily setting forth the need of laborers. They seldom fail to mention that the crop of wheat is an excellent one and much better than the average.

The farmers of Manitoba will require about 13,000 men from the outside and Saskatchewan above yours, to be distributed as follows: G.T.P., 238; C.P.R.: Pleasant Hills Branch, 315; Moose Jaw to Outlook, 473; Yorkton to Shebo, 320; Main Line, 2,622; Arcola Line, 1,680; Wolseley, Reston, 238; Sec. Line, 1,680; C.N.R. Regina to Warman and Goose Lake District, 1,120; Main Line, 361; Brandon to Regina, 100.

Premier Roblin of Manitoba estimates that the wheat crop of the three northwestern provinces will aggregate 125,000,000 bushels, barring accidents.

A grain dealer's correspondent wired from Deloraine yesterday as follows:

"Wheat in Souris, Napinka and Deloraine districts better than an average year, crops even, good stand and fair length of straw, heads are little short but unusually well filled. Ten days more without frost will see whole crop safely made. Oats better than for some years. Harvest began."

MOORS FIERCELY ATTACK THE TOWN OF PENON DE LA GOMERA

Madrid, Aug. 12.—Advices received here from Penon de la Gomera, a Spanish island penal station on the coast of Morocco, say that the Moors are directing a fierce attack against the Spanish garrison there. The fighting began on Tuesday. At midnight the Spanish artillery seemed to have silenced the enemy, but the Moors dug trenches under cover of the darkness, and yesterday morning they reopened with a heavy fire and their bullets are falling in the streets of the town. Some of the projectiles are so large that it is thought the Moors possess light artillery. The civilians of Penon de la Gomera are aiding the soldiers in the defence of the place. There have been no Spanish casualties as yet.

A captive balloon in the Spanish lines at Melilla yesterday discovered two new camps of the Moors, which were promptly shelled by the Spanish artillery. The Moors were driven out, but they carried away their dead and wounded.

It is understood that Mulai Hafid, the Sultan of Morocco, has notified Spain of his readiness to send troops into the Riff region to chastise the Moors and establish peace. Spain, however, replied that this guarantee was not sufficient, and orders have been sent to Gen. Marina, who has nearly 40,000 troops at his command, to proceed against the Moors in the neighborhood of Melilla.

Alhucemas, Morocco, Aug. 12.—The unloading of stores here for the Spanish troops from the cruiser Extremadura has been most difficult, as the Moors have been harassing the men in charge of the work with a raking fire. The stores finally were disembarked, however, under the protection of a fire from the guns of the cruiser, the forts and the artillery on shore.

Russian Guards Killed Three German Balloonists

Special to The Examiner (2.45 p.m.)

St. Petersburg, Aug. 12.—Frontier Guards to-day fired on a German balloon carrying four men as it was crossing the border, killing three of the passengers and wounding a fourth. The guards fired thinking the balloon was a military airship. The affair has caused great excitement here, as it is taken for granted that Germany will call for an explanation and full repartion. There has been ill feeling for some time over the fact that German soldiers in balloons have crossed the Russian frontier, and it is even said that the Czar's government has protested to Emperor William's Foreign Minister, against this condition of affairs.

Poker Players Were Each Fined Fifty Dollars To-day

The four men charged with playing poker for gain came up before Magistrate Dumble at the police court this afternoon. Mr. Jas. Haverson, K.C., appeared for them and pleaded guilty. They were each fined fifty dollars to be paid forthwith.

Chief Roszel asked that the cards and money found on the table be forfeited, but His Worship would not consent to this and each one was returned his money.

Two Large Excursions In City To-day For An Outing

This city's reputation as a splendid objective point for excursions continues to keep up. To-day two more big excursions helped to swell the population of the city, and apparently all connected with them had a very enjoyable visit.

The largest was from Orillia, and was held under the auspices of the Orillia Fire Brigade and Band. About six hundred people took in the trip on two special G. T. R. trains, the first section arriving shortly after 11 o'clock, and the other some time after.

The band and fire brigade were with the first section and were met at the station by a reception committee composed of Mayor Rush, Ald. Buller, chairman of the Fire, Water and Light Committee; Ald. Hicks, and Fire Chief Howard, who extended the freedom of the city to the visitors, and expressed the wish that their visit to Peterborough would be an enjoyable one.

A procession, consisting of the band and firemen, who wore their dress uniform, was held up Charlotte St. to George street.

The visitors spent the afternoon in sightseeing, their itinerary, of course, including a visit to the fire hall, where Chief Howard and his men showed them all that was to be seen.

The band made a most favourable impression on the citizens of Peterborough.

The other excursion, which arrived shortly before the Orillia contingent, was under the auspices of the Baptist churches and Woodmen of the World, of Cobourg and Port Hope. About three hundred people took in the trip. Their train was taken direct to Jackson Park, where they disembarked for dinner. This afternoon they enjoyed a trip over the lift lock.

Two Young Men Charged With Assault And Attempted Robbery

On a charge of assaulting and attempting to rob Robert Desborough on Monday evening last, William Fallan and Tom. Conner were arrested by P. C. Newhall yesterday afternoon. They came up before Magistrate Dumble at the police court this morning. Mr. G. N. Gordon defending Conner and Mr. R. F. McWilliams appearing for Fallan. Chief Roszel was not ready to go on with the prosecution and an adjournment was made until to-morrow morning. They elected to be tried summarily and pleaded not guilty. Conner was allowed out on bail of five hundred dollars. Fallan was refused bail.

It appears that when Desborough was crossing Central Park on Monday night, the two prisoners attacked him and he states that they tried to take his money. Desborough swore out warrants for their arrest and the two were taken in custody by the police.

"FIRE INSURANCE"

"Fire Insurance" is the title of a new journal devoted to "fire indemnity and reduction of fire waste." It is published by Mr. Wm. Campbell, Toronto, and No. 1 Volume gives promise of future usefulness. In the work which the new journal hopes to do it should have the support of both the public and fire insurance companies. That there is room for such a journal is very evident. Last year the great sum of more than ten million and a quarter dollars was paid out in indemnities by companies operating under federal license and this does not by any means represent the full extent of the destruction wrought by fire, especially great fires. This tremendous destruction of the national wealth, the creation of industry and enterprise might be very largely prevented. While municipalities go to great expense to equip and maintain fire departments for extinguishing fires, there is too much neglect of measures for prevention. There does not seem to be enough attention given to building restrictions with a view to preventing fires. The public build for the most part what sort of buildings they like without any great regard to making them in any way or sense fireproof. If more attention were given this matter there would be gain in several ways, there would be general reduction of insurance rates, there would be less necessity for the maintenance of expensively organised and maintained municipal fire departments and a lessening of the great loss by fire beyond what insurance can cover. As "Fire Insurance" in its foreword points out both the insurance companies and the property owner are gainers "from every measure to prevent fires."

BEARING FALSE WITNESS

For a journal which poses as a champion of purity, truth and righteousness, our evening contemporary has freakish ideas of what is fair and honest journalism. In Wednesday's issue it prints in a prominent place on the front page the following despatch:

Ottawa, Aug. 11.—The reported barring of the new Ross rifle with special sight by D. R. A is officially denied. The idea is that the same rifle as used at Bisley shall be used at the D.R.A. as well as the Lee-Enfield, according to choice of competitor.

In face of this on the second page, appears the following contradictory editorial comment:

Liberal papers boast about the Ross rifle in connection with the Bisley team's doings. In this they draw attention to more than the scores of the riflemen. The council of the National Rifle Association accepted the declaration made to it, but has now made a rule aginst Ross rifle sights and special contrivances for the future. Sir Frederick Borden did us an ill turn when he pledged his knightly word that the Ross rifle was our ordinary service rifle? The editor of the Review is so anxious to discredit a Liberal Minister and to discredit a rifle "made in Canada," that it sacrifices truth and consistency upon the altar of its petty malice, and has to meet the alternative charge, that it either prints news despatches which do not tell the truth, or that it is willing to give the lie to its own news columns in order to score a little political point—it would score more easily by using a Ross rifle and a level head.

CANADA'S FOREST WEALTH.

The new tariff of the United States has been adjusted without due regard, it seems, to the approximate failure of that country's natural supply of lumber and pulp timber; and, apparently in the hope that a tax on lumber and pulp will influence Canada in relaxing the extant provisions for preventing the export of our forest resources in an unmanufactured condition. But in this our neighbours will be disappointed. The decision of the tariff committee has been received in Canada without a flutter of excitement or apprehension. We Canadians feel that the United States people's desire for our lumber and pulpwood is greater than our desire to sell it, excepting under conditions most profitable to ourselves and best calculated to preserve our forest wealth from destructive and wasteful exploitation. There is some uncertainty as to the extent and amount of our forest resources, and it is therefore wise to err on the safe side—err on the side of being more careful than may be necessary. We have made some attempt at including conservative forestry in the activities of government administration. This action has been delayed too long, for, however good the intention to undertake the practical work of forest preservation and reproduction, there is bound to be a more or less prolonged period of preliminary investigation.

The forestry branch of the Department of the Interior has recently issued a bulletin compiled by Mr. A. H. D. Ross, M.A., of Toronto University, dealing with the forest products and resources of the Dominion. From this bulletin it is learned that Canada's exports of manufactured and unmanufactured products increased from less than $19,000,000 in 1868 to $49,000,000 last year. Of these products Great Britain took $9,354,244 worth, and the United States $7,842,526 worth in 1868, while last year the mother country's share was $11,483,094 worth, and that of the United States $27,470,754 worth. The neighbouring republic gets practically the whole of the manufactured wood products, such as pulp wood.

Mr. Ross emphasizes the necessity of greater thoroughness and activity in gathering information in regard to the forestry resources of Canada. He points out that it was with this end in view that the forestry branch was organized. Canada's vast forest areas are among her most important resources. The census of 1901 estimated the forest area at 799,000,000 acres, but Mr. Ross says that more recent estimates reduce it to between 500,000,000 and 600,000,000 acres. This includes areas of timber which is not at present merchantable. For land covered with merchantable timber presently available estimates have been made as low as 20,000,000, and even 100,000,000. None of these estimates, however, are to be considered very reliable, as they are based on deductions from a general knowledge of conditions or of special areas.

Even less is the knowledge as to the stand of timber suitable for sawing, but what is considered a conservative estimate places it at between five hundred thousand million and six hundred thousand million feet. There are in addition large pulpwood areas. The fact that Canada's forest are has suffered so severely from fire makes it necessary to compute at a low figure the average stand of timber.

The uncertainty in regard to our forest resources should make us exceedingly solicitious for their preservation and utilization to the best advantage. One thing is certain that upon this continent in the matter of forest possession Canada holds the whip hand over all other countries. With careful cutting, with stringent measures of protection from fire—one of the most important elements of waste and destruction—with equally stringent provisions for procuring the very largest degree of home manufacture, the forest of Canada can be made a tremendous factor, of annually increasing potency, in our national development.

WHY LORDS ARE LOVED

The Lloyd-George budget is next to run the gauntlet of the House of Lords. This House is bound to be hostile to it because one of its chief features is the taxation of land values, which naturally bears upon the members of the hereditary chamber. Lloyd-George's budget in respect of taxing land values is justified for two reasons which are closely related. It brings under equitable tribute a source of taxation which has for centuries escaped the responsibility of contributing to the national revenue, and it calls attention to the extent to which the prevailing tenure of land constitutes an obstruction to national economic progress. The following article from the Montreal Herald sets forth the relations of the Lords to the land and the proposed measure of taxation:

It was John Dillon who brought to the notice of the House of Commons the letter the Duke of Norfolk had written to "My dear Profumo," the Conservative candidate in the High Peak division of Derby. The Duke was telling Mr. Profumo the latter could be counted on to protect the interests of Catholic school children. The Irish party, however, had decided to support the Liberal, intimating that as they had done all the supporting of Catholic children's rights in the past they would look after the cause in the future. A London member didn't want the Duke censured, because, he said, the cause was known to be dear to him, and he had a perfect right to his views. Here arose Mr. T. P. O'Connor to say that the Duke had other interests at stake besides education. He is a great landlord. He had some land, for instance, that a few years ago was worth about $7,000. It was wanted for a public purpose, and he let it go at $51,000. He could hardly be counted on to favour the Lloyd-George budget. The Duke, it may be added, is the ground landlord of the Strand, London, and of Sheffield. "My dear Profumo" wasn't elected.

The Earl of Onslow was moved by the fear of the budget to dispose of part of his estate. In view of the budget he felt it a duty to dispose of a portion of his estate to people who culd make better use of it than he could, adding that land in future would not be regarded as an investment but as a luxury. Mr. Alfred Mond, M.P., the great chemist, promptly wrote to the Times: "I do not think the country will share his regret, as it is obviously in the interest of the community that land should pass into the hands of people who can make the best use of it." He got $13,500 for a property he rents for $625; he got $5,750 for another that brings him in $95; and he refused $18,000 for what brings in $650, and $20,000 for what brings in less than $1,000. This evidence that he is holding land for the community to make it more valuable will hardly turn the average man against the budget which proposes to take for society part of what society produces by way of added value.

The town of Glossop is in the High Peak division. It is owned by Lord Howard of Glossop. He sells no land, and capitalists anxious to embark on enterprises when confronted with his demands turn elsewhere. Leases are running out, three and four times the old rent is demanded on renewal, and manufacturers have actually in the past allowed mills to "run out" rather than submit to the terms demanded. The Great Central Railway many years ago would have put works there if they could have got land on reasonable terms. Again and again endeavours have been made to establish enterprises, but they have been checked because of the terms for land. On one stream five mills have been pulled down because on the leases running out higher rents were demanded. A mill was burnt down and not rebuilt for the same reason. The leading industry of the place would have been extended if land could be had. The proprietor proposed at one time to construct a branch line railway to his works at a cost of tens of thousands, but Lord Howard would only lease the necessary land on conditions which involved the surrender of the enterprise to him after a term of years.

In London when the hotel men are asked why they do not make improvements they answer that they would of they could buy the land, but as they can't, and as at the end of ten or twelve years everything reverts to the landlord, there is no use.

So we need not wonder if Lloyd-George, no poor that until he became a Minister he had to live in distant lodgings, can safely defy the wrath of the Dukes of Norfolk, Bedford and Westminster and the Marquis of Lansdowne, to all of whom London pays rent against its will.

EDITORIAL NOTES.

RETURNED FROM A FISHING TRIP

Messrs. Wm. Snowden and Bruce Lees have returned to the city after ten days delightful outing at Buckhorn and Pigeon Lake. They never had better luck fishing and the weather was ideal. They came home with over one hundred and fifty pounds of fish, including a large number of salmon trout, maskinonge, and bass.

Kidney Suffering IN THE SPRING

No organs of the body are so susceptible to the quickly changing temperature of spring as the kidneys. Sudden cold waves mean chilling of the surface of the body, closing of the pores of the skin and over crowding of the kidneys at a time when they are already overworked in an effort to free the system of the accumulated poisons of winter.

The tired draggy feelings you experience and the weakness and pains in the back tell of a poisoned system and defective kidneys.

There is no treatment for kidney disease which will afford you relief so quickly as Dr. Chase's Kidney-Liver Pills and none which will so certainly cure the most complicated forms of this disease.

There is a reason for this. Dr. Chase's Kidney-Liver Pills awaken the action of the liver and bowels as well as the kidneys and thereby effect a thorough cleansing and regulating of the whole excretory system.

In this combined action Dr. Chase's Kidney-Liver Pills are unique. There are no substitutes or imitations which possess this principle.

Mrs. F. O. Bacon, Baldwin's Mills, Que., writes: "I was very sick last spring. The doctors said I must go to the hospital for an operation but I didn't want to. My liver and kidneys did not act and I suffered terribly. I then began using Dr. Chase's Kidney-Liver Pills, and nothing else, and am now fully cured and doing my own work for a family of seven."

Dr. Chase's Kidney-Liver Pills. One pill a dose, 25 cents a box, at all dealers, or Edmanson, Bates & Co., Toronto.

OUTDOOR CANADA

This season the number of drowning accidents has caused heartrending scenes in many homes. Mr. T. W. Sheffield, holder of the King Edward VII. trophy, does full justice to the advantages to be derived from swimming in the August issue of "Outdoor Canada." Mr. Sheffield shows the absolute necessity of all persons knowing how to swim and so avoid the long list of sad happenings published daily in the newspapers.

Sergt.-Major Huggins, of Hamilton, writes a strong article advocating playgrounds for school children. It should interest all parents and educators. "How to do the Canadian Rockies," "From Fur to Wheat," a story of the growth of our great West, and Roden Kingsmill's monthly review on all doings in the sporting world, in addition to other splendid articles, all of which are profusely illustrated, go to make up one of the best issues ever published by the Outdoor Canada Company. Magazine can be secured through the News Agencies or on application to the Company at Hamilton, Ont.

Excursionists Injured.

Hamilton, Aug. 12.—An H., G. & B. car filled with Salvation Army excursionists, returning from Grimsby, was allowed by an open switch to collide with another H., G. & B. car standing in the terminal station last evening. Many passengers on both cars were cut and bruised, but none seriously hurt. Among those who required the doctor's attentions were: Miss Eva Godfrey, 113 Peter street; Mrs. Gibbs, 128 Ray street, and Miss Price, the matron of the Rescue Home.

Brockville's Typhoid Scare.

Brockville, Aug. 12.—Notwithstanding that Brockville's water and milk supply has been pronounced pure by Dr. Connell, the Queen's College expert, typhoid fever is epidemic in town, almost every day bringing forth fresh cases. In a letter just received from Dr. Connell he says the milk contains no fever bacilli. He had previously tested the water.

Vessel Drifting Ashore.

Beaufort, Va., Aug. 12.—(via wireless).—The Clyde liner Arapahoe, Jacksonville and Charleston for New York, has broken her tail shaft, and at 4.30 was drifting helplessly. A number of passengers are aboard. A strong northeast wind is drifting the vessel towards shore.

Frauds Grew Bigger.

New York, Aug. 12.—With a second charge lodged against him, Donald L. Persch, the young note broker who was arrested, charged with the larceny of copper stocks belonging to F. Augustus Heinze, is still a prisoner. The district attorney's office has ascertained that he was not alone in the transaction.

The case will be placed before the grand jury to-day, and the evidence at hand, it is said, will reveal a systematic scheme, worked not only in this city, but in Philadelphia and Boston, whereby stocks supposed to be tucked safely in the vaults and banks, have in reality been relinquished to individuals who placed them on the market at a profit.

Victim of Vendetta.

New York, Aug. 12.—Victim of the vendetta, Rafael Gascone, defended by Albert T. Patrick and befriended by Harry K. Thaw, whom he came to know in the Tombs, died yesterday afternoon in a hospital where he had lingered since he was shot on the street Tuesday night by a boy of fifteen.

With his dying breath, Gascone charged young Santaniello Amato, with having shot him "in revenge for my having killed his brother," the ante-mortem statement reads. Gascone signed the accusation with a cross. Within an hour he was dead.

Santaniello was seriously stabbed when Gascone turned and grappled with him after the shooting. He is in a hospital and if he recovers will be maimed for life.

Unjustly Indicted.

New York, Aug. 12.—That an injustice was done to Mrs. Helen Spencer, who recently was arrested in Ecuador, and brought here on a charge of having engaged in the "White Slave" traffic for the Panama Canal zone, was admitted in court here yesterday, when the indictment against her was dismissed.

WEAK LUNGS, CATARRH, BRONCHITIS, HAWKING.

Even Though Head and Throat Are Diseased From Neglected Colds, Cure is Certain.

Hundreds die of chronic catarrh that could be cured by persevering with a remedy of real merit. Look for these symptoms in your own case—they all mean Catarrh in some form:

"Is your voice rough?"
"Do you cough up phlegm?"
"Is your nose stuffed up?"
"Do you snore at night?"
"Does your nose itch and burn?"
"Have you frontal headaches?"
"Do your eyes pain?"
"Is it a dryness in your throat?"
"Do you sneeze, hawk, cough?"
"Have you droppings in throat?"
"Are you losing sense of taste?"
"Have you stomach nausea?"

Catarrh has been pronounced a disease caused and maintained by germ life, and, like other diseases where germs are present, is impossible to be cured by the ordinary constitutional medicines.

Hundreds of different remedies have been tried. Inhalers which produced steam, vapors and sprays were introduced, but turned out useless, as the vapor condensed and the medicaments were left deposited in the large bronchial tubes long before the air reached the smaller cells of the lungs.

Catarrhozone

is the only germicide ever found volatile enough to impregnate every particle of air breathed, yet leaving it FREE from moisture, thus enabling this powerful germ destroyer to reach every part of the air passages in the head, throat, and lungs, where it at once kills the bacilli that cause catarrh, asthma, bronchitis, colds, etc.

It cures by inhalation, and because it cannot fail to reach the seat of the disease. It is guaranteed, and incurs not the slightest danger of inconvenience to the patient.

BEGIN TREATMENT NOW.

Catarrhozone is absolutely certain to reach the source of the disease. It possesses marvelous healing properties, and quickly restores the raw, congested membranes to a normal, healthy condition. In a few breaths it clears away all foul mucous discharges, and quickly allays coughing, headache, pain over the eyes, and the manifold unpleasant symptoms of catarrh, bronchitis, asthma, coughing, sore throat and colds.

QUICK CURE IS GUARANTEED.

Now, bear in mind, you breathe Catarrhozone. Do you not think this is a rational method of treatment—a reasonable way of reaching the diseased surfaces, which do so far in the cavity of the body or of the head that they can be reached in no other way?

You cannot possibly fail to obtain quick cure if you will use Catarrhozone. Two months' treatment, absolutely guaranteed, costs $1.00, smaller size, 25c, at all dealers in medicine.

A Mystery of the Sea.

Simonstown, Cape Colony, Aug. 12.—The British cruiser Fortex returned here yesterday after an unsuccessful search for the steamer Waratah, during which a distance of 1,350 miles was covered. The Waratah, a British steamer, has been missing since July 26, when she sailed from Port Natal. She had on board 98 passengers and a crew of 207 men. A majority of the passengers were colonials and the others Englishmen returning home from Sydney and Port Natal.

Posse Pursuing Murder Suspect.

Rochester, N.Y., Aug. 12.—Since just before noon yesterday, county, town and city officials, with many farmers and farm laborers, some of whom were armed with shot guns, have been searching the marshes that extend from near Holy Sepulchre cemetery west along the shore of Lake Ontario to a number of ponds, for a man who, it is thought, may be the murderer of Anna Schumaker, the 17-year-old girl who was assaulted and killed at the cemetery last Saturday afternoon.

ROOSEVELT SIZES UP BLACK COPPERS OF NAIROBI; THEY PINCH NATIVES EASILY, BUT THE WHITE JOY BOYS EAT 'EM ALIVE

Problem of Black Servants at Little African City, Which Roosevelt Makes His Hunting Headquarters—Various Negroes, But the Real Negro Feels Like a King If He Doesn't Have to Work.

LEADING A PRISONER BY A CHAIN.—THE MORNING DRILL.—THE GARDEN VARIETY OF NATIVE AND THE ARISTOCRATIC SWAHILIS "BOY."

Nairobi, BritishEast Africa, Aug. 10.—When Col. Roosevelt comes into Nairobi, his hunting headquarters, he always shows a decided interest in the native policemen, called askaris. There are 400 of them to maintain the peace of the Nairobi district, and they are under command of British officers, most of whom fought in the Boer war.

These native policemen are uncommonly well trained and soldierly looking, and show that discipline can do much to develop the African native. They are not allowed to load the fine muskets with which they are supplied, however, for the British officials know perfectly well that, whatever the discipline, in time of uprising they would go over to their fellows and shoot down their white officers. So the best way is to train them to drill properly, hold themselves well and exercise the majesty of the law over the offenders great and small.

Askaris are on duty in the streets and they patrol the roads, act as escort to government caravans or to convoys of mails or money going to the interior. They are guards to the native convicts, and they can often be seen leading through the street a negro whom they have just handcuffed. A chain is attached to the handcuff and the policeman always drives his prisoner ahead of him.

The costume of the askaris is very picturesque, blue puttees, khaki "shorts" or breeches reaching halfway down the thigh, dark blue sweaters, broad red sashes and red fezzes. They are required to retain their tribal traditions of going barefooted, although heavy boots are included in their official kit, because they are so accustomed to their bare feet that they can scarcely walk in shoes and are horribly sore afterwards.

The natives make no resistance when an askari tries to arrest them, and the askari is nevr loth to exercise his authority. But what is a more awkward position, is where a white man must be arrested by them, since there are no other policemen. There is a handful of young bloods fresh out from England, and a rowdy element of white settlers, who take pleasure in smashing street lamps or houses and fences at night, and who, when an askari attempts to fulfill his duty and arrest them as he would any other lawbreakers, curse him for a black swine or anything else they think of at the time and dare him to touch them, and they often maul him if he insists on doing his duty.

Some few households employ Masai servants, from the famous warrior tribe, and when they consent to become servants they are very satisfactory; but as a rule they are very independent by nature. They come into Nairobi as if the place belonged to them, they refuse any form of work except cattle raising, which is their traditional occupation, and they deal on the whole with their white rulers as with beings perhaps their equal, but certainly not their superiors.

The Kikuyu wears his wool like a bowl on the top of his head, the edges being shaved off round his forehead, temples, ears and neck. He is not afraid of working or carrying bundles on his back, provided someone stands over him to see that he does it. Two of them may pass with their burdens talking as they go with a Swahili house boy, using the Swahili language, which is the French of Africa since all tribes are supposed to have a smattering of, just as all Europeans are supposed to know French.

They invariably try at least one trick on a new master fresh from Europe; if he nips it in the bud he may have a good servant for the rest of his stay, and he will certainly have no serious trouble, but if he lets it pass unobserved the Swahili knows he is dealing with an ignoramus and so robs, cheats, and betrays him and passes on the good word to the rest of the tribe.

The natives are used for various public works, repaving the roadways, improving the waste land lying alongside of the town, and like things; but there is always the appearance of something unnatural about them when at such work, and if you look, you will always see an overseer handy who carries a kiboko or rhinoceros hide whip in his hand. As a matter of fact, he dare not use this except to tap lightly as he might with a tiny switch, for the kiboko has been abolished as an instrument of punishment.

But the real negro is seen out here only when he is loafing along the road or else chatting lazily outside the native market or gathered together on a cart from which the mules or oxen have been removed. There he will sit for hours at a time, happy as a king, and quite indifferent as to whether or not the white man has come and taken his lands away from him, so long as the white man does not require work of him.

PETERBOROUGH GIRL AT FORT WILLIAM DANCE

Guest at Enjoyable Summer Affair Held Recently

A most delightful summer dance was given last night by the "younger" bachelors and they were aided and abetted by many who are no longer very young. The evening was delightfully cool, while the dainty summer dresses of the "rosebul garden of girls," and the snowy attire of the sterner sex, made a very pleasing scene in Assembly Hall. The music furnished by the Goodier Orchestra was excellent and the dancers made "a fine, sweet earthquake," as they stepped to the strains. Among the out-of-town guests were noticed: Miss Smellie, Toronto; Miss Beth Smellie, Baltimore; Miss Pearl Freel, Superior; Miss Grange, Ottawa; Miss Grace Coolidge, Peterborough, and Miss McDowell, one of our new arrivals in the city. Among the "Buds" were noticed Miss Dorothy Cuddy, while the very youngest of the young bachelors present was Mr. Hettle Young.—Fort William Herald.

A MOST REMARKABLE CASE

My face was paralyzed, I could not speak; five doctors failed to help me and I was in despair when hearing of Dr. Chase's Nerve Food I used this wonderful restorative treatment and became well and strong in every way. I would not go back to my former condition for all the gold in the country," writes Mr. Wm. J. Brennan, Western Hill, St. Catharines, Ont.

PREDICT A GRAND YEAR FOR THE KING

Entering Upon the Lucky Ninth, so the Astrologers Say

On August 9th King Edward VII. entered into the ninth year of his reign. Though in three months' time His Majesty will be sixty-eight years of age, his activity both bodily and mental, is that of a man of fifty. The part he has taken in affairs of the nation has been a more prominent and more personal one than any British sovereign for a century past and more, has taken.

Astrologers and people who cast horoscopes are predicting that this ninth year of his reign will prove the most auspicious one for the King. They point out that he was born on November 9th, crowned on August 9, married in '63 (which figures taken together make nine) and has for his lucky day Tuesday, the first full day of his lucky ninth year.

Whatever luck attends his reign in the future, it is everywhere admitted that the King hitherto has been conspicuously successful in all his efforts to promote the great cause he has most at heart—the peace of the nations. Favoured by a previous experience in diplomacy few Kings have ever had, fortunate in the enjoyment of a continental popularity unequalled by that of any European sovereign, and possessing in marked degree those essentials of consummate tact and invariable good taste that go so far to pave the way for better international understanding, King Edward has not only essayed, but achieved the task of reconciling grave differences between the nations.

The latest accomplishment of King Edward in this connection is the arrangement of the visit of the Czar of Russia to England. The unique honours paid to Emperor Nicholas and his Consort, and the State conferences held at Cowes will not, it is safe to assume, be fruitless of beneficial results.

It is gratifying to note that the latest reports from authoritative sources state that the King's health is good, and that His Majesty is displaying unusual vigour and endurance. That this ninth year of his reign may be crowned with further diplomatic successes, bringing in their train further assurances of peace and prosperity, will be the wish of all King Edward's loyal subjects today.

English Family In Need Of Help In Present Affliction

In connection with the death of a south end resident named Lemon, the particulars are of a sad nature and will appear to the charitable citizens who sympathize with their neighbours in distress.

Some twelve or thirteen months ago there came to this city an English family, of which the deceased was the father and the sole support. They had been here for some time, and were in very comfortable circumstances, when the husband was taken suddenly ill with a cancer and was removed to the hospital. Here an operation was performed, which, while it removed the cause of the trouble, still left the patient very weak. Nevertheless, being a man of spirit and honour, he insisted on doing his best to keep his family together, and despite his utter unfitness, insisted on getting work. For some time the family struggled on, aided now and then by a little charity from the city authorities, but finally the father became so weak he could work no more.

There were two small boys in the family—one about ten years old and one about seven. When the revenue from the father's toil ceased to come in there was nothing for it but that these small boys be set to work. Accordingly the large one was sent to the C.G.E. and the smaller one was given work in an up-town office. When last Saturday night came the small boys had earned between them $3.50, and this they took home to their mother. The rent, however, was due that night, and when that had been paid there remained only fifty cents left to feed and clothe the family for the ensuing week. Yesterday morning the father died, leaving the mother and her five children almost destitute.

Any person or persons who would like to aid her in any way may do so by communicating with Mr. Finch Miller, or by calling at her address, 44 Lafayette avenue.

It is a most deserving case, and it is to be hoped that it will be met by a large response.

Four Well known Citizens Were Arrested For Poker Playing

Four well known citizens were arrested last evening, while engaging in a game of poker. Chief Rossel accompanied by Police Constables Newhall, Adams and Meagher made a visit to a certain place on Water street last night about eleven o'clock and brought the 4 men to the police station where they remained until this morning when they came up before the magistrate.

An adjournment was made until two o'clock, awaiting the arrival of Mr. Jas. Haverson, K.C., of Toronto. Bail was granted each one, the amount being fixed at one hundred dollars.

COLD ON THE LUNGS

This letter gives some idea of the confidence placed in Dr. Chase's Syrup of Linseed and Turpentine by people who know by experience of its exceptional merit. Mrs. R. D. Turnis, Brandview, N.W.T., writes:—"We have seven children and have used Dr. Chase's Syrup of Linseed and Turpentine for them all when troubled with colds on the lungs. We buy four bottles at a time and always keep it in the house, believing there is nothing so good for coughs and colds."

GYPSY CASES HAVE BEEN DISMISSED

Some of the Tribe are Drunk all the Time—Evidence Very Conflicting.

The gypsy perjury cases in Hull court were disposed of this morning, being dismissed by Magistrate Goyette, all parties having to pay their own costs. The magistrate said that on the absolutely conflicting evidence he had no other alternative but to dismiss each charge. At present the Hull tribe has planned no further action.

Eli Stokes and Mrs. John Stokes, who were found guilty of using insulting language to Peter Sterrio, on the street, were fined $5 each and were allowed to go on suspended sentence, with a warning that they would suffer the full penalty if they appeared again.

Peter Sterrio had to appear before Recorder Desjardins for being drunk and disorderly on Main street, Hull, two nights ago. He swore he was not drunk and his wife was even more positive that he was not. So the case was adjourned until to-morrow to give P. C. Lafontaine an opportunity of finding more evidence to corroborate his story.

Chief Genest told The Citizen the police were tired of the gypsies. "Some of them are drunk all the time," he said, "and we shall soon chase them away from the city."—Ottawa Citizen.

WERE FINED FOR BEING DISORDERLY

Two young men were each fined five dollars at the police court this morning, on a charge of being disorderly at the Nicholls Oval on Saturday last. They pleaded not guilty but after hearing the Park Constable's story of the affair, His Worship imposed the above fines.

KEEP YOUR HEAD UNCOVERED.

The Constant Wearing of a Hat Propogates Dandruff Germs.

There are many men who wear their hats practically all the time when awake, and are blessed with a heavy shock of hair; yet if the scalps of these same men once become infested with dandruff germs, the parasites would multiply all the quicker for lack of air. Baldness would ensue as the final result. Newbro's Herpicide kills these germs and stimulates unhealthy hair to abundant growth. Herpicide is a pleasant hair dressing as well as a dandruff cure and contains not an atom of injurious substance. Sold by leading druggists. Send 10c in stamps for sample to The Herpicide Co., Detroit, Mich.

POST CARD COLUMN.

To Editor of Postcard Column:

Dear Sir,—As there is constant reference in your paper from residents of west city complaining of Normal School weeds, big mud holes on streets, poor sidewalks and lack of street railway accommodation, whereas it is the east has just cause to complain, where there is more weeds, larger mud holes, sidewalks narrow and rotten plank, just look at the one-half mile of fine cement sidewalk to accommodate the Hilliard gravel pit and about one-half dozen houses, when northeast Ashburnham has but an old narrow walk to serve about 200 residences. The bridge the city engineer puts a warning on to load waggons light, in short a person going through, both sides of city would never think the same authorities control both, the neglect of the east is so apparent.

Yours truly,
NEGLECTED EAST.

DEATH OF DAN COSTELLO, CIRCUS MANAGER, ONCE KNOWN HERE

One of First to Bring Railway Show into Canada—The Passing of one of Pioneers of the Knights of Sawdust and Canvas—Brief History of His Career.

WAS KNOWN EVERYWHERE

One of the most famous circus men in the world died recently in the person of Dan Costello. The first railway show to visit Peterborough or in fact Canada, was the "L. B. Lent" show, one of the finest equipped and most expensive ever put on the road, and Costello was connected with that production. The Bill Board has the following interesting reference to his demise:

On Tuesday, July 27, Dan Costello died in Chicago, and on Sunday following, his body was interred in Rosehill cemetery. With the death of Costello there passes to the great beyond one of the real pioneers of the circus, a man who in the heyday of Barnum was closely associated with that wonder of the age and financially interested in the Barnum Show. Subsequently Costello was identified at various times with all the best known show people in the business and even up to the last few years his inherent and strong desire for the odour of the tan-bark and saw-dust caused him to seek employment in a minor capacity with one of the lesser tent entertainments. There are few indeed of the circus to whom old Dan was not known, and there are many of the present-day successful ones in this branch of the amusement endeavour, who, in a way, owe their start in the game to the old veteran who knew the ropes so well and whose hand was always outstretched in assistance to those who sought aid. Even now that Costello is no more, his memory will live with us, linked closely to the stories of the waggon show and unalterably interwoven in the early history of the circus, practically from its American inception.

"In the Christmas, 1908, issue of The Billboard appeared, over the signature of Louis Wood, the following chronicle of some of the interesting points in his career:

In 1869, P. T. Barnum and his associates, Dan Costello and W. C. Coup framed up the Barnum show to go by rail. In the Christmas number of The Billboard, published in 1901, Peter Sells made the mis-statement that the P. T. Barnum show was the first to take the rail, in 1872. It took rail three years previous to that, according to Dan Costello, who took the show by rail on a transcontinental trip from ocean to ocean in 1869. A year or two later Dan Costello introduced the hippodrome feature, which became a fixture in the circus performance, making it necessary to enlarge the tents, which immediately eliminated the singing and talking clowns to make way for mere pantomists, or silent fun makers. The broad track and additional rings widened the distance between the audience and performers so that the songs and jokes could never again be heard with any degree of satisfaction, and the vocal funny men, of necessity, had to change their line of work, or seek engagements with the smaller, old-time, one-ring circus. At last account, Dan Costello was living at 110 Fifth Avenue, Chicago. A cancerous growth under his tongue has caused an impediment to his speech. Coupled with this misfortune, some years ago, while snapping a whip in training a horse, the whip cracker struck his right eye, the injury making it necessary to remove the same and fit a glass one in its place.

"Dan Costello is an encyclopedia of circus reminiscences. He possesses a good memory, and, though growing a little feeble, he does not like to admit that he is very old. He trained ponies for Bonheur Brothers, all last winter, and travelled with their railroad show through Wyoming in the summer. During that trip he frequently asserted that he quit the circus business in 1877 to seek gold in the Black Hills. J. R. Bonheur was press agent for the show and visited Deadwood and Lead to bill the show for August 29. By a curious coincidence, only a few days before, the Deadwood Daily Pioneer Times reproduced the first picture ever taken in Deadwood, showing Dan Costello and Mrs. Dan in the foreground. The editor of the Pioneer presented J. R. Bonheur with a copy of the picture and informed him that Costello was one of the happy recollections of the old-timers—before civilization spoiled everything. Costello was in Deadwood for about two years, came here 'dead broke,' they said, from nobody knew where, and left to go back to his old love—the circus. The last authentic account of him was obtained when some of the old-timers saw him at Pillings, in 1882, where he and W. C. Coup were running Barnum & Bailey's circus.

"He then dropped out of sight, and the old-timers were inclined to be sceptical when J. R. Bonheur told them that Dan Costello, the famous clown of olden days, the prince of good fellows, the adventurer and traveller, was coming with Bonheur Brothers' Show, and would be in the Lead and Deadwood once more.

"'Aw, that's not our Dan Costello,' they said, 'Why, he was a middle-aged man thirty years ago.'

"'This man is over eighty,' said the showman, and then the old-timers began to sit up and take notice. The stories agreed; the pieces matched. He had hit the trail of his old stamping grounds. Dan Costello was a circus clown with Rice; he paced the sawdust from his earliest recollections. At the time he crossed the continent with the Barnum Show in '69, he stopped in Salt Lake City for thirty-one days, and left there after giving up ten per cent. of his profits, with a neat little balance of $31,000 in his vest pocket. In '77 he went to the Black Hills 'strapped,' and engaged for a couple of years in various mining enterprises. Some people say he owned a share in the old Racine mill, the first in Lead—a custom plant which treated some of the first ore ever taken out of the Golden Star. Others say he had nothing to do with it, and that his enterprises were all small ones, and not especially profitable. He was well known then as an old circus man, but after he left Lead nothing was heard of him until '82, and once again he was in sight. He was supposed to be dead, but the story goes that during all these years of silence he was in Algiers, training Arabian horses. It meant a great deal to Dan Costello to go back to the Hills with Bonheur Brothers' Show; to return to the town that he had not seen for 30 years; to go in a Pullman into the country which he had once entered with a pack train. It is doubtful if anything in his life ever brought to him so vividly the passage of time and the hurry of events in this modern world as the sight of the twentieth century Deadwood, which he only knew as a ragged bit of a mining camp on the outskirts of the world."

ODDFELLOW ORDER IS FLOURISHING IN CANADA

Splendid Showing at Recent Meeting of Grand Lodge.

A summary of the reports of the Grand Secretary and Grand Treasurer of the Grand Lodge of Oddfellows, now in session at Ottawa shows the order to be flourishing both in numerical and financial strength.

The Grand Secretary, J. B. King, of Toronto, contrasted in his report the condition of the order in 1880, when last the Grand Lodge met in Ottawa, with its condition now. Then it had 188 lodges and 12,168 members. Now it has 360 lodges and 40,000 members. The year just closing had been one of great progress in every respect. The membership had been increased, the beneficials enlarged, peace reigned supreme, and the outlook was bright and promising. The record of the dead was a lengthy one. In the list were many who had been conspicuous at previous sessions of the Grand Lodge. The new members during 1908 numbered 3,723, and the suspended, the dead and withdrawn members, 1,968. The net gain was 1,755, the relief paid for the year amounted to $125,714.22, or an average of $344.42 each day. The total relief from all branches of the order in Ontario since 1855 was $5,797,826,33.

The Grand Treasurer, W. J. McCormick, Toronto, reported receipts during 1908 of $24,919,31, and the expenditure $22,168.39. The supplementary report showed a balance of cash on hand July 21 of $18,861.70.

A POINTER FOR BOARD OF TRADE AND CITY FATHERS

A few days ago the Examiner called the attention of the Board of Trade and the City Council to the importance of having prepared for distribution literature intended to advertise Peterborough, its resources, its desirability as a site for industrial and other homes. The city is becoming a favoured objective point for outside excursions. Last week there came to the city six large excursion parties on the first four days of the week. To-day there are in the city two more large excursion parties, and this sort of thing has been going on all the summer. These persons have come from every direction, east, west, north, and south, and are worthy of encouragement and attention. It would strengthen the favourable impression they would gain of Peterborough by their visits if they were to be presented with a souvenir booklet of Peterborough, containing a little crisp letter giving description of our resources from an industrial and scenic point of view, and photogravures of our great attraction, the Lift Lock, our public buildings, parks, etc., etc. This would at once be received by visitors as an attention to be appreciated and serve as a souvenir of the city to be preserved. This, of course, would cost a little money and thought, but all advertising does this. Millions are spent yearly by business houses for advertising; and, that it pays, is shown by the many colossal fortunes that rise upon it. Other towns and cities of less importance and with less to offer extensively advertise in the way mentioned; and Peterborough should not be behind, as it certainly is at present in this regard.

BRIEFS FROM THE WIRES

Two Winnipeg men were fined two hundred dollars each for manufacturing butter by a filthy process.

William Stearn, the long-distance swimmer, had to give up an attempt to swim the English Channel because of seasickness.

The New Brunswick Board of Education decided to adopt military and physical training in the public schools and provincial university.

The Grand Trunk Pacific will build a line to Emerson, Man., and from there secure running rights over the Northern Pacific to the Twin Cities.

Lottie Gilkson, 12 years old, was drowned Tuesday in Campbell's Mill Pond, Bridgetown. While playing on the bank she slipped into the water.

Mrs. Berry of Winnipeg was drowned while boating with her husband on the Red River, near Selkirk, Man., yesterday. Her husband was rescued in an unconscious condition.

Stanley Norton and David Davale, self-confessed burglars at Winnipeg were sent to the penitentiary for five and two years, respectively. They committed a series of thirteen burglaries during the past month.

The Boston & Maine express, which left Sherbrooke Tuesday night, met with a peculiar mishap at Eustis. When going at a fair speed a loose horse on the road jumped between the tender and the baggae car, with the result that two cars were derailed and the horse instantly killed.

An Open Verdict.

London, Aug. 12.—After hearing the medical testimony in the Jenken case last night the jury brought in an open verdict as follows:

"That the deceased, Martha Jenken, came to her death at her late home, lot 10, con. 7, London Township, on Friday, July 30, 1909.

"The jurors find that death was due to injuries sustained on the head by the deceased.

"How or by what means the said injuries were inflicted the jurors are unable from the evidence to determine."

The additional evidence offered last night threw little light on the woman's death. Charlie Jenken, the young son, was recalled and told of a row between his mother and father some weeks ago, when Mrs. Jenken hit her husband on the head with a wrench, and he threw her down.

The jury was out 25 minutes.

Finest Power Site.

St. John, N.B., Aug. 12.—Sir William Van Horne was on the witness stand yesterday afternoon in an investigation into the affairs of the Grand Falls Power Co., and declared that he placed the value of the power site there, still undeveloped, at a million dollars, and stated that it was not equalled on the continent.

"We have nothing to compare with it in all America," said Sir William. "It is immense and is in such close proximity with the finest timber lands of the province."

In an interview, Sir William, speaking unofficially, said that notwithstanding the efforts of Letang and St. Andrew's to make themselves the terminal of the C.P.R., St. John must remain the winter port for Canada. He added: "Where the business is, the C.P.R. will go."

Mexican Revolutionist Captured.

San Antonio, Texas, Aug. 12.—Jose M. Kandel, leader of the revolutionists who fought a battle with three companies of the Mexican troops at Las Vacas in 1907, was arrested and with him were taken consignments of military rifles and pistols of the latest make, and correspondence of the Junta.

Revolutionists are scattered from New York to Los Angeles.

SUICIDE IN RIVER.

Unknown Woman Leaps From Ferry at Windsor.

Windsor, Aug. 12.—In full view of a hundred passengers on the ferry boat Excelsior, an unknown woman committed suicide at noon yesterday by throwing herself from the upper deck into the river.

The tragedy occurred as the boat neared the Canadian side, and in a place where the current runs very swiftly. Several women who saw the act became hysterical.

The boat was quickly brought to a stop and life preservers gotten ready but the body never reappeared. All that remained on the surface where the woman sat, a pocketbook containing some money was found.

Charles McKay, a Toronto traveler, says the unknown made no attempt to grasp a chair thrown to her, and that she sank almost immediately.

I.O.O.F. Affairs.

Ottawa, Aug. 12.—At the first general business meeting of the Grand Lodge, I.O.O.F. yesterday reports were presented by the grand officers. Grand Master McBride reported a total membership of 40,437, being a net increase to June 30, 1909, of 1,255. The secretary of the relief association reported that the revenue for the year was $363,894, and the expenditure $246,480. The disbursements or mortuary account were $191,954. The amount transferred to the surplus fund was $124,000. The net assets of the order now stand at $724,109.

The Rebekahs Assembly, I.O.O.F., yesterday morning installed new officers as follows:

President, Miss Anna Bacon of Blenheim, Ont.; vice-president, Miss Ruby Brady, Ottawa; secretary, Mrs. M. A. Pearce, Toronto; treasurer, Mrs. N. Dodson, Chatham; warden, Mrs. C. Edwards, Bracebridge.

Dickie Family Celebrates.

Galt, Aug. 12.—Victoria Park yesterday was the scene of a big re-union in celebration of the 70th anniversary of the settlement in this county of the well-known Dickie family, the founder of which, William Dickie, came here from Ayrshire, Scotland, in 1839. The old homestead in Puslinch township is still intact and souvenir pictures of it were distributed among the guests who numbered over 300, all being direct descendants of the Scottish pioneer.

Rev. John Richmond, of Detroit, was chairman. Among the speakers were Mayor Patterson, Rev. Robert Dickie, Montreal; Prof. Samuel Dickie, noted prohibitionist lecturer of Tennessee; John Dickenson, Toronto; Rev. Dr. Thompson, Ayr; Inspector Knowles, Hespeler; Rev. Dr. Dickson, Rev. E. E. Knowles, C. Cummings, and others.

Asks For Five Billions.

Spokane, Washington, Aug. 12.—Delegates to the National Irrigation Congress set about to relieve the arid land situation yesterday when resolutions beginning with a call for "ample funds" and ending with a request for a fund of $5,000,000,000, were introduced.

The resolution asking for a national three per cent. bond issue of $5,000,000,000, was introduced by the secretary of the board of control, Arthur Hecter, of Spokane.

It is proposed to use this fund in five portions as follows: One billion for drainage; one billion for irrigation; one billion for deep water ways; one billion for good roads, and one billion for forest preservation.

Huge Salmon Catch.

Vancouver, Aug. 12.—All records in the salmon catch on the coast were surpassed yesterday when the Fraser River fishermen and gill netters and purse seiners of Puget Sound were forced to abandon work because they could not dispose of the catch.

There is the enormous total of 2,234,000 sockeyes at the Fraser River, Bellingham, Blaine and Anacortes canneries.

Thousands of the fish are going to waste; the canners are not prepared to handle the total catch, but are speeding machines and men up to the highest notch and running the entire 24 hours without stop.

Fruit-Growers Meet.

St. Catharines, Aug. 12.—Annual picnic of the Lincoln County Farmers' Institute and Women's Institute was held yesterday on the grounds of the Experimental Fruit Farm and Rittenhouse School, Vineland, about 3,000 being in attendance.

In Victoria Hall, speeches were delivered by a number of prominent men interested in fruit-growing. The general trend of the speeches was that growers of the district should unite and co-operate into one large organization in sending fruit to the northwest.

Montreal Bound to Spend.

Montreal, Aug. 12.—Interest in the civic investigation before Justice Cannon, is on the increase.

Cement agents from Buffalo and Montreal testified yesterday that they had tendered for work at from $4 to $5 a ton less than the successful tenderer, and had offered to take the road committee to Toronto free of charge to see the fine work done there. The Buffalo man testified that he had tendered for a cement sidewalk at $1.86 per yard, yet a tender for $2.27 had been accepted.

Million Dollar Fire.

Middleton, N.Y., Aug. 12.—A loss estimated at $1,000,000 was caused by the fire which swept thirty-six buildings from the main street of the summer resort town of Monticello, N.Y., Tuesday night. The buildings burned included hotels, stores and residences. The fire was got under control yesterday morning after dynamite was used.

C.N.R. Employes Get Increase.

Winnipeg, Aug. 12.—A new agreement regarding wages and terms of service has been made between the Canadian Northern Railway Co. and its maintenance of way employes. The advances, generally speaking, run from 10 to 15 cents per day, with the exception of the laborers, whose rate remains unchanged at $1.75 per day.

Took Paris Green.

Wiarton, Aug. 12.—In a fit of melancholia, Wm. Labat, who carries on a bakery business, took a dose of paris green.

Asquith at Birmingham.

London, Aug. 12.—The Chancellor, Lloyd-George, has arranged the abandonment of the tax on minerals not yet mined in favor of some scheme for mineral royalties.

The Liberals are resolved to carry the struggle into the strongholds of the protectionist party, and it is announced that Premier Asquith will address a monster meeting in Joseph Chamberlain's constituency, Birmingham, Sept. 17.

The Unionists have promptly taken up the challenge and have prevailed on former Premier Balfour to address a similar Unionist demonstration in the same hall a few days later.

Will Share the Cost.

London, Aug. 12.—The Canadian Associated Press learns that the next plenary sitting of the Imperial Defence Conference has not yet been summoned, but it is expected it will be to-day or Monday. On the question of the military defence of the Empire, it is understood that general unanimity has prevailed and that some far-reaching decisions have been arrived at on the naval question, all parties of the Empire represented have expressed their intention to take a fair share of the cost of naval defences.

Mines May Be Flooded.

Springhill, N.S., Aug. 12.—Strike conditions to-day remain unchanged. Formerly when the miners went out on strike, the company received notice, thereby affording an opportunity to get horses and perishable property out of the mines, but this time horses nearly perished. The local Government may have to take charge of the property to prevent the mines from flooding.

Esperanto Headquarters.

Chautauqua, N.Y., Aug. 12.—The Esperanto Congress yesterday decided to move the executive headquarters of the American Esperanto Association from Chicago to Washington, D.C., because of probable meetings of the sixth international congress in that city next August. The new executive committee consists of Dr. Ivy Kellerman, Columbus, Ohio; W. J. Spillman of the United States Department of Agriculture, and James McKindry of Pittsburg.

New England is represented at the conference by 422 delegates.

Three Went Down With Capsized Tug.

Rockport, Mass., Aug. 12.—In staggering round Cape Ann before a westerly gale, and loaded to her gunwiles with anchors, the naval tug Nelsinco, Capt. Evans, bound from Portsmouth to Boston, capsized off Halibut Point at 5.30 a.m. yesterday, carrying down three members of the crew.

Will Begin at Once.

Fort Arthur, Aug. 12.—W. L. Brown, president of the American Shipbuilding Co., will be here about August 20 to make arrangements to commence work on the new million dollar industry without delay.

FIRST PHOTOGRAPH OF CONQUEST OF ENGLISH CHANNEL

JEFFRIES AND JOHNSON AGREE SIGN UP FOR CHAMPIONSHIP

Chicago, Aug. 12.—Articles of agreement for a fight between Jack Johnson and James J. Jeffries for the heavyweight championship of the world were signed here to-day. The fight is to take place within eight months before the club offering the best inducements. All bids for the fight are to be made inside of sixty days.

Sam Berger, manager of James J. Jeffries, George Little, Johnson's manager, and Jack Johnson were present at the meeting when the articles were signed.

Little, however, had nothing to do with the arrangement of terms for the fight, having turned the whole affair over to Johnson.

The articles prepared by Jeffries were given to Johnson by Berger. After carefully perusing the paper, Johnson made the remark that they were not at all satisfactory to him, He declared he was ready to sign agreements, but he wanted to sign an agreement to "fight." He then outlined what he conceived would be a satisfactory agreement.

A warm discussion followed. Berger objected to any mention of the purse in the articles, but he finally yielded this point. Johnson was equally as insistent that the reference to Jeffries as the heavyweight champion of the world be stricken from the agreement, declaring that his position on this point was irrevocable. He finally won out and all reference to this subject was omitted.

The agreement as signed calls for a fight of from 20 to 100 rounds for the heavyweight championship of the world. The division of the purse was left to the decision of Jeffries.

It also provides that as a guarantee of good faith each of the parties to the agreement shall post $5,000 with Chas. A. Comiskey of Chicago, within 72 hours of the understanding, and that the $5,000 operate as a side bet on the contest.

The Agreement.

The following is the agreement signed by Berger and Johnson:

Form of agreement entered into this 11th day of August, 1909, between Jack Johnson, of Galveston, Texas, and James J. Jeffries of Los Angeles, Cal.:

It is agreed between these men mutually that they shall box a certain number of rounds, the same to be anywhere from 20 to 100 for the heavyweight championship of the world.

Contest to be held before the club offering the best inducements and mutually agreed upon by the contestants.

The division of such purse shall be on a basis of either 60 per cent. and 40 per cent. to the winner and loser, respectively, or 75 per cent. and 25 per cent. or winner may be permitted to take the entire amount. The decision in this matter to rest with James J. Jeffries.

The sum of $5,000 each is to be posted with Charles A. Comiskey, of Chicago, as a guarantee of good faith and the fulfilment by each side of the terms of this agreement. Said money to be posted within 72 hours. It is further agreed that the above-named five thousand dollars shall operate as a side-bet on the result of the contest. It is further agreed that the club will be selected and mutually agreed upon 60 days from date, at which time all further details will be mutually agreed upon.

Contest to take place not later than six months from date of selecting club and the signing of final articles.

(Signed) Jack Johnson.
(Signed) Sam Berger, for James J. Jeffries.

MANAGERS OF LEAGUE TEAMS DECIDE IN FAVOUR OF PARK ST.

A meeting of the officers of the City League was held last night in the Examiner office when the T.A.S. protest was dealt with. It was in reference to the game with Park St. on July 31st as follows:

Peterborough, July 31, 1909.
Secretary of City Baseball League:

Dear Sir,—We hereby wish to enter a protest against the game played this day between the Park St. A.C. and the T.A.S. A.C., on the following grounds:

(1) The balls used were damaged, discoloured, and not of regulation weight, and in fact were not fit to play with. (Rule 14 of official rules).

(2) The manager of the Park St. A.C. club refused to play under the official umpire of the League, Mr. Dan McCabe.

Signed, T.A.S. B.B.C.
A. J. QUINLAN.

The four managers had held a sidewalk meeting and decided to play the concluding games on the Oval. They constituted the executive of the League and did not ask to have the matter made legal or in any way asked the League to continue backing up the teams' work. The first game was played and the receipts were divided between the four teams, the League being again ignored. The managers did not arrange for new balls or for an umpire and Manager Quinlan in the game with Park St. claimed that the balls in use were not fit to play with. Manager Pilling for some reason or other known to himself and his team were not willing to have the game left to Mr. Dan McCabe and asked for a double umpire. Here again the League and its rules were broken and with these troubles around them the managers return to the other officers to straighten out the tangle. President E. N. McWilliams stated that in his opinion there were only two alternatives, either let the four managers settle the difficulty themselves or leave it to the President, Vice-President and Secretary-Treasurer. The circumstances leading up to the tangle he felt did not warrant the officers taking hold of the matter with the executive. The managers decided to settle it between themselves and the protest was not allowed on motion of Park St., seconded by the Strathconas, and supported by the West Ends. They claimed that Manager Quinlan was one with themselves and was jointly responsible for not providing new balls. In regard to the additional umpire the managers claimed that there was no ground for a protest which they agreed was entirely of a flimsy form.

Manager Quinlan had stated that the League rules specifically governed the points he claimed had been broken. Manager Pilling, he said refused to play without a grounds umpire, although it had been decided when the rules were drawn up to appoint Mr. Dan McCabe as the official umpire for the season. If the protest were not allowed the T.A.S. would drop from the League. On the other hand if the games at the Oval were annulled Park St. would drop out as they had been successful at the Oval and were at the top of the League. The T.A.S. were allowed to go and the present standing of the League is as follows:

| | Won | Lost |
|---|---|---|
| Park St. | 4 | 1 |
| West Ends | 3 | 2 |
| Strathconas | 1 | 5 |

West Ends and Park St. play one more game and will decide the championship of the League.

It is safe to say that if the teams had left the problem to the officers they would have annulled the games played at the Oval and ordered them to be played again.

PARK STREET AND WEST ENDS TO BATTLE FOR CHAMPIONSHIP

The action of the T. A. S. team in withdrawing from the league and the consequent cancelling of all the games played by the Abstainers leaves the championship of the City Baseball League hanging upon the result of the Park Street-West End game, which will be played on Saturday afternoon at Nicholls Oval. A win for Park street gives them the championship of the league, while, on the other hand, a victory for the grey shirts means a tie-up between the two teams and an extra series to decide the title. Will West Ends defeat the Park Street team? is the question that the fans are asking just now, and the echo that comes back from the West End supporters there says "They sure will!" The West Ends have their full team on hand now and are prepared to give Park Street an awful argument for the honours. The Southerners, however, have been travelling at a great clip recently, and will take a lot of beating. It looks like anybody's game and should prove a great drawing card, as both teams have numerous supporters.

BASEBALL

The T.A.S. ball club will hold a practice this evening at 7 o'clock on their Charlotte St. grounds. All players are requested to turn out.

• • •

Manager Bill Metheral, of the Strathconas last night expressed himself as confident that the High Commissioners could "put it over" any of of the teams in the League. That seams to be a rather large statement to make in view of the actual occurrences but he is not the only one who has the same opinion.

Mr. Jolliffe's many friends in Peterborough congratulate him on his success in vocalism, which is less a surprise than a pleasure to them.

OBITUARY.

JAMES CAVANAGH.

The death occurred last night at St. Joseph's Hospital of James Cavanagh of Ennismore. He passed away after a lingering illness. He was 34 years of age, and was the son of Michael Cavanagh. Mr. Cavanagh was well known and highly esteemed by all who knew him.

The funeral will take place at nine o'clock to-morrow morning from the family residence to St. Martin's church, and thence to St. Martin's cemetery.

WEDDING BELLS

AAGAARD—DAVIS

A very pretty wedding was solemnized last night at the home of Mr. Jos. Davis, Davisville, North Toronto, when the youngest daughter of Mrs. Tamar Davis, Emily Francis, was united in holy wedlock to Mr. Tenney William Aagaard, of Brandon, Man. The house was decorated with wild flowers and the ceremony was performed under an arch of ferns and golden rod by the Rev. George M. Brown. After the congratulations had been offered by the guests the happy couple left for the Kawartha Lakes and then through the upper lakes to Brandon, where they will reside. The popularity of the bride was quite evident from the manner in which the choir and bugle band of the town turned out and serenaded them and it was only on the appearance of the groom and the delivery of a speech that they were satisfied.

NEIL—BUTLER

In Peterborough, on July 3rd, 1909, the wedding of Miss Mary Pearl Butler, daughter of Mr. Pierce Butler, Perry street, to Mr. Thompson P. Neil, of Toronto, was solemnised at St. Peter's Cathedral by Rev. Father Kelly. The bridesmaid was Miss Lizzie Heffernan, and Mr. Albert Levasseur was groomsman.

GEARY—WILSON

A quiet and pretty wedding was solemnized yesterday afternoon when Florence E. Wilson was married to Francis M. Geary, of Crookston. The ceremony took place at the home of the bride's father, 230 Westcott street, Rev. J. G. Brown, of St. James Church, officiating.

DAVIDSON—PRICE

At 2 o'clock this afternoon a very pretty home wedding took place at the residence of Mr. and Mrs. David Price, Rear street.

The bride was Miss Elsie Muriel Price, youngest daughter of the City Treasurer, and the groom Mr. Henry A. Davidson, druggist, of Moosejaw, formerly of Winnipeg.

The marriage ceremony was performed by the Rev. J. P. Wilson, B.A., of Lindsay, a former pastor of Bridge Street Church.

The drawing-room, where the joyous ceremony took place, was tastefully decorated with ferns, potted plants and asters, presenting a most charming appearance.

At the hour above named, the bride, leaning upon the arm of her father, entered the drawing-room, whilst the wedding music was being brilliantly played upon the piano by Mrs. J. E. Thompson, of Winnipeg, a sister of the bride. The groom and attendants were in waiting to receive her.

The bridesmaid was Miss Gertie Price, a sister of the bride, and the groomsman, Mr. Walter Davidson, barrister, of Peterborough, who is a brother of the groom. Miss Lottie Davidson, sister of the groom, was maid of honour, whilst little Miss Helen Price, of Dutton, Ont., a niece of the bride, and Master Edmund Thompson, of Winnipeg, were attendants.

The bride looked very sweet and winsome in a lace robe over chiffon silk. She wore the traditional bridal veil and carried a shower bouquet of white roses.

The bridesmaid looked very striking in a gown of white silk mulle, and wore a large white picture hat. Her bouquet was of pink roses.

The maid of honour wore a gown of pink silk mulle, and a large white picture hat, and carried pink roses.

Mrs. Price, mother of the bride, wore a black sequin gown, and Mrs. Davidson, mother of the groom, was attired in a grey silk gown and wore a large black hat.

At the conclusion of the ceremony the young couple received hearty congratulations. Those present were the relatives of the contracting parties and a few intimate friends. The wedding breakfast, which followed, was daintily recherche.

The groom's present to the bride was a handsome set of mink furs; to the bridesmaid a beautiful gold pendant brooch, and to the groomsman, maid of honour and attendants, appropriate gifts.

The bride was the recipient of a large number of beautiful and costly gifts, evidence of the esteem in which she is held by her many friends.

At 5 o'clock Mr. and Mrs. Davidson left for the West, and after a visit to several places of interest will proceed to Moosejaw to take up their residence.

The bride was one of Belleville's best known and most pleasing vocalists, and her host of friends will wish for her a happy and prosperous voyage through life, and in this wish The Intelligencer heartily joins.—Belleville Intelligencer.

THE TURF

This week's copy of the Horse World contains an article referring to a recent performance of Malvolio, the sire of Hazel Belle, the old favourite with Peterborough turfmen. The article is as follows:

Malvolio, the chestnut son of Lancelot, 2:23, reduced his trotting record to 2:19¼ over the poor half-mile track at Lancaster, N. Y. last week in a hard-fought race. The son of Lancelot is now 17 years old and there are few trotters of his age that can beat him in a contest. He has a pacing record of 2:17¼, and without change of shoes or rigging he has started in races on the Buffalo speedway at both gaits the same afternoon. He is owned by Mr. C. D. Taylor, a prominent business man of Buffalo, who drives him himself and usese him with the consideration a horse of his sterling worth should be accorded. Mr. Taylor thinks Malvolio can equal his pacing record at the trot over a half-mile track and will give him a chance to do so before the close of the season.

Alex. Nesbitt, of Uxbridge, was the first owner of Hazel Belle, and after several transactions she fell into Mr. Bert McCollum's hands, and Dr. Johnston then purchased her and under his care she developed speed and neatness of action. Hazel Belle is now in Toronto.

HAIR SLAUGHTER; KILLED BY NEGLIGENCE

Hair must have nourishment or die. If it does not have proper nourishment it will lose its vitality, grow weak and become an easy prey to the ravages of the vicious and destructive germs of dandruff.

Parisian Sage is a hair nourisher; it is the result of sincere study and experiment by one of the world's leading scientists.

It should be used regularly as a hair dressing by everyone with healthy hair, because it never fails to prevent dandruff, falling hair, or any scalp disease.

But Parisian Sage is not only a preventive it is a certain cure for dandruff; it stops itching of the scalp instantly; it makes hair grow

INCREASE IN COST OF RAW RUBBER

Peterborough people may expect to pay more for their foot wear in the near future, both in the rubber and leather line. The manufacturers everywhere are advancing their prices, owing to the increased cost of raw material and a rise in the price of shoes and rubbers may be looked for. Local dealers are receiving circulars from the manufacturers, calling attention to the increase. It is stated that there has been an enormous advance in the last few months in the price of crude rubber, so much so that the manufacturers have decided upon a ten per cent. increase in all rubber footwear. The same is true of leather shoes, leather and hides having reached a very unusual high price.

MAMMOTH POTATO WEIGHED A POUND

There are potatoes and potatoes, but the Examiner was shown something in the tuber line yesterday that was some potato. The monster was grown in the garden of Mr. Geo. Singleton, 168 Stewart street this summer, and weighed a pound, while it measured in girth twelve inches. It looked big enough to the reporter to furnish a meal for a family, especially a newspaperman's family.

BOARD OF WORKS GANG PROGRESSING

The Board of Works sidewalk department in charge of Street Commissioner Harry Evans, are getting along well with their work this season. They have already laid about three miles, and the season is just half over. Another three miles will be laid before the cold weather sets in. The gang is now on Sheridan street, and is up against one of the hardest propositions of the season, on account of the steep hill, the many roots and the changing of the street grade. The job will be finished, however, by the end of the week. The walk up the hill on Brock street, back of St. John's Church has been completed, and is a decided improvement.

The street gang are not very busy this year. Only patch work is being done besides cleaning the sod off the side of the roads, and giving the streets a much better appearance.

Has Issued Writ For $4212 Against Mr. Maurice Houedry

William Edward Genno, of Sudbury, the former manager of the roller rink here, has issued through his solicitors, Messrs. O'Connell & Gordon, a writ for $4,212.50 and costs against Maurice Louis Houedry. It appears that the defendant has entered upon the premises the plaintiff had rented as a roller rink, and has made use of it and the goods and chattels for his own purposes.

The endorsement on the writ is briefly as follows: $2,212.25 damages for wrongfully entering upon the lands and premises leased by the plaintiff and for converting to his own use the chattels and effects of the plaintiff.

The plaintiff further claims the sum of $2,000 as damages for breach of covenant by the defendant to repair the roof of the building described in the said lease.

The plaintiff also claimed an injunction, restraining the defendant from using or disposing of the plaintiff's goods or chattels.

SPECIAL NOTICE

THE ROYAL has made new arrangements for its pictures; it will be an EXCLUSIVE, Up-to-the-minute service, and patrons of the Royal will see the latest pictures FIRST here.

"THE DRUNKARD'S CHILD"

This is a very pathetic drama, telling a story of a poor crippled child whose father is none too good, and how the father meets his death through his child's faithfulness to his benefactor.

"THE NEWEST WOMAN."

Mrs. Fashion Plate has seen the latest Paris creation, and has ordered a BALLOON SUIT. The husband is disgusted, and to square things gets a Fancy Suit with lace on his trousers, and then the fun begins.

"THE PLAIN CLOTHES MAN."

A very thrilling detective story and one of the best yet shown. It tells the story of the hard life of a detective, who, when duty calls must obey, and how he succeeds. The picture is full of exciting incidents and well worth seeing.

THE STRIKING LONGSHOREMEN AT FORT WILLIAM MAKE ATTACK ON POLICE

Chief of C.P.R. Police at Fort William Is Wounded In the Abdomen and Leader of Foreign Strikers Is Suffering From Bullet—Troops Are Hurried to the Scene From Winnipeg—Read Riot Act.

Fort William, Ont., Aug. 13.—In a clash between special C.P.R. constables and a crowd of striking longshoremen yesterday morning bullets flew promiscuously for a few minutes.

Revolvers and rifles were the weapons, and while there were no fatalities, several men were seriously wounded. The casualty list includes:

Chief Hall of the C.P.R. police, wounded in abdomen.

Joseph Taylor, 26 Algonquin, slightly hurt.

C. M. Dickenson, reporter for The Times-Journal, slightly hurt.

— Carpenter, C.P.R. constable, knee badly smashed.

John Lane, butcher, forehead grazed by bullet.

Strikers: Foreign leader shot through groin; another through the neck; several others slightly wounded.

Yesterday afternoon a detachment of the 90th Regiment was called out. Major Pelletier read the riot act and the waterfront was declared to be under martial law.

The battle occurred at the corner of McTavish street and the C.P.R. sheds. About 9 a.m. the C.P.R. brought in about 30 special constables. At the C.P.R. station they were sworn in and then started for the coal docks. On the C.P.R. bridge were standing about 30 strikers, who followed the constables down Hardysty street. Near the sheds about 200 strikers gathered, looking for trouble.

Half an hour later the C.P.R. police went across the road to a boarding-house and the strikers at once declared that they would not let them go back.

Ald. Rankin came down and made a speech, stating that the C.P.R. were willing to give 20 cents for day work and 25 cents for night work. The strikers would hardly listen at all, but watched the boarding-house like hawks.

About 11.30 the constables started coming out. Only two were outside when the shooting started. The first constables to come out were told to go back, but they pulled out revolvers and threatened to shoot. One of the strikers in the lead started to raise his stick and threatened to hit him, and the constables, it is said, began a regular fusilade of revolver shots.

It was only a minute before there was a battle in progress in the centre of the street. The strikers used revolvers first, and so did the police, who drove the strikers back somewhat and managed to reach the shelter of cars drawn across the road at the entrance of the freight shed.

"Bring rifles," was then the cry of the strikers, and about a dozen men rushed to nearby houses and came out with rifles. Sheltered by the corners of houses, they continued the skirmish and showed no signs of retreating. The men with rifles were encouraged by their fellow-strikers, and two or three could be seen in a group around a man with a gun, showing how to use it.

Men were seen running in and out of houses for ammunition, and as fast as it could be brought the shooting continued, lasting 15 minutes.

All last night strikers remained around the sheds, firing revolvers and rifles into the air. Men are constantly on guard along the streets leading to the docks and accost all strangers who appear in the vicinity, demanding of them a statement that they are not going to work, and when that is given they are generally allowed to pass. Guy Allen attempted to drive through the lines with his delivery rig, refusing to explain. The horse was stopped and the harness cut to pieces. Allen was roughly handled and his rig smashed.

For some time things have been threatening among the foreigners who constitute the freight handlers, and it has been freely stated that there are 300 mauser rifles in these now lawless hands.

Threats have openly been made that on appearance of militia that several prominent officials, including the chief of police, would be murdered, this last being attributed to a well-known Italian agitator.

Soldiers Ordered to Scene.

The men had discarded there red coats, despite the prestige of the traditional British uniform, and were in field service uniform, with double allowance (300 rounds) of ammunition.

The Crazy Indian Has Been Corralled At Last

Was Lassoed by Captors and is Now on His Way to the Hamilton Asylum—Was Naked and Presented a Terrifying Appearance With Eighteen-Inch Long Hair.

Special to The Examiner (2.45 p.m.)

North Bay, Aug. 13.—After a long and anxious canoe trip through the wilderness, Jno. Chakasom, a crazy Cree Indian, who has terrorized the shores of Hudson's Bay for the past year left North Bay to-day for Hamilton Asylum, in charge of Detective Giroux and Dr. Dunnett, of Ottawa, who were accompanied from Missanabie by three white men and three Indians. The mad Cree is supposed to have killed several Indians and is a giant weighing 255 pounds. He had to be chained in open field at the post and was terrifying spectacle.

Stark naked and with hair eighteen inhces long, he was lassoed, cleaned up and brought out in strait jacket with manacled limbs. Canoes journey of two hundred miles being made in ten days, every night Chakasom was chained to a tre and one night he pulled a six-inch balsam up by the roots.

THE BADDECK No. 1 MAKES SHORT BUT SUCCESSFUL FLIGHT

Petawawa Camp, Aug. 13.—"Baddeck No. 1," the new Canadian aerodrome, at 5.30 last night for the first time left the ground, making a short "hop" of about seventy feet in length and rising 9 or 10 feet from the surface. Only one test was made.

The aerodrome went along the roadway for nearly half a mile at a rate of at least thirty miles to the hour. When J. A. D. McCurdy, the aviator, turned the controller upwards, the drome gracefully shot into the air, but he at once turned the controller down again and the drome took the ground easily. Then the aerodrome, keeping to the roadway, ran back towards the shed and was shoved in there.

McCurdy does not consider this as an ascent; "simply a little hop," said he. "We will have another trial tomorrow and I may say that for three or four days we have got to make little hops like that to get acquainted with the ground."

Col. Fiset, Deputy Minister of Militia, said: "The aerodrome makes great time and looks good. It is wonderful, wonderful. McCurdy is a plucky chap. They are wise not to attempt too much at first. I believe the Wrights in Washington kept the public waiting eight days before they made their ascent."

Gen. Otter was an interested spectator, but did not care to express an opinion.

Col. Rutherford was pleased with the test, but he looked on it only as a preliminary one, and expected much more ambitious ventures before long. Gen. Macdonald and Major Maunsell spoke much in the same strain. As soon as the drome reached the shed, Col. Fiset, Gen. Otter and others shook hands with Messrs. McCurdy and Baldwin (who was in the aerodrome when she came back to the shed) and congratulated them.

It is understood that the aviators will make short "hops" for the next day or two and probably begin longer ascents about Tuesday or Wednesday.

While it is too early for anything definite yet, the machine seems to be well put together and it is fully expected it will be a success.

Over two hundred, including automobile parties from Pembroke and elsewhere, witnessed the flight. The Militia Department officials here will return to the capital on Saturday.

"We do not consider to-nights effort a flight," said Wm. Macdonald of the Baddeck. "It was quite successful, but was a hop, not a flight."

Before the flight the big field was cleared of all spectators.

Yesterday morning Col. Fiset said. "I do not think Canada should or can afford to purchase an aerodrome of the present experimental stage. There is not enough known about them yet to warrant the Government buying them."

HARRY K. THAW LOSES CASE IS DECLARED STILL INSANE

White Plains, N.Y., Aug. 13.—The State of New York won a complete victory over Harry K. Thaw when Justice Isaac N. Mills decided that the slayer of Stanford White is still insane, and sent him back to the criminal insane asylum at Matteawan.

Not one of the many contentions made by Thaw during the three weeks of his recent hearing was sustained, but Justice Mills practically orders that Thaw at Matteawan be restored to the privileges he enjoyed during the first three months of his stay there, and that his mother be allowed all possible privileges when she calls to see him.

Thaw received the news with slight display of emotion, apparently expecting an adverse decision. A copy of the courts' decision was handed to him. He read it without comment until he came to the following sentence: "If those beliefs constituted delusions in his mind when he committed the homicide, they are the same now."

"That's not so," he said, and marked the lines with his pencil.

Thaw was smoking a pipe and as he read he puffed faster and faster until the air about him was a cloud of smoke.

Justice Mills draws the following conclusion: The insanity with which Thaw was afflicted at the time he committed the homicide was of the kind known as chronic delusive insanity, or paranoia.

In killing White, the justice holds that Thaw believed "he was acting as the agent of Providence and performing a praiseworthy act, and, like that of David in slaying Goliath, or St. George in killing the dragon."

Upon my own personal observation of the conduct of Thaw, his actions and speech in the court-room, both on and off the witness stand, I have been impressed that he is now of unsound mind," says Justice Mills. "He was exceedingly nervous and very frequently interrupted his counsel with suggestion."

Not the least significant sentence in Justice Mills' decision in the opinion of lawyers, is one which declares that Thaw's delusions had become fixed and established prior to the time of his marriage. "It is pointed out that this sentence may, if desired, provide grounds for proceedings by Mrs. Evelyn Thaw for the annulment of her marriage."

CRIES OF "MURDER AND POLICE!" SAVED MAN FROM BEING ROBBED

George Desborough Told How He Was Attacked in Central Park on Monday Night Last by Two Men —Fallen and Conner in Police Court To-day.

P. C. NEWHALL'S EVIDENCE

Tom Conner and Whillie Fallan, the two young men who were charged yesterday with assaulting and attempting to rob George Desborough on Monday night last came up for trial before Magistrate Dumble at the police court this morning. Mr. G. N. Gordon defended both prisoners in the absence of Mr. R. F. McWilliams, who was appearing for Fallen. At yesterday's court they elected to be tried summarily and pleaded not guilty. Considerable evidence was taken, the most important being that of Desborough and P. C. Newhall.

George Desborough

George Desborough, the complainant sworn, said that he was a baker with Mr. N. Lush. He boarded near the C.P.R. station. He left home at 1:30 last Monday night to go to work, going straight up George street to Central Park. As soon as he entered the Park he saw three men sitting on a seat. Witness sat down on another bench to light his pipe. He had been about two minutes when Fallen came and sat beside him. He asked complainant what his name was, where he was going, and what he had about him. Desborough answered that he had nothing for him. Fallen told him that he would give him a d—— good licking before he went. Witness got up to leave and was followed by Fallen, who on coming up to him struck him in the back of the neck. He tried for witness' pocket but he stopped him. All the time he was kicking him. Desborough struck at him but Fallen stepped back. Fallen then called for his chum who was Conner. They both started at him then and he shouted out Police! Murder! and then they ran away. He proceeded to the bakeshop. When he got in, Mr. Lush asked him, "What is the matter? You are all blood." Mr. Lush telephoned for the police.

P. C. Newhall said that on Monday last he received a telephone message to come to a certain number on Water street. He remained there a considerable time and on returning came along McDonnel street to George street. The policeman heard someone call murder! He stopped and saw two men running in the Park towards Mc-

GREAT CRY AND LITTLE WOOL.

It seems to require a surgical operation, supplemented by a sledge hammer, to get the idea of a joke into the head of the editor of the Review. A day or two ago the Examiner, in a way intended to be jocular, referred to the fact or rather fancy, that Sir James Whitney had gone into the hotel business—had put a Government official in charge of the temporarily deranged affairs of the Royal Hotel, Bobcaygeon. Whereupon the editor took the matter seriously—as seriously as he is capable of taking anything—and poured forth half a column, be the same more or less, of platitudinous pig-wash and burlesque indignation upon its devoted head, bewailing the Examiner's heartlessness and want of sensibility in making so disrespectful bonifacial reference to the great Premier of Ontario. The Examiner is also excoriated for the crime of making light of a tragic occurrence. All of which is very funny. The Examiner intended the reference as a joke—a little one it may be, "but mine own." The "long vacation" seems to have concentrated the fatuousness of the silly season into one small head.

THE AUTOMOBILE.

The automobile has become an evident fixture in the matter of vehicular locomotion, but while it has conquered its place it has not overcome the prejudices and hostility with which it is regarded by those who claim to be subjected to inconvenience by its use. Among members of the farming community there is a rather keen antipathy to the automobile, which arises, to a very large extent, from the attitude of conductors or drivers of these powerful and speedy vehicles. Complaint is made that horses are frightened at its unusual appearance and the comparative speed and suddenness with which it comes upon them in the highway. This objectionable feature of the auto can be largely eliminated by the chauffeurs themselves—amateur and otherwise. There are drivers and drivers; some are reckless and indifferent to considerations of the safety and comfort of drivers of teams they meet on the highway; others act like Christians, and make things as easy as possible. As an example of the latter, the writer enjoyed a spin to Chemong with a gentleman of the city. He has a first-class machine and delights to let it out, under proper conditions—with a good, smooth stretch of highway ahead, unobstructed by vehicles. He was thoughtful enough to slow down on the approach of a horse, even stopping his car, alighting, and taking the horse by the bridle, soothing it by patting it on the neck before leading it past the automobile. Similar consideration was given to every horse vehicle met or passed. So this auto pilot went on his way, leaving behind him appreciative and applauding friends, instead of howling and menacing drivers, such as would have been found in the wake of the reckless and indifferent chauffeur.

Automobilists have it in their power to make friends instead of foes of the public, by showing a proper consideration for others, who have as good a right as themselves to the use of the streets. The reckless driver, who, like Jehu, the son of Nimshi, drives furiously through the streets, deserves reprobation. He endangers the life and limb of the public, both by direct collision and by frightening timid or spirited horses.

With the frequent instances we have of reckless speeding by auto-cars, in the city of Peterborough, and with their rapid multiplication in number, there should be a by-law passed, fixing a maximum speed at which cars may legally be run within the city limits. Such regulation would not be objected to by moderate motor drivers, and as to those who recklessly disregard the public safety, their objection will not deserve to count. Life and limb are of far more value than the indiscriminate indulgence of a desire "to show off" at their expense. There is a by-law against "furious driving" of horse-drawn vehicles in the city limits, and the same justification for this should obtain in regard to automobiles.

There might be some difficulty in proving that an automobile is exceeding the speed fixed by a by-law like that mentioned. But the Deputy Chief of the London, England, police, has proposed an ingenious means of automatic detection. He proposes that an apparatus should be adapted to each motor car, consisting of a sort of siren, which would be brought into play to produce a shrill, strident howl when the legal speed was surpassed, and would continue as long as the offending speed itself continues. This apparatus is to be attached to the vehicle in such a manner that it can not be tampered with or falsified. Any offending chauffeur would condemn himself and call not only the attenetion of the police but of the public, to his breach of the city by-law.

Autoists, as remarked above, have it in their own power to put themselves on good terms with, and in the good graces of, the public. It is probable that we should not have had so ardent a crusade in favour prohibition, if a certain class of hotel keepers had not by their flagrant disregard of the license law, made themselves obnoxious, as well as bringing discredit upon license holders generally. On the same reasoning a few reckless and sensational automobilists can conduct, or rather, misconduct themselves so as to bring discredit upon the whole motoring fraternity.

There is another feature of the action of the automobile that seems to be entitled to become a factor in its popularity, and permanency of employment. It is claimed that the automobile, especially when run at high speed, is an enemy to good roads—that it is destructive of the very condition which contributes to its successful and enjoyable use. An article in the Technical World Magazine says, upon this point:

> The reason (for the alleged destructive effects of autos) is plain when understood. Under the passing of waggons equipped with iron tires the surface rock is constantly being fractured; the tiny dust particles so formed sifting their way into the interstices and being packed firmer and firmer in place by rains and traffic, finally forming a cemented, bonded, impervious, water-shedding shell. When in its highest state of perfection the rock from which such road is formed must be so suited to the character and volume of traffic which passes over it that the amount of dust formed will be only sufficient to replace that which is taken away by wind and rain. Automobiles came and the troubles of the engineers began. The motor car did none of the helpful things that an iron tired wagon does. Proceeding, as they usually do, at a high rate of speed, they lift the dust-binding surface and send it swirling away, while the soft rubber tires crush no rock to supply that which they strip from the highways. Much streets has been laid upon the effect of the car body and its shape in lifting dust from the road surface. Some experiments seem to furnish convincing proof that but little dust is taken from the roads by this means, though the dust lifted by the wheels is greatly accelerated by the action of the car body and the air currents set up in its rear. This must be considered an important factor, as much of the dust lifted by the wheels would not be carried from the road, but for the air currents developed by its shape.

There seems to be a fly in every pot of ointment.

EDITORIAL NOTES.

The exaction of $20,000 in Custom duties upon three yachts imported by three wealthy Torontonians from New York, might be regarded as a hardship if yachts as good could not be built in Canada.

"Hanlans" on Toronto's insular sand bar is to be rebuilt, and it is to be hoped that the new structure will be something better than piles of kindling wood, tempting to a disastrous blaze at any time. The sad death of one poor girl can not be balanced by any amount of fun and so-called pleasure helped by structures whose flimsy character invites collapse or conflagration.

CASES OF "MURDER AND POLICE!"

Donnel street. A few yards behind the two was a third man running. When witness got to the bandstand he saw a man running towards him. P. C. Newhall hid and then followed the prisoner, who turned out to be Conner, right down George street, on Simcoe street. Newhall met Adams and the two went to Lush's bakery. There, Mr. Desborough related what had happened. Desborough complained of a tooth loose and was very sore about the hip. The crown of his straw hat was torn.

On Wednesday about 4 o'clock, he brought Conner into Chief Rossel's office. Witness asked Conner all about the affair and he replied that he knew nothing of it. Conner then spoke of being on George street near Central Park on Monday night, and hearing someone yelling "Murder!" he ran for home. Later when the Chief had left the room, Conner told Newhall that he knew all about the affair in Central Park and proceeded to tell him. About 8 o'clock on Wednesday Fallen was arrested. On Fallen a silver watch was found. P. C. Newhall told in detail the conversation between the two prisoners in the cells.

Mr. E. Lush testified as to the state Desborough was in when he reached the shop.

After hearing Mr. Lush the court adjourned until two o'clock, when the cross-examination of P. C. Newhall will be begun by Mr. Gordon.

A NARROW ESCAPE

Young Daughter of Mr. A. E. Sims Was Rescued After Falling Into the River

The little daughter of Mr. A. E Sims, baker, on George street, north, had a narrow escape from drowning yesterday morning about 10:30 o'clock. In company with another little girl the daughter of Mr. Harper, she was playing along the edge of the river, near the resident of Mr. Elcome, taxidermist, Harvey street, when the little Sims girl fell into the river. The water was deep at that point and she would have undoubtedly been drowned had it not been for the timely arrival of a gentleman who succeeded in pulling her out. She was carried into the house of Mrs. Beeby, on Harvey strete, and after a short rest was able to return home.

DR. CHASE'S RECIPE BOOK FREE

Special Edition, Containing 1,000 of the Most Successful Recipes and Prescriptions.

You do not often get anything worth having for nothing, but here is an exception of which we want to tell you.

Edmanson, Bates, and Co., of Toronto, have recently published a paper-covered edition of Dr. Chase's Recipes, which comes near to being the most useful book for its size that was ever printed.

There is altogether about 1,000 recipes and prescripitions, and these are such as are almost sure to be needed at one time or another in most homes.

The first section of the book is devoted to the Symptoms and Treatment of Disease. Then follows a department devoted to Beauty Culture, which is, of course, of especial interest to women, containing as it does scors of formulae for exquisite toilet preparations. Under Miscellaneous Ready Recipes are found many useful household recipes. The latter part of the book is taken up with a Veterinary Department, which, on account of the valuable prescriptions which it contains for curbs and spavins, may prove itself worth hundreds of dollars to horsemen and farmers.

You will be astonished at the wealth of information contained in this book and, as the edition is limited, we would suggest the advisability of writing at once to Edmanson, Bates, and Co., Toronto. Kindly mention this paper when writing, and enclose a two-cent stamp to pay postage.

CURED WHEN DOCTORS FAILED

Mr. Felix Villeneuve, Clarence Creek, Ont., writes: "I was a great sufferer from kidney disease and inflammation of the bowels and liver troubels and doctors could not help me much. Could not sleep, water contained sediment, had frequent desire to urinate and often passed blood. Had dreadful headaches, one side almost paralyzed, and was deaf in left ear for eight years. Dr. Chase's Kidney-Liver Pills cured me and I am very grateful. I want to thank you."

HE ENJOYS HIS MEALS NOW

For He Keeps a "Little Digester" Handy

Mr. Gleasce, of Toronto, wrote us on May 14th last:

THE CHAMBAIN MEDICINE Co.,
299 Church St., Toronto.

Dear Sirs,—

I wish you would send me another box of your "Little Digesters". All the members of my family have been using them and have obtained the most satisfactory results.

I congratulate you on your success in putting up a tablet for the cure of Indigestion. I suffered for years and tried everything that was recommended to me. Nothing gave me relief, until I was persuaded to try "Little Digesters". Now I never suffer from Indigestion. I enjoy my meals and am not afraid to eat anything I know a "Little Digester" after each meal will digest my food.

I recommend them to all my friends who suffer from Indigestion and would further say that you may publish the above if you wish. I know there are thousands of people suffering from Indigestion who will be glad to know there is a safe and simple cure for them.

Yours very truly,
(Signed) E. S. GLASSCO.

"Little Digesters" cost 25 cents at your druggists, or by mail from Coleman Medicine Co., Toronto. 25

Mr. Houedry's Solicitors' Explanation Of Action Against Him

In reference to the item in last evening's Examiner regarding the action of Professor Genno against Maurice Louis Houedry. Mr. Houedry's solicitors, Messrs. Hall and Hayes, stated that the defendant had given Genno forty-five days in which to pay his rent which at the expiration of that time was not paid and Mr. Houedry then seized the chattels and effects of the plaintiff. The defendant, Mr. Hall stated, had a good defence to offer.

KEENE ITEMS OF INTEREST

Special to The Examiner.

Keene, Aug. 10.—Mr. and Mrs. Duncan Kerr, Chicago, are the guests of Mr. and Mrs. A. D. Anderson.

Miss Helen Kylie, Rochester, is the guest of Mrs. Frank Walsh.

Miss Margaret Walsh, Rochester, is spending her holidays in Otonabee.

Dr. James Campbell, of the staff of the Toronto Asylum, spent Sunday in Keene.

Dr. Redmond, who has been visiting friends in Keene, left for Toronto Monday.

Mr. and Miss Langlois, Toronto, were the guests of Misses Agnes and Lillian Campbell, Sunday.

Miss Robinson, Peterborough, who has been the guest of Misses Agnes and Lillian Campbell, returned home last week.

Mrs. William Stewart Meaford is the guest of Mr. John Lang.

Rev. and Mrs. D. D. McDonald are spending their holidays at Collins' Bay.

Miss Margaret Pidgeon, who has been visiting friends in Otonabee, left for Millbrook Monday.

Miss Grace Wilson, Toronto, is visiting Miss Mamie Taylor.

Miss Anglin, Toronto, is the guest of Miss Lillian Campbell.

Misses Maude and Clara Campbell, Peterborough, spent a few days this week visiting friends in Otonabee.

Mr. Lord, Toronto, and Mr. and Mrs. Wood, Peterborough, spent Sunday in the village, the guests of Misses Lillian and Agnes Campbell.

Mrs. Joseph Andrews and children, Delaware, Ohio, are the guests of Mrs. Harry McLachlan.

Miss Minnie McLachlan, Norwood, is the guest of her cousin Mr. Bert McLachlan.

Mr. Clifton King, Detroit, visited Dr. V. H. McWilliams last week.

Rev. Mr. Bennet, Almonte, conducted services in the Presbyterian Church Sunday in the absence of Rev. D. D. McDonald, who is away on his holidays.

Next Sunday Rev. Mr. Edmison, Kincardine, will preach in the Presbyterian churches in Keene and Westwood.

Misses Louise Mathers, Peterborough, and Beatrice Stewart, Norwood, are the guests of Miss Susie Moore.

Mr. J. C. Read, accompanied by his niece, Miss Bessie Read, Peterborough, left this week for a visit to relatives in Brockville.

Miss Lillian Grady, Peterborough, is visiting friends in Keene.

Miss Gertrude Crowley is the guest of Miss Pearl McCann.

P. C. Wm. Maher, is spending his holidays in Keene.

Mr. Herbert Henderson and Miss Maude Martin returned last week to Toronto, after a visit with relatives in Keene.

Mr. and Mrs. George McCartney and Miss Kathleen McCartney, are the guests of Mr. R. S. Skinner.

Mr. A. B. Fee, Toronto, formerly of the staff of the local branch of the Bank of Toronto, visited Keene last week.

Mrs. Mark Plunkett is visiting relatives in Cavan.

Mr. F. M. Dean, of the staff of the Bank of Toronto, is spending his holidays in Hamilton. In Mr. Dean's absence his place is being filled by Mr. Roy Douglas.

Mr. Fred McIntyre's barns, with 25 loads of grain, 10 loads of hay, 45 bushel Alsike clover seed, a bull, half a dozen calves, harness, and most of his implements were destroyed by fire Tuesday afternoon between three and four o'clock. Nothing, whatever, was saved. The cause of the fire was unknown, but it is supposed to have been caused by spontaneous combustion. Mr. McIntyre had only left a short time for Peterborough, and the hired man was away at the far end of the farm when the fire was noticed. Only Mrs. McIntyre was near and the fire gained such rapid headway that she could save nothing. There was a strong northeast wind blowing and it was only with difficulty that Mr. William Ray's barns and house across the road were saved. A considerable amount of fence was burned and fires were started in the woods to the southwest of the barns, but did not do any damage.

Mr. McIntyre's loss would total between two and three thousand dollars, with fifteen hundred dollars insurance.

Mr. McIntyre fortunately had removed his thrashing mill from his barn a few days before or it also would have been lost.

Mr. Arthur Howson, Peterborough, is the guest of his uncle, Mr. J. H. McIntyre.

CORN AND LOCAL OPTION.

For a local option township Otonabee seems to be able to be well-corned. This morning Mr. David McMahon, a prosperous farmer of this prosperous township, left with the Examiner a stalk of corn of altitudinous longitude, an agricultural reproduction of Jack's bean stalk. It was a stalk of common cow corn, or ensilage corn, measuring 11 feet, 10 inches in length, and it had not done growing when plucked. Mr. McMahon has a small field of corn of similar length, something extraordinary in a season not regarded as favourable to riotous growth.

Badly Hurt In Thresher

BLOODPOISON SET IN

Truth is often stranger than fiction and many of the cures brought about by Dr. Chase's Ointment are more like miracles than anything else.

You generally hear of this great Ointment as a cure for eczema or piles. In the case we report to-day the trouble was blood poison. You know how dreadfully dangerous this is. You know how helpless doctors are in its treatment. Read about this cure brought about by Dr. Chase's Ointment.

Mrs. C. Hopkins, St. George, Ont., writes: "I feel like shouting the praises of Dr. Chase's Ointment. While threshing grain my son got badly hurt. One of the men who was pitching sheaves, missed the sheaf and ran the prongs of the fork into my son's leg. He did not take much notice of it and in a day or two it got sore and very itchy and blood poison got in. We did everything for it but it would heal one place and break out at another, and kept on this way for three months.

"Finally I thought of Dr. Chase's Ointment and in a week's time we noticed a wonderful change. By the use of three boxes he was completely cured and the wounds healed up. There has not been a sign of a spot on him since.

"I might also say that my husband was cured of a very bad case of piles by the use of two boxes of Dr. Chase's Ointment. It is a wonderful Ointment."

Wherever there is itching or irritation of the skin or a sore that refuses to heal you can apply Dr. Chase's Ointment with every assurance that the results will be prompt and satisfactory.

60 cents a box, at all dealers, or Edmanson, Bates & Co., Toronto.

Took Toll on Condemned Road.

Ottawa, Aug. 13.—Because the toll gate keeper at Billings Bridge collected toll after Montreal road, which is a toll road, was condemned by Government Inspector Halford of Toronto, who was asked to come here by the Carleton County Council to have a look over the stretch of road, he will be arraigned before County Magistrate Smith to-day on the charge of unlawfully collecting moneys.

The Montreal road is owned by a company and has for a long time been in the very worst shape, for a toll road, it is alleged.

Swedish Strike Flattens Out.

Stockholm, Aug. 13.—The striking workmen of Sweden continue to return to work. The stevedores of Gothenburg are the latest to resume, and the foreigners taken to Gothenburg to fill their places are being returned to their homes. It is expected that the saw mill hands will be compelled shortly, through lack of funds, to return to their places. They are begging food throughout the rural districts.

The Constable's Revenge.

Woodstock, Aug. 13.—G. Whittaker of Owen Sound, formerly of Woodstock, was brought to this city under arrest yesterday, charged with writing a menacing letter.

Whittaker wrote to Constable Fred Hill accusing him of having overcollected from Whittaker on a judgment, and threatening prosecution. Hill thereupon went to Owen Sound and arrested the man on a charge of sending him a threatening letter.

The magistrate found him guilty and he had to pay costs of the court, $26.

Gov. Hughes Breaks Record.

Banff, Alta., Aug. 13.—Governor Hughes of New York yesterday morning ascended the famous Sulphur Mountain, accompanied by a guide. The time for the ascent was one hour and fifty minutes to the summit, a height of 4,000 feet. No stops were made on the trip and the time has never been equalled before by any Alpine climber who has visited Banff.

Governor Hughes left for the east yesterday and will pass through Winnipeg on Saturday.

Six Hundred Homeless Flee Away.

Monterey, Mex., Aug. 13.—The Santa Catarina River, after a disastrous overflow, returned to its banks yesterday leaving a scene of desolation and destruction in the southern part of Monterey. At least 14 persons were drowned. At San Lazito, a suburb, more than 600 houses were swept away.

In Monterey the damage was great. The bath house was flooded, and one man lost his life in the swimming pool.

Saved by One Vote.

Adelaide, Aug. 13.—The non-confidence motion of the leader of the Labor party, after a wearisome stonewalling by the Labor members, has been rejected by a majority of one in the South Australian House of Assembly.

The Second Assassination.

Frankfort, Ky., Aug. 13.—A. J. Engleman, night agent of the Queen and Crescent Railroad at King's Mountain, Ky., was assassinated in the office of the company there some time after midnight Wednesday. His jewelry was gone and pockets rifled, but a considerable sum of money belonging to the railroad company was left untouched in a drawer. This is the second night agent of the road killed almost at the same hour and in the same manner within two years.

Canadian Canal Traffic.

Ottawa, Aug. 13.—The traffic through the Canadian canals shows a decrease to the end of June. The falling off on the Soo Canal, compared with the previous year, was 1,188,102 tons; Welland decreased, 63,053, and St. Lawrence 77,869. On the Rideau there was an increase of 7,500 tons, and the Trent Canal traffic increased by 10,500 tons

Prof. Bernhardt Killed.

Burlington, Vt., Aug. 13.—Prof Wilhelm Bernhardt of Washington, D.C., a well-known educator and author, was struck and killed by a train yesterday. He was spending the summer here.

A Farmer's Suicide.

Truro, N.S., Aug. 11.—While boys were swimming in the Salmon River, the body of Jonathan MacKinlay, aged 70, a farmer of North River, was found, his head was in a bag and weighed down with a stone 75 pounds. Deceased had recently announced his intentions of suicide.

Hugh Clark's Boy Burned.

Kincardine, Aug. 11—Stewart Clark, young son of Col. Hugh Clark, M.P.P., was severely burned yesterday morning. He was lighting matches when his clothing caught fire, and he was burned around the breast and shoulders.

Notices of Births, Marriages and Deaths, 25 cents each insertion in either the Daily or Weekly Examiner.

Twenty-five years ago it was difficult to sell spring wheat flour for pastry at any price.

People didn't want it—they were using soft, winter wheat flour, and saw no reason for changing.

But hard wheat flour was persistently pushed. The women tried it and succeeded with it,—to-day hard wheat flour is the favorite for Pastry as well as for Bread.

Only the Best Sugar Makes the Best Preserves

Does all sugar look alike to you? It isn't, you may be sure. One sugar differs from another sugar in sweetness.

Sugar is sugar, but it is not sugar when it is something else. And, alas, for the weakness of money-making mortals, it is sometimes something else.

One sugar differs from another in what it is made of. One sugar made from sugar-cane differs from another made from sugar-beets.

One sugar differs from another in purity and wholesomeness. Sugar can be made clean like any other food product. And, as it is almost the commonest thing we eat, sugar ought to be about the cleanest thing we eat.

And your preserves, which you want to be the very best, require the best of sugar.

St. Lawrence Granulated Sugar meets the exacting requirements of the best preserves.

Dr. Milton L. Hersey, the Government Analyst, in a recent careful and impartial analysis, reports St. Lawrence Granulated Sugar to be 99 99/100 to 100 per cent. pure cane sugar, with no impurities whatever.

This season promises to be a good one for berries and other fruits—just the season to get them of good quality and cheap to preserve.

Your home-made preserves are by far the best, and you know all about their real goodness, if you select the fruit and the sugar with equal care.

The best fruit and St. Lawrence Granulated Sugar, with your skill in preserving, will stock you finely for the coming winter.

And don't simply order "some sugar" from the grocer, letting him send you some nameless, ordinary sugar.

Get sugar with a name. Get St. Lawrence Granulated Sugar, in 20-lb. cotton bags, with the name on it, to guarantee the brand, the full weight, and the cleanliness of the sugar itself.

When you buy it in bulk, scooped out of a barrel, you can't be sure of all these important points in your sugar.

You save money by this and get better, cleaner sugar. Try it and see! Then you'll be sweet enough to thank us for telling you about this matter.

If your grocer cannot supply you with these 20-lb. bags, send his name and address to the St. Lawrence Sugar Refining Co., Limited, Montreal, and they will tell you where it can be obtained.

Are You Superstitious?

☞ HOLD THE ABOVE DESIGN ABOUT EIGHTEEN INCHES FROM YOUR EYES. GAZE STEADILY AT THE SYMBOLS WITHIN THE CIRCLE. THIS WILL ACQUAINT YOU WITH TODAY'S DATE. AFTER THAT, GO ABOUT YOUR BUSINESS IN THE USUAL WAY, AND DON'T WORRY.

So to-day is Friday the thirteenth!

The first Friday to be noted as an unlucky day appears in the historical records as that occuring on December 6, 1745, the day on which the news arrived in England that the Pretender had landed. The second was May 11, 1866, the culmination of the commercial panic in London, when Overend, Gurney & Co. stopped payment. The third was Sept. 24, 1869, in Wall street, New York, when a group of speculators forced the price of gold to 162, creating a ruinous panic.

The superstition in regard to the thirteenth dates from the days of Roman auguries. Both Romans and Greeks were strong believers in the gods of chance, and their priests formulated these beliefs and traded on them. No general in those days thought of setting out on an important expedition without consulting the Augur to learn whether the day of the proposed start was propitious. The bowels of birds and small animals were helpful in discovering the outlook. After the priest had received a tender broiler from the seeker after knowledge, and had removed the broiler's head, and inspected the broiler's stomach and gizzard (and eaten the broiler's white and dark meat), he could give an expert opinion to the effect that the thirteenth was a bad day to start an expedition.

So the expedition started on the fourteenth, and whether the general won or lost, the Augur had his white and dark meat.

There are modern experts in a similar class of knowledge who have equally reliable ways for telling when it is a good time to do certain things. Cryptic utterances in regard to "good things" are handed out, and opportunities are purveyed for accumulating the benefits of wealth, without the inconvenience of any form of labour, through the unexplainable interposition of a mysterious and superior power. For which it is necessary only that the person about to embark on the proposed expedition, bring a chicken or a pigeon or a sheep or a margin to the offices of the priests up and down the street in New York which is designated "Wall." For these expound the auguries. They tell you when to take a chance—when to "get into the market"—when to "buy" and when to "sell." And they eat the white meat and the dark. And if you don't win it was because the thirteenth was an unlucky day, or else you failed to catch their meaning plainly. For the modern Delphic utterances is now, as it was then, not as clear as might be.

However, there is a growing impression in this twentieth century that a ball tossed into the air on Friday the thirteenth, will come to earth as certainly and at the same rate of speed as one similarly projected on the twelfth or on the fourteenth.

CHEMONG REGATTA YESTERDAY WAS SPLENDID SUCCESS

Mr. A. A. Hollingshead Captured the Kawartha Lakes Cup After a Grand Race in the Dinghy Event---"Cygnet" Lost in the Open Sailing---Bridgenorth and Sturgeon Point Made a Fine Showing in the Different Events---The Results of the Races.

The weather man was indeed kind to those in charge of the annual regatta at Chemong Park yesterday, and the brand he handed out was almost ideal. The only people who might feel inclined to complain are the yachtsmen, who undoubtedly would have appreciated a stronger breeze. For everyone else, however, no better could have been asked for as it suited the spectators and those taking part in the paddling and rowing events. As the result of this kindness in the matter of favourable climatic conditions, the event was a most gratifying success in every way and the people of Chemong are to be congratulated upon the result.

The attendance was large. The steamer Stoney Lake brought a big contingent from Stony Lake, while the Otonabee had a fine crowd from Lindsay and Sturgeon Point. The Chemong residents and the people of Bridgenorth turned out en masse. In addition many hundreds taking advantage of the half holiday in Peterborough, drove or motored out from the city, thus appreciably swelling the crowd. A very pleasing scene was the result, the heavily wooded and high banks of the park forming an attractive background to the gay summer clothing of the visitors, while animation was added by the many small craft which darted here and there over the lake below. As a spectacle nothing finer could be wished for and the trip to Chemong was worth while if only to view the panorama.

A section of the 57th Regimental Band, under the leadership of Mr. Gliddon was stationed on the shore near the clubhou se and gave a most enjoyable programme of popular music during the afternoon. They were generous with their selections and their playing was thoroughly appreciated, many favourable comments being made by the visitors. The athletic side of the regatta was as successful as the picturesque features. There were large fields of entries in nearly every event and the races were fought out to the end, some of the finishes being remarkably close. From any point along the bank a good view could be obtained of the course so that the spectators were enabled to follow the contests very closely and there was considerable enthusiasm among the spectators.

Especially was this true of the people from Sturgeon Point, who rooted uproariously for their candidates in the different classes, and well they might cheer too, as the young people from Sturgeon Point gave a grand account of themselves and carried off a large share of the prizes. The Bridgenorth entrants were also most prominent, annexing many of the premiums by their good work with the paddle. Stony Lake did not make as good a showing as usual. There were not so many entries nor did they have the same success as in other years.

The summer residents at Chemong are great sailors, and naturally the sailing events were the big items of yesterday's programme. The feature was the dinghy race for the Kawartha Lakes Cup, which is contested for every year.

Nine dinghies were entered yesterday, seven from Chemong, and one each from Stony Lake and Sturgeon Point. The wind was very light, merely a zephyr blowing from the northwest, and, at times, died almost away, so that there were moments in the six miles (twice around a triangular course of three miles) when the boats were barely drifting. Mr. A. A. Hollingshead, of Chemong Park, for the second time in the history of the competition, annexed the cup with his speedy little flyer "The Vonda," after a beautiful race.

The start was a grand one. The nine boats got away in a bunch, and presented a beautiful appearance as they swung around tor the first buoy. The wind, at the start, was stronger than at any other time during the afternoon, and, as the nine white wings, hovering close together, moved down the lake, the scene was a memorable one. Throughout the first three legs of the course they remained close together, and "The Vonda" swung past the starting buoy little more than a length in front of the field. The wind was getting lighter all the time, and was of a fluky nature. The scond round was marked by an increase in the lead held by Mr. Hollingshead, who, skilfully taking advantage of every breath of air, inch by inch gained on his rivals. He rounded the second buoy of the course safely in the lead, and although near the finish he ran into a calm spot, while the boats behind were favoured by a slight breeze in the run home, he succeeded in crossing the line amid great enthusiasm a winner by a comfortable margin. The race for second place was as close as the memorable battle between Messrs. Hollingshead and Milne Hamilton, some years ago. The "Jamboree" of Stony Lake, and Mr. Hopkins' Sturgeon Point boat, winner at Stony Lake on Monday, approached the line, side by side, the Sturgeon Poin Dinghy winning by inches. The other boats were close behind and it was a grand race all through, the nine skippers winning great praise for their cleverness in handling their craft. In spite of the large field and light breeze there were no fouls, and the race was marked by fine sailing.

The open sailing event, which, on account of the light breeze, was cut down from six to two miles, was featured by the defeat of the Stony Lake pennant winner the "Cygnet," sailed by her youthful owner, Harold Knapman. A mistake on the part of her skipper cost the big Stony Lake boat the race. She got a bad start, but rapidly overhauled the field and was well in the lead on the leg home. On approaching the finishing line, however, the man at the helm made a mistake as to which direction he should cross the line in, and got to leeward of the buoy, finding it impossible to get back before the "Proa," the Chemong catamaran, owned and sailed by Mr. Oliver Millburn and Bruce Hopkins' Sturgeon Point dinghy had crossed the line in first and second places. The skipper of the "Cygnet" claimed a foul against the "Proa" for a mix-up on the way out, but it was not sustained by the judges.

J. E. Roxborough, the well-known Stony Lake canoe sailor, and winner of many prizes at the different Kawartha Lake regattas, was beaten in the canoe sailing, which was the first event on the programme, by Harold Matthews, of Chemong.

C. Telford of Bridgenorth, who won the rowing race, has been winner in this event for the past three years, and seems to be unbeatable.

The showing of the Bridgenorth contingent was a splendid one, and they are to be congratulated upon their success.

Following were the results:

Canoe sailing—1st, Harold Matthews, Chemong Park; 2nd, J. E. Roxborough, Stony Lake.

Men's tandem canoe—1st, F. Jopling and J. Conway, Bridgenorth; 2nd, Wood and Muttel, Sturgeon Point.

Ladies' tandem canoe—1st, Miss Knowlson and Miss Warner, Sturgeon Point; 2nd, Miss Marion and Miss Phyllis Denne, Stony Lake.

Swimming race.—1st, N. Halpine, Chemong Park; 2nd, G. Halpine, Chemong Park.

Mixed tandem canoe—1st, Miss Knowlson and M. Knowlson, Sturgeon Point; 2nd, Miss M. Denne and Fred Dennison, Stony Lake.

Men's single canoe—1st, Fred Jopling, Bridgenorth; 2nd, J. Conway, Bridgenorth.

Ladies' single canoe.—1st, Miss Knowlson, Sturgeon Point; 2nd, Miss Denne, Stony Lake.

Crabb race—1st, Fred Roy, Peterborough; 2nd, Bruce Lees, Stony Lake.

Girls' canoe race.—1st, Jean Hill, Chemong Park; 2nd, Margaret Eastwood, Chemong Park.

Launch race, six horse-power and under—1st, D. Bull, Chemong, six horse power; 2nd, Roy Dixon, Chemong, 1 1-2 h.p.; 3rd, Hopkins, Sturgeon Point, 2¼ h.p.

Dinghy race—1st, A. A. Hollingshead, Chemong Park; 2nd, B. Hopkins, Sturgeon Point; 3rd, L. Hall, Stony Lake.

Open sailing race—1st, "Proa," O. Milburn, Chemong Park; 2nd, B. Hopkins, Sturgeon Point; 3rd, "Cygnet," H. Knapman, Stony Lake.

The ladies of Chemong served refreshments during the afternoon for the benefit of the visiting ladies from Stony Lake and Sturgeon Point, and their hospitality was appreciated.

The following officials are deserving of great praise for the splendid way in which they ran off the races: Judges Messrs. Travers, L. M. Hayes and P. Campbell; announcer, Mr. Hopwood; starter, Mr. Alex. Elliott.

In the evening a most enjoyable dance was held in the pavilion in the evening, for which the 57th band rendered splendid music. Many of the visitors from outside remained over and there was a very large attendance and a most enjoyable time. The committee in charge was composed of Messrs D. Hughes Charles, W. S. Davidson and Alex. Elliott.

When you go to the country take a tin of Davis' Menthol Salve along. It is unequalled to relieve earache, sprains, burns, cuts, and bruises. 25 cents.

'ROUND THE STORES

In most homes things are planned so that just about this time of the year some new furniture is bought, some old things are disposed of, and a remaking of the home, to some extent, begins. Before deciding "how far to go," ee the August stock at the furniture warerooms of E. B. Clegg & Co. Last calls on porch and verandah furniture and some still needed things are offered at price reductions. See Advt.

Don't you suppose that, when a store has secured and is able to offer to you some notable line of merchandise at really low prices, the advertising will be somewhat enthusiastic—bigger than usual, emphasized more than usual. That's just the policy of Cressman, whose daily store news epitomizes the real triumphs of its buyers.

• • •

"Do you know I just missed those pretty sunshades on Wednesday, because I burned the bill thrown in at the door," said a disappointed woman to her neighbour on Bethune street. "That's too bad; I thought they always put their bargain day sales in the evening newspapers?" The lady didn't thing so—"at least it wasn't in the paper the night before," or she would have seen it. Moral:—be sure and advertise in the-night-before paper. Running a big store, yet advertising it as thought it was a small one, is not the best store-wisdom. A store that is big enough to use page ads., or even half-page ads. every day, and only indulges in these spasmodically, will certainly not do all the business it ought to do.

Every little while one hears such expressions as: "Well, trade is going to pick up quickly in the Fall," and "things are brightening." As a rule, local trade has been good for the time of year, and business men, if they have any serious troubles, don't tell them. Payments are very fair, and altogether prospects are all in favour of a good fall business. Messrs. W. J. Oke, the fruit men, report having done an unprecedented business in their line this summer, the increase being the greatest in their history. The quantity of fruits sold has been very heavy, and their fish and vegetable trade has been soaring above past records.

Here we are in the beautiful month of August. Summer trade is at that stage now when the users of summer goods have most need of them and the merchants least. New stocks are occupying the attention of the storekeepers, and summer goods must hurry up and get out of the way. A reference to Fair & Co.'s Saturday announcement will show how vigorous "the man with the big pencil" is in marking down prices. $2.50 wash skirts in navy and white, are now offered at $1.69. Fancy parasols that sold for $1.75 are now marked at $1.00. These two items serve to showo the change in prices, while the values remain as good as they were earlier in the season.

• • •

One of the thriving unpretentious places of business which seems to be attracting regular customers is the new and second-hand store of Mrs. S. Jayes, on Aylmer street. This business has grown from one small shop, where women's wear and a small variety of other wares were offered for sale, until it now embraces three shops. A staple stock of dry goods and small wares may now be found here, as well as miscellaneous articles of a new and second-hand character.

GOOD ATTENDANCE AT TENT SERVICE

A large number assembled at the Evangelistic tent last night. Mr. W. I. Whelen was the leader and Mr. A. G. Young the speaker. Mr. Huycke, from Geo. Street choir sang a solo. The speakerto ok his text from Numbers 32, 20-23, and exhorted the people to enlist in the army of God and to fight against the evils which are so prevalent around. He spoke especially against the sin of neglect, emphatically declaring that the sins of omisison wer as truly sin as those of commission.

To-night Mr. A. G. Young will lead, and Mr. W. I. Whelen will speak. These services close on Saturday night and all are invited to the remaining services.

COLLECTING FOR NEW ORPHANAGES

Representatives of Churches in Asiatic Turkey are in the City for That Purpose.

The Very Reverend Dean Nicola John, and Rev. Timotheus Hionn, of the Archiepiscopal Diocese of Mata, Asiatic Turkey, are in Peterborough collecting funds for the building of orphanages for those children who have been deprived of homes and parents in the recent Mohammedan massacres. They come highly recommended and duly accredited, and should meet with a generous response from Christian parents.

MUST REMOVE THE NUISANCE

D. Florence Before the Magistrate for Neglecting to Clear Away the Burnt Material.

D. Florence, owner of the contents that were in the warehouse at the corner of Simcoe and Bethune streets, where there was a fire recently, was before the magistrate at the police court this morning charged with neglecting to remove a nuisance in the shape of burnt rags, bones and peas. He pleaded not guilty. Police Officers Newhall and Meharry and a resident in the vicinity of the warehouse testified as to the horrible stench that came from the ruined building.

Florence stated that he had four men removing the old material and everything was being done to remedy the evil.

His Worship gave the defendant until Tuesday next to have the nuisance removed.

THE CASE OF MRS. W. REID SUGGESTS POPULAR HELP

The sad drowning of Mr. William Reid at Stony Lake on Sunday last represents a great loss, amounting to calamity, to his widow and child; it deprives her of her sole support, and leaves her practically penniless.

Two years ago Mr. Reid, who was a hard working, steady, industrious man, came from England; and a year ago he brought out his wife. His surplus earnings, above living, were put into the furnishing of a home, and he had laid aside the small sum of $3 to permit him to provide the protection for himself and family, implied in membership in the Oddfellow Order.

A party of four Canadian General employees, had contributed $2 each for a wek's rental of a cottage at the lake, and the result is known.

All that Mrs. Read had to meet the funeral expenses—the undertaker making a substantial reduction, was the $30 received from the Canadian General Benefit Fund for employees, to which subscriptions of $18 was added by the kindness of fellow workmen, reducing the liability to $60, which Mrs. Reid is anxious to pay. She is at present living, cost free, with a family which has not too much means for its own purposes. If she could get back to England she has a prospect of employment and would at any rate be with relatives.

The problem that faces Mrs. Reid is to find means to pay the debt of sixty dollars and to get to the Old Country.

Here is presented an opportunity, if not privilege, for the display of a little practical sympathy with a worthy woman left destitute and homeless by an awful happening. Any person disposed to help may leave contributions, which will be acknowledged, with the Examiner.

TULLY'S CORNER GROCERY

Mr. W. C. Tully will open his new grocery and provision store on the corner of Sherbrooke and George street to-morrow morning. This store forms part of the new brick block just erected on this corner, and is well suited for the business. Mr. Tully has purchased an entirely new stock so that the public may depend on getting perfectly fresh table supplies.

Cobourg Horse Show Has 550 Entries—Will Attract a Large Number of Peterborough People.

The Cobourg Horse Show, which will be held on Tuesday, Wednesday Thursday and Friday, in Donegan Park, Cobourg, will no doubt as usual attract a large number of Peterborough people. The opportunity of visiting the beautiful lakeshore town when it is at its best, coupled with the splendid show, genrally prove an irresistible magnet. So far there have been 550 entries, nearly fifty per cent. better than last year. The 49th Highlanders' Band will render music, and three will be many special attractions. Some of the best horses of the continent will be shown.

Watch for the Coupon—It is Worth 10c at Your Dealer's

We want every family to try the wonderful Taylor Soaps. So on Saturday we will print a coupon in this paper good for a 10c cake of Infants' Delight, when presented to your Dealer with 5c to pay for a cake of Taylor's Borax Soap.

Infants' Delight Soap

Taylor's

Borax Soap

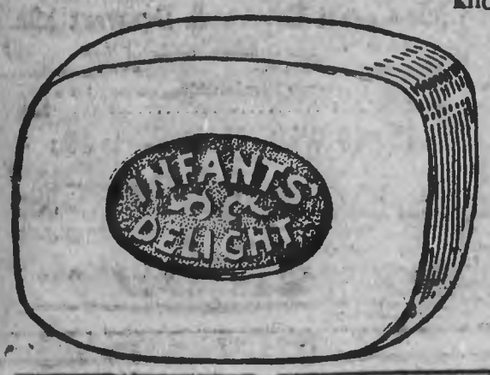
Made of pure vegetable oil from the gardens of France, and cocoanut oil from the isle of Ceylon.

We go thousands of miles for these oils, but it's the only way we know how to obtain the best materials. You'll appreciate our care and the trouble we go to when you try your first cake of this rich, creamy soap for the toilet and bath.

It leaves the skin as smooth and fair as an infant's. So we call it Infants' Delight. Be sure to get the free cake on Saturday.



Saves half the rubbing. Makes the linen snowy-white and doubles the life of the garment.

The borax softens the water and keeps the hands smooth and white. It will not injure fabrics, however delicate, and yet it cleanses thoroughly. Buy a cake of Taylor's Borax Soap, and see how quick it lathers, how it helps you do more work in half the time, and how superior it is to any other soap you ever tried. 5c invested on Saturday gets you a 10c cake of Infants' Delight besides.

FIGHTS MOTHER'S WILL.

Son of Former London Man Contests Half Million Bequest.

Detroit, Mich., Aug. 13.—Alleging that his mother was of unsound mind when she executed her last will and testament in November 1906, and also that undue influence and fraud were used in securing her signature to the document, Dr. Francis Leys of this city, son of the late Col. Leys of London, Ont., yesterday filed a petition in the Probate Court asking that the probating of the will in London be not permitted, but that a former will, executed in 1903, and which he declares to be the rightful one, be probated in Detroit.

The case possesses an extraordinary legal aspect, and prominent attorneys here express the opinion that before a satisfactory solution is reached, the case will be brought before the Supreme Court of the United States.

Owing to its peculiar international features, the court officials here do not believe that Dr. Ley's petition can legally be complied with, and in furtherance of this view Judge Rohnert of the U. S. Circuit Court, before whom the matter first was presented, has refused positively to issue a mandamus to compel Probate Judge Durfee to hear testimony in the matter.

According to the provisions of the first will in 1903, Dr. Leys was given a large portion of the $500,000 estate, but the second will decrees his portion to be entailed.

Improve Queenston Heights.

Niagara-on-the-Lake, Aug. 13.—A feature of the annual gathering at Queenston Heights yesterday of the Niagara Historical Society was a strong speech by James Armstrong in favor of the proposed Laura Secord monument being a memorial hall, with room for a museum and library of interest to visitors.

There was unanimous endorsation of this idea, and many of those present urged that the time had come when the attractiveness of Queenston as a holiday resort should be improved by beautifying the reserve along the river bank, erecting pavilions for shelter and rest, and in other ways making this historic spot attractive to the holiday travelers who at present are unprovided for.

Addresses on historic subjects were given by Alex. Fraser, B.A., provincial architect; A. W. Wright, Rev. A. F. Macgregor, Rev. J. C. Garrett and others. The meeting was a great success.

Camden, N.J., Aug. 13.—Washington Amusement Park was devastated by fire yesterday afternoon, starting from an overturned pan of grease in a restaurant kitchen. The cook was fatally burned.

Declines to Serve.

Montreal, Aug. 13.—Hon. L. O. David has declined to serve on the commission appointed by the Quebec Government to enquire into the condition of the Catholic schools in this city.

Flour Mills Burn.

Norwich, Aug. 13.—The Oxford flour mills caught fire yesterday evening and burned to the ground. The loss will be heavy.

Three Bigamy Cases.

Toronto, Aug. 13.—Bigamy was featured on the police court bill yesterday morning, when three persons charged with that offence were called to the bar. George T. Stead of Walkerton pleaded not guilty and was remanded a week. George is single, but it is charge that he knowingly went through a form of marriage with Mrs. Minnie Pink. Minnie was also charged and pleaded not guilty and was similarly remanded.

Rupart Garland was called for a like crime. He elected to be tried by a jury and was remanded till Tuesday.

Lee Boo, a Chinese, charged with keeping a common betting house, and 26 of his fellow-countrymen, charged as frequenters, were also remanded.

Three Years For Anderson.

Toronto, Aug. 13.—Three years in Kingston Penitentiary—this, taking him from the carnival of high living upon which he had entered with the proceeds of many forgeries, was the fate meted out to John A. G. Anderson, 23 years of age, when he appeared in police court yesterday morning.

The youth's aged father stood in the crowded court-room when the blow fell and seemed to feel both disgrace and punishment more keenly than the boy.

Anderson was formerly ledgerkeeper in the Portland street branch of the Bank of Montreal. He was arrested in Vancouver after a tour through the United States, Canada and Europe. He pleaded guilty.

Want Him Freed.

Ottawa, Aug. 13.—The Department of Justice officials admit that a request for parole for Wm. Long, a negro arrested in Toronto and now in his first month of a two-year term in the penitentiary, has been received. It is understood that it is based on a plea that Long is diseased. The negro, when arrested in Toronto, had been convicted on a burglary charge at Milton. He is also wanted in the United States.

The Defence Conference.

London, Aug. 13.—There is very little to add to the previous cables concerning the Imperial Defence Council. The final meeting will probably be held on Tuesday. As far as Canada is concerned, the Canadian Associated Press understands that the conferences are still going on. As for Australia, there is reason to believe that an arrangement of an essentially satisfactory nature is in process of completion.

Turkey Wants War.

London, Aug. 13.—The Daily Telegraph's Constantinople correspondent says it is difficult to discover the influences under which the Turkish Government is acting, but that in military quarters the talk is wholly of war with Greece. It is asserted that the Ministers of War and Marine insist that war is the only possible solution of the difficulty.

Two Dreadnoughts for Chili.

Valparaiso, Aug. 13.—The naval council has recommended to the Government the construction of two battleships of the Dreadnought type.

Slavery at Cobalt.

Ottawa, Aug. 13.—Andrew Levi, a laborer, who was in the Police Court yesterday, charging two men with knocking him about, told a story about going to the custom house to expose the license law infractions on the Montreal River.

Questioned after court regarding the statement, Levi made a very serious charge against contractors for the Cobalt power dam, now being erected at Montreal River.

"The place is worse than the slave camps of the Michigan woods," declared Levi. "The work is being mostly done by poor Italians, who have been induced to go to Montreal River by promises of high wages, but they are kept virtually prisoners by a boss who also conducts the illegal whisky business."

Insane Hermit Wealthy.

Pittsburg, Pa., Aug. 13.—Never did a miser hoard his gold and keep secret that he was a man of wealth as did Peter Leibauch, a hermit, 43 years old, who was removed yesterday from his hovel to the Marshalsea Insane Asylum.

A search of his hovel by the police revealed $80,000, and, in addition two immense zinc boxes filled with gold pieces, dollars, pennies, nickels and silver coins of all denominations, each denomination tied in a separate sack. In one sack was more than $1,000 gold, upon every one of which there is a premium. The detectives estimate the fortune at about $500,000, not including five bank books, which show aggregate deposits of $18,000.

Tariff Session's Cost.

Washington, Aug. 13.—It is estimated that the cost of holding the special session of Congress to pass the tariff bill was at least $500,000. This does not include the increased expenses of the Government printing office in printing the hearings before the ways and means committee, the various reports and documents, the congressional record, the tariff bill in its various stages and the Payne law as finally enacted. Accurate information as to the additional expense incurred by the Government printing office is not available, but it is estimated to be as much as $300,000 or $400,000.

Realizing His Position.

Lindsay, Ont., Aug. 13.—Jos. Hunter cried Wednesday for the first time when the murder of his wife was mentioned to him. Dr. Jeffers, the jail surgeon, and L. V. O'Connor, lawyer for the defence, broached the murder to Hunter. The man did not know, he declares, what he was held in jail for.

"You have shot your wife," Dr. Jeffers said.

Hunter seemed crushed and sat with his head in his hands for a time. Afterwards he stated that he did not recollect anything of the occurrence.

Oddfellows' Officers.

Ottawa, Aug. 13.—The Oddfellows' Grand Lodge yesterday installed officers as follows: Grand master, Senator Derbyshire, Brockville; deputy grand, G. M. Thompson, Brantford; grand secretary, J. B. King, Toronto; grand treasurer, W. J. McCormack, Toronto; grand warden, S. A. Popleston, Exeter.

"SPECTATOR" LAYS BLAME FOR TROUBLE UPON THE OFFICERS OF THE CITY BASEBALL LEAGUE

Sporting Editor of The Examiner:

Sir,—I noticed in last night's edition of the Examiner that the T. A. S. baseball club were allowed to drop out of the Peterborough City League. It seems to me that there was something wrong in this league from the start. That four teams should play for the championship of the City since the first of the season and finally one team given sufficient reason to drop out seems to point to a defect somewhere. In my opinion there was not enough of interest displayed in the League by the officers. It is claimed that if the managers of the teams had not changed their grounds from Riverside to the Oval, four teams would be still in the running without a hitch. The officers of the League felt rather injured when the managers of the teams came to them to straighten out the "tangle which they themselves brought on." If the officers displayed the zeal that was expected of them when they were elected to govern the league, a meeting would have been called, new grounds selected and officials appointed to look after the money taken in before it was necessary for the teams to do this themselves. The officers themselves saw or should have seen that the management of the Riverside grounds were not dealing fairly with the teams. Their taking such a large percentage of the gate receipts left only a paltry sum to be divided amongst the four clubs until finally the amount of money turned over was so absurdly low that it was necessary to make a change. Here is where it seems to me the League officers should have taken prompt action and not remained seemingly contented while the managers of the teams spared them the trouble of looking after new grounds.

This, however, does not seem to be the only reason for the hitch which has come about in the League. There was not the feelig between the teams all year that should have existed. I was present at nearly every game played this year, and from remarks passed around me, as well as from the actions of those witnessing the game, I concluded that the supporters of each team were particularly anxious not that their own club should land the championship, but that any team other than the T. A. S. should land the championship. Now, why should this be the case? The T. A. S. team went into the League and won four straight games on their merits. This put them in a very favourable position towards capturing the cup and the other teams evidently began to realize that unless other means were adopted the Abstainers would win out.

Now, I do not belong to the T. A. S. ball club or to any other ball club in the city, but having played the game here myself once I was interested in these games, and consequently was present at as many as possible. At the first of the year, in fact, I was anxious to see the boys with the grey shirts win out, but I noticed that this team was getting their share of sympathy from the fans, and, in fact, that all the teams were, but the T. A. S.. This was clearly shown in the T. A. S. vs. P. A. C. game at the Nicholls Oval a few weeks ago, when the majority of the crowd present, encouraged by members of the P. A. C. and other ball clubs, crowded almost into the diamond, thereby giving the catcher and basemen as little chance as possible to fulfil their duties. The report of the meeting in last night's paper also shows that the road of the T. A. S. would not be strewn with roses if the managers of the other teams could help it. Manager Quinlan entered a protest on this game on the grounds that the balls were unfit for use and the official umpire of the league was objected to, mentioning rules to defend his protest. I happened to be in a position back of the lines to field one of the fouls, and I thought at the time that the ball I handled wasn't fit to carry as far as the Oval. Yet, at this meeting, the other night, Managers Pilling, Metheral, and Davidson, all three quite capable of doing the fair thing to the T. A. S. ball club, declared that the protest was "altogether of a flimsy nature" and consequently threw it out. These managers are to be congratulated upon their diplomacy in dealing so lightly with this protest, which was based upon the direct infringement of the rules of the game. If the true spirit of clean sport is so unknown to these teams I heartily agree with and commend Mr. Quinlan for withdrawing the T. A. S. team from the League.

SPECTATOR.

"T. A. S." TAKES EXCEPTION TO ACTION OF THE BALL LEAGUE

To the Editor of The Examiner:

Dear Sir,—Your report of the meeting of the officers of the City Baseball League in last evening's issue would indicate that Manager Quinlan is easy.

It must have been evident to him that the other three clubs were prepared to make any sacrifice, or resort to any subterfuge to prevent the T. A. S. club from securing the cup. When he associated with his protest, the alternative that his team would withdraw if it were not sustained, he gave the managers of the other clubs the opportunity they sought. The promptness with which they not only gave an adverse decision on his protest, but eliminated his club from the League, and drew up a new schedule, shows that, if they are not ball-players, they have at least no scruples against improving their opportunities otherwise. Once Mr. Quinlan said that his team would withdraw unless his protest was sustained, the question was settled, if it were to be left to the managers.

Your suggestion that the League officers would have decided differently, while it tacitly condemns the methods of the three managers, scarcely exonerates the officers of the League. They are at least the custodians of the cup.

Yours truly,

T. A. S.

DOUBLE-HEADER IN CITY LEAGUE AT THE RIVERSIDE PARK

There will be a double-header at Riverside Park tomorrow afternoon in the Senior City Baseball League, Strathconas meeting the T. A. S. in the first game, and Park Street and the West Ends clashing in the second.

In view of the statement that the T. A. S. had dropped out of the league, this may sound surprising, but President McWilliams has been notified by the president of the T. A. S. that their team will finish out the schedule. President McWilliams has therefore ordered that the usual double-header shall be played, and furthermore that the games shall be finished out at Riverside Park instead of Nicholls Oval. The usual price, 15c for gentlemen and ladies free, will be in vogue, and competent umpires will be secured by the officers of the league who have taken charge of the situation. Riverside Park is in grand shape; the grass has been cut short and everything is in readiness for the double-header. The fans will appreciate being able to view the game from comfortable seats in the shady grandstand, and there will no doubt be a big crowd on hand.

The first game, between the Strathconas and T. A. S. will be called at 2 o'clock, sharp, and will be followed by the Park-St. West End game. Both should be fast.

President McWilliams has annulled the action of the managers at Wednesday night's meeting in cancelling the games played by the T. A. S., and the standing of the league is therefore as follows:

Following is the standing:

| | Won | Lost | T.P. |
|---|---|---|---|
| Park Street | 5 | 2 | 2 |
| T. A. S. | 4 | 3 | 3 |
| West Ends | 3 | 4 | 2 |
| Strathconas | 2 | 6 | 1 |

CATTLE MARKETS.

Cables Steady—Hogs Heavy and Lower at Buffalo.

LONDON, Aug. 12.—London cables that cattle are firm at 12c to 14½c per lb. for Canadian steers, dressed weight; refrigerator beef is quoted at 10c to 10½c per lb.

Toronto Live Stock.

TORONTO, Aug. 12.—The railways reported 95 carloads of live stock for Wednesday and Thursday at the City Market, consisting of 1,686 cattle, 1,624 hogs, 1,230 sheep and lambs, with 216 calves.

Exporters.

George Rowntree bought about 4 car loads of exporters at $5.25 to $5.35 per cwt.

Butchers.

As usual George Rowntree was the heaviest buyer of butchers' cattle, having bought all told, butchers' and exporters, 130 cattle for the Harris Abattoir Co., butchers, $4.20 to $5.40; cows, from $3.50 to $4.75 per cwt.

Stockers and Feeders.

Harry Marby bought about 175 stockers and feeders, at the same quotations as he drew last week, as follows: Best steers, 750 to 850 lbs. each, at $3.90 to $4.10; best steers, 650 to 750 lbs. each, at $3 to $3.50; common stockers, $2.75 to $3.40 per cwt.

Milkers and Springers.

The market for milkers and springers, remains about steady. Prices ranged from $30 to $60 each, but only a very few extra quality cows brought the latter price. The general run of prices was from $35 to $50 each.

Veal Calves.

Prices ranged from $3 to $5.25, with a few new milk fed calves at $6.50 per cwt.

Sheep and Lambs.

The run of lambs during the week was light, owing to low prices a week ago, and farmers not having time to deliver them at country stations, being busy with the harvest. Lambs were quoted to-day at $5.50 to $6.75 per cwt., and selected lots were bought by butchers at $7 to $7.25. But the latter prices are no criterion for drovers to go by in buying for next week's market, as should there be heavy deliveries prices will go back to where they were before. Citizens will understand why they have to pay more for their chops when they see their butcher had to pay choice prices for choice quality lambs. Export ewes, $4.50 to $5.25; rams, $3 to $3.50 per cwt.

Hogs.

Receipts during the week have been light. Mr. Harris reported prices unchanged at $7.50 for hogs, fed and watered at the market, and $7.25, f.o.b., cars. H. P. Kennedy reports his prices as unchanged at $7.25, fed and watered, and $6.50, f.o.b., cars, country points.

East Buffalo Cattle Market.

EAST BUFFALO, Aug. 12.—Cattle—Slow and steady; prime steers, $5.60 to $7. Veals—Receipts, 200 head; active and 25c higher, $5 to $9.25.

Hogs—Receipts, 2200 head; active; heavy, steady to 5c lower; light, unchanged; heavy and mixed, $6.25 to $6.30; roughs, $5 to $5.25; stags, $4 to $4.50.

Sheep and Lambs—Receipts, 1400 head; active and unchanged.

New York Live Stock.

NEW YORK, Aug. 12.—Beeves—Receipts 1253. No trading; feeling steady.

Calves—Receipts, 1221. Feeling steady. Veals, $5.50 to $9.25. No grassers or buttermilks.

Sheep and Lambs—Receipts, 7453. Sheep, $3.50 to $5; culls, $2 to $3.25; lambs, $5.50 to $6.62½; one car at $6.87½; culls, $4.50 to $5.50.

Hogs—Receipts, 930. Market lower. State and Pennsylvania hogs are quoted at $6.35 to $6.50 per cwt.

Chicago Live Stock.

CHICAGO, Aug. 12.—Cattle—Receipts, 2500; market strong to 10c higher; steers, $5.60 to $7.85; cows, $3.50 to $5.25; heifers, $3.50 to $6; bulls, $3 to $4.25; calves, $3 to $8; stockers and feeders, $3.75 to $5.25.

Hogs—Receipts, 14,000; market, 10c to 15c higher; choice, heavy, $7.20 to $7.30; butchery, $7.25 to $7.35; light mixed, $7.45 to $7.75; choice light, $7.30 to $7.40; packing, $7 to $7.20; pigs, $5.50 to $7.15; bulk of sales, $7.20 to $7.35.

Sheep—Receipts, 12,000; market for sheep, steady; for lambs, strong to 15c higher; sheep, $4.30 to $5.25; lambs, $6.75 to $8.25; yearlings, $5 to $6.60.

Lested a House.

St. Catharines, Aug. 13.—Henry Moore, better known as "Puddley," was convicted yesterday afternoon of burglarizing the home of Wm. Durham, removing the furniture and contents to his own home. He pleaded not guilty, claiming he bought the goods from a stranger. The judge, however, sentenced him to six months.

Alleged Murderer Caught.

Woodstock, N.B., Aug. 13.—Sandy McAlli, the alleged murderer of Nicholas Laguy, was captured late Wednesday night at Brown Siding, near Bath, N.B., where he had hidden, in an Italian camp. His pursuers lay in wait and about 11.30 o'clock caught him as he entered a car used for a living place by the Italians.

Montreal, Aug. 13—Mme. P. Giroux, of the Home for Incurables at Notre Dame de Grace, yesterday celebrated the hundredth anniversary of her birth. She is the doyenne of the old scholars of the Point-aux-Trembles Convent, which she left about ninety-one years ago. Yesterday morning she donned, to celebrate the day, the robe of spotless white which she wore on her wedding day, and which she has preserved for seventy-five years.

Must Next In Toronto.

St. John, N.B., Aug. 13.—Just before the meeting of the World's Supreme Council of the Temple of Honor closed yesterday afternoon, it was decided to meet next year in Toronto, the Dominion thus being chosen a second time.

While it was stated that Toronto has no local temple, it was arranged that prominent members of the council should attend the Queen City and organize a temple.

Airship to Fly Like an Eagle.

Los Angeles, Calif., Aug. 13.—Prof. H. L. Twining, head of the Department of Physics and Electrical Engineering in Los Angeles Polytechnic High School, began aerial experiments yesterday with an "Ornithopter," a flying machine with 27 foot wings, designed to operate like those of an eagle.

Bad Smallpox Outbreak.

Mexico City, Aug. 13.—An epidemic of smallpox has again broken out along the borders separating Mexico and Guatemala. Scores of deaths have occurred and an appalling condition exists on the Guatemalan side.

An 11-Day Journey.

Petawawa Military Camp, Aug. 13.—After an eleven-day journey across country from St. Catharines, a detachment of four officers of the Gig Infantry arrived in camp yesterday are doing rapidly, and only a few of the choicest remain.

THIS IS YOUR LAST CHANCE !

The sale of these lots has been so successful and the class of purchasers so satisfactory that the success of the Annex is assured. There are lots that we would like to hold at double the price, but we could not do this in good faith, since the plans have been inspected and many sales are partially completed. To withdraw these now would be arbitrary and unfair, so we have decided to make a clean sweep of it, and have resisted the temptation to advance the price.

$65.00 will still buy a Lot in North Battleford

$15.00 will close the deal, and $10.00 a month for five months will pay for it absolutely. The Lots should be worth $200.00 to $500.00 each within twelve months.

WEDDING BELLS

LOCKE—BROWN

On Wednesday afternoon, August the eleventh, a quiet wedding was solemnised at the residence of the bride's parents, Mr. and Mrs. A. Percy Brown, 517 Weller street, Peterborough, when their daughter, Ruby Louise, was united in marriage to Mr. Corbet Locke, of Morden, Judge of the County Courts of Southern Manitoba. The officiating clergyman was the Rev. Edgar W. Pickford, rector of Christ Church, Norwood, brother-in-law of the bride's father. Miss Donie Mackenzie, of Toronto, was maid of honour. Only a few of the immediate relatives and friends of the family were present.

Mendelssohn's wedding march was played by Mr. W. Colborne Thomson, of Toronto. Immediately after luncheon Judge and Mrs. Locke left on an extended tour.

WALLER—CALVERT

A quiet wedding took place last night at the parsonage of the Park St. Baptist Church, 280 Westcott street, when Mr. Carlos Waller, to North Monaghan, and Miss Essie Calvert, of Enniskmore, were united in marriage by Rev. W. C. Riddifford, pastor of the Park St. Church.

Mr. and Mrs. Waller will take up their residence in North Monaghan.

EVERETT—ROBERTS

A very pretty wedding was solemnized in St. Stephen's Church, Chandos at 3:30 o'clock on Tuesday afternoon, August the third, when Miss Annie E. Roberts, daughter of Mr. Jas. Roberts, of Chandos was united in marriage to Mr. Henry T. Everett, of this city. The ceremony was performed by Rev. Chas Lord, of Apsley, in the presence of about seventy invited guests. The bride, who was given away by her father, was becomingly attired in a dress of pale blue with hat to match. She was assisted by her cousin, Miss B. Picknell, of Toronto, who was also similarly attired. The groom was ably supported by Mr. Harry Roberts, brother of the bride.

After the ceremony and hearty congratulations had been bestowed upon the bride and groom, the guests sat down to a sumptuous wedding repast served in the spacious dining room of the bride's home. The evening was spent in dancing.

Mr. and Mrs. Everett spent their honeymoon in Chandos, returning to the city last Tuesday. They have taken up their residence at 73 Lansdowne street.

WELL KNOWN RESIDENT OF HASTINGS PASSES AWAY

Special to The Examiner.

Hastings, Aug. 11.—A garden party, under the auspices of the Ladies' Aid of the Methodist Church, was held on Friday last, at the home of Dr. and Mrs. Edmison. The evening was all that could be desired and a most enjoyable time was spent. Refreshments were served during the evening and a good musical programme was given by local talent. The proceeds are to go towards defraying the expenses of the repairs on the church.

Rev. D. A. Thomson and family, left on Tuesday for a three weeks' holiday at Toronto. During his absence Rev. W. Barrett will conduct union services between the Methodist and Presbyterian congregations.

The contractor and his men are busily engaged at work on the repairs in connection with the Methodist Church and are supposed to finish the contract in eight weeks.

Rev. W. Barrett and family have returned after their summer holiday feeling greatly recuperated and better fitted to carry on their work.

Miss Mabel Christie has returned to her home in Peterborough, after a pleasant visit with friends here.

Again we are called upon to chronicle the demise of another respected resident of Percy, in the person of Mrs. Peters, whose death occurred at the hospital at Peterborough, whither she had gone to undergo an operation in the hope of benefitting her health. She leaves to mourn her loss, a grown-up family of sons and daughters, who feel that they have indeed lost a loving mother. Her husband pre-deceased her some thirteen years ago.

WELLMAN READY FOR NORTH POLE

If Weather is Unfavourable He Will Postpone Trip Until Next Year.

Christiania, Norway, August 14.—From the members of the Hogstad whaling expedition, which has returned to Trondhjem from Spitsbergen, it is learned that Walter Wellman arrived there July 7 and was agreeably surprised to find that the work on the new balloon house was well advanced. The building is complete and, although not larger than the ordinary structure, it is much stronger. It has nine arches of five tons each, instead of five arches, and the whole house is fastened with wire network.

The summer has been cold in Spitsbergen, but the health of all the men has been good and work has gone on without interruption except for half a day's strike, caused by supposedly slighting remarks by Engineer Melvin Vanlman. Aside from this, the relations between the officers of the expedition and the men have been cordial.

Mr. Wellman plans to start for the north shortly, but if the weather is unfavourable then and during the following three weeks he will return and wait until next year.

RUSSIAN SECRET POLICE

Obliged to Leave France—May Open Headquarters in Austria.

Vienna, Aug. 14.—The central organization of the Russian Foreign Secret Police, rendered homeless by the late Paris affair, seeks, apparently, new quarters on the continent. The papers here report that M. Trussevitch, the director of the Russian Police Department in St. Petersburg, accompanied by the Russian Embassy surgeon, Dr. Stopakevitch, and another gentleman, has arrived in Vienna. The latter member of the party reported himself to the police as "Pierre de Ronfski." The three gentlemen, after several days' stay, will leave Vienna. They have taken steps here leading to the assumption that the establishment of a bureau of the Russian Secret Police in Vienna is intended. It is also declared that the so-called "Pierre de Ronfski" is identical with a former chief of the Paris Russian Secret Police, M. Ratchowski. He has placed himself in touch with Russian circles here, and it is concluded from these conferences that, as a substitute for the position no longer tenable in Paris, quarters will be established here.

The necessary steps for such organisation have, however, not yet been undertaken by the competent authorities. A highly-placed police functionary declared in reply to a question on the subject that any such demand would be decidedly negatived.

IMPORTANT FACTS

"A quart of milk is practically equal to a pound of beef in food value."

Professor Dean, of the Ontario Agricultural College. "The composition of wheat is higher in protein and heat of combustion than any other cereal prepared for human food."

Results of analysis by Bureau of Chemistry, U. S. Dept. of Agriculture:

ORANGE MEAT is simply the whole wheat berry, steam cooked, mixed with malt, flaked and toasted. This process develops in each wheat berry the highest percentage of grape sugars. It converts the starchea into a form most easily digested and assimilated.

ORANGE MEAT and milk is a perfect food.

Drunken Pupils In Hungarian School

Children Given Brandy to Stop Them Crying—Doctor's Startling Revelations—Intoxicated and Stupid.

London, Aug. 14.—When the business of the International Congress on Alcoholism was resumed at Kensington Town Hall, under the presidency of the Bishop of Croydon, Dr. Imre Docsi, the official representative of the Hungarian Parliament, created something of a sensation by his description of the drinking habits of the Hungarian people.

In some communities, he said, children were given bread soaked in brandy, and in other instances brandy was given them to stop them crying. Because of its extraordinary cheapness, brandy was often given to children for breakfast. In consequence of the degrading influence of alcohol the birth-rate in communities where these practices prevailed was becoming less every year.

Reading from official report on education, Dr. Docsi said that the opportunities for indulging in intoxicating liquors had grown to such an extent that pupils in the first and second elementary classes came to the schools in quite an intoxicated condition. Reports had also been received of pupils being so intoxicated that they were unable to do their lessons. The influence of this juvenile drinking on mind and character was very marked. Thirty-six per cent. of the children were found to be careless and idle, 11 per cent. dull of comprehension, 13 per cent. incapable of any prolonged attention. In other directions the effects were equally startling. Thirty per cent. were inattentive, restless and nervous; 15 per cent. melancholy and abnormally shy, 20 per cent. coarse and without any feeling, 9 per cent. vindictive and given to stealing, 18 per cent. immoral, while only 20 per cent. showed no apparent evil effects. Three-fourths of the children who indulged in alcohol were found to be of colourless complexion and pale, with sunken cheeks; one-fifth showed arrested development of the body; and in only one-fifth was the disturbing influence of alcohol unnoticed.

Dr. Karl Kogler, of Vienna, said 17 per cent. of tuberculous children were the offspring of alcoholic parents, and his experience as a nerve specialist convinced him that a similar percentage of nervous diseases was directly traceable to indulgence in strong drink.

Foster Predicts A Warm Wave From August 15th To 23rd

Washington, D. C., Aug. 14.—Last bulletin gave forecasts of disturbances to cross continent 16 to 20, warm wave 15 to 19, cool wave 18 to 22. This disturbance was expected to bring dry weather, a great hot wave, a long hot spell and severe storms; the most radical disturbance of the month.

Next disturbance will reach Pacific coast about 20, cross Pacific slope by close of 21, great central valleys 22 to 24, eastern states and provinces 25. Warm wave will cross Pacific slope about 20, great central valleys 25, eastern states and provinces 27.

Hot weather will accompany this disturbance and in large sections of the corn belt severe drouth is expected. Storms are not expected to be severe. Drouth is expected south of the parallel 40 and east of 90.

Where drouth now prevails not much hope remains for relief in time to do growing crops any good. In the northwestern spring wheat country too much rain may be detrimental.

I expect northern frosts September 3 to 6, and 13 to 17. Late corn and flax in northern states will probably be damaged by frosts during the week of which September 15 will be central day. Some very cool weather approaching the frost line may be expected in northern sections not far from Aug. 26.

Some showers may occur 21 to 25, but not enough to relieve the drouth districts. I expect the drouth to hit the Ohio valleys harder than other sections.

The Great Comet.

Whoever gives a serious and sensible thought to nature's methods must see that all permanent things in the universe, whether of mineral, vegetable, or animal life, are of slow growth, beginning at the atom or the cell and progressing till they become trees or matured animals, a planet or a sun.

The great comet is evidently in that stage of progress that precedes the moon stage. The planets catch the comets and transform them into moons and far back along the course of time our earth was surely a comet and farther back it was a great nebula in the centre of which was a small, but growing baby world. This was long before our sun had approached near enough to draw the baby world into its present orbit.

The August and November meteors are very small collections of matter, so small that they are destroyed by friction when they strike our atmosphere, yet our sun, some time in the past, was as small as one of these little meteors.

HELP IRISH TO PROMOTE TRADE

Eugene Zimmerman Will Try to Interest Parliamentarians.

London, Aug. 14.—Eugene Zimmerman, the father of the Duchess of Manchester, said to-day that he was very much interested in promoting the welfare of the fisher folk on the west coast of Ireland, where some estates of his son-in-law are situated. He said that the Duchess was even more deeply concerned about them.

The encroachments of Norwegian fishermen on the market were very serious, the Norwegians selling their own mackerel and herring as Irish catch. The greatest bar to the prosperity of the Irish fisherman, however, was the American tariff on salt fish.

"I intend to try to interest Irish members of Parliament in this matter," said Mr. Zimmerman, "and see if by agitating for a compensating duty against America they cannot induce Congress to abolish the duty on Irish mackerel and herring. The product of the Irish mackerel fishery is 135,000 barrels a year, paying a duty of $2 a barrel, while the United States produces only 20,000 barrels. These figures present in themselves a powerful argument for the abolition of the duty."

Referring to the present condition of American railroads, Mr. Zimmerman said that the roads had not yet regained in equipment what they had lost during the panic period, but that new freight cars were now being rapidly built in great numbers, and he did not believe that the country would suffer from another car famine in the near future. He spoke in most confident terms of the business outlook.

"Goodo crops are now assured," he said, "and that is the determining factor."

Mr. Zimmerman, who is now at the Carlton, goes to Ireland to-morrow with the Duke and Duchess of Manchester, to remain at their Galway seat until the end of August.

For Rheumatism it is not necessary go to Hot Springs. Just use the "D. & L." Menthol Plaster and results will be satisfactory. 25c. at druggists. Davis & Lawrence Co., Manufacturers.

HIGH HANDED ACTION ON SEA

Four Men Stole Launch and Attempted to Escape to France.

London, August 14.—There was quite an old-world flavour about an adventure related at Chichester when two tramps, John Harrison and Thomas King (the former a Staffordshire man, the latter a Londoner), were charged with stealing a smack and a dinghy.

The smack was the Two Brothers, and she belonged to George and Joseph Raglass, Bognor fishermen. The owners intended setting out on a fishing trip on Tuesday morning, but on going down to the beach found their boat had disappeared. Though they scoured the Channel in a motor boat for hours, they could find no trace of the smack.

Some hours later, however, William and John Artell, Selsey fishermen, saw the Two Brothers four miles off Selsey Bill. She seemed to be in difficulty. The two rough-looking men in her were hailed, and one of them replied: "We are going across."

The Arnells took this to mean that the men wanted to cross to the Isle of Wight, and they advised them to put back, as the tide was contrary. Instead of doing this the men clambered into the dinghy and made for the open sea.

The Arnells took the Two Brothers in tow, and were thus unable to chase the fugitives. Instead, they proceeded to Selsey and informed the coastguard of the matter. Chief Officer Goden at once set out in pursuit, taking the precaution of arming his men. They sighted the ship and overhauled her in a very choppy sea. The men refused help, saying they were quite comfortable where they were, but the pursuers secured them with a line and towed them into Selsey.

Some distance from shore King jumped overboard, and the tide running strongly he was in great danger. Other boats put out from the beach and rescued him in an exhausted condition.

When taken into custody King said they intended making for France and had he known there was a motor boat at Bognor they would have got there. They could get no work, and were tired of walking about and getting "cleaned." They would just as soon be locked up as wander about.

The men were remanded.

WHO IS MRS. MAXI GOODWIN?

Question Which Has Bothered Lond Since Dinner Party.

London, Aug. 14.—Quite a nu of persons have been asking week, Who is Mrs. Maxine Goo The question sprang out of a party given by Lord Winterton F. E. Smith, two of the younger most promising members of the H of Commons. Their party was Thursday evening at St. Steph and the list of guests printed in newspapers is as follows: "The P Minister, the Duchess of Mar ough, Dr. Jameson, Lady Downe Lady Grove, George Wyndham, Mrs. Maxine Goodwin."

Mrs. Goodwin is, of course, known here as Miss Maxine E and while she is entitled to use divorced husband's name, some astonishment has been expresse her decision to retain it, particu as a new Mrs. Nat Goodwin ha cently appeared on the scene.

SIR NIGEL

BY A. CONAN DOYLE.

Copyright 1905, 1906, by A. Conan Doyle.

"I pray you that you will let me ask it, sire," said Chandos. "De Chargny was my prisoner, and so many letters passed ere his ransom was paid that his script is well-known to me. Yes, yes, I will swear that this is indeed him. If my salvation were at stake I could swear it."

"If it were indeed written by de Chargny it was to dishonor me," cried Sir Aymery.

"Nay, nay!" said the young Prince. "We all know de Chargny and have fought against him. Many faults he has, a boaster and a brawler, but a braver man and one of greater heart and higher of enterprise does not ride beneath the lilies of France. Such a man would never stoop to write a letter for the sake of putting dishonor upon one of knightly rank. I for one, will never believe it."

A gruff murmur from the others showed that they were of one mind with the Prince. The light of the torches from the walls beat upon the line of stern faces at the high table. They had set like flint, and the Italian shrank from their inexorable eyes. He looked swiftly round, but armed men choked every entrance. The shadow of death had fallen athwart his soul.

"This letter," said the King, "was given by de Chargny to one Dom Beauvais, a priest of St. Omer, to carry into Calais. The said priest, smelling a reward, brought it to one who is my faithful servant, and so it came to me. Straightway I sent for this man that he should come to me. Meanwhile the priest has returned so that de Chargny may think that his message is indeed delivered."

"I know nothing of it," said the Italian doggedly, licking his dry lips.

A dark flush mounted to the King's forehead, and his eyes were gorged with his wrath. "No more of this, for God's dignity!" he cried. "Had we this fellow at the Tower, a few turns of the rack would tear a confession from his craven soul. But why should we need his word for his own guilt? You have seen, my lords, you have heard! How say you, fair son? Is the man guilty?"

"Sire, he is guilty."

"And you, John? And you, Walter? And you, Hubert? And you, my Lord Bishop? You are all of one mind, then. He is guilty of the betrayal of his trust. And the punishment?"

"It can only be death," said the Prince, and each in turn the others nodded their agreement.

"Aymery of Pavia, you have heard your doom," said Edward, leaning his chin upon his hand and gloeming at the cowering Italian. "Step forward, you archer at the door, you with the black beard. Draw your sword! Nay, you white-faced rogue, I would not dishonor this roof-tree by your blood. It is your heels, not your head, that we want. Hack off these golden spurs of knighthood with you sword, archer! 'Twas I who gave them, and I who take them back. Ha! they fly across the hall, and with them every bond betwixt you and the worshipful order whose sign and badge they are! Now lead him out on the heath afar from the house where his carrion can best lie, and hew his scheming head from his body as a warning to all such traitors!"

The Italian, who had slipped from his chair to his knees, uttered a cry of despair, as an archer seized him by either shoulder. Writhing out of their grip, he threw himself upon the floor and clutched at the King's feet.

"Spare me, my most dread lord, spare me, I beseech you! In the name of Christ's passion, I implore your grace and pardon! Bethink you, my good and dear lord, how many years I have served under your banners and how many services I have rendered. Was it not I who found the ford upon the Seine two days before the great battle? Was it not I also who marshaled the attack at the intaking of Calais? I have a wife and four children in Italy, great King, and it was the thought of them which led me to fall from my duty, for this money would have allowed me to leave the wars and to see them once again. Mercy, my liege, mercy, I implore!"

The magnates are a rough race, but not a cruel one. The King sat with a face of doom; but the others looked askance and fidgeted in their seats.

"Indeed, my fair liege," said Chandos, "I pray you that you will abate somewhat of your anger."

Edward shook his head curtly. "Be silent, John. It shall be as I have said."

"I pray you, my dear and honored liege, not to act with overmuch haste in the matter," said Manny. "Bind him and hold him until the morning, for other counsels may prevail."

"Nay, I have spoken. Lead him out!"

But the trembling man clung to the King's knees in such a fashion that the archers could not disengage his convulsive grip. "Listen to me a moment, I implore you! Give me but one minute to plead with you, and then do what you will."

The King leaned back in his chair. "Speak and have done," said he.

"You must spare me, my noble liege. For your own sake I say that you must spare me, for I can set you in the way of such a knightly adventure as will gladden your heart. Bethink you, sire, that this de Chargny and his comrades know nothing of their plans having gone awry. If I do but send them a message they will surely come to the postern gate. Then, if we have placed our banishment with skill we shall have such a capture and such a ransom as will fill your coffers. He and his comrades should be worth a good hundred thousand crowns."

Edward spurned the Italian away from him with his foot until he sprawled among the rushes, but even as he lay there like a wounded snake his dark eyes never left the King's face.

"You double traitor! You would sell Calais to de Chargny, and then in turn you would sell de Chargny to me. How dare you suppose that I or any noble knight had such a huckster's soul as to think only of ransoms where honor is to be won? Could I or any true man be so caitiff and so thrall? You have sealed your own doom. Lead him out!"

"One instant, I pray you, my fair and sweet lord," cried the Prince. "Assuage your wrath yet a little while, for this man's rede deserves perhaps more thought than we have given it. He has turned your noble soul sick with his talk of ransoms; but look at it, I pray you, from the side of honor, and where could we find such hope of worshipfully winning worship? I pray you to let me put my body in this adventure, for it is one from which, if rightly handled, much advancement is to be gained."

Edward looked with sparkling eyes at the noble youth at his side. "Never was hound more keen on the track of a stricken hart than you on the hope of honor, fair son," said he. "How do you conceive the matter in your mind?"

"De Chargny and his men will be such as are worth going far to meet, for he will have the pick of France under his banner that night. If we did as this man says and awaited him with the same number of lances, then I cannot think that there is any spot in Christendom where one would rather be than in Calais that night."

"By the rood, fair son, you are right!" cried the King, his face shining with the thought. "Now which of you, John Chandos or Walter Manny, will take the thing in charge?" He looked mischievously from one to the other like a master who dangles a bone betwixt two fierce old hounds. All they had to say was in their burning, longing eyes. "Nay, John, you must not take it amiss; but it is Walter's turn, and he shall have it."

"Shall we not all go under your banner, sire, or that of the Prince?"

"Nay, it is not fitting that the royal banners of England should be advanced in so small an adventure. And yet, if you have space in your ranks for two more cavaliers, both the Prince and I would ride with you that night."

The young man stooped and kissed his father's hand.

"Take this man in your charge, Walter, and do with him as you will. Guard well lest he betray us once again. Take him from my sight, for his breath poisons the room. And now, Nigel, if that worthy graybeard of thine would fain twang his harp or sing to us—but what in God's name would you have?"

He had turned, to find his young host upon his knee and his flaxen head bent in entreaty.

"What is it, man? What do you crave?"

"A boon, fair liege!"

"Well, well, am I to have no peace to-night, with a traitor kneeling to me in front, and a true man on his knees behind? Out with it, Nigel. What would you have?"

"To come with you to Calais."

"By the rood! your request is fair enough, seeing that our plot is hatched beneath your very roof. How say you, Walter? Will you take him, armor and all?" asked King Edward.

"Say rather will you take me?" said Chandos. "We two are rivals in honor, Walter, but I am very sure that you would not hold me back."

"Nay, John, I will be proud to have the best lance in Christendom beneath my banner."

"And I to follow so knightly a leader. But Nigel Loring is my squire, and so he comes with us also."

"Then that is settled," said the King, "and now there is no need for hurry, since there can be no move until the moon has changed. So I pray you to pass the flagon once again, and to drink with me to the good knights of France. May they be of great heart and high of enterprise when we all meet once more within the castle wall of Calais."

A GRAND KIDNEY MEDICINE

"Fruit-a-tives" Cured Him When Everything Else Failed.

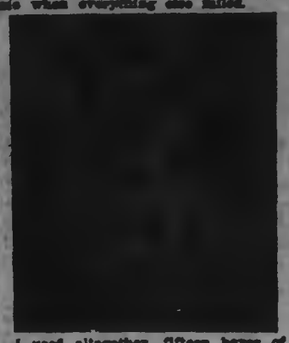
Ulverton, Que., March 17th, 1909.

I wish to place on record, for the sake of others who may be suffering in the same way that I suffered, that no medicine I ever took did me so much real good as "Fruit-a-tives" did.

I suffered for many years with Kidney Trouble, with bad pain in the back.

I took every known kidney remedy and kidney pill, but nothing gave me any relief, and I was getting discouraged.

I was advised to try "Fruit-a-tives" and did so—and this medicine cured me when everything else failed.



I used altogether fifteen boxes of "Fruit-a-tives," and from the outset they gave me relief and I am now practically well again; no pain, no distress, and all symptoms of kidney disease have entirely left me. I am very thankful to be once more well, and I freely make this statement for the sake of others who may suffer as I did. To them, I say try "Fruit-a-tives," as they are a grand kidney medicine.

CHAPTER XI.

The King had come and had gone. Tilford Manor-house stood once more dark and silent, but joy and contentment reigned within its walls. In one night every trouble had fallen away like some dark curtain which had shut out the sun. A princely sum of money had come from the King's treasurer, given in such fashion that there could be no refusal. With a bag of gold pieces at his saddle-bow Nigel rode once more into Guildford, and not a beggar on the way who had not cause to bless his name.

There he had gone first to the goldsmith and had bought back cup and salver and bracelet, mourning with the merchant over the evil chance that gold and gold-work had for certain reasons which only those in the trade could fully understand gone up in value during the last week, so that already fifty gold pieces had to be paid more than the price which Nigel had received. In vain the faithful Aylward fretted and fumed and muttered a prayer that the day would come when he might feather a shaft in the merchant's portly paunch. The money had to be paid.

Thence Nigel hurried to Wat the armorer's and there he bought that very suit for which he had yearned so short a time before. Then and there he tried it on in the booth, Wat and his boy walking round him with spanner and wrench, fixing bolts and twisting rivets.

"How is that, my fair sir?" cried the armorer as he drew the bassinet over the head and fastened it to the camail which extended to the shoulders. "I swear by Tubal Cain that it fits you as the shell fits the crab! A finer suit never came from Italy or Spain."

Nigel stood in front of a burnished shield which served as a mirror, and he turned this way and that, preening himself like a little shining bird. His smooth breastplate, his wondrous joints with their deft protection by the disks at knee and elbow and shoulder, the beautifully flexible gauntlets and tollerets, the shirt of mail and the close-fitting greave-plates were all things of joy and of beauty in his eyes. He sprang about the shop to show his lightness, and then running out he placed his hand on the pommel and vaulted into Pommers' saddle, while Wat and his boy applauded in the doorway.

Then springing off and running into the shop again he clanked down upon his knees before the image of the Virgin upon the smithy wall. There from his heart he prayed that no shadow or stain should come upon his soul or his honor whilst these arms incased his body, and that he might be strengthened to use them for noble and godly ends. A strange turn this to a religion of peace, and yet for many a century the sword and the faith had upheld each other and in a darkened world the best ideal of the soldier had turned in some dim groping fashion toward the light. "Benedictus dominus deus meus qui docet manus meas ad praelium et digitos meos ad bellum!" There spoke the soul of the knightly soldier.

So the armor was trussed upon the armorer's mule and went back with them to Tilford, where Nigel put it on once more for the pleasure of the Lady Ermyntrude, who clapped her skinny hands and shed tears of mingled pain and joy—pain that she should lose him, joy that he should go so bravely to the wars. As to her own future, it had been made easy for her, since it was arranged that a steward should look to the Tilford estate whilst she had at her disposal a suite of rooms in royal Windsor, where with other venerable dames of her own age and standing she could spend the twilight of her days discussing long-forgotten scandals and whispering sad things about the grandfathers and grandmothers of the young courtiers all around them. There Nigel might leave her with an easy mind when he turned his face to France.

But there was one more visit to be paid and one more farewell to be spoken are Nigel could leave the moorlands where he had dwelled so long. That evening he donned his brightest tunic, dark russet velvet of cosmos, with trimming of murrey, and hat with the snow-white feather curling round the front, and his belt of embossed silver round his loins. Mounted on lordly Pommers, with his hawk upon wrist and his sword by his side, never did fairer young gallant or one more modest in mind set forth upon such an errand. It was but the old Knight of Duplin to whom he would say farewell; but the Knight of Duplin had two daughters, Edith and Mary, and Edith was the fairest maid in all the heather-country.

Sir John Butterthorn, the Knight of Duplin, was so called because he had been present at that strange battle, some eighteen years before, when the full power of Scotland had been for a moment beaten to the ground by a handful of adventurers and mercenaries, marching under the banner of no nation, but fighting in their own private quarrel. Their exploit fills no pages of history, for it is to the interest of no nation to record it, and yet the rumor and fame of the great fight bulked large in those times, for it was on the day when the flower of Scotland was left dead upon the field, that the world first understood that a new force had arisen in war, and that the English archer, with his robust courage and his skill with the weapon which he had wielded from his boyhood, was a power with which even the mailed chivalry of Europe had seriously to reckon.

Sir John after his return from Scotland had become the King's own head huntsman, famous though all England for his knowledge of venery, until at last, getting overheavy for his horses, he had settled in modest comfort into the old house of Cosford upon the eastern slope of the Hindhead hill. Here, as his face grew redder and his beard more white, he spent the evening of his days, amid hawks and hounds, a flagon of spiced wine ever at his elbow, and his swollen foot perched upon a stool before him. There it was that many an old comrade broke his journey as he passed down the rude road which led from London to Portsmouth, and thither also came the young gallants of the country to hear the stout knight's tales of old wars, or to learn from him that love of the forest and the chase which none could teach so well as he.

But sooth to say, whatever the old knight might think, it was not merely his old tales and older wine which drew the young men to Cosford, but rather the fair face of his younger daughter, or the strong soul and wise counsel of the elder. Never had two more different branches sprung from the same trunk. Both were tall and of a queenly graceful figure. But there all resemblance began and ended.

Edith was yellow as the ripe corn, blue-eyed, winning, mischievous, with a chattering tongue, a merry laugh, and a smile which a dozen of young gallants, Nigel of Tilford at their head, could share equally amongst them. Like a young kitten she played with all things that she found in life, and some there were who thought that already the claws could be felt amid the patting of her velvet touch.

Mary was dark as night, grave-featured, plain-visaged, with steady brown eyes looking bravely at the world from under a strong black arch of brows. None could call her beautiful, and when her fair sister cast her arm round her and placed her cheek against hers, as was her habit when company was there the fairness of the one and the plainness of the other leaped visibly to the eyes of all, each the clearer for that hard contrast. And yet, here and there, there was one who, looking at her strange, strong face, and at the passing gleams far down in her dark eyes, felt that this silent woman with her proud bearing and her queenly grace had in her something of strength, of reserve and of mystery which was more to them than all the dainty glitter of her sister.

Such were the ladies of Cosford toward whom Nigel Loring rode that night with doublet of Genoan velvet and the new white feather in his cap.

He had ridden over Thursley Ridge past that old stone where in days gone by at the place of Thor the wild Saxons worshiped their war-god. Nigel looked at it with a wary eye and spurred Pommers onward as he passed it, for still it was said that wild fires danced round it on the moonless nights, and they who had ears for such things could hear the scream and sob of those whose lives had been ripped from them that the fiend might be honored. Thor's stone, Thor's jumps, Thor's punch-bowl—the whole country-side was one grim monument to the God of Battles, though the pious monks had changed his uncouth name for that of the Devil his father, so that it was the Devil's jumps and the Devil's punch-bowl of which they spoke. Nigel glanced back at the old gray bowlder, and he felt for an instant a shudder pass through his stout heart. Was it the chill of the evening air, or was it that some inner voice had whispered to him of the day when he also might be bound on such a rock and have such a blood-stained pagan crew howling around him.

An instant later the rock and his vague fear and all things else had passed from his mind, for there, down the yellow sandy path, the setting sun gleaming on her golden hair her lithe figure bending and swaying with every heave of the cantering horse, was none other than the same fair Edith, whose face had come so often betwixt him and his sleep. His blood rushed hot to his face at the sight, for fearless of all else, his spirit was attracted and yet daunted by the delicate mystery of woman. To his pure and knightly soul not Edith alone, but every woman, sat high and aloof, enthroned and exalted, with a thousand mystic excellencies and virtues which raised her far above the rude world of man. There was joy in contact with them; and yet there was fear, fear lest his own unworthiness, his untrained tongue or rougher ways should in some way break rudely upon this delicate and tender thing. Such was his thought as the white horse cantered toward him; but a moment later his vague doubts were set at rest by the frank voice of the young girl, who waved her whip in merry greeting.

"Hail and well met, Nigel!" she cried. "Whither away this evening? Sure I am that it is not to see your friends of Cosford, for when did you ever don so brave a doublet for us? Come, Nigel, her name, that I may hate her forever."

AFTER TREATMENT

Mr. [illegible] surprised at how the sores healed—"I took your New Method Treatment for a serious blood disease with which I had been troubled for twelve years. I had consulted scores of physicians, taken all kinds of blood medicine, visited Hot Springs and other mineral water resorts, but only got temporary relief. They would help me for a time, but after discontinuing the medicines the symptoms would break out again—running sores, blotches, rheumatic pains, looseness of the hair, swellings of the glands, palms of the hands smelling, itchiness of the skin, dyspeptic stomach, etc. I had given up in despair when a friend advised me to consult you, as you had cured him of a similar disease 8 years ago. I had no hope, but took his advice. In three weeks' time the sores commenced to heal up and I became encouraged. I continued the New Method Treatment for four months and at the end of that time every symptom had disappeared. I was cured 7 years ago and no signs of any disease since. My boy, three years old, is sound and healthy. I certainly can recommend your treatment with all my heart. You can refer any person to me privately, but you can use this testimonial as you wish." W. # Before the Fire--or After?

WHEN are you going to find out whether the fire insurance you have paid for is really good or not—before or after the fire which makes it due or payable? You cannot change it after the fire. It will be too late then; but before the fire, you can readily at no extra cost select an insurance company whose record and strength guarantee the liberal fulfillment of its obligations.

POULTRY INDUSTRY IN CANADA

From Farm and Dairy.

Prof. F. C. Elford, Macdonald College.

In the last two issues of Farm and Dairy we have sought to outline the Poultry Industry of Canada, and compared it with the industry in other countries. We shall now deal with the matters of where the money goes to in the egg business and show that co-operation is practicable in Canada. Mr. Hastings provides the following table of figures which shows where the difference of prices goes to.

|---|---|
| Paid the farmer | 15c |
| Profit of the Country Store | 0 |
| Gross profit of the shipper | ¾c |
| Freight to New York | 1¼c |
| Gross profit of receiver | ¼c |
| Gross profit of jobber | 1¼c |
| Gross profit of retailer | 4c |
| Loss from handling | 2c |
| Cost to consumer | 25c |

IS CO-OPERATION PRACTICABLE?

It has been said that co-operation amongst poultrymen is not practicable in Canada, that farmers are too sparsely settled and of too independent a spirit to co-operate. To answer these objections one has but to notice what has been done by co-operation along similar lines by and among the same people. The co-operative fruit packing establishments illustrate that farmers can come together for mutual benefit. What would the dairy trade of Canada be but for co-operation? In '01 there were 755 factories, in '01 there were 3,576 factories with a combined value for plant and buildings of over $6,000,000 and a total value of products sold in '01 of nearly $80,000,000. What co-operation, judiciously encouraged and controlled, has done for the dairy industry of Canada it can do for the poultry industry.

If farmers can co-operate with their fruit and milk interests, they can co-operate with poultry products. There are but few interested in either fruit or milk but who are interested in poultry also. Co-operation in selling poultry products already exists in a few instances. As the benefits of such circles are realised others will doubtless follow. As however, the preliminary educational work necessary is more than private individuals feel justified in doing the progress will be slow. It is felt that assistance along these lines would be productive of good results.

HOW IT CAN BE ACCOMPLISHED

As already noted, Government assistance in other countries has usually found an outlet through existing societies. In the past the poultrymen of Canada have had no organisation to assist the producer to grow a better article, to assist him to co-operate with his neighbor and to help both to find the best market. For this purpose the Poultry Producers Association of Eastern Canada has been formed. Its objects and aims are set forth in the constitution. The association wishes to do for poultrymen of Canada what similar societies have done for the poultry industry in Denmark and Great Britain. For the present it is not intended that the association should act as a middleman and buy and sell. Its work will be largely educational. By establishing one or two local branches or co-operative circles it will demonstrate the value of combination. It will also endeavor to keep the buyers in touch with the members and establish uniform standards of dressed poultry and eggs.

The constitution, rules, grades for dressed poultry and eggs are being printed and may be had by addressing the Secretary.

MR. BARR'S LECTURES BEARING FRUIT

From Farm and Dairy.

Last fall patrons of cheese factories in a considerable part of Peterboro County were privileged to hear Mr. Geo. H. Barr, Assistant Dairy Commissioner for the Dominion, give his illustrated lecture on the "Care of Milk for Cheese Making." Among other places, this lecture was given at Warsaw. While calling recently at the Warminster cheese factory, which is in close proximity to Warsaw, an editorial representative of Farm and Dairy was pleased to learn that Mr. Barr's efforts were bearing fruit. Mr. Gavin Graham, the manager of the Warminster factory, stated that Mr. Barr had worked wonders so far as the milk coming from some of his patrons was concerned. One patron in particular had always given continual trouble in sending unsound milk. It was a common thing to send back at least 200 pounds or more of his milk a week. Since caring for his milk as recommended by Mr. Barr, his milk had come in in perfect condition, not a pound having been returned this season.

"The system recommended by Mr. Barr," said Mr. Graham, "is all right. If cooled by water and covered up immediately and kept from all sources of contamination, the milk can be left on the covered stand over Sunday and be in good condition Monday morning. It is no trouble to tell how the milk delivered at the factory has been cared for. Old coolers and aerators where the milk runs over a bridge, and is exposed to the air, are all wrong. Should there be any wind blowing, they get the benefit of all that is going from the barnyard, and the seat of most of the trouble in this district is that invariably, farmers have their stands in very close proximity to their barnyards.

"Like many other factories in Eastern Ontario, we separate the whey and get all that is in it," continued Mr. Graham. "The whey seems to be as good for feeding purposes as it was in other years. Now farmers get it fresh every day. Years ago, they used to get in a supply large enough to last a week. The whey used to be drawn from the vats and elevated from the lower tank to the higher by means of an ejector, and as the farmers draw the whey from the bottom of this elevated tank, they get but very little of any fat that it might contain when first dipped."

HEAVY HORSES IN DEMAND

From Farm and Dairy.

Farmers in certain sections of Durham and Ontario Counties, Ont., have wisely devoted much attention of late to breeding heavy horses. Large numbers of young horses ranging in age from sucking foals to those in their three year old form were seen in this district recently by an editorial representative of Farm and Dairy. It appeared as if horse breeding was common to nearly all farms in that section, and a noteworthy feature of the situation was that for the most part all seemed to breed the same class, the Clydesdale.

Reward is already coming to these farmers for their enterprise in pinning their faith to one breed and breeding it in numbers. The district is becoming noised as one where heavy horses are raised. Buyers with long purses are coming there in search of such stock. Only recently a buyer from Quebec spent several days in the region back of Oshawa buying horses for the lumbering business. He wanted good sound horses from 1500 pounds up. He found them difficult to get and when located he paid $200 to $260 a head for them.

This buyer came past Montreal to get these horses. Many could have been obtained in that city. He preferred, however, to buy direct from the farmers where he could see the horses at work. He was not particular as to their condition, simply requiring that they be of suitable conformation, up to weight and sound, and for such he was willing to and did, pay the price asked. Other localities may well take a pointer from this experience and get into the heavy horse business. Breed them right and they will command prices that spell profit and if enough are available, buyers will soon be abundant. Heavy horses are the right sort to breed. They are the most easily handled and are practically sure of a market.

WHERE ALFALFA IS HIGHLY VALUED

From Farm and Dairy.

Alfalfa is becoming more and more prized as a valuable forage plant. In some sections that seem peculiarly adapted to alfalfa and where it has been thoroughly tested it has become very popular and is proving a most profitable crop. The district in the vicinity of Caledonia, Haldimand County, Ont., comprises some rather rolling ground. In many cases, the hillsides are a stiff, red clay, not the kind of land that the average farmer would choose to produce the best of crops or that could be worked easily. While in that section recently, an editorial representative of Farm and Dairy learned that about 25 years ago, a Mr. Douglas, a progressive farmer, sowed some alfalfa seed and thereby discovered that these clay hillsides are adapted to the growing of the alfalfa plant. Since that time, neighboring farmers have taken to growing alfalfa. Now, some of them have areas as large as 100 acres devoted to this crop. They find that in conjunction with corn in the silo, alfalfa is one of the best and cheapest feeds for dairy stock. The alfalfa is fed to all kinds of stock and gives excellent results.

Under ordinary condition, land in that vicinity would not command a high price. Since it has been found that this particular soil is suited for the growth of alfalfa, land values have risen and the values will yet go up. Land that will produce alfalfa with the certainty of this soil, would be cheap at $100 an acre. When we consider the success that some have met with in the growing of alfalfa, it is surprising to find that other farmers in the same locality with land that is equally suited for this plant have never sown a handful of alfalfa seed but stand by timothy and red clover (mostly timothy) and the growing of fall wheat and oats, selling the same from their farms. It is noteworthy, and not surprising, to find that men in that locality who have grown the most alfalfa are gradually buying out their less enterprising neighbors.

THE VALUE OF A FRUIT DIET

From Farm and Dairy.

Apples, oranges, peaches, lemons, strawberries, blackberries, raspberries—in fact, all the various acid fruits—are exceedingly wholesome in character, and are capable of furnishing a very large amount of nourishment in one's daily diet. Strange as it may seem to the average individual, almost any one of these fruits, lemons excepted, would fully and completely nourish the body for a prolonged and even an extended period, if one were for any reason compelled to secure nourishment entirely from food of this character, although of course it would require a considerable period for the organs of assimilation to acquire the habit of absorbing all needed nourishment if a radical dietetic change of this nature was made.

The DAY of the DUEL

A TEXAS KNIGHT ERRANT

Copyright, 1900, by the New York Herald Co. All Rights Reserved.

IT was long after midnight when young Fisk made his way somewhat unsteadily to his cabin on the Louisville boat. His wife, a bride of three months, was still awake and reproached him gently.

"I think it is hardly safe for you to play cards with strangers, Frank," she said rather timidly.

"It's all right, my dear, I assure you," he answered, with unwonted precision of speech. "Excellent fellows. Didn't resent it a bit when I cleaned them out. A man must have a flutter once in a while, you know."

"Did you win?"

"Should say I did. At least five hundred. They taught me the game, but I was just a trifle too much for them."

In her inexperience and faith she yielded her objection, reflecting that, after all, he was a man among men and that it was not hers to interfere with amusements that pertained so distinctively to the masculine sphere. And then he had won. She did not wonder at that. Frank was clever at everything.

By the time the steamboat reached Louisville Fisk had reason to believe that he possessed natural and hitherto unsuspected gifts in the matter of twenty-odd poker. He marveled that he had never discovered this important fact before. The three prosperous New York brokers with whom he played had noticed it at an early stage, and while he had modestly sought to evade their compliments on his skill it was really impossible to overlook the tangible results.

Fisk had left Natchez on his wedding trip and was now returning thither. He had done well as a planter and had been doubly fortunate in an opportunity to act as agent for many of his planter acquaintances during his visit to New York and Boston. It was the custom to collect the proceeds of the year's shipments of cotton and sugar each fall and a dozen wealthy residents of the Mississippi city had been glad to intrust Fisk with their business instead of making the journey themselves. He was bringing with a large sum in cash, the commission from which would suffice to cover his expenses since the wedding.

He had no means of knowing that the three "brokers" with whom he had spent so many pleasant and profitable hours on the Louisville boat were members of a clever band of card sharps who operated between east and south over the rivers. They kept watch upon the offices of the shipping firms along the coast, waiting for men like Fisk, planters flush of money after making their collections. Fisk had been marked and they had learned his homeward route. The three had preceded him to Pittsburg and had fallen in with him there.

The young man looked forward to parting from his amiable companions with regret, and it was a matter for warm rejoicing when he learned that they had decided to continue their trip to Baton Rouge. At his earnest solicitation they agreed to take the steamer from Louisville on which he had engaged passage, leaving that city three days later. On boarding the Orleans for her southern trip he was greeted with effusion by the "brokers."

"I'm afraid you'll have to lend me return fare by the time we reach Natchez as a matter of common charity," said one of them ruefully. "Can't you go a little easy on the unfortunate father of a large family?" continued the speaker, who was known as Smith.

"Oh, come, now," laughed Fisk; "it's not as bad as that. My luck can't last forever, you know."

The Hint Dropped.

"Now, that's just what I thought at first," chimed in Sprague, the tallest and handsomest of the three. "You remember, boys," he said, appealing to the others, "I predicted that Fisk's winning streak would turn at the second sitting. But it didn't. I'm a nigger if I wouldn't like to know his system. I've played some before, but I never saw a man who took to the game so like a duck to water as our friend. It's more than luck, you can stake on it."

"Whatever the trick, it works," said Fuller, the third "broker." "I can see that plantation I was going to buy gone a-glimmering if he keeps his pace."

Fisk waved their remarks aside with a smile and started the glasses around, after which conversation drifted into business channels. The men were well informed concerning crop conditions, and until dinner time discussed topics familiar to Fisk without a word concerning gambling. During the evening, however, the group gravitated toward the men's cabin on the main deck, and Mrs. Fisk found herself alone once more. She knew where her husband had gone and felt some return of her former uneasiness, but suppressed it, taking herself to task for her selfishness and lack of confidence.

Dawn was breaking before the game broke up, and at its close Fisk crept up to his cabin on the deck above with stealthy step. He did not care to be questioned this time, and it was with infinite relief that he found his wife asleep. He slipped into his berth without waking her and counted over the situation. He had lost not only his winnings, but the share of the money he carried which he might properly consider as his own. However, he comforted himself with the thought that he would win it back on the morrow. It was unthinkable that one who had mastered the game so completely as himself could be checked seriously by a streak of ill luck.

When the boat reached Vicksburg Fisk found himself with about $5,000 left out of a total of $70,000. His depression, abstracted manner and brusque responses had not failed to reawaken his young wife's alarm. She had divined something of the cause, though not its extent, and had even ventured to take him to task. The result had been the first sharp word she had ever had from him, and the delicate little woman, nursing the only unhappiness that had entered her sheltered life, had retired, hurt, tearful and confused.

Fisk, left to himself, figured the chances with fatalistic precision. He was ruined. His resources had been wiped out in the vanished sum and he now owed more to his friends at home than he could ever hope to repay. He pictured to himself his return, disgraced, penniless, a felon, to the city he had left with such bright expectations. It was too late to draw back. He ran over the course of his losses, which had occurred with a rapidity that blinded him to the quicksand. Even now he had no suspicion of his companions, whose attitude toward him had been more than solicitously friendly since the golden stream had flowed from his purse. As he saw it there remained but one slender possibility. With his last $5,000 he might regain his ground.

He drank heavily at the card table that night, playing in an erratic manner that served for a time to win an advantage. During a brief pause at one of the steamer's stops he found himself several thousand dollars toward recovery. Stepping out on the deck he was surprised to find his wife there. He began to remonstrate, but she took him by the arm with a pleading gesture.

"Frank, you must stop this," she said in a decisive manner that was new to him. "One of the pilots told me what has happened. I don't care for the money, Frank. We can make it up in some way. But those brokers of yours are professional gamblers. I am sure of it. Leave them now while you can save what you have left."

He flung her off.

"It's too late," he said shortly.

Plea of the Wife.

"Then it is as bad as that," she answered gravely, but with the words all her tenderness swept back and she clung to him. "No, it's not too late, dear. Think. It means much more that we should keep our trust and love for each other than that any conceivable sum of money should be ours. I ask you to leave these men. It is madness to suppose that they will ever let you win back what they have taken from you. Save the little you have and come with me. Have I no longer a claim upon you?"

All the power she could summon, all the intensity of newly given affection, all the charm and beauty of her nature and personality were thrown into her vehement words. But the flicker of returning confidence combined with what he had drunk to make him hard and reckless. He told her to go to her berth, and left her, consoling himself in his twinge of conscience that she would yet thank him for having shown his strength of purpose in an emergency.

As she turned slowly toward the companionway, despair clutching at her heart, she brushed unheeding by the tall figure of a man who had been an unwitting spectator of the little scene. The light at the foot of the stairs fell softly upon her, and as he stood aside he caught a glimpse of her face, blinded by tears. He watched her for a moment as she ascended, then turned and followed Fisk into the men's cabin.

The stranger was middle aged, powerfully built and carried himself with the ease and poise that bespoke an active life among men. He quietly took a seat near the four players and casually observed the situation. Fisk, after the resumption of the game, began to lose again steadily. He plunged desperately on a hand of moderate strength and more than half of his remaining sum disappeared. The cards were shuffled, dealt and passed rapidly, the "brokers" no longer concealing their skill or keeping up the fiction of a friendly pastime. It was the familiar operation known on the river as "three pluck one," shorn of all pretence now that the victim was nearing the end.

In the final crash Fisk bore himself with a boisterous, carefree manner which was patently the product of nerve strain and whiskey. He tossed his last gold coin to the centre with a jarring laugh and saw it swept into the winnings of one of the others. He remained to accept a last drink, then flung out upon the deck. The stranger, who had not been noticed, sauntered after him.

The night was overcast. The river bank was visible only as a broad, vague line between the lighter stretches of sky and river. Below, from the paddle-wheel, ran an endless white path of foam atop the wave that slid monotonously out and back into the darkness. The swelling crest rose smoothly, lathered by the thudding blades. Fisk hung upon the rail, fascinated, eyes fixed upon the cooling rush of water. His hat fell from his hand, spun a moment in the whirling eddies and danced swiftly away.

The only light on the deck was that at the foot of the companionway. On the stairs beneath the faint rays crouched a woman, her face drawn and aged beyond semblance of the girl wife who had been the talk and admiration of the boat when she boarded it at Louisville. She was staring with terrible intentness at the man by the rail. Her hands grasped the balustrade convulsively. Slowly, with almost sinister deliberation and stealth of movement, she came down a step at a time.

Suddenly Fisk, who had not removed his gaze from the persistent white wave, flung a leg over the railing. The woman cried out and flung herself toward him. He turned a haggard face upon her and released his hold an instant before she reached him. But in that tense space his wrist was seized in an iron grasp and he was drawn bodily, rudely, back to the deck.

The All Night Game.

He came to some realization of things to find himself struggling in the arms of a tall, stern faced stranger, while his wife hung, sobbing convulsively, about his neck. The liquor swept over his faculties in the momentary relief he experienced at finding himself still beyond the embrace of that cruel, white wave, and passively he allowed himself to be led away. There were a few words of explanation between the stranger and Mrs. Fisk after her husband had been placed in a berth, and when the former paced the main deck once more the key to the Fisk cabin was in his pocket. He turned into the bar.

The three "brokers" were standing before half finished glasses, engaged in discourse of apparently agreeable nature. The stranger took a one hundred dollar bill from a well filled wallet and passed it over the counter, ordering a drink. The bartender shook his head.

"Sorry, sir," he said, "but I can't change that. Perhaps this gentleman," indicating Fuller, "can help you."

The wallet had not passed from sight unnoted.

"Certainly," responded Fuller in cordial tone. "I can change it if you like. But why break it? Won't you join us?"

The stranger bowed pleasantly, accepted the courtesy and conversation became general. The party moved to one of the tables in companionable mood and anecdotes were exchanged. After a time Smith turned to one of the others.

"Do you know this river air always makes me wakeful instead of sleepy? Let's make a night of it. Poker hath charms to soothe my savage breast now that would be wholly lacking in a restless doze and a stuffy cabin. Can't we keep on?"

"Yes, I suppose we can," said Sprague doubtfully. "It's not much good with three. But I don't feel like turning in yet myself. Suppose we have another sitting, people. I owe you revenge for that last drubbing you gave me, Fuller."

With offhand jests the three moved their chairs to the table and the cards were brought out. Sprague turned with the proper degree of hesitation to the stranger.

"Perhaps you'd like to join us, sir?" he suggested. "We'd be glad to have you if you care for a friendly game."

The man shook his head.

"I'm afraid you'd find me poor sport," he said. "I'm not much at cards, and that's a fact."

"Well, let's test it," said Sprague, with brisk good fellowship and a smile that sat well upon his youthful face. "I'm only a novice myself, learned the game a few days ago, but these fellows have left me my scalp."

Evidently reassured by Sprague's ingenuous frankness, the stranger, with further protestations of his lack of skill, allowed himself to be persuaded and took the fourth seat. The game was played with tens, jacks, queens, kings and aces of the pack and was the one in favor upon all river craft. During the early deals the stranger won steadily, a circumstance that seemed at once to surprise and to embarrass him. He handled his cards awkwardly and bet with caution. His success, measured in small sums, continued throughout two hours. Gradually he gained in confidence and allowed his good fortune to draw him into heavier play. He relaxed his attitude of cold reserve. Just as the river began to lighten under the first reflection of coming dawn there were two hands on the table grew, each of the three having recourse to his wallet.

"I'll raise it," was Sprague's monotonous formula.

"Raise," was Smith's rejoinder. The stranger made no response except to push forward his stake each time.

While the tension grew with the sum involved the keen eyes of the unknown player were never off the cards held by his opponents. Sprague, sitting restlessly in his seat, suddenly raised $500, bringing the total amount on the table up to a little more than $100,000. Fuller had been watching the game intently and fumbling with his abandoned cards. Under cover of Sprague's unusual raise he slipped one with the speed and ease of light to Sprague, but quick as was the move the stranger caught it.

He rose slowly from his chair, leaning over the table. His left hand, holding his cards, he placed upon the pile of money. With the other he drew a long, curved knife from his belt. His tall form dominated the three, who sat breathless in suspense.

"My dear sir," said the stranger softly to Sprague, "I am going to count your hand. I am going to find six cards in it. And when I do I am going to kill you."

His voice, like the tinkling of chilled steel, and the glittering of the knife as he lifted it, left no doubt in the mind of any of the party that he was sure of his move. Then Sprague, with a spasmodic gesture, shoved his cards, as if in an access of offended rage, among Fuller's discard and bounded from his seat, cursing blackly. The stranger smiled for the first time that night, a tribute to the cleverness of his handsome young antagonist. Keeping his eye upon them all, he spread his own cards face up on the table. They showed four kings and a ten spot.

"If either of you two gentlemen can put down a legitimate hand to beat that he is welcome to the money," he said. Smith did not even expose his cards. Sprague had fouled his own. None of the three offered an objection and the stranger calmly swept the pile of money into his soft hat, bolding it like a bag. The wrath of Sprague, held momentarily by the man's personality and grim demeanor, broke fiercely into a stream of words. With flushed face and threatening gesture he thrust back chairs and table like one who prepares a battle ground.

"Satisfaction I demand satisfaction. You're a thief, a liar and a blackleg. Do you think we'll submit to any such robbery, you damned scoundrel?"

He carried it off well. The stranger nodded approvingly.

"Quite at your service, sir," he said. "I would scarcely have hoped so much from one of your profession. Setting aside your language, which is unworthy of a gentleman, I find you quite entitled to what you ask."

His unruffled calm and the touch of patronizing loftiness achieved Sprague's exasperation. He made as if to hurl himself upon the other, who held him back with a sharper word.

"I Am James Bowie."

"Try not to be a ruffian, sir. I don't propose to fight you in roustabout style."

"Who are you, then, you blackguard?" shouted Sprague.

"I am James Bowie," was the answer "and I must urge you again to be more temperate in your expressions."

The name of the most famous and fearless adventurer of the Southwest, synonymous with high and proved courage, attached to many a desperate enterprise and the knife which he had invented, a terror to the wildest of reckless men, fell like a whip of spray upon the simulated resentment of outraged honor. There remained, however, the anger of the freebooter bereft of his spoils. Fuller and Smith, who had advanced to support Sprague, fell back. The latter was more mettlesome, though his tone had changed.

"Bowie or Nimble Nick—this is where you have a charge of lead for breakfast. I repeat my challenge, sir."

"That is decidedly better. I accept it, with thanks," said Bowie. "Sir," he added, turning to Fuller with ready solution of the immediate situation, "as I am without friends I trust that you can see your way to act for me in this delicate affair."

The man addressed, a distinctly lower type than Sprague, was loath. But terror induced by the identity of the one they had sought as a second victim left him no choice. Assuming a dignity that he was far from possessing, he bowed and drew aside with his principal. It was agreed that the duel should take place at once with Derringers as weapons.

While Fuller met with Smith in final negotiation Bowie, carrying his hatful of money, ascended to the cabin of the Fisks, rapped at the door and unlocked it. It was opened by the young wife, who had kept unhappy watch upon the restless slumbers of her husband. Her face, white and pitiful, lighted with gratitude as she saw the man who had stepped between Fisk and death the night before.

"Has he slept?" asked Bowie.

She nodded, trying bravely to smile.

"Oh, yes, I think he will be all right when he wakes. But what shall I tell him? I have been trying to plan all night, but there seems to be no way."

She looked at him appealingly, hopelessly, such a look as James Bowie had seen seldom in his life, with great gray eyes and lips that trembled. He paused a moment, fain to fix that image in his brain, then thrust the hat hastily into her hand.

"Here is the money," he said briefly, almost roughly. "If I don't come back two-thirds of it is your husband's, what he lost to those rogues. The rest is my own. If I am missing at noon you will find out why I am and give it over to the proper person." Coolly.

Without waiting to answer her incoherent and bewildered questions he turned on his heel and returned to the bar. Sprague and his second were waiting and the party climbed to the hurricane deck.

The paddle boxes of the Orleans were of an antiquated design, not curved, but square and high, with flat tops that reached within two feet of the hurricane deck. The Derringers were Bowie's own, flintlocks of beautiful make and finish. They were loaded by Smith and Fuller, Bowie looking well to the operation and examining each weapon. He then courteously accorded Sprague the choice. After arming the principals took their positions on the paddle boxes. This placed them about twelve yards apart, exposed to each other above the knees. Fuller and Smith stood off out of range.

According to the agreement Smith was to say "One, two, three, fire, stop," with the interval of a second between each word. The duellists were free to shoot at any time between the first syllable and the last.

"Are you ready, gentlemen?" asked Smith.

Both signified that they were.

The Duel.

"One!" said Smith. The pistols came up to position. It was clear early morning, the red rim of the rising sun just showing above the eastern shore. Sprague stood with the light full upon him, a graceful and striking figure, his smooth face set and firm, the breeze from the progress of the vessel blowing his long hair back from his forehead. He showed no trace of nervousness. Bowie was gaunt and angular, with erect body and arm as steady as a rib of steel.

"Two!" Still there was no change in the picture.

"Three!" His voice was lost in the sharp report of Sprague's weapon, shattering the quiet. Bowie did not move.

"Fire!" continued Smith. Bowie's pistol spoke at the word. The elder man retained his unbroken pose, his opponent stood with mouth compressed. The seconds looked anxiously from one to the other of the principals, when Sprague, without a sound, crumpled rather than fell to the top of the paddle box, Smith and Fuller started forward, but the young man's muscles relaxed and he slipped over the edge in front of the revolving wheel before they could reach him.

The three men on the hurricane deck held their places a moment, with thoughts intent upon the falling body, now beneath the powerful blades. Then Bowie, with a casual gesture that bespoke finality, blew the still trailing smoke from his pistol barrel, shut down the pan, bowed to Smith and Fuller and descended to the main deck.

Just before noon, when the steamboat was to stop at a small landing, he knocked again at the Fisk cabin. It opened almost at his touch and an eager little hand drew him inside. For some minutes the man, whose every action spelled self-command, stood helpless, vainly trying to stem the warm gratitude of a woman who had lived through a lifetime in one day and who knew that she owed whatever happiness might still be hers to him. Fisk slept on while she talked, and Bowie could not check her until she had said it all, all that had gathered in her breast during the hours of horror, the moment of respite and the later period when vague fears for the fate of her deliverer had assailed her. He had recourse to counting the money in the hat to escape her.

There was a few dollars more than $100,000, and of this he turned over to Mrs. Fisk $70,000, the sum which, as he had learned, had been taken from the young planter. The rest was his own and he pocketed it. This business completed in businesslike manner, he held out his hand.

"I am leaving at the next landing," he said, in a matter of fact voice.

"But you cannot go until Frank has thanked you," she said in surprise. "Surely you will not leave us so after all you have done?"

"Much obliged. I hardly think he'd appreciate it much," he answered dryly. He would have gone, but his eyes rested upon hers, and what he saw there drew him from his mood. He came close to her.

"It is better this way," he said. "When your husband has recovered and has had time to scan the lesson that this incident has taught him you can tell him who it was that helped you. And perhaps when you hear men speak of Jim Bowie as of a fiend incarnate you yourself may have a kindly thought for me."

Both her hands nestled on his arm. She did not remove them when he spoke his name, her glance did not fall. He took her hands in his grasp for a moment and gazed again at the fair, flushed face so near to his.

"Goodby," he said suddenly, and bowed formally as he opened the door.

"Goodby," was her answer, softly. She did not seek to detain him anew.

As the door closed she turned and sank by the berth on which lay the sprawled, unconscious form of her sleeping husband.

His father leaned across the table with tension in every line of him.

"Go on!" he said anxiously, and Almeric looked up at him with a silly smile.

"Didn't stop with her, though."

"Why not?" demanded the earl angrily.

"A sort of man in the village got me to look at a bull terrier pup," Almeric went on, with a yawn. "Wonderful little beast for points. Jolly luck, isn't it? He has got a head on him"—

Hawcastle interrupted savagely.

"We'll concede his tremendous advantage over you in that respect," he said and threw the cigar he had just lighted into the coffee cup.

"Is that all you have to tell me?" implored the countess, with a dramatic gesture, leaning forward. Almeric looked up with surprise.

"Oh, no!" he said. "She accepted me."

The earl dropped into a chair with a sigh of relief, and the countess clasped her hands ecstatically.

"Enfin! Brava! And will she let it be soon?"

Again Almeric stifled a yawn.

"I dare say there'll be no row about that," he replied. "You see, I've made her awfully happy."

"On my soul, I believe you're right," said Hawcastle, "and thank God you are!"

Rising, he walked up and down the terrace and then turned quickly.

"Here's her brother," he said softly. "Attention now!"

CHAPTER VI.

EASY PREY.

USUALLY when a man through inclination or environment decides that the manners of his people will not serve for him and that the customs of the land of his adoption are more applicable to his purpose he outdoes even the natives in his conformation to the existing modes.

Horace Granger-Simpson—the Granger was but a recent innovation due to the belief that Simpson by itself was altogether too hopelessly plebeian to attract even a modicum of attention—had consorted with the gilded youth of several capitals, and his education had progressed to such an extent that the youth of Kokomo would have stoned him instantly upon his arrival at the town depot.

He ambled with a rocking gait, drawn from the guardsmen he had so carefully watched, down the steps of the hotel on to the terrace, and his attire would have attracted notice from a Hindoo idol. He wore spotlessly white flannels, white shoes piqueyed to a dazzling degree, a thoroughly British straw hat, chamois gloves and a pale blue scarf held together with a massive pearl.

For an instant Mme. la Comtesse looked at him and then, with a little cry of greeting, rushed forward, clasped his hands and took both his surprised noses.

"Ah, my dear Horace Granger-Seempson!" she said excitedly. "Has your sister told you?"

Horace swallowed once or twice savagely and then made a heroic effort to keep down the radiance that was choking him, made two effectual fabs at his eyes with the handkerchief he took from his sleeve and responded joyfully, though brokenly:

"She has, indeed. I assure you I am quite overcome, my dear friends. Really, I assure you."

With a silvery laugh Mme. de Champigny stepped backward from him, making a little courtsey as she did so. The earl came forward with outstretched hands and grasped one of Horace's between both his own.

"My dear young friend," he said. "Not at all—not at all."

As the remark seemed a trifle ambiguous, Horace looked at him inquiringly, but, reading reassurance in his face, replied instantly:

"I assure you I am. I assure you I am. It's quite overpowering, isn't it?"

With a look of commiseration the countess regarded him and said softly:

"Ah, poor M. Horace!"

From his sprawled attitude in the chair the honorable Almeric drawled a protest.

"I say! Don't take it that way, you know. She's very happy."

Horace recovered himself instantly and crossed the terrace quickly to grasp the hand of the bridegroom to be. The fact that it was as limp as a mackerel did not worry him an instant.

"She's worthy of it—she's worthy of it! I know she is! And when will it be, St. Aubyn?" he said.

"Enchanting!" cried the countess enthusiastically. "So clear is his grasp of the case, eh?"

Hawcastle flashed her a glance and turned to Horace.

"Oh, the date?" he said doubtfully. "I dare say within a year—two years"—

There was another little cry of protest from the countess, and the earl glared at her menacingly. Horace started, too, and seemed to be about to enter a positive objection, but he contented himself with saying:

"Oh, but I say, you know, isn't that putting it jolly far off? The thing's settled, isn't it? Why not say a month instead of a year?"

"Ha-hum!" said the earl. "Oh, if you like! I don't know that there is any real objection."

"I do, indeed," returned Horace. "See here! Why not let them marry here in Italy?"

Hawcastle could scarcely conceal his satisfaction, while Mme. de Champigny executed a bit of a pas seul behind Horace's back.

"Ah, the dashing methods of you Americans!" returned the earl smilingly. "You carry things on so! Next you'll be saying, 'Why not here at Sorrento?'"

"Well, and why not, indeed?" asked Horace instantly.

"And then," went on Hawcastle, smiling, "and then it will be, 'Why not within a fortnight?'"

"Right-o!" cried Horace. "And why not within a fortnight?"

Almeric sat up and stared at his noble father and brother-in-law to be, but the earl smiled once more that cheerful smile and waved a deprecating hand.

"Ah, you wonderful people! You are whirlwinds, yet I see no reason why it should not be in a fortnight."

"Oh, here! I say, you know!" interjected Almeric, heaving himself erect in the chair and waving a protesting crop. The earl turned on him instantly.

"As I say, dear boy, why not?" he inquired suavely, and Almeric wilted immediately.

"Just as you say, governor," he answered meekly.

"Enchanting! Brava!" cried the countess, and Hawcastle again turned to the palpitating Horace.

"My son is all impatience," he murmured, fixing the young man with his eye.

"Quite so, quite so!" answered Almeric dazedly, and his father went on:

"Shall we dispose of the necessary little details at once—the various minor arrangements, the—er—er—settlement?" and interrupted himself with a friendly laugh and patted Horace upon the back. "Of course as men of the world—our world—you understand there are formalities in the nature of a settlement."

Horace, who was in the seventh heaven of delight at the approaching alliance between one of the ancient houses of Kokomo, Ind., and the honorable line of Hawcastle, broke in eagerly:

"Quite so, of course! I know! Certainly! Perfectly!"

"Then we'll have no difficulty about that, my boy. I'll wire my solicitor tonight and he'll be here within two days," said the earl carelessly. "If you wish to consult your own solicitor you can cable him, of course."

Suddenly Horace seemed taken with a fit of embarrassment.

"The fact is, Lord Hawcastle," he said, "I've a notion that our solicitor—Ethel's man of business, that is—from Kokomo, Ind., where our governor lived—in fact, a sort of guardian of hers—may be here at any time. I've heard from friends that he is coming in this direction."

The word had caught Hawcastle's attention, and he leaned at it.

"A sort of guardian! What sort, eh?" he inquired, seemingly taken aback.

"I really can't say," replied Horace apologetically. "Never saw him that I know of. You see, we've been on this side so many years, and there's been no occasion for this fellow to look us up, but he's never opposed anything Ethel wrote for. He seems to be an easy going old chap."

"Hum!" said Hawcastle doubtfully. "Would he consent to your sister's marriage—or the matter of a settlement?"

Horace laughed cheerfully.

"I have no doubt of it. If he has any objection about my sister he'll be the first to welcome the alliance, won't he?"

"Then when he and my solicitor come they can have an evening together over a lot of musty papers, and the thing will be done. Again, my boy, I welcome you to our family. God bless you!"

He wrung Horace's hand again and turned away as if to hide his emotion, but really to wink at the countess.

"I'm overpowered, you know—really overpowered, you know," stammered Horace, fanning himself desperately with his hat.

"Come, Almeric," said the earl, and as the youthful heir to his house arose languidly he sidled close to the countess and whispered in her ear:

"Let him know it's a hundred and fifty thousand."

Then he and Almeric went up the steps into the hotel, leaving Horace and the countess gazing at each other delightedly.

She crossed over to him impulsively and, taking both his hands again, said:

"My friend, I am happy for you."

"Think of it!" said Horace joyously. "In a fortnight at the most dear old Ethel will be the Hon. Mrs. St. Aubyn, future Countess of Hawcastle!"

"Yes," replied the countess, withdrawing her hands and picking up her parasol, "and there is but the little arrangement of the settlement between your advocate and Lord Hawcastle's. But you Americans—you laugh at such things. You are big, so big, like your country!"

The Man From Home

A Novelization of the Play of the Same Name

By BOOTH TARKINGTON and HARRY LEON WILSON

Copyright, 1908, by American Press Association

Horace followed her across the terrace to the wall.

"Ah, believe me, dear countess," he said, "the great world—your world, countess—has thoroughly alienated me."

The countess turned her shapely head and looked at him admiringly and with a touch of irony at the surprise she was about to give him.

"Ah, you retain one quality. You are impulsive; you are free," and she laid her right hand upon his arm, and Horace thrilled at the intimate touch.

"Well," he laughed, "perhaps in those things I am American, but in others I fancy I should be thought something else, shouldn't I?"

She laughed openly at him now, but earnestly withal, and said:

"You are a debonair man of the world, and yet you are still American in that you are abominably rich. The settlement—such matter as that, over which a Frenchman, an Italian, might hesitate—you laugh. Such matter as £150,000—you set it aside, you laugh. You say, 'Oh, yes; take it!'"

For a moment she feared that Horace would fall over the low parapet, so white did his face become and then so flushed, but the boy was game all through. The generations of simple Indiana stock came to his rescue, and he steeled himself with an effort and replied quietly:

"A hundred and fifty thousand pounds! Why, that's seven hundred and fifty thou—I say, countess, she couldn't use the money to better advantage!"

There was real admiration in the Frenchwoman's glance this time, for she had lost none of the little byplay, and she admired the courage of the youngster. So she said:

"My friend, how wise you are!"

As she spoke she turned in time to see Ethel come down the steps of the hotel with a book beneath her arm and ran to her, clasping her in her arms and kissing her.

CHAPTER VII.

SNUBBED!

"LARGESSE, sweet Countess of Hawcastle!" the woman cried. "Largesse! And an revoir! Adieu! I leave you with your dear brother!"

She ran quickly up the steps with a flirt of her parasol, and Horace took his sister's hand with tears in his eyes.

"Dear old sis! Dear old pal!" he said, and she turned a radiant look upon him.

"Isn't it glorious, Hoddy?" she said with exalted tone. "Look!" and held up the book she carried. "It's Burke's 'Peerage.' And Froissart's 'Chronicles'—I've been reading it all over again. The St. Aubyns were at Crecy and Agincourt, and St. Aubyn will be my name."

"I had him, you know, I rather think, didn't I?"

"They want it to be your name soon, sis," he answered her.

For a moment she turned away and then looked at him straight in the eyes.

"You're fond of Almeric, aren't you, Hoddy? You admire him, don't you, dear?"

"Certainly. Why, think of all he represents, sis!"

"Ah, yes, Hoddy! Crusader's blood flows in his veins. It is the nobility that must be within him that I have plighted my troth to. I am ready to marry him when they wish!"

Horace sighed.

"Then keep him out of the way. That's simple enough," he said. "None of them, except the solicitor, need see him."

Almost in a burst like an eruption there came an uproar outside the gates beyond the hotel—wild laughter, riotous cheering and the notes of the jarnetella played by mandolins and guitar, then more shouts and cheers and cries of "Bravo, Americano!" and "Yanka Dooda!" Horace ran to the gates, but they were closed, and the uproar continued. Ethel stood by one of the tables, amusement written on her features, and turned to her brother as he came back shaking his head.

"What is that?" she asked tremulously. Lady Creech, all in a flutter, entered from the hotel. At a glance one would set her down for an aristocrat. There was no doubt of it. From the topmost tip of her white hair to the toe of her solid shoe she was an aristocrat.

"One of your fellow countrymen, my dear," she said to Ethel. "Your Americans are really too"—

"Not my Americans, Lady Creech!" said Ethel spiritedly.

"Not our, you know. One could hardly say that, now!" reiterated Horace.

Almeric entered, at once laughing and beating his boot with his crop. Almost exhausted with his mirth, he threw himself into a chair and burst out:

"Oh, I say, what's go! Motor car breaks down on the way here. One of the Johnnies, a German chap, discharges the chauffeur, and the other Johnny—one of your Yankee chaps, Ethel—hires two silly little donkeys, like rabbits, you know, to pull the machine. Then, as they can't make it, you know, he puts himself in the straps with them and proceeds, attended by the populace. Ha, ha!"

He laughed long and loudly.

"I went up to this Yankee chap, I mean to say—he was pulling and tugging along, you see—and I said, 'There you are, three of you in a row, aren't you?' meaning him and the two donkeys, you see, Ethel, and all he could answer was that he 'picked the best company in sight.' No meaning to it I had him, you know, I rather think, didn't I?"

At this moment Lord Hawcastle entered with a bundle of newspapers under his arm and proceeded to settle himself at one of the tables. Almeric approached him.

"English papers, governor? I'll take the pink un. I'm off." And he picked up the tinted sheet as he spoke. Ethel came up to him and touched him on the arm.

"Going for a stroll, Almeric? Would you like me to go with you, dear?"

He looked at her vacantly for an instant and then stammered:

"Well, I rather thought I'd have a quiet bit of reading, you know."

Ethel drew back quickly and said in a very small voice:

"Oh, I beg your pardon."

Then she sat down hurriedly by Lord Hawcastle.

CHAPTER VIII.

THE AMERICAN.

THE clatter without continued unabated, and Ethel and the countess walked back to the terrace rampart to stand looking out over the glorious bay.

Horace, still in the seventh heaven of delighted realisation, took the Daily Mail from the table on which the earl had thrown it and seated himself to read beside Lady Creech, who was already deep in the Church Register. The earl had buried himself in the Pall Mall Gazette and was apparently oblivious to such minor details as an Italian peasant row.

But to Horace in his highly strung condition of nerves the uproar was aggravating, and he called to Mariano, who was busily setting the table again:

"Mariano, how long is this noise to continue?"

The maitre d'hotel shrugged his expressive shoulders and replied:

"How can I know, m'sieu? We can do nothing."

Michele, who was assisting his chief, smiled covertly at the young man.

"The populace they will not be depart so long as there shall be the chance once again to observe the North American who pulled the automobile with the donkeys!"

"Merci!" cried Mariano, with vigor. "He have confuse me. He have confuse everybody. He will not be content with the dejeuner until he have the ham and the egg, and he will have the egg cooked upon but one of two sides, and how in the name of the heaven can we tell which of these two sided?"

Mariano was about to continue his grumbling complaint when from the doorway of the hotel there came an interruption. The courier who had spoken with him earlier in the morning stood there and voiced but one word.

"Garcon!" he said softly. But it was like the command of a cavalry officer in its effect, for instantly the entire d'hotel and his aid stood at attention like trained veterans. The earl evidently was not deeply interested to catch the sudden silence, for he looked up from his paper and muttered:

"Upon my soul! Who's this?"

Mariano did not turn his head nor relax his attitude of stiff attention, but answered obsequiously:

"It is the Herr von Grollerhagen, a German gentleman, milord."

Hawcastle turned with an amused smile to Horace.

"The man who owns the automobile. Probably made a fortune in sausage."

From within the hotel there came the tones of a happy though subdued voice, declaiming quietly:

"Rain, rain, falling by peach nichlis"

As we go on from this commencement is made and arranged. It will take about all your share of the estate, sis, but it's worth it—a hundred and fifty thousand pounds."

Ethel lifted the book to the level of her eyes.

"What better use could be made of a fortune, Hoddy, than to maintain the state and high condition of his ancient house?"

He looked at her affectionately and took her hand.

"It does seem impossible that we were born in Indiana, doesn't it, sister?" And the tones of his voice were those of incredulity.

She smiled at him fondly.

"But isn't it good that the later 'made his pile,' as the Americans say, and let us come over here while we were young to find the nobler things, Hoddy—the nobler things?"

"The nobler things—the nobler things! Why, sis, when old Hawcastle dies I'll be saying orfband, you know, 'My sister, the Countess of Hawcastle'"—

For a moment Ethel remained thoughtful and then turned to her brother.

"You don't imagine that father's friend, this old Mr. Pike, will be—will be queer, do you?"

"Well, the governor himself was rather raw, you know. This is probably a harmless old chap, easy to handle."

"I wish I knew. I shouldn't like Almeric's family to think we had queer connections of any sort, and he might turn out to be quite shockingly American. I—I couldn't bear that, Hoddy!"

There was a note of genuine pathos in her voice, and her brother responded instantly:

And instantly there came down the steps the German gentleman aforesaid. He was tall and of a commanding presence. He wore a grayish beard, and an automobile cap that half concealed the eyes that burned with the authority of generations beneath. Withal it was a kindly face, and, though there was a stern command in the figure, there was genial humor and even tenderness too. By no authority could he have been considered well dressed. His clothes seemed rather to have been thrown on negligently.

The little party at the table regarded him with hostility, and Lady Creech turned up her aristocratic nose.

"What a dreadful person!" she said and turned again to her paper.

The German walked sedately across the terrace to the table where the two servitors still stood at attention and lifted his hand in a curt half military salute in acknowledgment of their bow.

"See to my American friend," he said.

"What a terrible person!" remarked Lady Creech again, and Hawcastle bent toward her.

"Undoubtedly, but he speaks English. So be careful."

"So many objectionable people do," commented the crusty dame.

Herr von Grollerhagen turned smilingly to Mariano.

"My American friend desires his national dish."

Mariano bowed.

"Yes, Herr von Grollerhagen," replied Mariano deferentially. "He will have the eggs on but one of two sides and the ham fried, so he go to cook it himself."

Von Grollerhagen smiled, when from without the gates came a shout of amusement and wild laughter. Mariano instantly bowed and ran toward the hotel.

Sore Chest Croup

You often have pains in the muscles, in the side, the back, the neck, or chest. If the inflammation is severe the pain will be intense.

Nothing so quickly cures local inflammation, so thoroughly drives out pain, as "Nerviline," which is without an equal for penetrating, soothing, pain-relieving power.

Nerviline simply can't fail to cure, because it's a perfect antidote for all the pains and aches that invade the family.

Nerviline

"For ten years we have used Polson's Nerviline in our home," writes Mrs. M. E. Graves of Freeport. "For hard, croupy colds there is nothing better. In case of a chill, sudden cold, or neuralgia, Nerviline cures before the trouble gets serious. I have used Nerviline for chronic rheumatism and lame back and find it a wonderful remedy."

All dealers sell Nerviline in large 25c bottles. Get it to-day.

They report Bug Death has made an excellent record in each of the past two years. The potatoes on which the Bug Death was applied were more vigorous in growth and greener in appearance throughout each of the seasons than those on which other applications were made.

DO YOU WANT BETTER CROPS?

Of course you do. Well, the way is clear. Use Bug Death and you'll not only have a heavier crop, but larger potatoes of better quality.

Write or call and we'll tell you some more good things of this celebrated Bug Killer and Fertilizer, both in one.

Cut It Out Now

Take this Coupon with 5 cents to your Dealer and get a cake of Taylor's Borax Soap and a cake of Infants' Delight.

This is the Coupon—It is Worth 10 cents to You

Only One Cake Free to a Family

Taylor's Infants' Delight

Toilet soap should do just two things—remove the dirt and nourish the skin. Let us then show you how we have blended both qualities into a single cake.

For in 43 years we have learned the secret of perfect soap—one that leaves the skin as soft and pink as an infant's. So we call it Infants' Delight.

The olive oil in this soap comes from the gardens of France. There we pay the highest prices—often double what we might pay. But our oil is pure enough to use on your table.

Then we bring cocoanut oil over 12,000 miles from the isle of Ceylon. This oil has for centuries kept the Egyptian's skin soft and beautiful in spite of the tropical sun.

Please use a single cake—then let the results decide for the future.

See for yourself how it lathers into a rich, creamy foam. Note how it wears as thin as a wafer—how it leaves the skin as soft as velvet and as smooth as silk.

Besides this it is the loveliest soap for the baby's skin. And if it is best for the sensitive, pink skin of an infant, it surely is best for your own.

You will like the dainty perfume, too. We pay over $100 a pound for pure Otto of Roses, but it requires 3,000 pounds of rose leaves to make a single ounce. The fragrance is simply exquisite, for it is only the scent of roses—the breath of a million flowers.

Taylor's Borax Soap

Here again is a soap different in every way from the ordinary—it contains borax. Where other soaps merely cleanse, this goes further—it whitens and purifies. The effect of the borax is almost magical—it is the most wonderful soap ever made for the laundry.

In this soap we use only the finest grade of cocoanut oil, for it lathers with greatest abundance. Then we mix in the borax which softens the water and also softens the hands.

Soft water is pure, but hard water contains mineral matters which prevent the soap from lathering. Borax makes the hardest water as soft as rain water, so you require only half the amount of soap.

It cleans the daintiest of laces as well as the heaviest of woolens—and it prevents shrinkage of both. Every odor is removed and the cloth is pure and sweet. This soap also prevents starch from sticking, and adds greatly to the stiffness.

It sterilizes and destroys every germ, so as to avoid any possibility of contagion. Send a bar to the laundry and protect the health of your family.

This powerful cleanser is utterly harmless to the hands—it leaves them whiter and softer than before.

It requires twenty-one days to make a single cake. The labor of more than 200 persons is needed. Yet this wonderful soap costs no more than the ordinary. Simply because we make every year millions of cakes—we can buy at the lowest prices and give you the highest quality.

Don't Wait—
Cut Out the Coupon This Minute

We ask you to do us a favor—we want you to learn for your own interests the difference between these soaps and the ordinary. You have been using some soaps in the past and you naturally consider them good.

But now we ask that you compare them with these—try them both and note how vastly they differ. We gladly invite the comparison because we have made it ourselves and we know just what must be the result.

But it would be unfair to ask you to bear the expense of the test so we have made you this generous offer. We only ask that you buy one soap and we'll buy the other. Cut out the coupon on this page and take it to your dealer this week. Pay him only 5 cents and you will then receive both cakes worth 15 cents.

NO FRESH EGGS IN N. Y.
TOOK CHICKS IN VALISE

New York, Aug. 13.—When Mrs. Eliza Walker and her sister, from Greensburg, Ind., insisted on a porter carrying a large valise to their suite at the fashionable Hoffman House, they started trouble.

The porter wondered what was in the grip. He stuck his fingers in, and a big rooster nipped it. He delivered it and then told the manager.

When the house detective and a brigade of bell boys entered the Walker suite they found the rooster and four yellow-legged hens scratching the velvet carpet hunting for worms.

Mrs. Walker wept when told the chickens had to go.

"I heard there were no fresh eggs in New York," she sobbed, "and so I just brought the er—source of supply along."

How Bleriot's Historic Flight Across The English Channel Impressed Actual Observer

Parisian Journalist, Who Witnessed the Flight From the Deck of the Torpedo Boat, Gives the Views of Those on Board—A Thrilling Spectacle.

(From Le Matin of July 26.)

Oh, that crossing! I can say without exaggeration that I have lived an hour never to be forgotten. Over and over again the beauty of it, the anguish, the enthusiasm, the triumph are reflected in the mind and in the heart of one who has had the rare good fortune to have seen, to have applauded, to have shouted in triumph and to have wept with joy.

I lived these moments on the torpedo boat L'Escopette, which was ordered to convoy Bleriot on his aerial voyage. Prompt, resolute as ever, Bleriot had decided at 3 o'clock in the morning to make the trip if his preliminary test went well. Alfred Le Blanc carried him off quickly to Les Baraques in an automobile, while we hurried on board the boat, where we found, with Mme. Bleriot, Andre Fournier, Gigot and three comrades, including Frants Beichel, of the Figaro, and G. de Lafrete, of the Echo de Paris.

Without being in any way remarkable the weather was nevertheless favorable. The sea was slightly agitated by a land breeze. In the east the red colouring announced the coming of sunrise. We cruised in sight of Les Baraques near the semaphore that was to give the signal we had agreed upon if Bleriot was ready to start. From 4 o'clock to 4.25 we circled about. Suddenly the vague outline of a bird showed in the direction of Les Baraques. Bleriot was having his dress rehearsal. Then a minute later the sailor on the mast made out the signal.

Bleriot Was Ready.

Bleriot was ready; he was going to start. We still cruised, for Captain Piogier thought that it was not yet time to put to sea.

Meanwhile the brilliant disk of the sun was above the horizon. It threw a curious light upon the scene. It had been announced for 4.35 o'clock, and here it was ten minutes earlier. Nothing could be more accommodating.

All of a sudden, at a moment when no one was yet expecting it, I discovered the monoplane above the dunes.

"There it is, there it is!" I yelled like a mad man.

Every one rushed to the starboard rail and turned their glasses in this direction. Only Mme. Bleriot, standing in a corner, did not desire to see for herself. This plucky woman who all through the morning showed memorable courage in spite of our anxieties, who could smile, even laugh, when she really wanted to cry broke down a little. But instantly checking the emotion of the first moment, she looked, watched, admired, like the rest of us.

It was really splendid, and enthusiasm kept us silent. The bird flew straight toward the sea, it skimmed the cliffs of Sangatte. It flew with speed that was disconcerting, with a wonderful steadiness which gave an impression of complete security.

We were making nineteen knots.

"Twenty-one knots!" shouted the captain.

The Escopette sped over the waves. We were now on a line parallel to Bleriot's course. But we did not seem to be gaining.

"Twenty-two, twenty-four, twenty-five knots!" thundered the captain successively.

The boat responded beautifully. It raced through the foaming waves. Ours was a keen race, but our handicap was too heavy.

Obeyed Pilot's Will.

Gracefully, obediently, responding instantly to the will of its pilot, Bleriot's aeroplane flew ahead without giving its convoyers the slightest occasion for apprehension. We hoped that it might make zigzags to keep its elevation. But Bleriot was already far away. About half an hour at sea he was nothing but a black point on the horizon; then he disappeared in the mist.

Five o'clock had come and we were still only half way across the strait. The minutes seemed like hours. We searched the horizon in the hope of discovering something. Yes, there was something moving from west to east, something which looked marvellously like the monoplane. Our hearts stood still with fear. Laugh if you will; that something, that line which moved was a flight of ducks. The anguish had been intense.

There was the English coast at last, and we sought on all sides some sign that might put us on the track. But there was no such sign. Anxiety and anguish again possessed us. If this man had suddenly fallen into the sea, had been seized by a current and no one had seen him! What a catastrophe, what a tragedy! Although our hearts misgave us we put a good face on it. Dover harbour drew near. Here perhaps we should learn something. Perhaps there would be a crowd upon the quays to signal to us that the great deed had been done. Some little white clouds showed themselves against the opaque background.

"Some bombs have been fired!" we shouted.

We believed nothing. We knew nothing, we waited in a state so nervous that nothing—not even the thought that Bleriot had succeeded—could reassure us.

Inside Dover Harbour.

At last we were inside Dover Harbour. It seemed like a city of the dead. Not a boat came toward us. From the quays not a single cry of rejoicing came to us. It was a moment of agony never to be forgotten. Bleriot had not arrived! Otherwise there would have been some one to expect us, to reassure the wife who, although a little pale, still bore up bravely.

The captain ordered his sailors to go and get the news. They hastened away toward the Admiralty buildings, then after a minute one of them waved his handkerchief as a sign of success.

The triumph was certain. No one could longer doubt it. Then with the same rapture we and the sailors broke out in shouts of joy, in hurrahs that reached the old wall of Dover Castle.

The success was complete. "Vive Bleriot!" "Hurrah for Bleriot!" In the captain's cabin we reassembled again, weeping like children, and laughing to excuse ourselves for that moment of weakness which brought us back to earth.

But on the quay by the railroad station there is some one moving, someone making signs. It is Bleriot, who comes to find out—every one in his turn—where his wife can be.

With the help of two fishing boats we go alongside the quay and greet him. Then we all have the pleasure of embracing this remarkable man and of giving him the kiss of friendship, which men exchange only because it is genuine, real, sincere. Then we weep again like great big children. The English who assist at this little family scene stand in silent amazement.

All Doubts Vanish.

This time there is no doubt about the triumph. We all go to the Warden Hotel, and there Bleriot is assailed by a crowd of people who want to see him, to get his signature as a souvenir, who are anxious to know the impressions.

Ah, even I was great in my turn. Knowing a little English I became the interpreter, and happy, as a Frenchman, to glorify Bleriot, I did not hesitate to tell of his life, his studies at L'Ecole Centrale, his acetylene lights, his beginning in aviation, his trials, his disappointments and his triumphs. While we were thus holding a little session there was a call on the telephone from Calais.

"You have been decorated! You have been decorated!" some one called to Bleriot.

The new Chevalier was extremely happy. The Minister had had a brilliant idea. Madame Bleriot, always forehanded, drew out of her little bag a scarlet riband which she affectionately fixed in her husband's buttonhole. The messages of congratulation followed. That of Latham was first.

"Cordial congratulations. Hope to follow you soon," said he.

The flight of Bleriot had entirely upset the English at Dover. The custom house official rushed to the spot where the bird was resting.

"Fortunately," said he, "machines like this do not pass every day. What should I do then? What should I become?"

On the rudder of the aeroplane some one wrote, "Bleriot est un brave homme!" probably meaning to say that the aviator was "un homme brave."

On board the boat which was taking us back toward the French coast I told the captain of the wonderful exploit. The attentive captain put me off without a word.

"Good sport!" he ended by saying to me at the close.

Good sport, perhaps, but when he took his place on the bridge it seemed to me that the captain studied the sky sadly. He must have thought, this old sailor, that the ocean was invulnerable no longer, and that the sport of the air marked the beginning of a new period, of a grand epic, in which the place of honour had been claimed by France.

DOCTORS INDORSE HERPICIDE

Because Its Formula is Submitted to Them.

Alexander McMillan, M.D., a prominent physician of Lansing, Michigan, writes: "On three cases I have tested Herpicide for dandruff and the result has been all that could be desired."

Herpicide is made upon an entirely new principle, that is, that dandruff and falling hair are caused from a microbe that infests the hair bulb, and, by destroying the microbe one's hair is bound to grow luxuriantly. Herpicide is the only hair remedy, that claims to, and really does, destroy the dandruff germs.

GENERALLY SPEAKING

The usual quota of drowning accidents at the various summer resorts is beginning to be recorded in the papers, and reminds us again of the recklessness and folly inherent in human nature. The gay youth who rocks the boat just for the pleasure of seeing the ladies make faces; the girl who jauntily steps into a canoe with the same freedom of action that she would exhibit in boarding an Atlantic liner; the crass idiot who lies in wait under the sheltering canopy of some willow tree, ready to dart forth and give the passengers a toss on the billows of a retreating launch,—these are only a few specimens of those who occasionally pay toll to the waters for the familiarity with which they treat them.

• • •

The world at large has a certain measure of contempt for such people, but, queerly inconsistent as it is, does not impose any penalty upon them for their criminal actions. But the man who unthinkingly throws a banana skin on the street, and the fascinating "gent." who expectorates at the street corner—Well, these men are sometimes stiffly dealt with—and rightly so. Yet, are they, in their respective ways, as dangerous to the body politic as the hare-brained beings first mentioned?

• • •

It is not the fools only, unfortunately, who lose their lives by drowning. A large percentage of such casualties results from misadventure pure and simple. Most of our summer resorts, beautifully picturesque as they are, are scantily supplied with ideal beaches for bathing. Their precipitous shore lines appeal only to the fancy of the strong and rugged swimmer who likes to dive off into deep water without the unexciting preliminary of wading half a mile or so till he finds it deep enough to kick in. But these people are only human after all, and the strongest and most expert of them is as liable to go down with an attack of cramp as the veriest tyro at the art.

• • •

Seeing that this fact is generally recognized it has always seemed strange to us that Cottagers' Associations at the various resorts, have not instituted some scheme whereby provision could be made for giving instruction in the principles of life-saving. Instructors could easily be obtained and the cost of such instruction could as easily be met by a small levy on the cottagers themselves.

• • •

If such a scheme were advanced we are convinced that much good would result. Not only would campers themselves gladly avail themselves of the opportunity to learn how to help others in need, but additional importance could be lent to it by making a life-saving exhibition a special feature at the annual regattas. One or two items which at present cumber the usual programme of sports could easily be eliminated to give way to an exhibition which would have a useful as well as interesting side to recommend it to the public.

• • •

We are always making a ruction about something, but really, this time there seems more than sufficient reason for making a mild hullabaloo. Who is responsible for the state of the vacant lot in front of the Curling Rink? Its condition at the present time reminds one of a deserted farm in Chandos or Haliburton. It is not the most picturesque foreground for the imposing edifice that rises in the rear, neither is it the best of advertisements of Peterborough's ideas of neatness.

In all this world there is nothing so easy to find as something to kick at. Go where one will, on land or on water, in the privacy of one's home, on the busy street, or in the quietude of the wilderness, the "grouchily" inclined being can always find something on which to vent his spleen. Some people, in fact, have so many pet grievances and find so many objects at which to cavil, that they could not if they were paid for it, single out any one thing for special reprehension. With many these are chimeras, figments of the brain, called into being by a disordered stomach. Certainly the man knew what he was talking about, who, to the moodily propounded question "Is life worth living?" returned the answer, "It depends on the liver." But there are certain grievances, public and private, which cannot, by any stretch of the imagination, be placed to the charge of liver trouble. They are real and call aloud for adjustment. One of these is the present condition of the city water. Those who possess wells may be thankful that they can get decent water to drink.

It is to be presumed that nobody is to blame for the present condition of affairs at this season of the year, the number of sawlogs coming down the river, and the amount of traffic to and from the north, must roll up the bed of the river to a very appreciable extent, but—we only suggest it—there might be a rent in the covering at the intake pipe. In what other way is the amount of sediment, at present noticeable in our tap water, to be accounted for?

Journals are fond, nowadays, of quoting epigrams from the newest books. We have just been reading a few and cannot say that we think highly of the judgment of the editor or of the ability of the authors. Here are a few:

"What one says is not of the least significance. It's what one means." We should like to know in how many courts of law and in what line of life this particular idea would hold good.

"It's a great thing to be a pretty woman. It really means that you can do anything you like." Judged from that standpoint, it is an excellent thing that there are comparatively few pretty women in this world.

"Faint purse never won fair lady." Who ever heard of a purse being "faint"?

"I think it's so much more respectable to be a bachelor, because then everybody knows you have no morals, and it's all right."

Perhaps the writer is a bachelor himself. If so, it's pretty hard on all other bachelors to be judged by his standard.

The foregoing are only a few specimens from the tommy-rot that is dished up as literature now-a-days.

OLD HORSES FOR STOCK FOOD

House of Lords Deals With Unusual Matter.

London, August 7.—The Earl of Mayo has called the attention of the House of Lords to the exportation of decrepit horses to the continent, remarking upon the increased exportation of worn-out and suffering horses to Belgium and Holland for food purposes. The traffic in such horses, he said, was carried on at Hull, Goole, Newcastle and Leith, and from those ports 7,036 of these horses were from January 4 to July 19 shipped to Antwerp.

The horses were so worn out, continued the Earl, that some had to be slaughtered at the port of disembarkation, while others were found dead on arrival.

Earl Carrington replied that a special veterinary surgeon would at once be appointed, to give his whole time to the enforcement of the provisions of the agricultural order dealing with the subject, and to the supervision of the work of the local authorities, and would commence his duties this week. There had been cases in which much too sanguine a view had been taken of the capacity of a horse to travel without cruelty during the intended passage and on landing, and his lordship was determined that those cases should not recur.

The special inspector would be instructed to secure the adoption of a much higher standard of capacity to travel than had hitherto been the case. The board would also press upon the local authorities the necessity of employing an increased number of veterinary inspectors for the purpose of enabling them to enforce the orders, and the board's inspectors would make more frequent voyages to see the condition of the horses on their arrival at their destination.

As the board were in earnest in the matter, he would be prepared to ask for further powers if these now taken did not secure the desired result.

MIDWAY WILL BE A FEATURE.

That the Peterborough Exhibition is attracting wide attention year by year is shown by the fact that a local gentleman has received letters from Concession Managers as far away as Dakota, asking for the dates of the local exhibition and expressing their intention of being present here this year. This may be taken as an indication of the fact that the Midway Attractions this year will be the best in the history of the event, as the parties writing for information are very prominent in the amusement line and select only the best fairs for their attractions. They travel over a large field of territory and make long jumps for the purpose of reaching good towns. Their coming to Peterborough should be a very strong attraction for the Peterborough Industrial.

REGIMENT'S TRIP TO BROCKVILLE

The 57th Regiment will have its annual outing this year to Brockville. This has been practically decided upon and the announcement will be welcome news to the Rangers who have always heartily enjoyed the trip taken by the Regiment. Captains McWilliams and McLean left on Monday night for Brockville for the purpose of making arrangements for the trip if possible and word has been received from them that they have been successful in their mission. The Regiment will leave Peterborough for Brockville on the Saturday before Labour Day and return on the evening of the holiday, thus having two full days in the eastern city. The Rangers will resume their drill in preparation for trip on Monday, August 23rd.

SKELETONS FOUND IN PARK.

Yesterday the workmen engaged in grading the parade ground at the Armouries turned up with the plow two skeletons, the remains of bodies placed there when the place was the site of a cemetery. The bones, which were in a fine state of preservation were apparently those of a man and a woman, or a young person. The man must have been of large stature. The femur, or thigh bone, measures eighteen inches in length. Some clue to his identity may be got from the fact that the right thigh bone is curved as if from an improperly set fracture, so as to make it about three-quarters of an inch shorter than the other, which must have caused a decided lameness. The teeth in both cases were well preserved. The bones were carefully boxed by Mr. George Hardwicke, caretaker of the Armouries, and will be given fitting interment.

BETTER THAN EVER

Peterborough Industrial Exhibition This Year Promises to Be a Record Breaker—Enthusiastic Meeting of the Directors Was Held Last Night.

MANY SPECIAL FEATURES

The directors of the Peterborough Exhibition held an enthusiastic meeting last night at the home of President B. H. Leary, when arrangements were made for several special features for this year's exhibition, which promises to be the biggest success yet recorded. It was decided to have night attractions before the grandstand and to make preparations for other new features that should prove good drawing cards. The directors are decidedly in earnest in their efforts and if the weather man is kind the exhibition of 1909 will be a record breaker in every way.

The attendance promises to be large as especial excursions will be run from several outside points, arrangements for which are being made.

Judges for the Fair were appointed, but their names will not be published until they have been communicated with and their acceptances received.

The following communication was received from the secretary of the Peterborough Turf Club:

Mr. F. J. A. Hall,
Secretary P. A. S.

Dear Sir,—I am instructed by the Peterborough Turf Club to notify you that at our meeting last night we decided to give you the grounds for your fair for $100, payable within ten days of this notification.

W. JONES,
Secretary P. T. C.

The directors of the Agricultural Society discussed this communication at some length, and there was general indignation. Some wanted to erect a fence across the grounds and shut the Turf Club off, and make them put up the other half of the fence. Others wanted to assume the liability of the Turf Club, and allow the Club to use the track.

The general opinion was that the Turf Club should co-operate with the Agricultural Society as before. It was felt that the Turf Club's proposition was a hold up. Two motions were made. One that the old arrangements be carried out. The other was that if the Turf Club will not meet the society that the agricultural grounds be fenced off, and the society go on and use the smaller track for the races.

The first motion carried and was as follows:

Moved by Messrs. Turner and Baptie that the society take control of the whole grounds of the Driving Park and the Agricultural Society for the week of the fair as per the old agreement.—Carried.

Without any discussion Ald. Gillespie and Dr. King stated that there would be a night performance.

President Leary suggested a tug of war on horseback, also a red cross ride to be put on by the artillery and dragoons.

Another attraction will be the carters' race with three prizes. Also an expressman's race.

Hobbles are barred in both these races.

Moved by Mr. Turner and Mr. Garbutt that the races be advertised in the Canadian Sportsman.

A special tent will be furnished the directors and officers where they will have meals.

Mr. Anderson will have the dinner tent.

A troop of Arab acrobats and performing animals are some of the special attractions engaged for this year.

Mr. Wm. Yelland's dog race will be another attraction this year.

The directors then adjourned and some of them will get together today or Monday and draw up an official programme for thethree days and hand it to the Printing Committee.

MARS VISIBLE

Snow Caps on Planet's South Pole May be Seen About Midnight.

The attention of Peterborough Astronomers has been called by Rev. Dr. Marsh to the approaching favourable condition for viewing Mars. The planet rises now in time for a favourable observation about midnight and the snow caps on the south pole are easily visible through a three-inch telescope. In the course of six weeks the condition will be greatly improved. Saturn follows the planet Mars quite closely and can be seen favourably between 11 and 12 o'clock at night.

TROOPS AT FORT WILLIAM ARE ORDERED TO DISARM THE STRIKERS

The above picture is an excellent cut of Admiral Sir Charles Beresford, who is crossing the ocean for the purpose of opening the Canadian National Exhibition. Lord Charles is a warm-hearted Irishman, who has a national reputation that makes him an interesting figure to all British subjects. His presence at the Canadian National should prove an interesting feature.

Carried Out Job With Fixed Bayonets and Loaded Rifles—The Mob is Still Threatening.

YIELDED TO FORCE

Fort William, Aug. 13.—The presence of the military around the scene of yesterday's rioting by foreign stevedores, and the evidence of a determination on the part of the officers to sternly enforce the law at the point of the bayonet and loaded rifle, had a restraining effect on the turbulent strikers to-day, and they seemed to submit to the inevitable in moody silence. Colonel Steele, who is in command, is a most capable man for the arduous position, and can be depended upon to take vigorous steps to maintain law and order. Early this morning he prepared to disarm the strikers, and thus take precautions against further bloodshed and possibly murder. When the regulars arrived this morning the 96th regiment of volunteers, under Major Wayland, had affairs well in hand. One hundred and fifty of them were drawn up near McIntyre and McTavish streets, holding twice as many strikers at bay, when the seventy regulars arrived from Winnipeg under Major MacDonnell. Colonel Steele had his headquarters in the Avenue Hotel, and from there sent out an order to quickly disarm the mob around the docks.

Disarming the Strikers

The regulars marched down the street and then deployed into skirmishing lines, surrounding the strikers, after demonstrating that they meant business by loading with ball cartridges in front of the crowd. A few of the strikers ran into houses nearby to escape the searching party, but they wer driven out by a squad under Sergt.-Major Sparks. The strikers were effectively cowed by the military, and made no resistance and no attempt to make good their boasts of defiance and bloodshed of yesterday. Most of them, however, had suddenly concealed their weapons, for but few were found. Two old pistols were picked up in a ditch where they had been thrown.

One of the men driven out of the house had a formidable six-shooter concealed in his boot. He was arrested and lodged in gaol at once. The strikers, while quietly submitting to a search, remained almost at the point of the bayonets in sullen silence.

Strike-breakers Arrive.

A breastwork of boxcars was run along in front of the lines to-day, and under military escort the first strike-breakers arrived at noon. They were one hundred and fifty French-Canadians, a sturdy looking lot, well equipped for their muscular work around the docks or a fight, if necessary. Their train was run alongside the cars where the troops are quartered, and they poured forth to the docks with a smile, taking in the warlike situation at a glance, and seeming to be unafraid.

Looks Like Company's Victory.

It looks to-night as if the strike of the Canadian Pacific dock labourers was broken. The promise is made that the movement of freight to and from the boats will be general to-morrow, and with one hundred and fifty men quartered within the yards, and the two hundred members of the strikers to trespass the Company local militia and Mounted Rifles from Winnipeg still on duty, effectually blocking any attempt of the appears in a position to make good as a freight-handling concern to-morrow.

THE MEDICAL ASSOCIATION WILL DEAL WITH PLANS

Peterborough's Isolation Hospital Will Cost $12,000, With $2000 More for Fittings--The Property Committee Went Over the Details With Medical Health Officer Dr. MacPherson Yesterday---The Need of Hospital is Agreed Upon.

Plans for the Isolation Hospital were considered at a special meeting of the Property Committee held yesterday for that purpose. The members of the committee are convinced of the necessity of such a building, but before making a recommendation to the Council will have the Medical Association pass upon the plans. The Medical Health Officer Dr. MacPherson will report the opinions of the medical men to the Mayor, who will then call a meeting of the Council.

There were present Chairman Alderman Bradburn, Aldermen McIntyre and Duncan, and Mayor Rush.

Dr. MacPherson went over the plans with the members of the committee, pointing out the uses of the different rooms and the advantages derived from such a building. The hospital will be constructed on the most modern lines and an effort will be made to have it as attractive as possible for the patients. It will be erected on the north end of the Hilliard farm, just above the gravel pit where the isolation tents now are situated.

Alderman Bradburn pointed out that the building would cost $12,000, but that the Council could raise the debentures for the hospital without securing the consent of the people. The cost of maintenance was considerable.

The committee discussed the question and were unanimously of the opinion that the hospital was necessary. Without it every case of infectious disease means a great expense to the individual. The city clerk stated that the city had power to issue debentures up to $15,000 for the building. The structure will cost $12,000 and the fittings an additional $2,000.

On motion of Aldermen Duncan and Morgan the plans were referred to the Central Medical Association, it being understood that Dr. MacPherson will arrange for the meeting and then report to the Mayor when a meeting of the Council will be called.

Residence Portion Of Y. W. C. A. Has Been Greatly Improved

During the past few weeks the residence portion of the Y. W. C. A. building has been thoroughly renovated and a vast improvement has been made. All the rooms have been kalsomined in attractive shades of buff stone, gray, and light green, these tints being used all through the building and the rooms present a very clean and inviting appearance. An Examiner reporter visited the building yesterday afternoon and was courteously shown through by Mrs. Reid, the efficient superintendent, who apparently takes the greatest delight in the neatness of the rooms. This fall the Y. W. C. A. will have accommodation for thirty more girls, in addition to those already occupying the rooms, and no doubt the apartments will be much in demand, as they are rented at a moderate figure, are roomy, bright, well ventilated, and cheery, in addition to being comfortably furnished.

The Y. W. C. A. has a new cook and new appliances, and is prepared to supply good meals.

The work of kalsomining the different rooms and the halls was done by Messrs. Duncan and Doupe, who are deserving of credit for the way in which they have carried out their contract.

NEW ENGLISH-SPEAKING WORLD NATION FORMING IN AFRICA

THE NEW SOUTH AFRICA SHOWN IN HEAVY DOTTED LINES, AND TWO MEN WHO HAVE WORKED TO CREATE IT, DR. JAMESON ON THE RIGHT, AND GEN. BOTHA ON THE LEFT.

In 1902, the close of a bitter bloody war, Great Britain had the two sturdy Dutch republics, Orange Free State and the Transvaal, down and helpless. There followed much discussion in parliament as to how they should be ruled in the future.

A sportsmanlike and generous policy prevailed. The two republics were accepted as colonies and allowed to govern themselves.

And now Great Britain receives her reward.

For out of far South Africa is being formed a great new British nation—a nation nearly as populous as all Canada, a nation of English and Dutch working together. It's the new jewel of the British crown.

English Cape Colony and Natal and Dutch Transvaal and Orange Free State have joined to form one country. They have agreed on a constitution and laid it before the imperial parliament.

As soon as parliament can dispose of the budget and its tariff arguments, the constitution will doubtless be ratified and the new nation will begin its formal existence.

And the significant big thing about the constitution—apart from the fact that the colonies have agreed voluntarily on the union—is the power that the colonists place in the English government.

England may appoint the governor general of the new colony, which is to be called South Africa. The governor general will get $50,000 a year.

This governor general appoints administrators who shall be the executive officers for each of the four colonies.

The governor general names eight of the 40 senators, who serve 10 years. The provincial administrators name the same percentage of the provincial assemblies.

No bill or resolution can be passed by either the colonial or the provincial assemblies without being recommended FIRST by the governor general or the administrators.

This vesting of power in the English government by the colonies is Britain's return from her investment of confidence and generosity to the conquered republics in 1902.

Another significant thing appears in the South African constitution—the disposition of the negro problem.

That South Africa has a negro problem is shown in the percentage of black population among the four colonies. In some places they outnumber the whites ten to one.

The problem there was much more serious than in the United States. Also from the fact that the blacks, except in parts of Cape Colony, are savage and densely ignorant, unworthy to be intrusted with self government. They were Kaffirs and Zulus.

Here's the way the new constitution solves the problem:

No restrictions as regards colour were placed in the constitution. But certain qualifications as to property holding and education exclude all blacks except the better class in Cape Colony.

Also four senators and representatives to be appointed in the general assembly who will be specially the representatives of the blacks. They shall be men who are closely in touch with the needs and interests of the black people in the new colony. They shall recommend measures for them to the assemblies.

Another peculiar problem had to be met by the framers of the constitution—a capital. All the chief cities of colonies wanted it, of course. So it was divided. The seat fo executive government was placed at Pretoria, the old capital of the Transvaal, the seat of legislative government at Cape Town, and the seat of the judiciary at Bloemfontein, capital of the old Orange Free State.

This arrangement—new in government—allayed many local jealousies.

In coming to the agreement about forming the new colony, there was a long debate. Part of the people wanted a loose federation. The rest wanted a real union with a centralized government. The advocates of the latter plan won.

In reaching the agreement the men who had fought each other bitterly with guns and bayonets 10 years ago, worked hand-in-hand for the common good. The impetuous Dr. Jameson, whose spectacular raid set the fires of the Boer war, and latterly president or premier of Cape Colony, worked with General Botha, who fought the British so bitterly in the war.

"It's for the bigger South Africa," they say; "the South Africa of which Cecil Rhodes dreamed."

For Cecil Rhodes is now regarded as a prophet.

THE NEW MILL

Surprisingly Rapid Work on New Structure at Burnham's Point

The Peterborough Lumber Co. are losing no time in rebuilding their mill at Burnham's Point, and already the timbers are up, the skeleton is completed and work of putting on the roof has been begun. Utmost despatch has been manifested and the men have done their best to hurry the work, the same time using all necessary care. The wood work is expected to be completed in a short time, but the installation of the machinery will demand considerable time.

FELL OFF THE DAM AND WAS DROWNED TO-DAY

Special to The Examiner.

Hastings, Aug. 14.—John Murray, a twelve-year-old Hastings boy, was drowned in the Trent River here this morning while fishing from the dam. The little fellow was standing at the edge of the dam and in some manner lost his balance and fell into the river. Russell Warner, a farmer, was driving across the bridge at the time and saw the accident, giving the alarm at once. He was unable to definitely locate the spot where the boy had fallen in. Some delay ensued and it was twenty-five minutes after when the body was recovered. The doctors worked over the body for a long time, but could not resuscitate him.

CURE FOR WHOOPING COUGH
Mrs. William Ball, Beaverbridge, Ont., writes: "My three boys had whooping cough and we could get nothing to help them until we used Dr. Chase's Syrup of Linseed and Turpentine. It arrested the cough at once and they kept on improving until they were cured at the cost of one dollar. This was not a large bill for so dangerous and distressing an ailment."

BEAUTIFY THE CITY.

Peterborough has become a popular destination for excursion parties from outside places and from every point of the compass. No doubt these are attracted by the fame of the city for natural attractiveness of situation and for the objects of interest it contains—among other thing the Hydraulic Lift Lock and our beautiful cool, and spacious parks. These excursion parties are made welcome because they are guests who pay us the compliment of selecting Peterborough as a rendesvous; for the material profit arising from their expenditures in the city; for the contrasting note the pleasure seekers and idlers strike with the busy, every day life of the city and from the good report they will carry away with them to their widely separated homes.

To make these excursions a continuous feature of our summer season, we must develop the attractions and attractiveness of the city; we must combine our efforts to make the city as beautiful as it is by natural situation, natural advantages, and the enterprise of citizens—many of them passed away—so admirably adapted to be made.

For the most part we have broad, straight streets, broken by frequent parks and park-like spaces. We have long stretches of well-built residence streets with splendid sweeps of sward, embowered by stately tree growths. We have the most plentifully timbered streets in any city in Canada—the most generally distributed and uniform. The city is set in the bosom of encircling hills, crowned with green and stately tree clumps, except where the broad, rolling river cuts its watery way through the heart of the city.

We have these and other natural elements and concomitants of civic beauty, but their beauty is en masse, in the total, taken as a whole, in the birdseye view. But, when subjected to analysis, when details are sought out, their beauty is lacking, or falls far short of what is easily possible with a little care and a little pains; with a little practical co-operation on the part of citizens and the civic authorities.

As a rule, the citizens have done their share, so far as private grounds and premises are concerned; but there are glaring exceptions, where either the taste and public spirit or aesthetic enthusiasm is absent. There are some owners of homes who show an almost affectionate solicitude for the trimness, tidiness and beauty of their residential environments. Their loving care and common sense, combined with taste and real love for the beautiful work wonders.

On a certain street corner not far from the junction of Murray and Aylmer streets there are two beautiful homes. The houses themselves are not pretentious, but kept well painted and in good repair. But the grounds down to the very street walks are superlatively beautiful. The turf is kept well watered and closely shaven. The terrace scarps rise up to and merge with the smooth, sloping lawns, covered with the most perfect turf imaginable, with a close, compact, grassy pile like emerald velvet. The borders of the lawn are bright with flowers of pronounced hues, whose floral flame contrasts vividly, but pleasingly, with the environing verdure. These flowers are not expensive, but they are treated as pets and gratefully respond with their brilliant beauty and thrift to the loving care bestowed upon them. If such grounds, so cared for and so tended, were general throughout the city, Peterborough would become a paradise for beauty.

There are other similar places, but they are, unfortunately, few and far between, and, in many cases, marred by untidy surroundings. There are other owners of homes where the grounds are kept in excellent order, as to the grounds themselves; but, with strange perversity, the care does not extend beyond. There are places where lawns are kept in scrupulously neat order and where this is done at the expense of the beauty of the street abutting. The stray fallen leaves of summer and clippings of borders are raked off the lawns and dumped into the street, which presents an untidy, slovenly, and littered contrast to the trim, tidy lawns. This would not be so bad if the city did its duty in keeping the streets clean and free from rolling stones, lawn sweepings, dead litter and living litter of lusty weeds.

The city, however, deserves credit for recently giving some reasonable attention to keeping George street tidy and extending the work to the adjacent streets. The improvement, considering the somewhat crude character of the means adopted is wonderful, and if applied to the streets generally, would be revolutionary in its transforming effects.

For the past few days men have been engaged in trimming the boulevards and cleaning out the gutters, or, rather ditches, for they do not deserve the name of properly constructed gutters, on Hunter street. The first workman depended upon his eye to cut the edge of the boulevard, with the result that it is wider at some points, than others, to the destruction of the beauty that comes of uniformity and straight lines; where straight lines are indicated. Next day two men were at work, one using a line, and the other the go-as-you-please style. In one case the work was well done and the other was only so so.

Here is illustrated the lamentable lack of supervision and system. On the south side of Hunter street, just east of the railway track a good job was done in straightening the boulevard and shaving up by the roots the growth of weeds that had encroached several feet into the highway. But, in doing a good job in our way, a bad job was done. For twenty or thirty feet the gutter was scooped out and a large basin, created several inches below the level of the approach to the water works yards. The result will be that the water from this hole cannot escape; a large and deep pool of water will collect when the first rain comes, and a huge mudhole produced by a splendid lack of system and supervision.

The neglect of drainage of our streets is one of the crowning shortcomings of the city, and a fruitful source of street ugliness. The water is held to stagnate alongside the pavements, forming, in rainy times, deep mud, and affording a fertile and well-watered soil to develop the growth of grass and weeds. There are flagrant instances of this neglect on almost every square of every street in the city. The standing water soaks under the roadbed, which, in its softened condition, is rutted by wheels and destroyed. When the pavement was laid on the north side of Bolivar street there was no opening left at the foot of William street; so that in autumn and spring this street between the pavements, which are some distance above the street level, is a veritable lake, and workmen, going to the Electric Works, are forced, to escape the water, to trespass upon private property. A few days ago pavements were laid on each side of St. Joseph street, from Gilmour to Charlotte street. The walks are from twelve to fifteen inches above the street level, and at the lower end there is no provision for the escape of water. In rainy weather, or in the spring, the whole volume of water from the whole length of Gilmour street east and west, except what is held back by humps in the gutters, will pour into this watertight tank and form a pool twelve or fifteen inches deep.

Why are these things done? Not certainly to improve the beauty of the streets affected, nor to improve their condition or conduce to the convenience of and comfort of the ratepayers who pay taxes to be expended—as is done in the cases mentioned—to their detriment.

We shall not have the city beautiful till all the citizens cooperate in friendly rivalry to beautify their premises uniformly, and until the city authorities do their share in refraining from from doing what difigures and damages, instead of beautifies and improves, our streets. It costs very little more to do things right and get value for our money, than to do things wrong and waste our hard-earned taexs, and breed deformity instead of beauty.

A GROUNDLESS PLAINT

For sheer "midsummer madness" commend as to the following from the issue of the Review of August 13th:

THE ARMOURIES "LAWN."

The local representatives of the Dominion Government are doing a "noble" work in front of the Armouries—so to speak. It took all sorts of hounding to get the old drillshed down after the new one had been built and taken over. It took all sorts of slanging and complaining to get the debris of the late fire cleared away. But the crop of weeds four feet high that succeeded it took the most cutting of remarks to secure their removal. Yet what have we? The stubble of the weeds, a ghastly sight. There is no "pull" to it, probably, or the whole mess would have been cleared away, the lawn seeded down, and cut and trimmed, long, long ago, as it ought to have been. What is the good of all this silly bluff about enterprise, etc., etc., when a public park, one of the few pleasure places for the people in hot weather, is left in a disgraceful condition? It would not have been touched at all but for the overwhelming ridicule of the people and the independent press. There is no room for a banquet here except possibly on beef and "greens." Brickbats, not bouquets would be thrown in this case. If the parliamentary representatives will not pay attention to the will and convenience of a people that is being reproved, evidently for having given an adverse majority in the city at the election last October, then it would be advisable for the city itself to take over the task. This piece of neglect must not be allowed to continue. People enjoy the park. Children play in it. Motorists may not need it, but the people do. But under this summer's conditions it has been more like a sudden patch on the shores of Rocky Lake than a piece of park in front of a city's armouries, under the "care and protection" of a Dominion Government representative. The Examiner in replying to the plainly justified criticisms, has not had one word to say of reproval. Its "fairness" is to be fairly judged thereby. To endeavour to repel the "attack" on the sudden patch by referring to the Normal School lawn is like defending the Quebec bridge slaughter by pointing to Victoria Park. Wake up! Wake up! Let someone with an honest desire to serve the people and, not always and forever actuated by a desire to bluff and pose, take hold of these things, and give the city what it is entitled to, viz., a nice piece of well-kept lawn in front of the Armouries. Surely there are enough Dominion Government hangers-on in the vicinity. If not, then double the number, but give us the park.

Under the above heading our evening contemporary develops a half column of froth and slime. In the first place the statements made, directly and inferentially, are not in line with the facts. In regard to the assertion in reference to the delay in removing the old drill shed and clearing away the debris there is no truth in it. A word or two of fact, will serve to show the crookedness of the criticism and the petty spirit of peanut politics that inspires what a blunt speaker would call lies. On April 21st, the military took possession of the new armouries and, even before all their impediments has been removed from the old quarters the work of demolition had been begun. Then came the fire, and the debris was moved, after some little decay. The grounds were levelled roughly afterwards in order to be used for the reception of the visiting regiments on May 24th-26th. Then the 57th had to put in their annual drill and did not want the campus disturbed. The drill was not finished but was suspended, to be resumed later, on July first—the officers feeling, perhaps, in sympathy with the Review that it would be high treason to practise the goose step during the "long vacation."

The month of July was occupied in preparing plans for the terracing of the south grounds and the plot in front of the armouries. These plans were submitted to the Department and approved of. Tenders were called for and the contract was not awarded. The tenders made were in excess of what it was estimated the grading would cost, and new tenders were invited. All this involved delay. There must be reasonable notice advertised. The Dominion Government has a different policy from that of the Whitney Government which rushes the date of sales of timber limits, covering 2,000 square miles, without allowing time for adequate examination.

The contract was awarded to Mr. James Bogue, some ten days or two weeks ago. If the sapient editor of the Review has any blame for delay to place, he should cast it on Mr. Bogue's shoulders, which are broad enough to bear it. Mr. Bogue, however, is seriously to blame. He has committed the crime of lese majeste in not breaking his neck to begin his contract to met the childish demands of the childish arbiter elegantium of the Review.

The editorial hair splitter and maudlin scold is also wrong in asserting that the plaza in front of the armouries is a public park in the usual sense of that term. It is a part of the armouries and intended for the parade ground for the military; and the public use and enjoyment of it are incidental.

In regard to the inane references to banquets, motoring, etc., they are too petty and contemptible to need serious treatment. The banquet that the Review men needs most is a feast of reason and a "course" of common sense. The Review will have quite enough to do to defend its own party in respect of the disreputable state of the Normal School grounds to which a correspondent of the Examiner called attention. The city, it may be remarked in passing, has an everlasting grudge against the Whitney Governmene which has destroyed a beautiful park in order to place a public building out of sight. Some magnificent oaks were cut down, the stately fruit of centuries of growth—worth more than many piles of brick and stucco, which might easily have been so placed as to save these priceless trees. Weeds have taken their place and flourish like the foolish mendacities of the Review.

EDITORIAL NOTES.

The new Turkish Government is asserting its claim to be considered a modern civilized nation—it s clamouring for war.

By wireless despatch comes the truthless statement, that Dr. Sheard, of Toronto, has discovered an odourless coal oil calculated to make an objectionless application in order to produce dustless streets.

Fifteen dollars per foot frontage is considered a fair price for the purchase outright—in fee—of a lot in the outlying parts of this city. In Cobalt, a hamlet of yesterday, when a year or two ago land was not considered worth fifteen dollars a mile frontage, fifteen dollars per foot frontake is charged for the rental for one year for a business building lot. The mining companies in lieu of selling lots at a reasonable figure have the Shylockary to charge such absurd figures for mere rental. Many a shop on George street, Peterborough, land and buildings can be leased at as reasonable a rental.

THE CRETAN QUESTION

(London Advertiser.)

The Cretan trouble has been given a serious aspect by the report that Turkish troops are being mobilized, as if for war against Greece. Evidently the Young Turks, now in control of the affairs of the Ottoman Empire, feel that to retain their dominant position they must keep Turkey's hold on Crete. On the other hand, the Cretans believe that any form of Turkish domination will inevitably mean tyranny. Crete is nominally a Christian island, more than 87 per cent. of the population being of that faith, while the remainder are Musulmans. Dreading a return of Turkish rule, the Christian inhabitants, practically all of whom are Greeks, are pleading to have the island placed under the protecting cares of Greece. The sympathy of the Government at Athens is naturally with those people, and it would require but little encouragement from the European powers to induce Greece to assume control.

So long as the island remained under the supervision of Great Britain, France, Russia and Italy, with a high commissioner nominated by the King of Greece, but little was heard of the Cretan question. But the withdrawal last month of the joint military forces supplied by the protecting powers, in accordance with the convention, has revived Cretan hopes of union with Greece, the people going so far as to proclaim the island Greek, and caused Turkey to insist upon a recognition of its ancient suserainty and to demand of Greece a formal declaration of non-interference in Cretan affairs.

The probability seems to be that instead of a settlement, some sort of a temporary arrangement will be reacred. If Crete could admit Turkish suzerainty, and the Young Turks restrain themselves to such an extent as to allow the Cretans to govern themselves without interference, all might be well. But such restraint on either side is hardly to be expected. The question could be permanently settled by the powers if they agreed among themselves, but that seems out of the question. In all likelihood they will confine their efforts to preventing a crisis and continuing the makeshift arrangement in Crete without reference to the best and most just method of settlement. Regardless of the predominance of Greek sentiment in the island, of the propriety of giving the Christian people there a Government of their own preference, the present tendency in Europe is to hold the question open, so far as the final solution is concerned, without permitting it to reach an acute stage. Turkey is at present in no condition to rush into war, and will no doubt accept any temporary arrangement which does not deprive her of nominal suzerainty over the island. The outcome, it is quite likely, will be a new modus vivendi which will preserve the peace and once more postpone the answer to the Cretan question.

ANOTHER FLAG EPISODE

HOW A CANADIAN SHIP FARED IN AUSTRALIA.

Officials of Port Adelaide Failed to Recognize the Canadian Ensign and Ordered a British Flag In Its Place—After a Heated Dispute With Handspikes Explanation of Affair Was Arrived At.

All the talk lately about an alleged insult to the British flag in Toronto, started one of the city's well-known wholesale merchants reminiscing the other day; and he told an interesting story of a flag episode in Port Adelaide, South Australia, in which he himself was a participant. Things became very lively for a while, but, in the end, just as in the Toronto affair, it was found that the whole thing was due to a mistake. But let him tell it in his own words:

"In 1886 I was an able seaman on board the Canadian barque 'Lake Erie,' on a voyage from London, England, to Port Adelaide, South Australia, with general cargo. Our commander was Captain John Keay, our chief officer was George Fullam, and the second officer was Jack Bird, all Nova Scotia men, and two-thirds of the crew of 28 men were Nova Scotians or Canadians.

"We arrived in Port Adelaide one bright morning, and like all deep-water ships, we dressed ship when we moored alongside of our dock, and we were very proud to haul up the Canadian ensign at our peak. During the forenoon we were visited by a messenger from the deputy port warden's office, who came aboard and ordered our flag to be pulled down and the British ensign to be hoisted. Naturally, our mate being on his own ship, was not used to taking orders. A quick right and left—one between the eyes and the other in the neighborhood of the chin—put the messenger from the port warden's office out of business, and a few seconds later the bo'sun and the bo'sun's mate were busy piping 'All hands aft.' On our arrival aft we were told that the warden had ordered the Canadian flag to be hauled down, and the mate ordered that we line up alongside the ship, every man—in fact everybody on the ship, including the cook—to handle a handspike.

"On the return of the messenger to the port warden's office a couple more messengers were sent down, and from the dock, without coming aboard the ship, they commanded that we haul down the flag that was flying; and on the mate still refusing to do so a detachment of police was sent for. Naturally, when the police came aboard, a bunch of sailors that had been six months at sea were ready for a rough-house; and for a few minutes it looked like an Irish wake. It did not last long; but while it lasted it was hot. During the fracas the commander, Captain Keay, came aboard, and by instructions from the office, or rather the shipowners' agents the commander was compelled to haul down the flag and substitute the red ensign.

"Now this happened to a British ship in a British port, and naturally enquiries were made as to why such a thing should occur. In fact, our commander threatened to haul his ship out into the offing and lay at anchor and fly his flag in spite of the South Australian Government; but when it was explained, it shows how easily mistakes can occur through the misinterpretation of instructions by an over-zealous officer, only anxious to carry out his interpretations of the instructions.

"It appears that at that time South Australia was inaugurating a navy of her own, consisting of a number of small coasting gunboats. The South Australian flag is a blue ensign, the same as the British Royal Navy Reserve, but which had a round, white disc on the lower wing with an aboriginal or nigger in the corner. When the navy was inaugurated, they adopted the blue ensign with the nigger for their naval flag, the same as the British Royal Navy adopted the white ensign with the red cross of St. Andrew, and in adopting this flag for the South Australian navy they prohibited all Australian vessels from flying anything but the red ensign or British ensign; but in making out their regulations, instead of using the words 'South Australian vessels,' it read, "all colonial vessels," consequently the ship J was in, hailing from a British colony, came under the regulations as a colonial vessel and consequently under the rules of the port a colonial vessel was compelled to fly the British flag instead of the colonial. Needless to say, the matter was quickly remedied, and a very short time afterward a deputation again visited our ship from the port warden's office with instructions for us to hoist the Canadian flag, which was done with great ceremony, resulting in a general piping aft of the watch for grog, and a half-holiday."

WANT CANADIAN CATTLE.

Glasgow Butchers Would Like Them Put Out to Pasture.

Mr. A. M. Trotter, veterinary surgeon for the police department of the Moore Abattoir of Glasgow, Scotland, who has been on a short holiday trip to friends in Montreal, as well as in Toronto, Niagara Falls, and other western Ontario points, left for home recently. Mr. Trotter, who from his official position should be an authority on the subject, just before sailing, gave his views to The Montreal Standard on the cattle embargo by which the cattle imported from Canada were placed in the quarantine station and examined by a veterinary surgeon appointed by the British Government, and must be slaughtered within a certain time, say about seven days. Mr. Trotter said that the general feeling was that the Canadian cattle ought to be allowed in to the country and placed for a few months on the grass, as they were then in a much better condition for the market.

"I may say," added Mr. Trotter, "that during the nine years that I have been in charge of the meat inspection at Glasgow, I have had four hundred thousand cattle either from Canada or the United States pass through my hands, and they were slaughtered under the supervision of myself or my assistants, and in no instance was there the slightest suspicion of contagious pleuro-pneumonia."

"You think, then, that were the Canadian cattle put on the grass for a short time, they would be in much better condition for the market?" Mr. Trotter was asked.

"Most certainly," he replied. "For thirteen years before coming to Glasgow to take up my official position, I was on the east coast of Scotland, and the feeders there much preferred receiving the cattle from Canadian sources to any other, owing to their being easier adapted and made ready for the market."

NOVEL CURE FOR CATARRHAL ILLS.

Stops Bronchitis, Relieves Hoarseness, Cures Asthma, Prevents Throat Irritation.

The most effective way to treat and cure ailment of the breathing organs is by inhalation.

New as this method is in application, its practice is as old as man. Down from Adam has spread the reputation of the air of the pine woods, charged with balsam and healing for diseases of the throat, lungs and nasal passages.

Yet medical men neglected to employ the natural curative agency for diseases of the throat, lungs and nasal passages until the wonderful results which attended the Catarrhozone dry air method were brought to their notice and compelled attention.

The air of the pine woods, charged with little drops of balsam and ozone, has been enhanced by the Catarrhozone method through the addition of vegetable antiseptics more powerfully healing than the air of the pine woods.

This balsamic and healing vegetable compound is broken up by the air INTO MINUTE PARTICLES so small that the air is enabled to carry them to the remotest parts of the lungs, throat and nasal passages—in fact, it is the air of the pine woods concentrated a thousandfold, and you can have it at home.

FAILURE IS IMPOSSIBLE.

You can now understand why Catarrhozone cures with such certainty. It is medicated air carried to the seat of bronchitic congestion or situation here the micro-organisms which excite asthma or hay fever exert their baneful and dangerous influence.

The air distributes evenly over the entire diseased surfaces a covering of healing Catarrhozone. Immediately congestion is relieved, inflammation is subdued, the microbes which cause the trouble are destroyed, and cure follows as inevitably as the sun follows the night.

THOUSANDS CURED DAILY.

No other medicine has achieved such remarkable success, and to-day not less than twenty thousand physicians in America alone are prescribing Catarrhozone. And why? Simply because they realize that a healing remedy like Catarrhozone which air carries direct to the sore, inflamed membranes is bound to cure every form of Catarrh, all types of bronchitis and throat trouble, and will almost instantly stamp out coughs, colds, sneezing and bronchial deafness.

CATARRHOZONE CURES.

The reputation of Catarrhozone has grown by leaps and bounds. It reaches the diseased spot. It cures speedily. Almost the first use gives such relief in the worst cases that most people cannot understand its action.

Don't experiment longer—Catarrhozone means sure cure. Two months' treatment (guaranteed), price $1.00; smaller size, 50c, at all dealers, or the Catarrhozone Company, Kingston, Ont.

To Redeem Old Coins.

The punishment for mutilating and attempting to pass mutilated coins is not generally understood, and is so severe that there is a reluctance to prosecute and as a consequence many innocent persons are put to inconvenience and loss, being only able to dispose of them as old silver at a mere fraction of their nominal value.

In order to relieve such persons and at the same time to keep the currency clean, the Minister of Finance has now authorized the assistant receivers-general to take such coins at a discount of 25 per cent. off their face value, so that they may be recoined at the mint.

Medical Reciprocity.

The Ontario Medical Council has appointed a committee to discuss with committees from Manitoba and the Northwest Provinces the subject of medical reciprocity. Manitoba has already appointed a committee, but British Columbia is not yet prepared to deal with the question. It is something little better than a scandal that the qualified Canadian physician of one province should be a professional outlaw in another.—Hamilton Times.

First Child Prospered.

Mr. J. Costello, who was the first white child born at Calgary, in Alberta, Canada, was endowed by the local authorities twenty-five years ago with a 25-foot plot of land. Calgary is now a prosperous city, and he has sold the plot for $18,000.

Get The Best Out Of Life

By keeping vigor and vitality at the top notch—DR. CHASE'S NERVE FOOD will help you.

Health, strength, beauty, success.

These are the words which tell of a happy, joyous life.

The foundation of each and all is good red blood.

Red blood, on which health can build—red blood from which muscles and nerve cells are created—red blood which rounds out the form and gives the healthful glow to the complexion—red blood from which comes energy and vigour of mind and body.

With red blood there is no weakness or disease, no failure and fatigue. Red blood makes life worth living and only when it is present in the system can you get the best out of life.

Dr. Chase's Nerve Food has proven an enormous success because it forms new, red blood, from which new nerve and brain cells are created.

When you use Dr. Chase's Nerve Food you know for a certainty that each dose is doing you a certain amount of good, because it adds just so much new red blood to the system.

Whether you have become exhausted by disease, overwork, or the depressing effects of spring matters not. The cure is found in the use of Dr. Chase's Nerve Food.

Irritability, sleeplessness, indigestion, nervous headache, anaemia, despondency, and all the dreaded accompaniments of a weak and exhausted system disappear when this great blood-forming system builder is used.

To get the best out of life you must use Dr. Chase's Nerve Food to make you well and to fill you with the energy and vigour which makes for success and happiness. 50 cents a box at all druggists, or Edmanson, Bates & Co., Toronto.

Writes From Arctic.

A letter has been received at the geological survey at Ottawa from V. Steffansson, who is far up in the Arctic circle, conducting natural researches in conjunction with Dr. Anderson. The two gentlemen are living among the Eskimos, their principal diet being caribou.

Steffansson says that he has come in contact with many Eskimos who never before have seen a white man. The two explorers got along well during their long stay in the north, where they will remain for over a year more. They expect to spend next winter at the mouth of the Copper Mine River.

The letter was written on Feb. 12, taking five months to reach Ottawa.

Capital Abroad.

Why is it that so much Canadian capital is invested abroad? Millions upon millions of Canadian money are invested in Mexico in water-powers and irrigating lands. Much is also used in the American stock market. It looks as if this were not a good country for the investor.—Daily Review, Peterborough.

NOT ALL HE EXPECTED.

How the Pilot Here Disregarded the Conventions of Heroism.

A couple of men prominently connected with St. Lawrence River navigation, were swapping yarns the other day, and one of them told an amusing story of a presentation company. At one of the annual meetings of the Richelieu & Ontario Navigation Co., a gold watch was presented to the pilot who had taken the steamer Montreal down the rapids. This immense vessel was built at Toronto, and then the hull and machinery, without any superstructure, had to make the perilous trip to Montreal. Thanks to the wonderful skill of the pilot, this voyage was made without any serious damage, though many had regarded it as almost impossible for a boat of that size. The directors of the company felt that some recognition should be given the pilot, and the acknowledgment took the form of a handsome gold watch.

The chronometer was handed to the daring and skillful helmsman with a few kind words of congratulation and praise. Then the knight of the wheel stood there in the midst of a general silence of expectation. Everyone sat waiting for this intrepid riverman to express in broken accents his undying devotion to the company. Perhaps he would conclude in the words sacred to such occasions: "I only done my duty."

But did he say this? Did his voice grow husky with emotion, and tears fill his eyes? No. On the contrary, he stood there, cool as a cucumber frappe, and gazed intently at the watch.

"Purty nice watch," he finally remarked in a meditative tone, "but I don't see no chain."

REBUILDING FERNIE.

Ten Months Have Seen Big Changes In Fire-Swept Town.

Fernie smiles, nestling amongst the mountains on every side, and seems to hold out the welcoming hand to the dusty stranger alighting amidst a bewildering throng of people from the train, says Moutrie in The Toronto Globe.

Almost before he is aware of it, his belongings are seised and deposited within an adjacent hotel by the ever-alert porter, who smilingly beckons him to follow. Providence, in the Canadian order of things, has doubtless ordained that hotels and banks shall occupy street corners by right; whilst not following this order so closely as some eastern cities—Toronto forsooth!—yet Fernie adheres sufficiently to the established decree, and is amply provided for.

Naturally the first things that attracts the stranger's eye are the mountains, with their snowy peaks and rivulets gladdening the vision on these hot days, and, strolling around with the curiosity of the newly-arrived, his attention is next taken by the turbulent little river Elk as it rushes and boils in its sinuous path. Shade, like the proverbial snake in Ireland, is non-existent in Fernie, but it is very pleasant indeed down by the river at evening time to sit, smoking one's pipe, on a fallen cottonwood tree, whilst listening to the hurrying river, and to enjoy the cool, fragrant air that blows softly by the waterside.

One can hardly credit at first that barely ten months ago Fernie was devastated by fire, and, like Carthage of old wiped out. When one looks around and sees the massive buildings that have already arisen, and are daily arising, and the continuous activity that prevails on every side, it seems marvellous and incredible. Some of the New Ontario towns are pretty go-ahead in the building line, but this place surprises one for strenuous effort and results.

As one walks down the main street, and is suddenly brought up short, so to speak, by a huge wooden building drawn right across the thoroughfare, one is at first taken aback, having seen no such obstruction early that morning; but it is nothing. They are only moving—a common sight in Fernie—to move oneself and residence at the same time. Lumber is high here, and cannot be left behind, and it is cheaper to utilize the building one has than to reconstruct another. So they haul away at the ropes and the house creaks and moves on.

Amidst the blackened stumps down by the water's edge are rapidly rising neat little cottages and dwellings, and lots are being fenced off and vegetables and flowers planted within the area, once swept by flame. Real estate values are high in Fernie, and will be higher, and one can hardly wonder at it, with the progressive ideas of its inhabitants and the evidences of their belief in themselves around. Well-dressed people busily moving about remind one more of those of Edmonton or Calgary or a down east city than one would naturally expect to see in a town whose inhabitants vary from four to seven thousand, according to whom you ask.

At night the ruddy glare of the coke kilns, with their flickering flames, lends a weird air of its own to the surroundings in the city heights, with the eternal snow-capped mountains in the far distance, whilst behind the depot itself the mountain, with its color of purple heather and dark green foliage, makes a peaceful background to active little Fernie smiling beneath.

Canada's Peat Bogs.

A bulletin entitled "The Investigation of the Peat Bogs and Peat Industry of Canada, during the season of 1908-09, by Enik Nystrom, M.E., peat expert, has been issued from Ottawa showing the location of Canada's peat supply. Of these in eastern Canada the most valuable are:

1. Mer Bleue, near Ottawa.
2. The Alfred peat bog, about 40 miles from Ottawa.
3. The Welland peat bog, about six miles north of Welland.
4. The Newington bog, on the New York & Ottawa Railway, and about 40 miles from Ottawa.
5. The Perth bog, a mile and a half from Perth.
6. The Victoria Road bog, about a mile from Victoria road station on the Midland division of the Grand Trunk Railway.

The bulletin contains a descriptive report of each bog, showing the location, area and structure, and giving an estimate of the available supply of peat fuel with records of analyses, calorific values, etc., and should be of particular interest to those engaged in, or connected with, the development of Canadian peat resources.

A fuel testing plant is now being erected at Ottawa, in which the value of peat for the production of power gas will be demonstrated, and the Department proposes to carry on a very thorough investigation of this subject.

Last Tie Severed.

The last of the ties that bound Lord Dundonald to Ottawa has been severed.

His house and grounds at Rockliffe have been sold to an Ottawa syndicate and the property, which consists of 20 acres of beautiful land, will be broken into building lots.

When Lord Dundonald left Ottawa it was given out that he was holding his property at Rockliffe and that later, when his private and public affairs had been settled in Scotland, he would return to Ottawa to live. It was generally understood that Lord Dundonald had a soft spot in his heart for Canada — particularly for Ottawa.

The sale of the property would, however, seem to indicate that His Lordship has decided to remain in the Old Country.

C.P.R. Spiral Tunnels.

The second of the spiral tunnels on the Canadian Pacific Railway line between Field and Hector in the Rocky Mountains has just been completed. The tunnels add some four miles to the length of the line, but reduce the grade from 4.5 to 2.2 per cent.

To draw a caricature of our contemporaries is not difficult. It requires only a small portion of talent and a great deal of courage.—Plaindealer.

TO THE MOTHERS OF PALE GIRLS

Case Showing How the A Tonic Treatment Restores Lost Health.

Anaemia is simply lack of blood. It is one of the most common and at the same time most dangerous diseases with which growing girls suffer. It is common because the blood so often becomes impoverished during development, when girls often overstudy, over-work and suffer from lack of exercise. It is dangerous because of the stealthiness of its approach and because of its tendency to grow, so steadily worse, if not promptly checked, that it may run into consumption. Every growing girl should take an occasional tonic to ward off the insidious trouble; and in all the world there is no tonic that can equal Dr. Williams' Pink Pills. Every dose of this medicine helps to make new rich blood, which promptly makes weak, pale, listless girls bright, rosy, and strong. Miss A. M. Dugay, Lower Cove, N.S., says: "I believe I owe my life to Dr. Williams' Pink Pills. My blood seemed to have turned to water. I was pale as a sheet; I suffered from headaches and floating specks seemed to be constantly before my eyes. As the trouble progressed my limbs began to swell, and it was feared that dropsy had set in and that my case was hopeless. Up to this time two doctors had attended me, but notwithstanding I kept growing worse. It was at this juncture I began using Dr. Williams' Pink Pills, and after taking a few boxes I was much improved. I kept on using the Pills until I had taken eight boxes, when my health was completely restored."

Dr. Williams' Pink Pills cure cases like this because they go to the root of the trouble in the blood. That is why they cure rheumatism and indigestion, nervous headaches and racking neuralgia, and all those troubles from which growing girls and women of mature years so often suffer in hopeless silence. If Dr. Williams' Pink Pills are given a fair trial they will not disappoint you. Sold by all medicine dealers or by mail at 50 cents a box or six boxes for $2.50 from The Dr. Williams' Medicine Co., Brockville, Ont.

America's Largest Crane.

The new and powerful floating cranes for which the port of Montreal has been waiting for the past twelve months is now established and in operation. Her first test on this side of the Atlantic took place recently, and she passed it successfully.

Just opposite the Harbor Commissioners office, a large lake launch destined for use on Lake Temiscamingue, was waiting to be hauled up on board a flat car to be conveyed to its destination. The crane was placed in position, the lifting apparatus attached and she hauled the craft up in the air, swung it round and placed it gently in the required position. The operation was watched with interest by a large number of spectators. The test was directed by Mr. John Thomson, of the firm of Vickers, Sons & Maxim, the buildings, while Mr. H. W. Cowie, the Harbor Commissioners engineer, was also present.

The crane is now, therefore, open for the handling of all business that offers. She is the largest floating crane on this continnent, and the second largest in the world, having a lifting capacity of 75 tons.

Task for Canadian Clubs.

Dominion Day should mean something more to Canadians than an opportunity to see a horse race. There should be something nationally distinctive about this holiday, something to set it up as an annual Ebenezer. In every centre of population there should be some specific and notable recognition of the day's significance. It is not easy to frame a plan to win general approval in this regard, but in the chain of Canadian clubs which now extends from coast to coast there is a machinery which, properly and patriotically used, could work out a scheme of great national value.—St. John Sun.

British First.

We have in British Columbia as they have in the middle west many American settlers and whether west or east of the mountains we have no better, no more patriotic people. While they live here, and when once they come they do not as a rule go away, they are Canadians; but they are more than that, they are British and they not infrequently set an example to the natives of the country in the matter of their duty to imperial interests which is very salutary to the rather unthinking public of the Dominion.—Vancouver Province.

Laid Behind the Counter Until Relief Came.

TERRIBLE SUFFERING OF AN OWEN SOUND CONTRACTOR AND BUILDER.

Mr. Wm. Krafft, Owen Sound, Ont., writes: "Having read some of the testimonials of cures effected by Dr. Fowler's Extract of Wild Strawberry, I thought it advisable to say a word of praise for its merits.

"Some years ago I was much troubled with stomach trouble and cramps. I used to roll on the floor in agony, and on one occasion I went into a faint after suffering intensely for four hours. A short time after this, in driving to town, I was attacked again and had to lie down in my rig, seeking relief.

"When I reached the drug store I asked the druggist for a quick remedy and laid behind the counter until relief came. The remedy I received from the druggist was Dr. Fowler's Extract of Wild Strawberry. Whenever, after that time, I felt cramps coming on, I found speedy relief in the above mentioned remedy, and I am now cured of this dreadful malady. The bottle is small, but its contents effect a marvelous cure. I can recommend it highly for the cure of cramps."

Dr. Fowler's Extract of Wild Strawberry has been on the market for 65 years. It is not a new and untried remedy. Ask for it and insist on getting what you ask for. Refuse substitutes. They're dangerous.

Canadian Vessel Was The Pioneer In Trans-Atlantic Steam Navigation

Two years after the Clermont had commenced to ply on the Hudson, and three years before the Comet had disturbed the waters of the Clyde, the first steamboat appeared on the St. Lawrence. The Accommodation built by the Hon. John Molson, of Montreal, made her maiden trip to Quebec on No. 3rd, 1809, carrying ten passengers in forty-six hours' running time. In accordance with the usual custom, which continued for many years, she anchored at night, so that the whole time occupied in the voyage was thirty-six hours. If she ascended the St. Mary's Current, she was towed up by oxen. The length of this vessel was 85 feet over all, her breadth sixteen feet, her engine was of six-horse-power, and her speed five miles an hour. The Accommodation was built at the back of the Molson's Brewery, and was launched broadside in. Her engine was made by Coulton and Watt, of Birmingham, England. The fare from Montreal to Quebec by this vessel was £2 10s.; children, half price; servants with berth (sic), £1 13s 4d.; without berth, £1 5s. The Quebec Mercury, announcing her arrival, remarked: She is incessantly crowded with visitors. This steamboat received her impulse from an open-spoked perpendicular wheel on each side, without any circular band or rim To the end of each double spoke is fixed a square board which enters the water, and by the rotary motion of the wheels acts like a paddle. No wind or tide can stop her.—(James Croil, Steam Navigation.)

That the honour of being the pioneer in trans-Atlantic steam navigation . . . belongs to the Royal William, built at Quebec and engined at Montreal, has been clearly proven. The evidence in support of this claim is embodied in a report of the Secretary of State of Canada for the year ending December 31st, 1894. From this it appears that the Royal William was designed by James Goudie, marine architect, of Quebec, and that she was launched from the shipyard of Messrs. Campbell and Black, at Cape Cove, Quebec, April 19th, 1831, in the presence of Lord Aylmer, the Governor-General, and a vast concourse of people, Lady Aylmer naming the vessel with the usual ceremonies, after the reigning monarch, William IV.

This historic vessel was registered No. 2 in the Port of Quebec. She was rigged as a three-masted schooner of 363 60-94 tons burden with a standing bowsprit and square stern. Her length was 160 feeth; breadth taker above the main wales, 44 feet; depth of hold, 17 feet 9 inches, and width between the paddle boxes, 28 feet. She cost about £16,000. The Royal William, commanded by Capt. J. Jones, R.N., sailed for Halifax, August 24, 1831, with twenty cabin passengers, seventy steerage, and a good freight. She arrived on the 31st, six and a half days from Quebec. Several voyages were made that year to Halifax and the Gulf ports. Next year, owing to the prevalence of cholera, trade was at a standstill, and there was nothing for the new steamship to do. She was accordingly sold by Sheriff Gugy, at the church door, in the parish of Sorel, for $5,000. In April, 1833, she was placed under command of Captain John Macdougall, a native of Oban, Scotland. During May she towed vessels from Grosse Isle, and in June sailed for the lower ports, Halifax and Boston, reaching the latter place on the 17th—the first British steamer to enter that port. On her return to Quebec, her owners decided to send her to London to be sold. She sailed August 5th, arrived at Pictou on the 8th, and sailed thence on the 16th, with seven passengers, a box of stuffed birds, one box and one trunk, some household furniture, 264 caldrons of coal, and a crew of 36 men. The voyage to Cowes, Isle of Wight, was made in nineteen and a half days. She was deeply laden with her coal, had very rough weather, and had to run with one engine for ten days. A short time having been spent at Cowes, painting the ship, etc., she steamed up to Gravesend in fine style, the first vessel to cross the Atlantic propelled by the motive power of steam alone.

The Royal William was sold in London for £10,000, and was chartered to the Portugese Government as a transport, and named the Isabel Segunda, and while in this service she was sent to Bordeaux, France, for repairs, but her timbers being badly decayed, her machinery was transferred to a new vessel of the same name, while she herself terminated her brilliant career as a hulk. # WAS FOUND GUILTY OF ASSAULT AND ATTEMPTED ROBBERY

Case of Willie Fallen Concluded Yesterday Afternoon—His Worship Reserved Judgment for a Week—Watch Found on Him Said to Have Been Stolen.

CONNER WAS ACQUITTED

On the charge of assaulting and attempting to rob George Desborough, Tom Conner was acquitted and Willie Fallen was found guilty, but at the request of Chief Rossel, His Worship reserved sentence until next Saturday. The case was concluded yesterday afternoon at half past four, when Fallen, weeping bitterly heard the magistrate say that he must return to Central Prison. A watch found on the prisoner is said to have been stolen by him and it is for the purpose of investigating this matter that Chief Rossel asked His Worship to reserve sentence for eight days. Mr. G. N. Gordon defended the accused.

Both Conner and Fallen went into the box and denied the conversation that P. C. Newhall swore took place between them in the police cells. But P. C. Adams was called. He was sitting in the police station on the evening of the arrest. He heard them talking in their cells and corroborated P. C. Newhall in several of his statements as regards what was said between the two. Mr. Desborough also denied several statements made by the prisoners in their evidence.

Mr. Gordon in pleading for Fallen stated that the prisoner had reached that stage when either some encouragement should be given him or else he should be put where he would be out of temptation. He submitted that there was no evidence of attempted robbery. While the assault alone was serious he hoped His Worship would consider the prisoner's youth, and his lack of parental instruction. He was sure His Worship would do what he considered best for the boy.

His Worship said that the prisoner had apparently chosen the criminal life. His act was most deliberate and he appeared to live in defiance of all law. He could see no other course open but to send him back to Central At the request of Chief Rossel he deferred sentence until Saturday next.

RULES FOR AUTOMOBILISTS

The Ontario Motor League, of Toronto, has had the following copy of the main provisions of the Automobile Law of Ontario published for the guidance of tourists. In order that readers of the Examiner may have the law and thereby assist the authorities in enforcing the same, the main provisions of the said act are published in condensed form. It might be mentioned that the Ontario Motor League is just as anxious to see motorists who persist in breaking the laws punished, as the rural public is, and bids for its co-operation. The law reads as follows:

1. Motor vehicles must be registered. Registration fee, $4; renewal $2.
2. Cars must display two numbers of markers; one attached to the front in a prominent position, and the other in the centre of the back. Markers must be kept free from dust. No other number shall be exposed on any part of the vehicle.
3. Every car must carry a horn or gong. Lamps must be lighted whenever car is in motion, between dusk and dawn. Side lamps must bear the permit number in black figures, not less than two inches high. A light must be placed so as to illuminate the marker at the rear.
4. Searchlights are prohibited.
5. Maximum speed in cities, towns and villages is ten miles per hour outside fifteen miles an hour.
6. The owner of a motor vehicle is held responsible for violations of the act.
7. Drivers of cars must observe reasonable precaution to prevent frightening horses. Horse vehicles must not be approached within 100 yards at a greater speed than seven miles an hour. If a horse appears to be frightened the motorist must reduce speed and if signaled to do so, stop and render assistance when called on.
8. In case of accident, he must return to the scene of the accident and upon request give his name and address with that of the owner.
9. Recent amendments provide penalties as follows: A fine of $50 for first conviction; $100 for second conviction, and imprisonment for six months for third conviction for the following offences:
(a) Driving a car without displaying the number of license.
(b) Driving in a race or on a bet or wager.
(c) Anyone driving under the age of seventeen.
(d) In case of accident, failure to stop and return to the scene of accident.
10. Chauffeurs must be licensed.

THE MODERN FIGURE

How to Retain Beauty of Form.

The vagaries of Fashion are a great trial to ladies inclined to overstoutness; but it is a great mistake to go in for physical repression in the shape of special stays. Fasting and violent exercising are also dangerous. One very soon becomes limp, depressed and sallow of complexion when such methods of getting this are adopted. There is absolutely no necessity to study dietetics or deprive one's self of wholesome rest and bodily comforts.

The following is a prescription which will restore beauty of form without any sacrifice of health or strength. Any druggist will make it up for you or supply the harmless ingredients, viz: ½ oz. Marmola, ½ oz. Fluid Extract Cascara Aromatic, and 4 3-4 oz. Peppermint Water. The dose is one teaspoonful after each meal and at bedtime.

Don't be afraid of a good appetite, especially as the digestive system will be much benefited by this simple treatment. Indeed, the whole body is beautified, and the reduction of weight occasions no wrinkles. The skin and complexion are rebeautified.

DEADLY TUBE HAS GONE ASTRAY

Unfortunate Finder Will be Injured for Life if He Opens It.

Paris, Aug. 14.—Paris is excited over one of the most curious cases of loss ever known. A gentleman left on a seat in an omnibus a tiny package valued at $5,000. The peculiarity of the package is that it will injure for life the person who picks it up and opens it, it being a tube containing salts of radium.

Although one-sixth of a grain, its emanations are sufficient to cause fearful and incurable wounds. The fate of the finder who looks into the tube, which is the size of a cigarette, is certain.

No infernal machine was ever so frantically sought as this tiny tube by the Paris police. All the omnibuses were searched and swept, and urgent warnings were posted in public places. The newspapers united in advertising notice to the finder not to touch it.

Nearly a week has now passed since the packet disappeared. Hope of its immediate recovery is about abandoned. The imagination of a fiction writer might find a thrilling field in depicting the adventures of the mysterious, fatal tube, should it turn up in years to come, in a series of fearful works of mischief and terror.

MUSIC AND DRAMA.

New York, Aug. 14.—In all probability Mlle. Dazie will not be able to play her part in a pantomime for some time, following a serious stab wound she received in the breast, in full view of the audience at Morrison's Rockaway Beach Music Hall, last night. Her jealous rival on the stage, in L'Amour de l'Artist, was supposed to stab her to the heart with a dagger, and for this purpose two weapons were employed, one with a shining steel blade and the other with a rubber blade for actual use.

In some manner the rival grasped the wrong dagger and plunged it into the breast of Mlle. Dazie, inflicting a wound four inches long.

The audience, on hearing the shriek of the actress, and seeing the blood, became wildly excited, but were calmed, and the injured actress was removed to the Park Inn where her wound was dressed.

"THE WORLD CANNOT WAIT FOR THE ENGLISH"--H. G. WELLS

Popular English Writer Says That They Are Too Slow in the Study of Aviation—Should Study Aeroplanes Instead of Dreadnoughts

ARE FAR BEHIND THE TIMES

By F. L. Boalt.

London, Aug. 14.—Coming from an Englishman, talking about Englishmen, this is hot stuff.

H. G. Wells is probably the most popular of the younger English writers. He is also an expert on aviation, and much of his fame rests upon his "War in the Air," a story which deals with the future possibilities of aerial warfare.

Though the public bought and read the book, and liked it, the critics said it was too wildly impossible to be instructing or even interesting.

Then M. Bleriot, the Frenchman, flew the channel with his monoplane, and Wells came back at his critics, saying that here was proof that aerial warfare is possible and probable, that the airship for war purposes is a thing of the immediate future, but that the English are too slow to accept the idea or even to profit by the accomplishment of foreign pioneers in science.

"One meaning, I think," said Wells, "stands out plainly enough, unpalatable to our national pride. It is that this thing was done abroad. Of all that made it possible we can only claim so much as is due to the improvement of the bicycle.

"Gliding began abroad, when our young men of courage and muscle were braving the dangers of the cricket ball. The motor car and its engine were being worked out 'over there,' while in this country the mechanically propelled road vehicle was going at four miles an hour behind a man with a red flag. And now our insularity is breached by the foreigner who has got ahead with flying.

"It means( I take it, first and foremost for us, that the world cannot wait for the English.

"Within a year we shall have—or rather, they shall have—aeroplanes capable of starting from Calais, let us say, circling over London, dropping a hundredweight of explosive or so upon the house of parliament, and returning segurely to Calais for another similar parcel.

"Aeroplanes are neither difficult nor costly to make. For the price of a Dreadnought we might have hundreds of them. They will be extremely hard to hit with any sort of missile.

"I do not think a large army of under-educated, under-trained and extremely unwilling conscripts is going to be any good against a thing of this kind.

H. W. WELLS.

"The arrival of M. Bleriot suggests most horribly to me how far behind we must be in all matters of ingenuity, device and mechanical contrivance.

"I am reminded again of the days of the Boer war, when it had never occurred to our happy-go-lucky army that it was possible to make military use of barbed wire or to construct a trench to defy sharpnel.

"Suppose a fleet of airships should soar over our sea fleet in the Baltic, and should drop an explosive upon the flagship. In fancy I can see a parboiled admiral being fished out of the deep, explaining what a deucedly unexpected and ungentlemanly thing the enemy had done to him."

Niece Of Local Gentleman Wins Canadian National Anthem Contest

The National Anthem competition for the purposes of selecting an anthem for Canada has been awarded to Mercy Powell McCulloch, wife of Dr. Powell, of Toronto. She wrote the verses of "The Homeland," which are set to the music of "O Canada," written years ago by Calixa Lavallee, the French composer, who died in 1889. Mrs. Powell is a niece of Mr. Geo. W. Powell, George street, city, and was born in the village of Edgar, County of Simcoe, July 23, 1880. In 1886 her parents, Dr. and Mrs. N. A. Powell, moved to Toronto, which has since been her home. As a child she attended the Model school, from which she graduated with a silver medal. After 4 years in Harbord St. Collegiate Institute, she entered Victoria College, University of Toronto, in the fall of 1897. During her course she occupied the position of literary editor of the college paper, "Acta Victoriana," contributing to its columns several short articles both in prose and verse. During her junior year, Miss Powell won the Hodgins prize in English literature, also carrying off a similar prize in her senior year. She was graduated with the degree B.A. in 1901, winning the J. J. MacLaren gold medal in Modern Languages. Since graduation she has kept in close touch with university affairs and for the current year is president of the Victoria Alumnae Association. Miss Powell was married May 15, 1906, to Edward A. McCulloch, B.A., M.B., a classmate at Victoria College. They, with their two children, live on College street, Toronto.

The judges of the contest were Dr. Edward Broome, musical director of the Toronto Conservatory of Music; Hector Charlesworth, musical and dramatic critic of the Toronto Mail and Empire and Dr. Pelham Edgar, professor of English literature, University of Toronto.

Mrs. McCulloch's verses which were awarded first prize are as follows:

O, Canada, in praise of thee we sing,
From echoing hills our anthems proudly ring.
With fertile plains, and mountains grand,
With lakes and rivers clear,
Eternal beauty thou dost stand
Throughout the changing year.
Lord, God of Hosts, we now implore,
Bless our dear land this day and evermore,
Bless our dear land this day and evermore.

Dear Canada! for thee our fathers wrought
Thy good and ours unceasingly they sought.
With steadfast hand and fearless mind,
They felled the forest domes,
Content to leave behind
A heritage of homes
Lord, God of Hosts, etc.

Blest Canada! the homeland that we love;
Thy freedom came a gift from God above.
Thy righteous laws, thy justice fair,
Give matchless liberty;
We thank our God that we may share
Thy glorious destiny.
Lord, God of Hosts, etc.

GOWGANDA AND ITS PROSPECTS

Regarding the recent discussions as to the value of the silver properties in the Montreal River and Gowganda districts, Mr. S. Christopherson, a capitalist of Minneapolis, Minnesota, is one of those Americans who are convinced that the prospects of the northern camps are of the best, and who are backing up their ideas with their money.

Mr. Christopherson has kept himself and a banker, and has considerable interests in mines in the west and in California. He has been in Gowganda since the 11th of June, and is now in Toronto for a few days on business. In that time he has purchased one claim in South Lorraine and eleven different properties in Gowganda. He is going back in a few days and expects to largely increase his holdings.

Mr. Christopherson has kept himself busy going over all sections of the country, and in answer to a question as to what he thought of it, his reply was most emphatic.

"It is undoubtedly going to be a great mining camp—not only a good camp, but a great one. Next to Cobalt it has the best outlook for a mining camp that I know of, and I am pretty familiar with the mining camps from British Colubia to Mexico.

"I, myself, have seen silver over a very large area around Gowganda. It is known to extend for twenty miles and is an unusually large country over which silver has been shown to exist.

"Of course one has to judge a good part of the country as yet from surface showings or from veins on which but little sinking has been done. As to the holding out of values with depth, I can only speak from the mines I have seen. On one mine I saw ore from the 87-foot level, out of a vein four inches wide, that carried very high values in silver, and was undoubtedly high grade ore; and I have seen ore of equally high grade from the 40-foot level of another mine, and from the 50-foot level of a third mine. In every one of these three cases the veins were widening out as they went down. This I saw for myself.

Mr. Christopherson gave the names of these mines, two of which are being operated by close corporations. Some of the other mines in the camp that are talked of a good deal he had not seen, not having had access to them.

He says that a party of four Minneapolis people went in last week and others are coming in a short time, and he expect there will be an influx of people in the camp this fall looking for investments.

The black flies, which he says were very bad, are now all gone, and the worst of the mosquitoes are over.

Mr. W. Douglas Mullan, who spent the winter on Shining Tree, brought down some good-looking samples of ore which he says came from a claim on the east side of the lake, and that the country up there is showing up well.

There is no doubt that silver has been found on several claims in the Hanging Stone country, from twelve to fifteen miles from Gowganda.

Mining operations at Gowganda and Elk Lake will be considerably more expensive than at Cobalt. Mr. A. G. Burrows, head of the Provincial Assay Department, has completed a careful examination of the areas named, and his report says:

Considering the number of claims, on which high-grade silver ore is to be seen, one must admit that this new area has possibilities. Up to the present time, however, there has not been sufficient development work for one to make any definite statements as to the future. The deepest shafts are not down over fifty feet, and no drifting on the veins has been done. Any statements must be confined to the appearance of the shafts, surface indications and the amount of ore already taken out.

"At several of the properties high-grade ore was seen in the shafts or pits. The veins are usually narrow, but wide in places to several inches, and in several instances were seen to pinch out in a few feet in depth or in horizontal extension. There is also a tendency for the highgrade ore to be segregated in bunches over a few feet. This will necessitate considerable dead work in following tight cracks and lean portions of veins to other rich bunches or shoots.

"Cost per ton of ore will be much higher than in the Cobalt camp, and it will take some months' work to prove what profit can be made in working the veins so far discovered."

Five Factories Within Small Radius In The South Ward

The Factory Ward—No. I—has recently seen erected a new building for the Colonial Weaving Co. and it is now practically completed. The structure is on the south end of the lot between Stewart and Rubidge streets, on Rink street, within a stone's throw of the C.G.E. property on the one side and the shovel works on the other. It is constructed of sand limestone brick and presents a rather imposing appearance. The roof is now being completed and the flooring has been entirely laid. The building is almost ready to receive the machinery and it should not be long before the factory should be resounding with the hum of industry. This is the fifth factory in a cluster with the Colonial Weaving Co.'s mill at the centre. The C.G.E is on the west, the Carbon Works on the north and the Shovel Works and Cordage Works are on the south side It is one of the busiest blocks in Peterborough and certainly carries off the palm for industry and gives the South Ward a stronger claim to the reputation of being the factory ward.

New Steamer Being Built At No. 6 Lock For Use At Fenelon Falls

Work is progressing rapidly on the new steamer, which is being built by Mr. Wm. Hickey and sons, at Number 6 lock. It is being constructed for Mr. W. Burgoyne, of Fenelon Falls, and will serve as a general purpose boat for use on the upper Kawartha Lakes. Mr. Burgoyne's boat the "Kawartha," which is in use at the present time, is too small for the business it has to do. The new steamer will be about the size of the Sovereign, and will be used as a passenger and supply boat as well as for towing.

Mr. Chas. Primeau Completes Course At Chicago College

Mr. Charles Primeau returned on Wednesday last from Chicago, where, for the past six months, he has been attending the Northern Illinois College. He completed a course in Ophthomology and Otology, and has received his diploma as doctor of optics. Mr. Primeau obtained a very high standing in his examinations, and his numerous friends will be pleased to learn of his success. He has returned to the city with all the qualifications of an optician.

Mr. Primeau has taken over the business of the Tate Optical Company and will assume full charge on Monday. The business will continue under the same name as it has been known in the past, and it is hoped, under the new management, that the same liberal patronage will be accorded by the people of Peterborough.

MARKET PRICES

The Feature This Morning Was Early Vegetables

Market prices this morning showed but little variation from the prices which have been prevailing. New potatoes remain at 25 cents a peck, and apples sell at 15 cents. Lamb at 13 and 14 cents, was rather scarce, but early vegetables were for the most part, plentiful, and at reasonable prices. Butter sold at 24c and eggs at 21 and 23 cents.

WEDDING BELLS

EVERETT—ROBERTS

A very pretty wedding was solemnized at St. Stephen's Church, Chandos, on the 3rd day of August last, when Miss Annie Elizabeth Roberts, daughter of Mr. Joseph Roberts, a prosperous farmer of the Township of Chandos, was married to Mr. Henry T. Everett, of the City of Peterborough, jeweller. The ceremony was performed by the Rev. C. Lord, of Apsley, the church being beautifully decorated with ferns and flowers. Miss Pickmell, of the City of Toronto, was bridesmaid and Mr. Harry Roberts, brother of the bride, was groomsman. The bride was dressed in pale blue mercerized repp trimmed with cream colour allover lace and applique, and the bridesmaid in pale blue mull trimmed with velvet and nett. The bridegroom's present to the bride was a gold watch and chain, and to the bridesmaid a beautiful birthday ring. The presents to the bride were numerous and costly, showing the high esteem in which the bride was held. After the ceremony a reception was held at the home of the bride's parents, when about seventy-five or more guests sat down to a sumptuous repast, after which a very pleasant evening was spent in music and dancing.

COBOURG HORSE SHOW

Special Excursion on Thursday Afternoon Next.

In connection with the Cobourg Horse Show, August 17-20, the Peterborough Lawn Bowlers are running an excursion on Thursday, the 19th. It commences at Lindsay and leaves the G.T.R. station here at 1:10 p.m., leaving Cobourg at 8 o'clock. The Lakeshore town is at its prettiest just now and the horse show is one of the principal events of the summer. The excursion will undoubtedly be loyally patronized. A fine opportunity is afforded of spending a pleasant day in Cobourg.

Among the exhibitions from Peterborough so far as known at present, are the following:

Mr. Wm. Reid has made entries for the following classes: Best Hackney stallion; best 3-year-old carriage class.

Hon. J. R. Stratton will send three horses to compete in the following classes:

Best pair carriage horses in harness, 15-2 and under; best single horse in harness, 15-2 and under (two entries); best tandem; best gentleman's saddle horse; best ladies' saddle horse; best combination horse.

Miller's Worm Powders cure fever in children. —Wm. Medill, Druggist.

HAS RETURNED

Rev. Dr. O'Brien Home From Convention in Chicago.

Rev. Dr. O'Brien has returned home from Chicago, where he has been attending the convention of the Catholic Total Abstinence Union of America. The number of delegates was very large, and the doctor reports that the Total Abstinence Societies are rapidly increasing in numbers and much good work is being accomplished in the cause of temperance.

CANADA SHOULD GIVE VISITORS PROPER RECEPTION

The following from the Toronto Globe should be of interest here:

This is the season when strangers and visitors in large numbers spend a few days sight-seeing in Canada. Never a day passes in Toronto without hundreds of strangers arriving by train and steamer, and the impression made upon them by their experiences on the streets, on the cars, in the shops, and on their sight-seeing tours will be their lasting impression of the city. They will speak of it as they found it. The courtesy of the people will be the chief factor. The behaviour of the police and of the street car conductors will make or mar that impression. Every good citizen and every proper official will make it a part of each day's business to take advantage of every opportunity to give tourists and visiting strangers all needed information, and to promote their comfort and the enjoyment of their visit.

Toronto has a good name in this respect. Complaint about surliness or incivility on the part of public officers or railway conductors is very rare. A German-American traveller of observant habits remarked the other day on Toronto's superiority to almost every city in the United States in all matters of courtesy to strangers, but in neither country is the standard up to what it is in Germany.

This is a question to which attention might well be called in every city and town in Canada. Those who have opportunities such as belong to newspapers, teachers, and civic leaders should frequently stir up the minds of their fellow-citizens by way of remembrance. We need more civic pride, but the true root of courtesy to strangers is a proper respect for one's self and for one's daily duty to one's fellows. The real ties that bind nations together are personal and vital, and the little everyday courtesy shown to the visiting foreigner is one more strand in the cord of international peace and good-will.

Of Course Not.

London, Aug. 14.—Lord Knollys, private secretary to King Edward, gives an emphatic denial to the statement that His Majesty has been speculating in American stocks.

Crazy Indian Goes to Hamilton.

Toronto, Aug. 14.—Tied up in the Hamilton bound train yesterday afternoon at the Union Station was a crazy Indian, John Chakason, who has been brought from the wilds of New Ontario, where he is said to have killed several Indians, to be lodged in Hamilton asylum.

The lunatic was in charge of Detective Giroux, and Dr. Dunneti of Ottawa, who took charge of him at Moose Factory on James Bay.

Last spring Indian trappers brought the lunatic to Moose Factory by dog sled from Missanabia where he had terrorized the Indian settlement for over a year. Many hundreds of miles of the journey from James Bay was made by canoes.

The Indian was very refractory at times and had to be kept in a straight jacket.

Robinson Eludes Pursuers.

Warren, Ont., Aug. 14.—James Robinson has been successful in evading every effort of the police this week to locate him. Provincial constables watched the Robinson homestead all Tuesday night, leaving at daybreak. Robinson turned up at 7 a.m., washed his face, ate no breakfast, but asked for a lunch to be put up, and, after bidding farewell to all his children, two of whom are confined to bed owing to his depravity, he took his Winchester rifle, all the cartridges available, and left in a northerly direction. He appeared worried and excited and remarked to his son, John, "They'll never get me alive."

Saves Sister's Life.

Morrisburg, Aug. 14.—While some little girls were bathing in the St. Lawrence River, near Point Iroquois, Beryl Pelton, daughter of the editor of St. Lawrence News, stepped into a deep hole, with a treacherous undercurrent.

She was swept off her feet in a moment and was being carried out into the main current when her young sister, Norma, aged 11, standing on the bank, without a moment's hesitation rushed into the river with her clothes and shoes on, and, wading out nearly to her neck, succeeded in reaching her older sister, and with difficulty pulled her into shallow water, thus saving her life.

Attempts to End His Life.

North Sydney, N.S., Aug. 14.—Despondent over continued bitter criticisms of his work as license inspector by a local paper, the temperance people and the liquor dealers, L. C. Musgrave late Thursday night attempted to end his life by shooting himself in the head.

The report brought Mrs. Musgrave instantly to the side of her husband, whom she found standing on the kitchen floor with the smoking revolver still in his hand. The bullet entered his forehead a little above the eye.

Prayer Reveals Secret.

Ashtabula, Ohio, Aug. 14.—His little playmate's prayer being overheard by the child's mother Thursday night yesterday resulted in the finding of the body of eight-year-old Sammy Walker, who was drowned in the Ashtabula River Wednesday while playing on a raft with other boys. Searchers found the body in the river after hunting through the night on the alarm sounded by the mother of the child, who had offered this prayer:

"Dear God, be good to Sammy. Forgive him, God, because he fell in the river; he was only a little boy and couldn't help it. And please forgive me, too, God, for being with him when he drowned."

Sammy Walker's playmates tried to rescue the child, but failed and were too frightened at the tragedy to tell of it.

West Indies Trade.

London, Aug. 14.—(C.A.P. Cable.)—The King has approved the appointment of Lord Balfour of Burleigh, Hon. Messrs. Fielding and Paterson of Canada, Sir Dickson Poynter and Sir Daniel Morris to be commissioners to investigate and report upon measures that may be taken for the promotion of closer trade relations and for the development of mutual trading facilities between Canada and the British West Indies.

His Majesty approves of the appointment of H. R. Cowell of the Colonial Office to be secretary of the commission. H. H. McCarthy has been selected to accompany the commission as technical adviser.

Just Noises.

"Look here!" shouted the irate farmer. "What are yeou doing fishing in my lake when it's posted?"

"Aw, go on!" sneered the tough city lad. "Make a noise like a hoop and roll away."

The farmer took out his knife and cut off a section of birch.

"Sonny," he said solemnly, "I reckon yeou'd be better making a noise like a locomotive for the next few minutes."

"Like a locomotive, old clover seed! Why?"

"Because yeou are going to be switched."

And the next moment the yells that emanated from the clump of bushes made a noise like a Sioux Indian on the warpath.—Chicago News.

Explained.

Aunt Carrie's mocking bird's a peach except that he won't sing.
We've tried him since he came, and he will eat most anything.
We've fed him soap and camphor balls and pie and pumpkin seeds,
But still he just won't sing, because he don't get what he needs.

We fed him tacks and broken glass and snuff and turpentine,
And when he ate blue paint he chirped and sure was doing fine,
But he was such a lazy bird he wouldn't eat no more,
And now he's lying in his cage, all spread out on the floor.
So when Aunt Carrie comes she'll have to ask—that crazy thing—
We wouldn't tell her for the world—the reason he won't sing.
—Galveston News.

"I Told You So."

An old couple lived in the mountains of eastern Tennessee. He was ninety-five and she ninety. Their son, a man of seventy, died. As the old folks crossed the pasture to their cabin after the burial the woman noticed a tear roll down her husband's cheek. She patted him tenderly on the arm and said:

"Never mind, John; never mind. You know I always said we never would raise that boy."—Success.

The Typewriter Girl.

She came to me in a business whirl.
I thought I was lucky to get her.
I hired her, my beautiful typewriter girl.
She obeyed me to the letter.

Shy and demure and without a flaw,
No matter how early or late to her
I spoke, it was final—my word was law.
I hired her, forsooth, to dictate to her.

Alas, but I married that maiden, and when
I made her a partner and mate to me
She lifted her eyes from the keys and the pen
And started right in to dictate to me!
—Aloysius Coll in Lippincott's Magazine.

Art For the Animals.

Hank Stubbe—I hear you are goin' to 'low some uv them big advertisin' signs over in your pastur' side uv the railroad track?

Bige Miller—Yep; it'll kind uv keep the caows contented lookin' at the picture when they git tired uv eatin'.—Boston Globe.

Slipshod English.

Here are some specimens of very common errors:

Admit for confess. To admit is to concede something affirmed. An unaccused offender cannot admit his guilt.

Adopt. "He adopted a disguise." One may adopt a child or an opinion, but a disguise is assumed.

Aggravate for irritate. "He aggravates me by his insolence." To aggravate is to augment the disagreeableness of something already disagreeable or the badness of something bad. But a person cannot be aggravated, even if disagreeable or bad.

All of. "He gave all of his property." The words are contradictory. An entire thing cannot be of itself. Omit the preposition.

At for by. "She was shocked at his conduct." This very common solecism is without excuse.—Cosmopolitan.

Mixed Metaphors.

Mixed metaphors are always amusing, and a contemporary has presented us with some good examples.

"You are," said a late lord mayor of Dublin in opposing a municipal scheme, "standing on the edge of a precipice that will be a weight on your necks all the rest of your days."

And this, attributed to an English clergyman: "The young men of England are the backbone of the British Empire. What we must do is to train that backbone and bring it to the front."

A member of Parliament was responsible for the following: "Even if you carried these peddling little reforms it would only be a flea bite in the ocean."—London Academy.

M'GILL'S BENEFACTORS.

Lord Strathcona and Sir Wm. Macdonald Big Givers.

Lord Strathcona's recent gift of half a million dollars to McGill University for the completion of new medical buildings and the increase of the professors' salaries brings afresh to the mind the great debt which this university owes to its two principal benefactors — Lord Strathcona and Sir William Macdonald. So great is this debt that, without these two men, McGill to-day, instead of being a world-famous seat of learning, would be nothing more than a small college of parochial reputation. Lord Strathcona has always had an especial love for the medical department, and his donations have largely been in aid of this particular faculty. His most outstanding gift to McGill, however, was the palatial Royal Victoria College for Women, which he built and equipped at his own expense. Altogether, his gifts to the university must now approach $2,000,000, and, in addition, it must be remembered that he has given something like $1,500,000 to the Royal Victoria Hospital, which works in close connection with the McGill Medical Faculty.

Great as are Lord Strathcona's gifts, however, they pale beside those of Sir William Macdonald, which total at least $10,000,000, and probably exceed that sum by a considerable amount. Besides large amounts for endowments, McGill University is indebted to Sir William Macdonald and Lord Strathcona for all its more important buildings. Lord Strathcona gave the medical building and Royal Victoria College for Women, while Sir William Macdonald has given the Physics, Chemistry and Mining and Engineering buildings, together with the palatial McGill Union, used as a social club for the students, and last, but not least, the unique agricultural college at Ste. Anne de Bellevue. This latter is put in the above list at $3,000,000. Only Sir William himself and Prof. Robertson, however, know what the actual cost to him has been. It is known that the endowment fund is just over two million dollars, and it is commonly said among McGill men that the whole thing cost him $5,000,000.

Sir William is still in business as a tobacco manufacturer. He never advertises his goods, and he pursues the most conservative methods, not even having a telephone in his factory or in his house. Anyone buying imported tobacco from him has to send in with the order an accepted check for the import duty, and under no circumstances does he allow credit to extend over the end of the month, the only concession allowed being that those who do not pay may cancel their orders. Yet such is his reputation that he does an enormous wholesale business in chewing and smoking tobacco, and it is out of this business that he has made his immense fortune.

A peculiar thing is that Sir William not only hates the smoking habit, but positively loathes tobacco chewing, and does his best to discourage the use of tobacco in all with whom he comes in contact. It is related of him that when he was visiting New Brunswick recently with Prof. Robertson a waiter who helped Sir William on with his coat, wishing to ingratiate himself with the famous philanthropist, remarked that he had smoked tobacco of Sir William's manufacture for fifteen years.

"A most disgusting habit," snapped out Sir William, turning on his heel.

Blessing Cheap.

There was an elopement a short time ago from a Bolton suburb, and after a brief honeymoon the bride returned to the parental roof.

"And you will give us your blessing?" she asked.

"Freely," replied the old man. "No trouble about the blessing, but board and lodging willib e at regular rates."

Women Stricken With Worry

It seems impossible for women not to worry, but whether they worry or not, it is every woman's duty to herself and family to save her strength and build up her system to meet any unusual demands.

To prevent nervous breakdown the blood must be kept pure and nutritious.

No medicine is so beneficial as Ferrozone, which acts on the blood, the nerves, the stomach, and all other organs that need strength.

FERROZONE

A Woman's Medicine!

No other medicine for the weakness, pains, discomforts, and ills from which women suffer can possibly give more permanent results than Ferrozone. It acts like a charm. Sold by all dealers, 50c per box, or six for $2.50.

THE SAFFRON PLANT.

It Is Among the Very Oldest of the Vegetable Products.

The particular species of crocus that has from time immemorial been cultivated for its dried stigmas, a product known under the name of saffron, is Crocus sativus, which is wild from Italy to Kurdistan. Saffron may be reckoned among the very oldest of vegetable products, being alluded to in the Song of Solomon among other spices of Lebanon. The name crocus is Chaldean or Greek and was first used by Theophrastus of Eresus about 350 B. C., and that it was a well known and admired flower in Greece soon afterward is shown by Sophocles, who mentions the "crocus of golden beam" in his "Oedipus at Colonus."

The word saffron seems to be a corruption of the Arabic name "al zahafaran," and the product itself was first imported into England as a spice or condiment, being also used as a color or dye for silks and other fabrics of the eastern looms.

At a later date, exactly when is not known, the plant itself was cultivated in England, more especially in Essex, in which county the name of Saffron Walden remains in evidence of the fact. Again, we have in London Saffron Hill, which formerly was a site included in the bishop of Ely's garden at Holborn, once famous for its saffron beds as well as for its strawberries. Today, however, saffron is but little used.—London Chronicle.

SUGAR AND CANDY.

Satisfy the Cravings of the Children Properly.

Children may eat too much sugar, and they may also stay too long in their bathtub, or in the creek when they go in swimming, or get tanned or a headache from playing too much in the sun, or chilled by staying too long in the open air, but is that any sound reason why they should be deprived of sweets, sunlight, baths and fresh air or discouraged from indulging in them?

All that is needed, says Dr. Woods Hutchinson in Success Magazine, is a little common sense regulation and judicious supervision, not prohibition or denunciation. Most of the extraordinary craving for pure sugar and candy, which is supposed to lead the average child to inevitably "founder himself" if left to his own sweet will and a box of candy, is due to a state of artificial and abnormal sugar starvation, produced by an insufficient amount of this invaluable food in his regular diet.

Children who are given plenty of sugar on their mush, bread and butter and puddings, a regular allowance of cake and plenty of sweet fruits are almost free from this craze for candy, this tendency to gorge themselves to surfeit, and can usually be trusted with both the candy box and the sugar bowl.

Parker House Rolls.

Materials.—Three tablespoonfuls of butter, one teaspoonful of salt, one-half cupful of lukewarm water, one yeast cake, two cupfuls of new milk, one tablespoonful of sugar, two egg whites and six cupfuls of flour.

Way of Preparing.—Scald the milk and add to it the sugar, salt and butter. Let stand until lukewarm, then add three cupfuls of flour and beat for five minutes. Add the dissolved yeast and let stand until it is a very light, frothy mass, then add the egg whites, beaten to a stiff froth, and the remaining flour. Let rise again until it is twice its original bulk, place on your molding board, knead lightly and then roll into a sheet half an inch thick. Take a large biscuit cutter and cut the dough into rounds. Brush with melted butter, fold over and press the edges together. Place in a buttered pan one inch apart. Let rise until very light and bake in a hot oven fifteen minutes.

A Duck of a Man.

Ellen Terry and Mr. Balfour met for the first time at the table of Henry W. Lucy in London. During the ensuing conversation Miss Terry remained strangely silent. Presently the Unionist leader had to leave for the house of commons, and Ellen Terry at last found her tongue. Her host was relieved to find that she had not been bored. Bringing her closed hand down on the table, she exclaimed with a glance toward the door through which Mr. Balfour had passed, "I think that's a duck of a man!"

Played It to the Limit.

Many writers have declared that an Irish gentleman's hospitality is unlimited, but this is a slight exaggeration, as is shown by a story borrowed from a book of Irish memories.

Jerry McCartie was often the guest of friends who on account of his pleasant ways extended to him that sort of old Irish hospitality which enabled a visitor in my own family who came for a fortnight to stay for six years.

In McCartie's case the visit stretched, to nearly double that time. After eight or nine years, however, his kinsman got a little tired of his guest and let him know of his old mansion's proposed renovation and that he had signed a contract for having it painted from garret to cellar.

"By George," said Jerry, "it's fortunate that I don't object to the smell of paint, and it will be well to have some one to keep an eye on the painters now that the wall fruit is ripening."

Some months passed. Then his host informed him that he was going to be married, adding, "I thought I'd tell you in good time, so that you could make leisurely preparations to go, as the lady and you may not hit it off as well as you and I do."

With tearful eyes Jerry grasped his cousin's hand, saying:

"Oh, Dan, dear, you have my hearty thanks for your consideration; but, dear, dear boy, surely if you can put up with her I can."

Woodchopping as a Sport.

In Tasmania is to be found a national pastime that is special and particular to that state alone—the sport of woodchopping. It says much for the grit and vigor of Tasmanians that this really serious and arduous work should be regarded as the finest sport. At Hobart and Launceston they have their turf meetings, their cricket, football, golf, cycling, and so forth, but to a woodchopping contest people will flock from far and near—men, women and children—and watch the ax wielders hewing away at huge blocks of timber as if life and reputation depended upon the issue. Thud, thud, thud, go the axes, and the splinters fly in all directions, the judges calmly sitting near, taking notes of the strokes, the spectators cheering the competitors from time to time as frantically as if they were race horses. To be a woodchopping champion means something to a man in Tasmania.

Look Prosperous or Pay in Advance.

"While there is a good deal of the American spirit prevailing in Sydney and Melbourne, they do things there in a peculiar way," said a traveling man. "It is hard to get used to them.

"They have excellent restaurants there, but they run on a peculiar plan. A man goes in and sits down at a table, and a waiter, generally a woman, hands him the bill of fare. He makes out his order on a slip, and before he is waited on the waiter goes to the cashier and has a little private talk with him. The cashier looks over at the customer, and if he appears to be good for the bill he is served; otherwise he is asked to pay in advance. The meals are good and cheap. The same careful scrutiny is made when a fellow registers at a hotel. Good looks will go further than any amount of baggage."—Omaha Bee.

Clear Waste.

"He has a quick temper, you know," was the excuse given by a friend for a boy's rude act.

"Is he quick at his lessons?" was the question.

"No," was the reply.

"Is he quick at sports?" the questioner went on.

Again the answer was "No."

"Is he quick in obedience?"

"No."

"Well," said the questioner, with a twinkle in his eye, "if he has so little quickness he'd better use it where it will do him some good. It's clear waste to put it on his temper."

The Town of Bushire.

Residents of a miserable seaport on the Persian gulf called their town Bushire (Boosheer). It has narrow, dirty, ill paved streets. The city is visited by earthquakes and simooms and stints its children of wholesome air and fresh water. It appears, however, to have enjoyed high repute among the ancient Elamites, who have left buried about under moldering heaps bricks with cuneiform inscriptions. In summer the citizens of Bushire live in a heat that is almost unbearable.

Her Sorrow.

"P-papa," sobbed small Sadie, "m-my canary is d-dead!"

"Never mind, dear," replied her father; "I'll buy you another one."

"Oh, I'm calm now," rejoined Sadie, "but when I first saw the poor little thing I cried like a child."—Exchange.

"Yes."

"Did you have anything on him?"

"I thought I had a jockey on him, but it seems I didn't."

MR. PICHE, PROSPECTOR.

Prospector Has Floated Some Interesting Companies In His Career,

Piche, the French-Canadian prospector, who was captured by the sultry critter after a two years' search in all parts of the continent, has, as has already been shown by the reports in the daily press, had a spectacular career in his long life in the wilds, but there is one episode in his career that has not found its way into the daily papers.

Many years ago the city editor of an evening newspaper was asked to send a reporter to a certain address on John street, Toronto, to receive an item about an important joint stock company that was to be formed. He finally located the place, and found it to be one of the rather shabby lodging houses that abound in that district. Here he found the little weasel-faced prospector in the company of twelve or fifteen Englishmen who had come to Canada with their savings to make a fortune. Piche was expounding what he called a great scheme, which the Englishmen were drinking in with apparent delight.

It was nothing less than to secure a large reservation on the shores of the Hudson Bay for the "breeding of fur-bearing animals." The promoter of the scheme had his prospectus drawn up, and expatiated on the high price of furs, and how in his wanderings in the wilds he had learned the secret of rearing beavers and other valuable beasts. The reporter had obviously been sent for as a ruse to convince the strangers that his scheme was bona fide. Piche, indeed, seemed to believe in his own plan, and his manner was so sincere that it was impossible to say whether he regarded the other fellows as "suckers" or not. However, the reporter decided that his paper did not want to boost this "get-rich-quick" scheme, and whether any of the Englishmen were persuaded to tempt fortune in the frozen north he never learned. At any rate, Piche's company never obtained letters of incorporation.

Farm Hands In Demand.

"We cannot begin to supply the demands which come to us for farm laborers. We have at the present time over fifty applications which we cannot fill," was the statement made by a Montreal Salvation Army immigration official last week. "These are all local applications, from farmers and landowners within easy distance of Montreal.

"We have had a good many immigrants book with us this year, more than last year, but not so many as the year before. Next summer we expect the number to be larger than we have ever had. We book only for farm labor and domestic service, that is, we guarantee only to find those classes of work. Nearly all the immigrants come with the intention of going West, but we have placed several near Montreal this spring. For one man who came with his family, we found a situation at Comé at $30 per month, and a free house besides. Several others have been similarly placed.

"The class of our immigrants has been unusually good. They have nearly all been able to pay their own way out, and in only about a dozen cases have we been obliged to give any assistance of this kind. They have been respectable, industrious men and women, and have been giving good satisfaction wherever we sent them. We have had only three deportations this year.

"For domestics we have always far more applications than we can possibly fill. Out of two hundred and fifty this year we have been able to fill only twenty."

JACK O'CONNOR IS TO BOSS BROWNS

Although anuouncement has been made from the headquarters of the St. Louis American League club that Jim McAleer will again manage the JACK O'CONNOR.

Browns, and can do so as long as he sees fit, there is a well-founded suspicion in baseball circles that the end of Jimmy as leader is near enough to touch.

Jack O'Connor, whom many regarded as the real leader of the Browns, last summer, when they were making their bid for the pennant, and who was sold to Little Rock, has returned to St. Louis over the purchase route. O'Connor is unable to play, having grown too stout and about all he is good for is scouting or managing, and it is not a far guess that he will be director-general for Hedges next season.

ONLY ONE GAME IN CITY LEAGUE

The City Baseball League is still in a muddle, despite the decision of the officers that a double-header should be played to-day at Riverside Park. In the first place the Strathconas, who were to have played the T. A. S., found they couldn't get a team together, and were therefore unable to play. Then the West Ends and Park Street teams got togther and decided to set aside the decision of the officers and play at the Oval, and therefore the two teams are playing this afternoon at the Northern grounds.

STRATHCONA MANAGER REFERS TO PROTEST OF THE T. A. S.

Sporting Editor of The Examiner:

Sir,—I notice in last evening's Examiner a letter signed "Spectator" dealing with the local baseball situation and in connection therewith I have a few remarks to make.

First, as to the charge against the officials for neglect of duty in looking after the League. The officials always recognized the fact that to run a League successfully the games had to be played where the crowd could be controlled and kept away from the play, and this was only possible on Riverside Park. As there is no other ground in this city available for sports where a game can be handled with any degree of satisfaction, and they foresaw the state of affairs that existed at the T.A.S. vs. P.A.C. game on the oval which "spectator" refers to, and which is an evidence that they were right in their contention, and as acknowledged by "Spectator" in his letter to be a reason why the grounds should not have been changed.

This being the case the officials would not change the grounds and, with myself, as manager of the Strathconas, always contended they should be played as the League started out.

Regarding the support of the crowd always being with the team playing against the T.A.S. I might say that the crowd always favours the team that is behind and is this not more likely to be the fact with the players on the different teams who feel they always have a chance if the leaders lose, but never have a chance if the leaders always win.

As evidence of this I would refer you to the last season or two of City League hockey, when the Strathconas were winning, they hardly had a friend outside of their own formidable supporters, and in the game against Lakefield found nine-tenths of the crowd (and a Peterborough crowd at that) pulling for an outside team. Had any other team in the Baseball League this season been in the same position as the T.A.S. they would have recived the same identical treatment. It is the way with the public and a man in spoft for a short while will realize this to be true.

The meeting of the other evening has left "Spectator" with the impression that the T.A.S. received a raw deal. Does he know that the managers of the teams agreed to supply the balls for the games on the suggestion of Manager Quinlan at the time the change was made to the Oval and that the ball supplied for the game protested by the T.A.S. was their own ball, they having rejected the first Park St. ball, this latter team supplying a second ball which was in the game as occasion demanded, and was satisfactory. For fear "Spectator" did not pick up the right ball I might say that the ball on which the protest was entered was practically a new one, not being any more than slightly discoloured and both balls did not have a stitch broken in them. A soft ball could hardly be banged out to the tennis nets for a three-base hit, and other long hits made as can be verified by the scorebook. While the rule book calls for new balls for each game, does it not look a little far fetched to protest a game for this reason when the ball supplied was by the team protesting and the system of each team supplying the balls introduced by the manager of this team.

Regarding the Park St. team refusing to play with the official umpire, this is not the case. All they wanted was an additional man for the bases, as a game can hardly be handled by one man on the large grounds of the Oval with the crowd running in and no lines drawn. Umpire McCabe agreed with Manager Pilling when the suggestion was made to him, and gave the names of Messrs. Sheridan, Kendry and Ray for the position.

It is harder to be crooked with two umpires than one and Park St. were certainly not trying to steal a march on the T.A.S. Manager Quinlan has more than once expressed himself as being satisfied with the work of the umpires on this occasion.

I am merely answering the letter of "Spectator" as above in short, for these reasons:

First, to show that the officials of the League were right in maintaining that all games should be played on Riverside Park.

Second, that there is no feeling against the T.A.S. other than is to be found against a team that has a big lead on the other teams of a League.

Third, that Manager Quinlan should have taken his defeat of the game played with his own ball, and,

Fourth, that the double umpire system for that game was perfectly satisfactory to both winner and loser.

If every team in the big league dropped out when they imagined they had a grievance there would be mighty little baseball, and this pertains to every line of sport and all the players on the different teams are apt to look at matters from their own point of view, but it is not a sporty thing to drop out when one does not get his own way and I do not believe yet that the T.A.S. team as a whole are of the same opinion as their manager.

W. J. METHERAL,
Manager Strathconas B.B.C.

GROWING GINSENG

From Farm and Dairy.

I would like to start a ginseng garden, but feel that if the farmers start to grow it by the acre, in a few years they will glut the market. What do you think about it?—S. R., Huron Co., Ont.

If ginseng were an annual they might do so. Let us see what it would mean to grow ginseng by the acre. One would require 80,000 one-year-old roots to plant one acre. It would require 900 posts set in the ground to support the shade besides all the other material for erecting the shade, probably costing perhaps $4,000. To have the product of one acre annually for market, one would require to keep five acres under continuous cultivation. I think we need not have any fear of the market being glutted from that quarter. It is my opinion, considering the peculiar nature of ginseng, that it can be grown more profitably in small plots. It is well adapted for suburban residents of cities and towns who have gardens to produce annually, say, from 15 to 30 or 50 pounds of dry roots or more according to their means and room to grow it in. If it is near the house, they can attend to it in their leisure time. Such people will find it a very interesting occupation besides adding largely to their income. Of course, the farmer could grow it and some will, but the average farmer would not give it the care and attention needed for success.—Wm. Gilgore, Peterboro Co., Ont.

WAS RYAN A MURDERER?

Man for Whose Death Brother Was Hanged May be Still Alive—Autograph Was Found on the Walls of Station Long After He Was Supposed to Have Died.

INVESTIGATION MADE

Whitefish, Ont., Aug. 14.—Was Maurice Ryan hanged an innocent man at North Bay, June 5, for the murder of his brother, Joseph Ryan, or it is mere coincidence that the following rutograph was found on the walls of Whitefish Station yesterday afternoon: "Joseph Ryan, Rutland, Vermont, June, 1908, westbound." The signature was among hundreds of other autographs.

At the trial a letter was introduced, said to have been written by Joseph Ryan from St. Alban's, Vermont, and also evidence that he had been seen at North Bay in February, 1908.

Maurice Ryan stoutly protested his innocence at the trial, and "I am innocent" were his last words on the gallows.

The autograph is not a hoax, and while Ryan was known as a poor writer, it may have been written for him by others. An effort will be made to secure specimens of his handwriting from the chief of police of North Bay for comparison.

It was never proven conclusively that the skeleton found in the woods, and alleged to be all that remained of Joseph Ryan, was so in fact.

Women to Control the Votes.

London, Aug. 14.—The Times' Wellington correspondent cables statistics indicative that within twenty-five years the majority of the voters in New Zealand will be women. In 17 electorates the women already enrolled outnumber the men.

The Attorney-General, speaking on the subject yesterday, said there was a reduced degree of domesticity among the New Zealand women.

The women were less inclined to make home their only sphere, and their sympathies and activities were widening.

He is of the opinion that when the reform of the liquor trade, for which women have long been struggling, had been achieved, their zeal would be diverted toward securing other social and political reforms.

Generally, he thought, their influence would be for good.

Alleged Murderer Killed.

Newark, N.J., Aug. 14.—After a murderous attack on Matthew Smith and John Bryant, two keepers in the county jail here, yesterday, Angelo Caprie, awaiting trial here on a charge of murder, was shot and instantly killed by John Corby, another keeper, who had come to the rescue of his comrades.

Panic-Stricken, Jumps to Death.

New York, Aug. 14.—With her daughter Eva, four years old, in her arms, Mrs. Esther Schwormer jumped from the window of her apartment in Attorney street yesterday, and both were killed. Mrs. Schwormer was panic-stricken by a small fire on the third floor.

WILL UNIFY THE FORCES

Delegates Favor Having Colonial Troops Trained as They Are In England, and Officers Exchanged All Over the Empire to Keep Units All the Same—Six Divisions Took Place at Meeting.

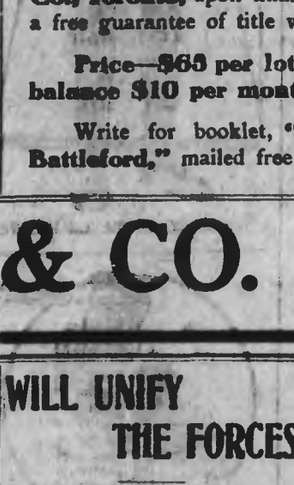
London, Aug. 14.—One great homogeneous Imperial British army, uniformly trained and equipped, is to be the outcome of the Imperial conference on the naval and military defences of the Empire held at the Foreign Office the latter part of July.

In general terms, the plan provides that all troops of self-governing colonies shall undergo precisely the same training as the home regulars in order to be ready to take their places beside the latter whenever and wherever necessity may arise.

Military training colleges along the lines of the staff college at Camberly are to be established in the oversea dominions, and there is to be a continuous interchange of officers from all parts of the Empire so as to insure absolute uniformity of organization and training.

In a recent speech outlining the probable strength of this army of the Empire, War Secretary Haldane estimated that the United Kingdom, Canada, Australia, New Zealand and South Africa could furnish a total of six divisions. This is equivalent to twenty-three army corps, which is the strength of the German army.

The Canadian Associated Press understands that the results of the military defence discussions of the Imperial Defence Conference are regarded



HON. MR. HALDANE.
The British Secretary for War.

with the highest satisfaction by the Imperial Government, and the Army Council there are certain the question of detail, which it is expedient to withhold from the general knowledge, but the main result of the military side of the conference is a complete acquiescence by the oversea delegates in the Government's proposals, the plans of which provide for the complete interchangeability of forces.

Bradford, Eng., Aug. 14.—In a speech here last night Secretary for War Haldane expressed the greatest satisfaction that the Imperial Conference on the naval and military decisions of the Empire had arrived at an agreement.

He announced that while Lord Kitchener, the newly-appointed inspector-general of the Mediterranean forces, is in Australia, Lieut.-Gen. Sir John French, commander of the First Army Corps, is going to Canada to work out the details of the plan there.

Lieut.-Gen. Sir John Denton French was one of the few brilliant commanders in the South African war, and his name, through his exploits in that campaign, is well known to Canadians. He will not be 57 years of age until Sept. 28 next, but his distinctions are many—K.C.M.G., created 1902; K.C.B., created 1900; G.C. U.O., created 1905; D.C.L., Hon. Oxon.; LL.D., Cambridge; general officer, commander-in-chief of the first class; lieutenant-colonel 19th Hussars since 1902; commanding the First Army Corps since 1901.

Beresford Not Conclusive.

London, Aug. 14.—The Imperial Defence Committee's sub-committee which was appointed to investigate the recent criticisms made by Admiral Lord Charles Beresford of the state of the navy, has issued its report, which is signed by Premier Asquith, the Earl of Crewe, the Secretary of the Colonies; Viscount Morley, Secretary for India; Sir Edward Grey, Secretary for Foreign Affairs, and Richard Burdon Haldane, Secretary for War.

The report partially exonerates the Admiralty of Admiral Beresford's charges of having endangered the country by the unwise organization and distribution of the fleet, and having too few cruisers and small craft and inefficient war plans, but it finds that both the Admiralty and Admiral Beresford are blameable for inharmonious co-operation.

Record Aeroplane Flight.

Mineola, L.I., Aug. 14.—What is said to be a record cross-country distance flight for an aeroplane in this country was made by C. Foster Willard in the Golden Flyer yesterday, when he covered 12 miles in 19 1-2 minutes.

A Long Hoof Back Home.

Kingston, Aug. 14.—John Wech, aged 60, walked from Toronto and was arrested for being drunk and disorderly on the street. He said he would hoot it back to Toronto, and was allowed to go.

T.N.O. Profits.

Toronto, Aug. 14.—Temiskaming & Northern Ontario Railway earnings continue to mount upward. The report for June shows a remarkably good state of affairs.

The gross revenue from operation for the month was $131,899. The expenses were $73,648, leaving a net revenue from operation of $58,202.

The amount received from ore royalties was $19,273, making the total net receipts $77,475, as compared with $30,573 for June, 1908.

For the six months ended June 30, the net revenue from operation was $309,174, and from ore royalties $68,356, making a total of $377,530, compared with $55,108 for the same period last year.

Two Men Killed In Pit.

Huntsville, Aug. 14.—Caught under a mass of falling gravel in the pit in which they were working, James Hughes and John Beswick met death some time yesterday afternoon.

When they had not returned to town by seven o'clock last night, a search party, fearing an accident, organized and hurried to the pit, two miles distant.

Beswick was found under nine inches of gravel and Hughes under about 15 inches. The mass had fallen several feet and the men would not know what struck them.

Hughes leaves a widow and three children.

G.T.R. FLYER IS DERAILED

Almost Simultaneously With Ditching of Part of the Sarnia Incoming Train Cars Are Thrown Off the Track at the Other End of the City — No One Is Hurt In Either Accident Yesterday.

Toronto, Aug. 14.—An unlocked switch caused the derailment of the Grand Trunk flyer from Sarnia tunnel a few hundred yards north of St. Clair avenue crossing at 7.30 last evening. Fortunately no one was hurt.

The accident happened just before dusk. The train, which consisted of engine 1,008, tender, two baggage cars, five passenger coaches and one Pullman, was running about twenty miles an hour, and when the locomotive passed over the switch, the lever sprung, sending the engine down the main line and the tender and cars on to the siding. Both engine and tender were wrenched from the track, but the coaches remained on the siding uninjured. Engineer Dan. Liddell immediately applied the emergency brakes and stopped the train in a short distance, but not before two hundred feet of roadbed had been cut to pieces. Ties were smashed to splinters, and the heavy eighty-five pound rails were twisted like so much wire.

Almost at the same time, cars attached to the Grand Trunk transfer engine jumped the rails of the Don Eastbound and piled up across the tracks blocking the G.T., C.P., and C.N.R. lines. The engine was shunting the cars ahead of it down the belt line towards the city when the leading truck failed to take the point of a cross-track, with the result that two cars were shoved along the roadbed for about 100 feet and entirely wrenched from their trucks. The upper parts of the cars were badly damaged. Another car loaded with lumber and a fifth, loaded with bricks, were but slightly damaged.

Grand Trunk Surplus.

London, Aug. 14.—Accounts of the G.T.R. for the half-year to June 30 show surplus of £279,800, and with £19,200 brought forward, this will admit payment of the full dividend on the 4 per cent. guaranteed stock and on the first preference stock, leaving about £9,000 carried forward.

Accounts of the Grand Trunk Western, including the balance brought forward, show a surplus sufficient to provide interest on the first mortgage bonds and leave a balance of about £18,000.

Heroic Police "Graft."

Omaha, Neb., Aug. 14.—When Policeman Horner recovers he will find that he is wearing the skin of eight men on his back. Some two weeks ago, while arresting a burglar, Horner was shot in the back. Horner succeeded, however, in knocking down and handcuffing the man and then collapsed. In locating the bullet the surgeons used X-rays and the flesh around the wound was so badly burned it would not heal, necessitating the grafting of new skin.

Hero For a Day.

Toronto, Aug. 14.—Yesterday he was lauded as a hero, to-day he is decried as a thief. That was the position of James R. Heard, when he appeared in police court yesterday morning. Heard was spieler for the Gem Theatre before the Hanlan's Point fire wiped out that place of amusement. It was he who saved the cashier of the place, Miss M. English. He was remanded a week on a charge of stealing two suit cases during the fire.

Lost Girl Is Found.

St. Catharines, Aug. 14.—Fifteen-year-old Lizzie Allen did not suicide after all. Last Sunday the girl left her home, leaving a note in which she said she intended to drown herself in the canal, bidding her family an affectionate goodby. Late Thursday night, Chief Greene received a phone message from the chief at Niagara Falls, N.Y., stating that the girl had been found in that city. Her parents were notified at once.

General Store Burned.

Brockville, Aug. 14.—The large general store of H. F. Judson & Son, Frankville, was destroyed by fire yesterday entailing a loss of $4,000, insurance $2,000. The blaze started from a stove, in which papers were being burned, and spread with great rapidity. Adjoining property, including the Church of England rectory, and the Dixon block were saved after a hard fight.

Italians In a Fight.

Guelph, Ont., Aug. 14.—Joseph Carratie, an Italian laborer employed in the Taylor-Forbes factory here, is fortunate that he is not held on a charge of murder.

At noon yesterday he ended a quarrel with a fellow-workman named Zeilo by hitting the latter over the head with an iron casting, cutting his head open. Zeilo will recover.

A Boy Killed.

Underwood, Aug. 14.—A sad accident occurred near here yesterday morning in which William, the 15-year-old boy of Harry Roppel, was killed. He was leading a horse back to the farm and tried to get on its back and in some way he got caught in the harness and was dragged a distance, when it was found that life was extinct.

Bankers Broken by Runaway.

Markstay, Aug. 14.—Victor Lefebvre, a strapping young man, was killed on his father's farm near here. A fractious team of horses ran away with a load of hay. In attempting to stop them he was knocked flat on his face, the heavy load passing over his back, breaking it. He lived three hours.

Killed by Bull.

Wellaville, N.Y., Aug. 14.—The body of Leslie Cald, 58 years old, a bachelor farmer, living alone near here, was found by neighbors at his barn. He had been mutilated beyond recognition by a bull. Cald has been missing for 48 hours.

BRIEFS FROM THE WIRES.

The Rainy River Radial Railway will apply to Parliament for a charter.

The youthful Shah of Persia weeps incessantly, crying to be allowed to join his father.

All the vessels of the Spanish navy have been ordered to concentrate at Melilla, Morocco.

The schooner St. Joseph was sunk near Amherstburg in collision with the ore-carrier Rockefeller.

A royal commission has been appointed to report on trade relations between Canada and the U. S.

Immigration returns for June show an increase. The number coming from the United States is increasing very fast.

The murderous Baddeck No. 1 was smashed while being tried at Petawawa. Mr. McCurdy says the engine was set too far back.

Rev. George Gilmore made serious charges against the morals of Fort Stanley at the trial of a number of cases of breach of the Lord's Day act.

Slept on Brink of Falls.

Niagara Falls, Ont., Aug. 14.—As he lay asleep on the river bank Thursday night, a movement of two inches would have hurled Patrick Whitney to a horrible death over the precipice. He was prevented from making this move by Constable F. Bell who dragged him back from his perilous situation and locked him up. Whitney came here to spend the day and feeling tired sought rest on the river bank. During his sleep he rolled near the edge and was just about to roll over the precipice when Bell rescued him.

A note inside a straw hat found at Inspiration Point yesterday morning indicates that another man has committed suicide.

"I am tired of life. (signed) C.H.K." the note read.

Wires to Hasten Meeting.

Seattle, Wash., Aug. 14.—Charles Rivers-Wilson of London, president of the Grand Trunk Railway system, and C. M. Hays of Montreal, president of the Grand Trunk Pacific, have arrived in Seattle.

"It is our intention to have terminals to be used only jointly with the Great Northern and the Northern Pacific in Vancouver," said President Hays, "as well as terminal facilities in Vancouver, and besides operating a fleet of ships in the oriental trade we are going to have a terminal in Seattle."

The Grand Trunk officials will be met at Vancouver by President Howard Eliot of the Northern Pacific and L. C. Gilman, assistant to Louis W. Hill, president of the Great Northern.

Farmer Foretold Own Death.

Goderich, Aug. 14.—[illegible] Sturdy, a wealthy Goderich [illegible] farmer, was [illegible] Thursday evening at [illegible] near Holmesville on the [illegible] river.

He had bought the [illegible] which was going to be [illegible] a new one, and when taking [illegible] they both the bridge collapsed and fell, crushing his head. He was taken to Clinton hospital, but did not regain consciousness, and died during the night.

Sturdy had two [illegible] during the day, and in connection remarked at dinner, "It seems as if I am going to be killed to-day."

Warships Off to Crete.

Malta, Aug. 14.—The British warship Swift Sure has left here for the Island of Crete. It is understood other protecting powers, Russia, Italy and France, also will send warships to Crete, as an intimation to the islanders that they are resolved to enforce respect for the rights of Turkey.

Canada to France by Wireless.

London, Aug. 14.—A Paris wire says that wireless messages from New York are received or intercepted almost daily by a military station on the Eiffel Tower. Occasionally, radio telegrams have also been received from Canada, which is believed to form a record in wireless telegraphy.

Fog Mid Strike-Breakers.

Pittsburg, Aug. 14.—Taking advantage of a heavy fog, which enshrouded the Ohio River early yesterday, the Pressed Steel Car Co. landed about 400 new men at McKee's Rocks, whom they succeeded in getting into the plant before the strikers' pickets were aware of the move.

Hundreds Homeless by Fire.

Milton, Del., Aug. 14.—Almost the entire town of Milton was destroyed by fire early yesterday, nearly 100 houses, a lumber yard and a bank building were destroyed. The loss will exceed $400,000. Several hundred persons were made homeless.

Stolen Mail Bag Found.

Brighton, Aug. 14.—The mail bag stolen from Brighton depot on June 1 was found yesterday on Johnson's farm, about a mile east of Brighton, by Thomas Kenny. It has been cut completely in two, and most of the letters had been opened. It is claimed that a gold watch and diamond ring was in this particular mail, but no trace of them, except the wooden box, was found.

Where Uncle Tom Was Sold.

Lexington, Ky., Aug. 14.—The court house at Washington, Mason County, in which "Uncle Tom" of Uncle Tom's Cabin fame, was sold, was struck by lightning, and destroyed yesterday. The building was erected in 1794.

It was the sale of an aged negro at this place that gave Harriet Beecher Stowe the basis for her story.

Famous Philatelist Suicides.

Syracuse, N.Y., Aug. 14.—John F. Seybold, world-famous philatelist and well-known merchant of this city, shot himself to death in his store early yesterday morning. He suffered a nervous breakdown three weeks ago and has been despondent ever since. Mr. Seybold's stamp collection is said to be worth $100,000.

Gramophone Too Noisy.

Kingston, Aug. 14.—Robert Lipton, Princess Theatre, has been summoned, charged with allowing a gramophone to make too much noise. It is the first case arising since the anti-noise by-law passed by the City Council.

"A TALE OF TEXAS"

A most beautiful and pathetic story of life in Texas, depicting the life of an honest cowboy, who is wrongfully accused and arrested, but afterwards released. It is a most interesting picture and one of the best shown of Western Cowboy Life.

"SHERLOCK HOLMES"

This is one of the famous detective stories in which the world-known detective "Sherlock Holmes" takes the chief part. It is one of the best detective stories so far shown on a moving picture curtain.

BATHERS DROWNED

Clerk in Bank of Montreal at Eglinton Loses His Life in Surf at Centre Island—One Lad Drowns and Another is Rescued After Heroic Struggle While Bathing at Woodbine Beach Saturday.

Toronto, Aug. 16.—E. G. H. Evans, clerk in the Eglington branch of the Bank of Montreal, was drowned in the lake off Centre Island at the foot of Manitou road at 4.30 yesterday afternoon.

He was bathing with a number of friends at the time, but on account of the rapidly rising sea, his companions had all come ashore, and he was attempting to follow when the undertow dragged him down. At the time he was within 50 feet of the shore.

Fraser Bryce, Edward Marriott and Geoffrey Hill were in the party. They had decided that the surf was getting too strong, and started ashore together. As the three neared the beach, they turned and saw Evans being carried out by the current. A plank was thrown to him, but he went under just before it reached him.

Evans was 29 years old. His relations live in Sudbury. He had been for some time in the Yonge and Richmond streets branch of the Bank of Montreal, but about six weeks ago was removed to the Eglinton branch.

Victor Miville, aged 11, son of Hospice A. Miville, a painter, living at 108 Carlaw avenue, was drowned and three other boys had a narrow escape while swimming in the lake at Woodbine Beach Saturday afternoon.

When the sea came up the four boys did not think it was dangerous and did not go ashore. At 3.45, while wading through the billows, they all stepped into a hole and the waves threw them off their feet. Russel Oak and Matthew Stone, aged about 14, succeeded in regaining their feet after a struggle and getting to safety. Alfred and Victor Miville, brothers, disappeared from view.

Their cries alarmed several men who were sitting on the verandahs of their homes, some distance away. Fred Bragg and Albert Quinlan, both of Woodbine Beach, went, without disrobing, to the rescue.

After a hard struggle Bragg brought Alfred ashore, but the brother went down despite Quinlan's efforts and his body was washed ashore 20 minutes later.

Boy Drowns While Fishing.

Hamilton, Aug. 16.—John Murray, the 10-year-old son of Mrs. John Murray, was drowned in the Trent Saturday morning. He was fishing off the cribwork of the dam and slipped in.

Drowned in the Niagara.

Niagara Falls, N.Y., Aug. 16.—The body of a man, 45 years old, five feet ten inches in height, and weighing 150 pounds, was taken from the Whirlpool yesterday. The little hair on his head was light-colored. Identification may be established by a clover-leaf pin set with a brilliant. The body had been in the water only a short time.

THE WEATHER.

After a spell of dry weather for some weeks a number of refreshing showers fell yesterday, which will have a beneficial effect on the country generally. The total rainfall was .65 of an inch on the level—though not a very heavy fall the rain came down gently and had every chance to soak into the parched ground.

The Wage Question

It is the duty of every man to secure a "Raise." An increase will bring much: a better home; better clothes; better provision for those dependent and more of everything that goes to make life broader and better.

The business of this place is to raise salaries. During the year of 1908 over 5000 students voluntarily reported an increase in their salary. Let us explain our system to you at

THE STRIKERS AT FORT WILLIAM GO BACK

Trouble Will be Submitted to Arbitration—Men Were Only Out a Week—Mass Meeting of 5000 Men is Addressed by Mayor Pelletier and Labourers Agree to Leave Their Grievance to a Board.

Fort William, Aug. 16.—The striking C.P.R. freight handlers returned to work to-day.

A mass meeting of 5,000 strikers and friends was held yesterday afternoon, and was addressed by Mayor Pelletier, who urged the men to resume employment and submit their grievances to a board of arbitration under the Lemieux Disputes Act. General Manager Bury of the Canadian Pacific had previously given his consent to the mayor to take the men back if they agreed to arbitration.

The strikers were inclined to demand the release of 15 companions sent to jail for rioting conduct, and they also wanted the withdrawal of the troops, but Mayor Pelletier replied that the law must take its course.

Finally, the strikers accepted the mayor's proposal, and were given 36 hours within which to return to employment with the company. Nearly 150 strike-breakers arrived yesterday morning, making 650 workers to-day, enabling the steamer Manitoba to unload and get away.

Of all the foreign strikers, the Greeks are declared to be the most dangerous. While only one striker was actually found with a revolver and locked up, several revolvers were found on the ground apparently dropped by strikers on seeing they were going to be searched. Another feature was that of the many weapons seized, only two showed signs of recent use, confirming the opinion that the weapons used in Thursday's fight had safely been hidden away, probably in the bush.

Acland Will Go.

Ottawa, Aug. 16.—Hon. W. L. Mackenzie King, Minister of Labor, received yesterday a telegram from the strike committee of the freight handlers at Fort William, Ont., requesting the intervention of the Department, and F. A. Acland, the Deputy Minister, who was so successful in bringing to a conclusion the longshoremen's strike at Montreal two years ago, leaves for Fort William to-day.

SHOCKING MURDER NEAR SIMCOE YESTERDAY

Eighty Year Old Michael Hall Shot at His Home and Instantly Killed—Four Shots Fired Into His Wife—Sixteen Year Old Boy is Arrested on a Charge of Being Murderer.

Special to The Examiner (2.45 p.m.)

Simcoe, Ont., Aug. 16.—A shocking crime was committed near the Village of Walsh, ten miles west of Simcoe, in Charlotteville township yesterday afternoon. Michael Holl, 80 years of age, and nearly blind, was returning to his house after assisting in the evening's chores at the barn when just as he was entering his door he was shot from behind and fell dead on the threshold. Two more shots were fired into the prostrate body by the murderer who then fled. News of the matter being telephoned to the county police at Simcoe, Constable Austin was sent to the scene of the crime and arrested Emery Shelly, aged 16 years who it is said had been quarreling with the old man. Mrs. Hall, according to report was also shot. Four bullets it is said being fired into her body. She is still alive, however, and may recover.

LITTLE BRITAIN VISITED BY A DISASTROUS BLAZE—THE DAMAGE WILL BE HEAVY

Little Britain, Aug. 14.—Fire which threatened to develop in a conflagration that would sweep all the village from one end to the other, broke out in the grocery store of R. S. Robertson, King street, about 2:30 p.m. to-day. Most of the structures in the block were frame, and with a brisk breeze blowing and in the absence of any fire fighting apparatus, there was keen apprehension. So serious was the situation considered that besides hurry up calls sent to othe villages of Oakwood and Valencia, a few miles away, Reeve Varcoe wired Chief Thompson of the Toronto Fire Department for assistance, about 5:30 p.m. A special train with a steam engine and two hose sections with a detachment of 10 men arrived to-night, about 8 p.m., but the fire was under control.

The damage is estimated to have been $30,000, the fire having consumed ten buildings. The blaze was brought to a standstill on reaching the corner of the street, the bucket brigade succeeding in preventing the flames from sweeping across the intervening street to a business block on the other side although for a time it looked as though the fiery march could not be stayed.

The sufferers by the conflagration, which extended over 10 or 12 acres are:

R. S. Robertson, grocery store, carriage factory and residence, $3,000.
A. L. Kinnear, general store and residence, $8,000.
J. Jones, implement shop, $1,100.
Wm. Rudd, hotel, $1,000.
W. E. Yeies, implement shop, $1,600
A. J. Rich, tailor shop and house, $2,000.
Mrs. Sale's house, $1,400.
J. J. Sham's house, $1,400.

With the exception of Rich's tailor shop all the buildings are of frame construction.

The cause of the blaze is not known. Flameswer e observed in the rear of Robertson's grocery, and spread rapidly. They speedily enveloped the carriage factory adjoining, and it was seen that the whole block was in peril. A strong wind from the southeast was blowing. A bucket brigade was formed, but could do little. A fire engine arrived from Oakwoodo later in the afternoon, but broke down on the first attempt to use it. More effective work was done, however, by 2 hand engine water tanks to which lengths of 2½ in. hose were attached, two teams being kept busy drawing water from a nearby creek.

The fire caused great excitement for miles around, hundreds of farmers and residents of villages within a 10 mile radius being attracted as well as many from Lindsay two miles away.

House Destroyed By Fire While Family Was Absent Origin Entirely Unknown

Saturday Night's Fire Wiped Out Wellington Asling's Home in Auburn—Nothing Saved—The Brigade Unable to Lend Help.

WIFE IN HOSPITAL

The fire that destroyed the house occupied by Wellington Asling, Concession street, near the Auburn Woollen mills, after nine o'clock on Saturday night originated from causes which have not yet been explained. Mr. Asling, who is employed as shoemaker with Mr. J. W. Carey, George street, left home in the morning and bringing the food with him had dinner and tea in the shop. He locked the house up as his wife and family are in Toronto. While finishing the week-end work about ten o'clock a boy rushed into the repair department of the shop and asking if Mr. Asling were present brusquely broke the news to him that his house was burned to the ground. Apparently the origin of the fire is a mystery as none of the neighbours could tell anything about it and Mr. John Dunnett, who sent in the alarm from box 59 states that it had made considerable headway before being noticed.

The house is a one storey building on the west side of the road, and a few hundred yards from the Lakefield line of the G.T.R. tracks. It was a one storey building but was roomy and had adjoining it a large shed and barn. To the Examiner Mr. Dunnett stated that he saw the blaze through the window from his yard. It was in the east end of the house and had reached extensive proportions when first noticed. After sounding the alarm Mr. Dunnett tried to break in the front door, but found it locked and at that time the interior was in the clutches of the fire fiend. Buildings and barns were entirely of wood and offered a dainty morsel to the flames which devoured everything inflammable entirely unhampered by the Fire Department which was powerless to lend assistance owing to the distance of the nearest hydrant. A strong breeze was blowing from the south and by the time the brigade arrived the building was practically gutted.

The flames licked and curled their long tongues from house to shed and quickly passed on to the large barn, and within an hour everything had been wiped clean leaving but a heap of ashes. Nothing was saved to the occupant who arrived at his home to witness the flames conclude their destructive work.

Origin Unknown

From the fact that no one is known to have been in the house during the day, there have been a number of rumours as to the cause of the conflagration. A few days ago Mr. Asling found the screen torn off one of the front windows as if someone had tried to get inside. There is a fine orchard on the premises and Mr. Asling states that during the past week he has lost a large quantity of apples, some persons having had free license to the grounds and helped themselves to the ripening fruit. Other incidents of this kind have been reported and there is a feeling that the fire may have been started by someone who was around the premises on Saturday night, but it seems strange that it should have originated inside.

Fortune has not treated Mr. Asling kindly by adding this trouble to those he has already experienced. His wife is in Toronto being treated by a specialist for an abscess behind one ear and the children are also in the Queen City. Several years ago the father buried five children within one week.

THE LAND OF HOPE

A few years ago, Canada, except among a few politicians, officially bound to take perfunctory cognisance of its existance, was a negligible quantity among the mass of the British people at home. We have changed all that. Now all the journals direct attention to this country and its resources, and even that most conservative element, finance, in taking an increasing interest in Canada. The World of London acquired from Lord Northcliffe, by a company devotes, in the issue of July 27th, its "Portfolio" department to Canada. This consists of sixteen folio pages containing, in addition to appreciative and informing letter press, numerous beautiful photogravures of Canadian public buildings, farm scenes, fishing scenes, harbour scenes orchard scenes, harvesting scenes, hunting and other scenes, some of them half-page, to the number of some thirty-five. The views are admirably selected to show the varied resources and varied attractiveness of natural and created beauty. Complementary to othe illustrations and descriptive matter is an editorial article on Canada, under the suggestive heading "The Land of Hope." An extract or two will show the spirit of the article: "Our Portfolio this week is concerned with Canada. The camera sets forth something of the manifold beauties, the pen something of the equally manifold possibilities of the Dominion, but neither the most successful photograph, nor the most graphic description can do justice to her glories. As a people we British are somewhat unimaginative, and there are only too many who are incredulous of anything they have not seen with their own eyes. Yet, though it will be a long time before our pessimists allow us to become a truly Imperial people, confident in our Imperial strength, we have even now at least begun to regard the British democracies overseas, as reserves of power. It is a great change from the opinion that the colonies were burdens, so generally held only a generation ago, and it has been brought about by the combined action of many factors, chief among which must be placed the amazing record of Canadian development. • • • To strengthen Canada is to strengthen the Empire; for the Imperial idea owes much to the strong and triumphant national life of the Dominion. • • • Canada, which has triumphed over the past, realises herself in the present and confronts the future with almost infinite resources, may indeed boast herself the land of glory and of hope." Elsewhere in the financial pages attention is directed to the superior advantages of Canada as a field for British investment and tables are given to show that Canadian investments generally carry a higher rate of profit than even those of the Motherland. We have reason to be proud—thankfully proud—of our country, and every day we have greater insentive to that national unity of effort, and the exercise of the national pride and spirit, that place the interests, the future and the destiny of our beloved country in the forefront of our outlook and most deeply centred in the heart of our ambition.

WHEN THE LORDS GAVE WAY.

It may be interesting at this particular juncture in British politics, when a fresh conflict seems likely between the House of Commons and the House of Lords in reference to the Budget Bill to cast one's mind back to the last occasion upon which the two chambers came to a deadlock over a Finance bill.

In 1860 William Ewart Gladstone secured the assent of the House of Commons to the abolition of the paper duties, thereby securing the real freedom of the press. The Lords rejected that bill. The House of Commons immediately after re-affirmed their rights and privileges by passing the following resolution:

That the right of granting aids and supplies to the Crown is in the Commons alone, as an essential part of their constitution, and the limitation of all such grants as to matter, manner, measure, and time.

That although the Lords have exercised the power of rejecting bills of several descriptions relative to taxation by negativing the whole, yet the exercise of that power by them has not been frequent and is justly regarded by this House with peculiar jealousy, as affecting the right of the Commons to grant the supplies and to provide the Ways and Means for the service of the year;

That to guard for the future against an undue exercise of that power by the Lords, and to secure to the Commons their rightful control over taxation and Supply, the House has in its own hands the power so to impose and remit taxes and to frame Bills of Supply that the right of the Commons as to the matter, manner, measure, and time may be maintained inviolate.

At the next session, in 1861, Gladstone presented in one omnibus Finance Bill the repeal of the paper duties, the increase of the property tax, the tea and sugar duties, and the other ways and means for the service of the year; and that Bill the Lords did not attempt to reject. And after that submission by the Lords, Gladstone said in the House of Commons that "the House of Lords, for 'its misconduct, was deservedly extinguished, in effect, as to all matters of finance." Since 1861 the House of Commons has always combined all the budget provisions in one omnibus Finance Bill. Before that date the rule was not to bind the financial sticks into a fagot though it had been done, notably by Pitt in 1787.

The House of Lords must accept the Finance Bill as it comes from the Commons, or reject it in toto. But, though the Lords may reject a Finance Bill—which they have never done—they have no power of changing the Executive Government of Great Britain. That rests with the people, and no doubt the people will declare for an equitable readjustment of taxation.

EDITORIAL NOTES.

The immense crops in the west prove the necessity for building the Grand Trunk Pacific Railway which the Conservatives did their best to prevent.

In Manitoba, Saskatchewan, and Alberta, the estimated wheat yield this year is 157,464,000 bushels. Last year at the same date it was 110,524,000 bushels.

Mr. R. L. Borden, leader of the Conservative party, after witnessing the performances of the Ross rifle at Bisley, acknowledged its superiority, and announced that so far as he was concerned the matter was out of politics. Mr. Borden, unlike many of his followers, does not allow his party feelings to overbear his common sense and patriotism.

BUSINESS AND STRONG DRINK

(Philadelphia North American.)

The employer virtually says to the workman: "You can drink what you please, when you please. But if you please to indulge in habits which would impair your efficiency and increase danger to your fellow-workmen and to my property, you must find work elsewhere." The attitude is practically the same as that of the banker who will not tolerate visits by any clerk or teller, however trusted and capable, to race tracks or gambling houses. The railroads almost without exception now prohibit employees from using intoxicants while off duty as well as on. The geniality of the old-time, hard-drinking commercial traveller no longer is deemed an asset by wholesale houses. Scientific salesmanship, as well as modern manufacture and transportation, demands more and more the elimination of drunkenness.

FIELDING'S GREAT RECORD

(London, Eng. World.)

The Hon. William Stevens Fielding, who is now in Londono, has held the portfolio of minister of finance in the Dominion Cabinet ever since his party came into office in 1896. By introducing twelve consecutive budgets he has achieved a record in the history of the Empire unequalled, even at Westminster, since the time of William Pitt, who combined the office of chancellor of the exchequer with the premiership from 1783 to 1801. Indeed, Mr. Fielding has been for more than twenty-five years continuously a minister of the crown, which is a still more remarkable record in parliamentary history. His career as minister of finance must excite the envy of Mr. Lloyd-George, for, without imposing taxation which has called forth political passion and party cleavages, he has seen the revenue of Canada grow from $37,892,000 to over $96,000,000 during his administration. And in the same period the net public debt per capita has fallen from $50.82 in 1896 to $45.72 in 1909. Moreover, during the last twelve years, though $212,500,000 has been spent upon capital account, chiefly in the construction of great public works of benefit to the entire community, such as railways, canals, and the general improvement of transportation facilities, the increase to the net debt has only been $65,000,000, showing that $147,000,000, or 65 per cent. of this capital expenditure, has been met out of the ordinary revenue of the country.

"MARTIAL LAW"

(Toronto News.)

A disturbance has taken place in Fort William and the military have been called in to aid the civil power. Therefore certain newspapers announce that "martial law" has been proclaimed. Martial law has not been proclaimed. The ordinary law of the land prevails at Fort William exactly as it does in Toronto. The only change in the situation is that the civil power, which formerly relied for its enforcement on constables, now has the additional assistance of some military people. The status of those militiamen differs in no whit from that of the constables already employed, or of any other law-abiding citizens who may aid in the enforcement of the law.

If the militia arrest any man they do so as agents of the civil power and he will be tried by the ordinary civil process in the ordinary courts of the land. If in maintaining order the militia exceed the just measure of force required and inflict unnecessary injuries upon any man, they can be sued in the civil courts and punished, exactly as if the assault had been made by a man in plain clothes. The officer who issues an unnecessarily severe order, the private who injures one of his Majesty's subjects in obeying that order, are equally liable to trial and punishment. The ordinary civil law of the land prevails and its away is not diminished by the fact that disorders arise.

In the ordinary sense in which the term is used, there is no such thing as martial law in time of peace in a British country. It does exist in various foreign countries. In Continental Europe during civil commotions it is customary to declare a "state of siege." This means that the ordinary law of the land is abrogated for the time being; that the ordinary courts cease to exercise their functions; that the whole administration of the district in question is taken over by the military authorities; that offences committed by any person whatever are punished by tribunals convened under military authority and presumably composed of soldiers. Absolutely no such state of affairs can exist in a British country. In a time of actual war, however, martial law maye be and is established in the district subject to its ravages. This is purely an incident of what the Americans term the "war power." For example, certain districts of South Africa were under martial law during the period from 1899 to 1902.

DOES YOU EAT HEARTILY?

Or Is Every Good Meal Followed By Discomfort?

So certain are we that "Little Digesters" will cure Indigestion every time—for every person—for YOU—that we will give you your money back without a word if they fail.

You can enjoy a good, hearty meal of wholesome food three times a day, if you take a tablet after each meal.

Read how "Little Digesters" cured Mr. Thody.

"For two years I suffered with Indigestion, and obtained no relief from anything I took, including several prescriptions from prominent physicians. Every meal was followed by acute pain until I feared to eat, consequently became run down for lack of nourishment. "Little Digesters" were recommended to me by a friend and I tried them with remarkable results, two boxes completely curing me. It is three months since I took any, and I have not suffered a pain, no matter how heartily I eat. I would certainly recommend them to anybody suffering with Indigestion." (Signed) E. THODY.

HOUSE DESTROYED BY FIRE WHILE FAMILY WAS ABSENT

during an epidemic of diptheria. It is learned that on Saturday he was considering purchasing a cow as he had a large supply of hay in the barn. He is now practically homeless as nothing whatever was saved from the house or barns.

The fire proved a magnet to the Saturday evening shoppers who believed that the blaze which illuminated the northern shy was raging in the Woollen mills and in a short time hundreds had collected about the place silently watching the buildings disappear in the flames.

Mr. Asling was seen this morning by the Examiner. It was learned that he was unable to secure any clue to the cause of the fire. The place was owned by Mr. John Kemp, and was partially insured to the extent of $300, and the same amount was held by Mr. Asling on his effects, all of which exist no more. He was taken in by his sister on Saturday night, and for the present is living at her home. To-day he was back at his bench in J. W. Carey's shop apparently trying to look upon the loss in as philosophic a manner as possible.

WEEK-END AT STONY LAKE WAS VERY DAMP

Special to The Examiner.

The many Peterborough people who came up on Saturday for the week end, ran into a very disagreeable Sunday yesterday, and, as a result, the lake had a most unusually dreary appearance. Early in the morning it commenced to rain, and for the greater part of the day there were heavy showers, aided and abetted by a strong wind from the south east that made a choppy sea and kept people to their island homes. Very few boats were out all day and it was a case of stay at home for the visitors. Even those who have been spending some time at the lake complained rather unreasonably when the grand weather of the past three weeks is considered.

The season is at its height just now but the next week will mark the commencing of the exodus. Just now, however, nearly every cottage is open and the up-coming boats bring fresh crowds every day. Mr. Graham Ferguson of Toronto, spent Sunday at Syndicate Island, the guest of his parents, Mr. and Mrs. W. G. Ferguson.

Mr. A. B. Mitchell, of Sunnyside, has purchased a trim gasoline launch, which arrived on Saturday, and which was taken up to his cottage by the Majestic.

Col. Stevenson came up to his cottage on Juniper Island on Saturday night for the week end.

Miss Marjorie Shuter of the staff of the Buffalo Express, who has been spending the past three weeks at Stony Lake, the guest of Mrs. Bliss, returned home this morning.

Mr. Henry Altman, Jr., of Buffalo, N.Y., who has been the guest of Mrs. Bliss for the past month, left to-day to join his mother on a holiday in the Lake-of-Bays district.

Mr. Rich. Hall spent the week end at Anchorage.

FRUIT—THE GREAT PHYSICIAN

Wonderful Medicinal Value of Apples, Oranges, Figs and Prunes.

How many people realize what remarkable curative principles are contained in fruit juices. There are two—the bitter and the sweet. There is about ten times as much of the sweet as of the bitter, though the bitter principle is the one which has the curative effect on disease. Apples, oranges, figs and prunes contain the highest percentage of bitter principle and thus are the most beneficial.

It was a theory of a physician in Ottawa, that if the amount of bitter principle in fruit juice could be doubled, the curative property would be increased, not twice but many times.

After many tests, this physician succeeded in forcing into the combined fruit juices an additional atom of bitter principle, and in doing so formed an entirely new compound. To the combined juices were added valuable tonics and antiseptics and the whole made into tablets.

These are "Fruit-a-tives"—the only remedy known to science that is made of fruit. The wonderful cures in cases of Stomach Trouble, Biliousness, Constipation, Rheumatism, Chronic Headaches and Neuralgia, Kidney, Liver and Skin Diseases are due solely to the fact that "Fruit-a-tives" contain the medicinal properties of fruit. 50c a box, 6 for $2.50, or trial box, 25c. ## Sin's Small Beginnings—Suggestions—Craving—Desire—Yielding—Absorption—Destruction.

Sandusky, O., Aug. 15.—"Man is tempted when he is drawn away of his own desires and enticed. Then, when desire has conceived, it bringeth forth sin; and sin, when it is finished, bringeth forth death" (James i, 14, 15).

In proportion to our intelligence we all know that sin abounds in the world; and more than this, that there are tendencies toward sin in our own flesh. The Scriptural declaration is, "I was born in sin and shapen in iniquity, and in sin did my mother conceive me" (Psalm li, 5). The explanation of these conditions is found only in the Bible, which tells us that the beginning of sin was in Eden, and that its painful influence has descended from parent to child until now, and that there was but one complete remedy for it, which is beyond our power, but provided for us by our Creator through his glorious Son, who redeemed us.

The Bible is God's message to all those who are desirous of learning the Divine standard and choosing and fighting a good fight against the wrong, against sin wherever found; but especially against sin and weakness toward sin in ourselves. The more truly we discern the true philosophies for sin and the Divine remedy, the better we are prepared to resist it—forewarned we are forearmed.

However it may be explained, the fact remains that the world of mankind, heathen and civilized, realizing sin, feels conscience-stricken and anticipates punishment of some kind for violation of recognized laws and principles of our being. Ignorance, superstition, mental unbalance and theory, supported by priestcraft, have led mankind, heathen and civilized, into a fear of an eternity of torture as a punishment for sins. This the Apostle calls, "Doctrines of demons" (I. Timothy iv, 1). And no doubt the demons were responsible in some measure for the deduction of this doctrine of eternal torment; because fear is one of the most powerful influences they can bring to bear upon fallen humanity as they seek to captivate them to sin. Those who have had much to do with Spiritism (thinking that they were communicating with their dead friends, but really fellowshiping with fallen angels, called demons in the Scriptures), tell us that at the beginning these "lying spirits" gained control of their wills by telling them that they should pray much, even while presenting to them alluring, sinful suggestions (I. Timothy iv., 1). As a later step they tell them that everything is glorious and everybody happy "in the spirit land," and that sins of the present life are unimportant matters. Later on they prick their subjects' consciences and work upon their fears and tell them that their case is hopeless and that they will soon have them fully in their power and torment them forever. With despair come utter abandonment and a willingness to treat with the "evil spirits." This is sometimes followed by obsession and not infrequently reason is entirely dethroned and the victim becomes an inmate of an asylum.

The safeguard against all of these delusions and misrepresentations is found in a correct understanding of God's Word—the Bible. In proportion as its teachings are understood and followed the mind is relieved of those "doctrines of demons" and given a rational understanding of what sin is and of what its real penalty consists. Obedience to its instructions brings proportionate measures of harmony with God and righteousness and results in love, joy, peace and a holy spirit or disposition.

Many experience great difficulty in ridding their minds of the "doctrines of demons"—that the wages of sin is eternal torment. They find it difficult to believe the Truth on the subject, which the Scriptures present, namely, that "The wages of sin is death; but the gift of God is eternal life, through Jesus Christ our Lord" (Romans vi, 23). God's proposition is that all sinners against his just laws, after full opportunity, shall be "utterly destroyed" (Thessalonians i, 9; Acts iii, 23). The power of eternal life resides in God, and he assures us that he will not give it to any except those who come into harmony with him. Eternal life has not been thrust upon our race. It is entirely contrary to the Scriptures to assert that man must live somewhere to all eternity, either in joy or anguish. The Scriptures assure us to the contrary of this—"All the wicked will be destroyed."

Our Lord declares that God is able to destroy both soul and body in Gehenna. He who alone has the power of eternal life has made no provision whereby sinners can obtain it and thus injure themselves and discredit the Divine Government to all eternity. The gift of God is eternal life, and that gift will be bestowed only upon those who demonstrate a heart desire in harmony with God and acceptance of his provisions for their recovery from sin and death through his Appointed Way—Jesus Christ the Righteous. Thus we read, "He that believeth on the Son hath everlasting life; and he that believeth not the Son, shall not see life; but "the wrath of God abideth on him" (John iii, 36).

The experience of our first parents well illustrates the lesson of our text. Mother Eve's desire for knowledge should have confined itself to the Divine limitations; but she permitted it to wander disloyally. Evidently she turned over in her mind how wonderful must be the wisdom of God, and how she would like to possess as much as the serpent suggested she might have, if she would but disobey God and eat the forbidden fruit. We can imagine that she had qualms of conscience—that she hesitated to disobey. But to even stop to consider the pleasures, the advantages, the desirability of transgression was to leave her mind open to a fresh assault. The serpent's next move was to suggest to her a reason why her Creator had forbidden the eating of the fruit, namely, that God knew that this would make them wise as himself, and that he did not wish for equals in knowledge, but desired to keep them in a condition of mental slavery through ignorance. Such a suggestion should have been spurned by Eve, and was, no doubt, rejected at first. No doubt she brought forth arguments to prove the merciful graciousness and generosity of the Creator and that such an evil, selfish and ignoble spirit as the serpent suggested could not possibly belong to her Creator. But the wrong was in giving the least countenance to those suggestions of disobedience. They should have been promptly set aside. Stopping to speculate or reason is merely opening the door for further bewilderment. In the language of our text, she was "drawn away by her own desire and was enticed"; then, when desire had conceived, the sinful act of eating the forbidden fruit resulted.

How does desire conceive? We answer, The mind entertains the desire, warms it, vitalizes it, reflects upon what advantages or pleasures would result; enters into and enjoys these forbidden pleasures mentally. Thus Mother Eve reflected that no doubt the forbidden fruit was specially delicious to the palate, luscious; more than this, that the enlightenment of mind would bring to her vistas of thought far beyond anything she and Adam had ever previously imagined. Thus her desire for knowledge conceived and gradually, perhaps in moments, perhaps in hours, perhaps in days, developed more and more the thought of the joys and pleasures to result from the act of disobedience—until practically the whole of life was absorbed in this one desire, any everything else of her glorious and proper blessings on every hand was practically forgotten and ignored. Finally the irresistible moment came. She took the fruit. She ate it; sin was born, and the wage of death would follow in due course.

The main thing to be noticed is that the admission of evil desire into our hearts, into our wills, is the beginning of sin—the conception of sin. After the conception it is only a matter of time until it shall be born, unless in some manner that sinful desire be quenched, be killed. Even then it will be with serious consequences that the wrongly conceived sin will be gotten rid of. The lesson is, as the Apostle suggests in the text, the keeping of our hearts, our minds, so the desires shall not conceive therein. This means a loyalty to God and to the truth and to righteousness, about which the world in general knows little. It means that many kinds of desires and ambitions may be begotten in the heart and lead on to one kind or another kind of sinful development. Let us then hearken to the Lord, "Keep thy heart with all diligence; for out of it are the issues of life" (Proverbs iv. 23).

Eternal life or eternal death is the issue, not eternal happiness or eternal misery. True, under God's provision, all who get eternal life will thereby get eternal happiness; but all who fail to get the eternal life or happiness in God's provision will get eternal death, the Second Death, utter extinction. As St. Peter declares, they shall be "as brute beasts, made to be taken and destroyed" (II. Peter ii, 12). And St. Paul says, "They shall be punished with everlasting destruction from the presence of the Lord"—not with everlasting torment (II. Thessalonians i, 9).

We have seen how sin entered, and that its wage or penalty of Divine decree is death—extinction. And we have seen that mental, moral and physical imperfections are merely elements of our dying process. If this were all that the Bible had to tell us, it would be valueless to us, for why philosophize over a fact if it could not in any sense or degree be avoided? If there were no hope, as the Apostle suggests, we might as well eat, drink and be merry and make no attempt specially to strive against sin, and thus to bring ourselves into conflict with the weaknesses of our own natures and our evil environment. But, as the Scriptures declare, "There is forgiveness with thee, that thou mayest be feared" (Psalm cxxx, 4). The very fact that God has provided the forgiveness and made possible an escape from the original death sentence and return to his favor—eternal life—makes life worth living and puts a new ambition, a new hope, a new energy into all those who come to an understanding of it.

If we were dealing with fallen men like ourselves instead of with God, we might say that some men would change their word and others would not. But when we think of the unchangeable God we feel convinced that the sentence he once pronounced must stand. The great Supreme Judge of the Universe, in the findings of his own court, will not retract his just sentence, "Dying, thou shalt die." Hence we would not be inclined to expect eternal life from him who declares against us as a race that "the wages of sin is death."

That philosophy once seen is convincing to the last degree. Briefly stated, it is that "By one man sin entered into the world, and death by sin; and so death passed upon all men, for that all have sinned;" because all except the first man were sinners by heredity (Romans v, 12). In other words, the sentence of death was pronounced only against Father Adam. Everybody else who dies merely shares in his sentence under the natural laws of heredity. Then God condescendingly explains to us the philosophy of how that one man's sins being met, the merit can be made applicable to all of his posterity, so that the death of one righteous man could satisfy the claims of justice against the race as a whole.

But we inquire, where could the one man be found who would be willing to surrender his own life for that of Adam and his race? And if such a generous man could be found how could he, as a member of the condemned race, be acceptable to justice as man's Ransom Price? The Scriptures again explain that no such man could be found amongst Adam's race, and that therefore God so loved the world that he gave his Son to be our Redeemer. Then the query comes, Would it be just for God to give his Son? And the answer is Scripturally given, that He set before his Son a great joy, a high reward, and that the Son, fully in accord with his Father, delighted to do his will—"For the joy that was set before him, endured the cross, despising the shame" (Hebrews xii. 2). We are assured that the reward for this great transaction is a great one. The Apostle, after describing how our Lord, our Redeemer, first left the glory of the heavenly estate and humbled himself to take the human nature and was then found obedient unto death, even the death of the cross, then adds, "Wherefore, God also hath highly exalted him, and given him a name which is above every name; that at the name of Jesus every knee should bow, of things in heaven, and things in earth, and things under the earth; and that every tongue should confess that Jesus Christ is Lord, to the glory of God the Father" (Philippians ii, 9-13).

As we were all born in sin as the children of Adam, all must be born again if they would become the children of God. Many have failed to notice the Scriptural teaching that out of our race God intends to produce two families of sons on different planes of being. The one class, begotten and born of the spirit, will be resurrected, be born spirit beings, like unto the angels. The other class, begotten again to human conditions, will experience resurrection (Acts iii, 19-21) favors, by which they will be recovered from sin and death conditions and ultimately come to human perfection and righteousness. These will not be like unto the angels, but be like unto Adam in his sinless condition before the condemnation. The curse will be removed not only from these, but also from their earthly home, which will then become as Eden, the garden of the Lord—Paradise restored. Our Lord pointed out the time of the world's regeneration, in full harmony with St. Peter's words above cited, saying to his disciples, "In the regeneration ye that have followed me shall sit upon twelve thrones, judging the twelve tribes of Israel" (Matthew xix, 28). The regeneration time, or resurrection time, has not yet come; hence the apostles are not upon the thrones of Israel; but instead, the twelve tribes are still under the Gentile domination. And Gentile domination, in Scriptural language, means the times in which Satan is the Prince of this world, "Who now worketh in the hearts of the children of disobedience."

The apostles are not to sit upon the twelve thrones of Israel until the Second Coming of our Lord and the binding of Satan and establishing of the Kingdom; hence the time of Restitution, or times of Regeneration, for mankind are yet future. When that happy day shall have fully dawned it will mean a sweet release of the world from the power of sin and death, to which all but the saintly few are now in slavery. In the Jewish order of reckoning time, night came first and day afterward. Thus the world has already been passing through a night time of darkness, ignorance, superstition and sorrow, the results of sin and death. But the redeeming merits of Jesus have provided the Millennial Day, which will soon be ushered in and chase away forever the shadows of sin and death. No wonder the poet sang:

"O, hail happy day
That speaks all sorrows ending!"

The Psalmist refers to the same glorious day, saying, "Weeping may endure for a night, but joy cometh in the morning."

A City of Canoes.

Gowganda might be called the City of Canoes. There is a Venetian aspect about the little six months' old silver city, for the waterways form the principal means of getting back to civilization or farther back from the frontier. Here and there canoes are dragged up on the shore, while others, sped by the paddle, strike westward, southward and northward during every hour of daylight.

At the foot of the main street a big white launch looms up alongside the flotilla of canoes like the Lusitania among a lot of river tugs or ferries. Tents dot the landscape here and there among the larger and more permanent buildings of log or board.

As Gowganda is supposed to be a dry town, a realistic touch is given by a sign which bears the words "Gowganda Saloon," but only soft drinks are served. Down at the water front is a unique institution called the "Gowganda Canoe Exchange." Another building boasts a signboard bearing the words "Quick Lunch." Three reading chartered banks carry conspicuous signs which indicate that the monetary business of the camp is well looked after.

French Money For the West.

Montreal, Aug. 16.—Hon. Philippe Roy of Edmonton, who has just returned from Paris, announced yesterday that the new trust company to be known as the Canadian Mortgage Association, which he has been promoting in France for a year is now an accomplished fact, that the papers are all signed with a leading French bank, and that the concern will open its doors during the coming fall, doing the same kind of business west of the great lakes as the Credit Foncier Franco-Canadiene does in Eastern Canada.

The headquarters of the company will be Winnipeg.

"Kingston" Is Rammed.

Rochester, N.Y., Aug. 16.—The steamer "Turbinia" of Toronto rammed the steamer "Kingston" in the harbor of Charlotte at 2.30 last night, doing considerable damage to the latter and in her flounderings around the mouth of the river several other large boats were more or less damaged.

The Turbinia was about to leave for Toronto, but her lines were still fast to the dock when the engineer opened his throttle wide and she forged ahead at full speed, snapping her lines.

Back to Baddeck.

Ottawa, Aug. 16.—Baddeck No. 1 aerodrome, which was seriously damaged in an accident at Petawawa camp on Friday evening, will be taken by Messrs. McCurdy and Baldwin to their workshops at Baddeck, N.S., for repairs.

They state that they will return in about three weeks and resume experiments.

Printers End Session.

St. Joseph, Mo., Aug. 16.—With a love feast and exchange of presents, the fifty-fifth annual convention of the International Typographical Union came to a close Saturday. It was decided to submit the mortuary benefit proposition to a referendum vote next February.

To Stop Accident Fakirs.

Arising out of the arrest of three foreigners in Montreal July 31 for "faking" railway accidents, a bureau of information and identification is soon to be established in Canada, whereby tab will be kept on all accidents, to guard against any capricious "repeat," with the idea of "holding up" the corporations of this country.

This announcement was made by James Forrest, claims agent of the Toronto Railway Co., on the occasion of a picnic to Buffalo, on which all the chief officials of the company participated.

Such a bureau has been in existence in the United States for some time, with headquarters in Columbus, Ohio; but until the charges were laid against the three foreigners in Montreal for having adopted the system of purposely falling off street cars or trams as a profitable means of making capital through damage claims, no such system has been thought necessary.

Already, Mr. Forrest states, the Toronto Street Railway has the forms in shape and cards printed relating to certain recent accidents, including the Montreal trio, and Acton Burrows, secretary of the Canadian Street Railway Association, will, it is said, assume the duties of filing and keeping track of these and future cases and holding these cards for distribution.

Sir Charles Tupper.

Canada has emerged into the status of a young nation blinking at the brilliancy of its own future. We are fond of saying that Canada stands on the threshold. But surely we crossed the threshold on July 1, 1867, when a few scattered settlements under the genius of the old chieftain and the devoted loyalty to Canada of a galaxy of patriots. And of all that brilliant corps of nation founders the one whose task was the most arduous, still lives in the full possession of his faculties, Sir Charles Tupper.—Vancouver Sunset.

Told to Earn His Own Salary.

Commodore Vanderbilt discovered in James H. Rutter, then in the employ of the Erie railroad, a man he believed the freight department of the Central needed, says the Baltimore News. It is related that some time after he took charge of the Central's traffic office Rutter called on the commodore to submit a plan for improvement. When he had stated the case the president looked at him sharply and asked:

"Rutter, what does the New York Central pay you $15,000 a year for?"

The reply was, "For managing the freight traffic department."

And then the commodore said, "Well, you don't expect me to earn your salary for you, do you?"

Rutter went out and carried through his plan on his own judgment. The result was highly satisfactory. Rutter became president of the Central.

The Blood In the Brain.

Too much blood in the brain is a frequent cause of headaches. Pains are felt all over the head, the face becomes flushed, the temples throb and strong light or noise causes excruciating pain. In cases of this kind the sufferer should be careful in diet and should not eat meat oftener than once a day.

To little blood in the brain is another cause of headache. It is recognized by dizziness, noises in the ears and pains on the top of the head. The best stimulant is a cup of strong tea or coffee or a bowl of soup. People who suffer with these headaches should sleep with their heads low.—London Strand Magazine.

Crew Rescued.

Sydney, N.S., Aug. 16.—A message was received from North Sydney yesterday to the effect that the crew of the schooner Myrtle, which was wrecked at Lingan on Wednesday night, were picked up and landed at Bell Island.

RAIN WILL DO GOOD

Timely Shower Yesterday Was Abundant And Welcome.

Sunday's rain was welcomed by the farmers and was as timely as a hit through the infield with the bases filled and the home team one run behind. The crops made a remarkable spurt after the last shower, but the time between the rainfalls was beginning to be too long for the welfare of the roots and grain. The potatoes will get grand results and in fact the whole root crop will benefit by the fall.

CONSTIPATION AND HEADACHE

Mrs. E. Morrow, Bracebridge, Ont., writes—"For years I was troubled almost constantly with constipation and never got anything to do me the lasting good that has been obtained from Dr. Chase's Kidney-Liver Pills. Not only have they cured constipation but have also entirely cured the headaches from which I used to suffer terribly and have improved my health in every way."

THE ANXIOUS MOTHER AND BABY'S SUMMER ILLS

If the mother is careful, when one child has a contagious disease, she can prevent the other children from getting it. By being careful, I mean to carry out exactly the doctor's orders. If you are taking care of your child, and have no trained nurse to help you, you should not neglect to carry out this outline of antiseptic precautions, and quarantine yourself and the patient from the rest of the house.

As soon as the disease is pronounced contagious, remove from the room unnecessary things of all descriptions, as later on some of the articles should be burnt, and the room fumigated. You should wear cotton clothes or linen in the room, so they can be boiled before using again. Your head should be covered with a cap, to keep your hair from collecting the germs.

A sheet dipped into a weak solution of carbolic acid, one part of acid to 30 parts of water, should be tacked over the door, like a curtain, and this should not be allowed to dry thoroughly, but kept damp. Have a bowl of antiseptic solution and dip your hands in it, each time after touching the patient, or the bed, etc.

You can give orders from your open door, but avoid mingling with the rest of the family, and do not go in other rooms of the house. It is well for every mother to know the symptoms of the contagious diseases, that are most common among children.

Diphtheria makes itself known by a feeling of general discomfort and weakness, sore throat, but not much fever. The temperature (of fever) is irregular, but seldom rises above 102 degrees. It lasts a week or 10 days in ordinary cases. The pulse beat is rapid, and will be weak and irregular in severe cases. The throat is red and swollen, and by the end of the first day, a pale gray membrane forms and spreads rapidly, becoming thicker and more opaque; if this is peeled off it leaves a bleeding surface. On recovery, this membrane curls at the edges and comes off in flakes.

The treatment is to watch the pulse and prevent heart failure. Spraying and washing out the throat by irrigation is the chief thing, as this allays the inflammation. The patient will not desire nourishment, but you must insist upon some being taken, to keep up the patient's strength. Some fluid, every two hours, is necessary. The doctor will give antitoxine, to both the patient and the nurse.

Scarlet fever arrives suddenly, generally with a convulsion; after that, vomiting, sore throat, headache and fever. The eruption appears in about 18 hours, at first like red points on the neck, chest and back, then spreads rapidly all over the body, and the upper part of the face. This lasts four or five days, then fades, and a few days later the skin begins to peel off, which will continue for about three weeks.

The period of quarantine lasts 40 days. The tongue is at first white and coated, but in a day or two becomes red and swollen. The fever remains high for two or three days, then it falls slowly, lasting about eight days longer. The room should be well ventilated, but there should be no draught on the patient. Avoid letting the patient catch cold. To relieve the uncomfortable pricking, apply vaseline all over the body. Once a day give a warm bath so as to open the pores of the skin. Keep the mouth and throat clean by spraying and constant attention. Notice every change in detail and report the same to your doctors. In nursing your patients, don't trust to your memory, but put down on paper whatever you wish to tell your doctor. Give milk as usual, if the baby will take it.

Measles makes its appearance by the child being fretful and feverish, sneezing, a cough, and a thin discharge from the nose, also vomiting. The eruption appears on the fourth day, and lasts about five days, then the skin begins to peel off. In treatment be careful to shade the eyes, have very little light in the room and bathe the eyes in warm water. Keep the nose, mouth and throat clean. Keep the room ventilated, but no draughts, and do not let the patient catch cold.

You can always give your patients fresh air, with no danger of catching cold, if you do not have sudden changes in the room and do not have a draught. But pure air is necessary in all cases of sickness, and it is very important to give enough fresh air to babies; otherwise you will have a pale, puny baby.

Joseph Hunter Committed On Charge Of Killing Wife

Preliminary Hearing in Lindsay on Saturday Morning—Will Be Tried in September at the Assizes—The Prisoner Assumed Outward Calmness.

MOTHER-IN-LAW'S EVIDENCE

Joseph Hunter, proprietor of the Royal Hotel, Bobcaygeon, was committed for trial on the charge of murdering his wife on Saturday, Aug. 7. The preliminary hearing took place on Saturday morning last in Lindsay before County Magistrate Moore, K. C.

Rosana Coulter

Was the first witness to be examined. She is the aged mother of the murdered woman, being 76 years of age. She said that on the night of Friday, August 6th, she was sent for by Mrs. Hunter's little girl, who wanted her to come down to the hotel. She went down and stayed with Hunter and his wife. Mrs. Hunter wanted to go home with Mrs. Coulter, but Hunter would not hear of that, so it was decided that she (Mrs. Coulter) should stay all night at the hotel. She retired about 10.30 p.m., and was given a small room, off room 14, where Mr. and Mrs. Hunter slept. When she went to bed Hunter was lying on the bed with a wet cloth around his forehead. She asked what was wrong, and Hunter replied that he had a headache. Mrs. Hunter then went to bed, but did not sleep all night. About five o'clock next morning she heard a footstep and leaning up on her elbow she saw Hunter pass her door, which has a curtain separating the two rooms. Mrs. Hunter then listened for him to go downstairs, but the footsteps stopped and everything was quiet for almost two minutes. A rifle shot then rang out and Grace, the daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Hunter, screamed, "O, grandma, mother is shot." Mrs. Coulter then jumped out of bed and ran into Mrs. Hunter's room. Hunter stood near the door with gun in hand but did not speak a word. Mrs. Coulter said, "Rose, are you dead? Speak to me if you can," and at the same time shook her to see if she was dead. Hunter, at the same time reached over the bed and with his left hand touched the body of his dead wife.

Other witnesses were examined and at the conclusion Hunter was committed. He will be tried at the autumn assizes, which begin Sept. 27th.

Two Big Excursions Coming To Peterborough On Wednesday

Peterborough will be flooded on Wednesday by two excursions that are expected to bring in about 1,600 persons. One is a united Sunday School picnic from Marmora and the other is from Kinmount, under the auspices of the Canadian Order of Foresters, of Kinmount. The excursion begins at Haliburton, leaving there at 5:20 in the morning and calling at 16 stations. They will arrive in the city about 8:30 and will leave in the evening at 6:30. It is stated that the Marmora crowd will easily number 500. The trip has been heavily advertised and practically everybody is coming. The Lift Lock city has certainly enjoyed its share of popularity this summer, and if an effort had been made it is not too much to expect that there would have been an excursion here every day on an average.

THE TRIP OF THE REGIMENT

Representatives of the 57th Completed Arrangements for the Outing.

Capt. A. P. McLean and Captain McWilliams, of the 57th Regiment, Peterborough, were in town to-day making arrangements for the proposed visit of the regiment to Brockville on Sunday and Monday, Sept. 5th and 6th. The officers interviewed the various hotels with a view of securing sleeping accommodation and meals. They paid a visit to the Fulford Athletic Grounds and the public park in the event of it being decided to sleep under canvas. The armouries were also visited in company with the officers of the 41st Regt., the fine quarters of the 41st being placed at the disposal of the visitors. The 57th expects to come about 400 strong, arriving on the morning of the 5th and remaining until the evening of the 6th, the latter being Labour Day. In the event of the decision being definitely reached to come to the Island City it is quite likely the town will tender the visitors a complimentary trip on the river. Captain McLean and Captain McWilliams were favourably impressed with Brockville. A definite decision as to the outing will be deferred until after the report of these two officers is received.—Brockville Times.

ASSISTED IN THE SERVICES

Miss Spier, a Pupil of Dr. Torrington, Sang at Mark Street Yesterday.

At both morning and evening services yesterday at Mark St. Church, the choir was ably assisted by Miss Spier, of Toronto, a member of Prof. Torrington's famous choir. In the morning she sang "That Beautiful Land," by Robt. Harkness, most acceptably, and in the evening gave a delightful rendition of "Drifting," by Gordon W. Thompson. The evening service was largely one of song, and in the opening congregational song service, while all present sang the choruses, the verses of two hymns were taken as solos by Rev. Mr. Coon, and Mr. Callander. The choir quartette also gave a selection, "Till the Boat Comes By."

LAST STEAMER TRIP OF SEASON TO LINDSAY

Will be run on Tuesday, August 17th, Steamer Otonabee will leave Wolfe Street Wharf at 7.00 a.m and Lift Lock at 7.30 for a sail up the Canal and through Kawartha Lakes, to Lindsay. Passengers may return by train in the evening. Round trip only $.100. Passengers may return by boat on Wednesday. Round trip $1.50. 3d-36

OBITUARY.

MRS. ELLEN CADIGAN.

The death occurred at St. Joseph's Hospital this morning at half past six of Mrs. Ellen Cadigan, of Ennismore. The deceased had been ill for some time with paralysis. She was 55 years of age and was a resident of Ennismore all her life. Her husband predeceased her four years ago. She was a woman highly esteemed by all who knew her and the news of her death will be received with the profoundest regret.

Four boys and one daughter are left to mourn her loss. The sons are Messrs. Leo, John, Frank, and Michael, and the daughter is Mrs. D. Cavanagh, all of Ennismore.

The funeral will take place on Wednesday morning at 9 o'clock, from the family residence, lot 5, concession 10, Ennismore, to St. Martin's Church, and thence to St. Martin's cemetery.

HOUSE WAS BURNED IN COBOURG

Mrs. Geo. Thompson and her daughter, Mrs. Will Macdonald of Cobourg, who have been spending the summer at Kawartha Park, Clear Lake, were obliged to return home this morning. Mr. Macdonald, who has been at the lakes since last Monday, received a telephone message yesterday informing him that Mr. Thompson's large offices, warehouse, his residence, and one adjoining to it, had been destroyed by fire on Saturday night.

They immediately commenced to get ready and this morning were in the city on their way to Cobourg.

In Custody As Suspect For Breaking Into Offices And Trying To Pass Bogus Cheque

Young Fellow of 15 Years Arrested by P. C. Meharry After Short Chase This Morning — Two Offices Entered Yesterday and Articles Taken Away—He Was Quickly Run Down.

CHEQUE PROVED UNDOING

Eli Dion, a young French Canadian of about 15 years of age, giving his home as Penetanguishene, had an exceptionally busy day yesterday, even though it was Sunday, having broken into two offices, carrying off three watches, a sum of money and a general stock of small articles generally found in offices. This morning, provided with some of the cheques that he had purloined yesterday with the rest of his loot, and having put several names on the cheques to make them look good, he tried to pass one of them on Mr. R. P. Carey, grocer, at the corner of Hunter and Aylmer streets. Dion, who is only a young lad, although tall for his years, is apparently a novice at the game, for he signed the cheques with a rubber stamp, thereby arousing the suspicion of the grocer and forming a link in a chain of evidence that enabled P. C. Meharry to round him up in short order.

Yesterday's Work.

On arriving in his office this morning Mr. Herb. Collier, of the Collier, Cunningham Co., Simcoe street, discovered that his desk had been rifled and the cash drawer emptied. The work had evidently been done on Saturday night or on Sunday. Three gold watches, a nickel watch and about five dollars were missing, together with a stamping outfit, pencils, and a miscellaneous collection of office small goods. A cheque for $80 was overloked. Mr. Collier called up the police station and informed the police of the theft.

A Second Offence.

Dion apparantely forced his way into the office of the Peterborough Canoe Co., as it, too, showed evidence of the presence of an intruder, who apparently searched for something which he did not find. He took a number of blank cheque forms on the Bank of Montreal, but was unable to place his hands on anything of immediate use to him.

Tried the Cheque.

Among the articles taken from Mr. Collier's office was a stamping outfit and two hundred and and twenty-five one cent stamps. Dion prepared the stamp to write the name of P. Hooper. He then made out a cheque for $8.00, and put his signature (stamped) at the bottom. He entered Mr. arey's store and asked him if he would kindly cash it. Mr. Carey said he could, but upon examining it more closely he noticed that the signature was printed.

"This is rather strange," Mr. Carey remarked. "I do not remember having seen a cheque like this before." He walked over to the telephone to call up Mr. T. H. Hooper, but Dion asked him not to put himself out as he could easily get it cashed further down the street. Taking the cheque he left the store and Mr. Carey learned from Mr. Hoper that the cheque had been "specially prepared" and was valueless.

Caught by P. C. Meharry.

P. C. Meharry had started out to find the man who had broken into the Collier office and in a short time he found the trail getting warmer, although it was getting tangled by the criss-crossing of the other office and the cheque. At Carey's the officer got a further description of of his quarry and in a short time he had landed him. Dion made a slip in trying to dispose of the watches, and P. C. Meharry had but little trouble from the outset in keping on the trail.

He gave his name as Ed. Day, of Parry Sound, but later he was Ed. Dion of Penetanguishene. Many of the missing articles were found on his person.

The young fellow commenced to cut too wide a swath and by his wholesale efforts to do something or other it could not be expected that he would have gone far before being taken in his tracks. He was lodged in the cells this afternoon.

LIGHTNING KILLED PIGS

Struck Tree Near Mr. Robert Herron's House at Downer's Corners Yesterday

During the electrical storm yesterday afternoon lightning struck a tree, near the residence of Mr. Robt. Herron at Downer's Corners. Besides shattering the tree badly, two pigs that were in the yard at the time, were instantly killed. The family also received a bad scare, but fortunately no one was injured.

WEDDING BELLS

McFADDEN—FILION.

Toronto, Aug. 16.—The Church of St. Peter in Chains was the scene of a very pretty wedding this morning, when Mr. Frederick James McFadden, of Peterborough, was married to Miss Anna Louise Filion, second daughter of the late Adolphus Filion. The bride was assisted by Miss L. Filion, and was given away by her brother, Mr. Harry Filion. The best man was Mr. Louis Leclaire, of Brockville, and formerly of Peterborough. Father Connelly sang Nuptial High Mass; Miss Clare Cumming sang Ave Maria, and Miss Agnes Parent, cousin of the bride, played Mendelssohn's wedding march. The bride's gown was a handsome cream broadcloth, with rat-tail braiding and rose point bertha with large black lace hat. The going-away costume was a suit of taupe grey, touched up with coffee shade, with large tuscan hat. The honeymon will be spent in Montreal and Quebec. They will reside in Peterborough.

FOR BABY'S SKIN TROUBLES

There are times in the life of nearly every child when Dr. Chase's Ointment proves itself a blessing. The tender skin chafes and is irritated by the clothing. Oftentimes baby eczema developes from this very cause. In a dozen ways Dr. Chase's Ointment can be used to sooth and heal the skin and prevent suffering of the little one. No treatment is so well suited for this purpose and none is so entirely satisfactory.

HAVE RETURNED FROM THE SUMMER BOYS' CONFERENCE

Representatives of Local Y.M.C.A. Report a Profitable Time at the Lake Couchiching Camp—Prominent Workers There.

OVER 100 BOYS PRESENT

On Saturday, at noon, Wallace Armstrong, Roland Howden, Bruce Hunter, Willie Hastie, and Mr. Hassard, representing the local Young Men's Christian Association, returned from the Summer Conference of Boys' and Boys' Workers, held at Lake Couchiching, during the week of August 7th to 14th. There were present representatives from many parts of Canada, from Edmonton to St. John, N.B.

The week was spent in receiving instruction concerning methods and organization of the work of the Young Men's Christian Association, in regard to boys and in good fellowship and recreation.

The mornings, from after breakfast to dinner time, were given to Bible study and lectures. The afternoons were used for sport and recreation, and the evenings were given up for lectures and devotional periods.

Some of the leaders in Christian work in North America spent the week with the boys, of whom there were over one hundred present, giving lectures and inspirational talks. The number included Mr. R. A. Waite, Jr., of the International Committee of the Y. M. C. A.; Mr. D. R. Porter, of the International Committee, who was one of the first young men from the United States to win a Rhodes Scholarship; Dr. F. N. Seerley of the Springfield Training School, Mr. G. W. Hinckley, of Goodwill Farm, Maine; Mr. Taylor Statten, of Toronto; Mr. H. J. Crowe, of St. John's, Newfoundland; Mr. D. H. Gibson, of Toronto; Mr. C. M. Copeland, Secretary of the Provincial Committee of Ontario and Quebec; Mr. J. H. Crocker, of Brantford.

MAKING TRIP IN A CANOE FROM CHICAGO TO MONTREAL

Messrs. Wm. Carr and John Bacon of Chicago Arrived at the Lift Lock This Morning—Came by Way of Lake Michigan, Georgian Bay and Severn River Into Lake Simcoe.

THEY STARTED JULY FIRST

From Chicago to Montreal in a canoe is the trip that two Chicago young men are making and the greater part of which they have accomplished. William Carr and John Bacon are the two young fellows and they arrived in the Lift Lock this morning. They are making a long trip and one that few canoeists would undertake.

In conversation with an Examiner reporter at noon to-day, Mr. Bacon informed him that they had left Chicago on the first day of July. They paddled in a sixteen foot canoe, strongly built. They came up Lake Michigan to Sault Ste. Marie, following the shore pretty well in all the large bodies of water. Entering Georgian Bay they paddled on until they reached the Severn river. They then came to Lake Simcoe and right through the Kawartha Chain of Lakes until they reached Peterborough. They encountered a week and a half of rough weather on Georgian Bay, and had to lay off for that length of time. There were no portages until they reached Severn river and then there were a number of them. They have enjoyed the trip very much and intend making Montreal by the end of the month.

They left this afternoon for Rice Lake and expected to make Kingston by the end of the week.

Little Fourteen Months Old Boy Took Lye By Mistake

The fourteen-months-old son of Mr. and Mrs. Wilfred Patterson, London street, met with a very painful accident the other day. Mr. Patterson was cleaning out the sink in the kitchen and in doing so used a quantity of lye. The baby was playing around at the time and unnoticed got some of the lye into his mouth. The agonizing pain that it caused the little fellow soon drew the attention of his father and he hurriedly took him to Dr. Morgan's, where the child was attended to The boy was badly burned about the mouth and as a result his lips are badly swollen.

Judge Huycke is also appointed local masted of the Supreme Court of the province for the county.

system Poisoning
CONSTIPATION

Do not be satisfied with temporary relief—Cleanse the system and make cure lasting with DR. CHASE'S KIDNEY-LIVER PILLS

Constipation begins with the bowels but it does not end there.

You must also consider the way it affects the liver, the kidneys, the digestive system and in fact the whole human body.

Headaches, backaches, aching limbs, indigestion, biliousness, kidney derangements, and the most serious diseases imaginable, often have their beginning with constipation of the bowels.

There is one treatment which has a direct and combined effect on the bowels, the liver and the kidneys and gets these organs into good working order in remarkably quick time, and that is Dr. Chase's Kidney-Liver Pills.

They afford relief quickly but they do more than that. They positively cure constipation and insure lasting regularity of the bowels by setting the liver right.

Policeman Peter C. Morris, 18 Wascana Ave., Toronto, Ont., states:

"I was troubled for years with habitual constipation and have spent considerable in so-called remedies and can gladly say that I have been completely cured by using Dr. Chase's Kidney-Liver Pills and shall be pleased to personally recommend them to any person who wishes to interview me."

It scarcely seems wise to trifle with medicines which merely afford temporary relief, when by using Dr. Chase's Kidney-Liver Pills, you not only get prompt relief but also a thorough cleansing of the whole excretory system and lasting benefits by the restoration of the health and activity of the liver.

Dr. Chase's Kidney-Liver Pills, one pill a dose, 25 cents a box, at all dealers, or Edmanson, Bates & Co., Toronto.

MUST LOWER FLAG.

Greece Gets Curt Warning From the European Powers.

London, Aug. 16.—Unless Greece complies with the demand of Turkey and forces the people of Crete to haul down the Greek flag which they have hoisted, the four protecting powers of Crete—Great Britain, Russia, Italy and France—will perform this act, using force if necessary.

This is the substance of a joint note signed by the four powers and presented to the Turkish Government Saturday. In order to carry out the policy and to be prepared to use force if necessary to oblige the Cretans to haul down the objectionable flag, each of the four protecting powers decided to send an additional warship to Canea, the capital of the island of Crete, and at the same time expressed the hope to the Turkish Government that in view of the steps they had taken that Turkey will not think it necessary to order her fleet to Cretan waters.

The joint note of the powers to Turkey is the direct result of a communication from the Cretan Government declaring that it was unable to force the hauling down of the Greek flag. This action of the powers followed sharply upon Turkey's note to Greece Friday, demanding a formal declaration respecting her intention as to Crete, and thus creating a situation grave enough to move the powers to action.

$45,000 Loss at Cobourg.

Cobourg, Aug. 16.—Fire early yesterday morning did damage estimated at about $45,000, and residents are congratulating Chief Rouse that he prevented its being a much higher loss. The heaviest loser, is George Thompson, of Thompson & Macdonald, whose implement storehouse and offices with six horses were destroyed. The loss is placed at $40,000, about one-quarter insurance. The fire started in the stable at 12.45 a.m. and fanned by a strong east wind, spread to the stables of the Durham House. The firemen's prompt work at this spot undoubtedly saved the hotel. John Vonburg's stable and Davidson's livery stable were burned and the Division street Methodist Church were scorched.

The Port Hope firemen responded to a call, arriving an hour after the fire broke out. Residents whose homes were in danger also profited by their own labors with small hose. The water pressure was good.

Earthquake In Japan.

Tokio, Aug. 16.—A severe earthquake occurred in Central Japan Saturday afternoon at 3.30 o'clock. The shock was particularly hard around Kyoto, Osake, Lake Biwa and Nagoya. All railroad communication with those districts has been interrupted.

Many houses collapsed and it is feared that many people were killed or injured.

Nagoya, with a population of more than 250,000, and one of the principal cities in Japan, located 170 miles west of Tokio, was badly damaged.

Details are meagre because of the interruption of telegraphic communication with the cities most affected. Twenty-one deaths and seventy people injured have thus far been reported.

Odawara, one of the ships protectors sustained considerable damage. Mount Misuki at the northern end of Lake Biwa, an extinct volcano, is reported to have collapsed near the top.

International Raid on Saloon.

Ogdensburg, N.Y., Aug. 16.—Acting in concert by pre-arrangement, American and Canadian excise officers, in automobiles, swooped down Saturday, from opposite sides of the border, on John Overton, who for years has straddled the line near Rouse's Point, with a saloon that has long been an annoyance to officers of both countries.

Overton and his wife were arrested, after a stiff fight, in the Canadian wing of their house, and nearly a wagon-load of whisky was confiscated.

In two other raids on line saloons, much liquor was seised, but no arrests were made.

Building Collapses.

Winnipeg, Aug. 16.—The "Broadalbane," a large apartment block being built for J. D. McArthur, the railway contractor, and which had been constructed up to the first floor, collapsed Saturday afternoon, burying four of the workmen, who were underneath.

The weight of wet cement flooring bore out the metal supports and fell on the men, injuring two seriously, and necessitating their removal to the General Hospital. The other two received slight injuries.

Beats Edison on Battery?

Christiania, Aug. 16.—An inventor here named Gross claims to have constructed an electric storage battery which solves the problem that has so long occupied the attention of Thos. A. Edison. Experts consider Gross' invention of high importance.

Lame Back Cured

Just rub the painful spot with Nerviline; not much rubbing, because Nerviline is made to penetrate. You'll not suffer long after Nerviline is applied, for it acts like lightning, swift and sure. Nerviline is good for everything a liniment ought to be good for—wherever there is pain. Apply Nerviline and the pain disappears.

No remedy so thoroughly cures lame back, stiff joints, sore muscles, lumbago, and cold in the chest as

Nerviline

The farmer, the mechanic, the man who works at hard labor, is subject to the baneful influence of dampness, fog, and inclement weather. It's hard for him to escape pain. What he needs at home is a bottle of Nerviline, which gives instant ease to every kind of pain.

Nerviline is about four times as strong as the ordinary liniment. It goes right at the core of pain and cures it as no other remedy can. So strong and concentrated is Nerviline that one application is always as good as six ordinary rubbings with other liniments. Try a large 25c bottle. Sold everywhere.

EAST BUFFALO, Aug. 14.—Cattle—Receipts, 75 head; steady, prices unchanged.

Veals—Receipts, 150 head; active; 25c lower, $6 to $6.50.

Hogs—Receipts, 3700 head; slow, 10c to 25c lower; heavy and mixed, $8.15 to $8.25; Yorkers, $7.90 to $8.10; pigs, $7.90; roughs, $6.80 to $7; stags, $5.75 to $6.25; dairies and grassers, $7.90 to $8.

Sheep and Lambs — Receipts, 2000 head; slow; sheep steady; lambs 25c lower; lambs, $5.25 to $7.50; others unchanged.

New York Live Stock.

NEW YORK, Aug. 14.—Beeves—Receipts, 1255; no trading; dressed beef steady at 9 1-2c to 10 1-2c for native; exports, 894 cattle and 3810 quarters of beef.

Calves—Receipts, 584; feeling steady; veals, $6 to $9.50; grassers, $4; city-dressed veals, 10c to 14 1-2c; country-dressed veals, 9 1-2c; dressed grassers and buttermilks, 7 1-2c to 10c.

Sheep and Lambs—Receipts, 6036; sheep almost nominal and weak; lambs 50c; 3 1-2 cars unsold. Sheep, $2 to $4; culls, $2; lambs, $6 to $7; culls, $4.75.

Hogs—Receipts, 1297; feeling nominally lower.

Chicago Live Stock.

CHICAGO, Aug. 14.—Cattle—Receipts estimated at 200; market steady; beeves $4.35 to $7.50; Texas steers $4 to $5.50; western steers $4 to $6; stockers and feeders $3.10 to $5.15; cows and heifers $2.95 to $6.20; calves $5.5. to $8.25.

Hogs—Receipts estimated at 9000; market for best steady, others weak; light $7.45 to $8.15; mixed $7.30 to $8.05; heavy $7.10 to $8; roughs $7.10 to $7.35; good to choice heavy $7.35 to $8; pigs $6.90 to $8.00; bulk of sales $7.50 to $7.85.

Sheep—Receipts estimated at 3000; market steady; native $3.20 to $5.20; western $3.30 to $5.25; yearlings $4.50 to $5.70; lambs, native $4.75 to $8.10; western $5 to $7.85.

Autos to Supplant Fire Horses.

New York, Aug. 16.—Substitution of automobile fire engines for those pulled by horses in the outlying districts of the Bronx, Queen's and Richmond is recommended in a report by Nicholas J. Hayes to Mayor McClellan.

Commissioner Hayes names Chief Croker as authority for the statement that the introduction of the high pressure system "presages the ultimate doing away with the present steam fire engines and its supercession by the automobile hose wagon."

Found Murdered.

Baltimore, Md., Aug. 16.—News has reached here from Muddy Branch, Md., of the discovery there of a murder that had apparently been committed more than a week ago. The victim was Henson Poole, aged 23 years, and an autopsy showed death to have followed three bullet wounds in the head and a blow on the right side that fractured the skull. A considerable sum of money together with his watch and diamond ring, are missing.

4,000 Harvesters In West.

Winnipeg, Aug. 16.—Four thousand harvesters from the eastern provinces arrived Saturday and were immediately sent out to points in Manitoba and Saskatchewan, where there is a scarcity of harvesters.

Meeting in the Air.

Berlin, Aug. 16.—A meeting in the air between Count Zeppelin and Orville Wright is being planned as one of the features of Wright's visit to Berlin to give a series of aeroplane flights.

Steamer Lucania Gutted.

Liverpool, Aug. 16.—The Cunard liner Lucania lies submerged at the Huskisson dock, seriously damaged, having been almost gutted from her funnels forward by fire, which broke out on board the liner at 7 o'clock Saturday evening.

The flames are supposed to have originated in the saloon kitchen. The fire brigade of the vessel, with two powerful motor engines, turned out immediately at the first alarm and found the first saloon burning fiercely from end to end. Despite all efforts the flames gradually worked forward, until they reached the steerage, consumed all the woodwork there and then played havoc with the forehold.

At 5 o'clock yesterday morning it was decided to flood the vessel by admitting water into her from the dock. A half-dozen firemen who were on the gangway were thrown into the water, but all were rescued. It was 10 o'clock yesterday morning before the fire was under control.

Last Thought Was Record.

Atlanta, Ga., Aug. 16.—Passengers who were on the Southern train, wrecked near Bristol, Va., bring details of the bravery of Samuel Bush, engine driver, of Knoxville, Tenn., who died as a result of his injuries.

Bush asked for a last look at his old engine, as hopeless a wreck as was its driver. When the passengers came to him with whisky he begged them to look after the comfort of the passengers. Told that no passengers had been injured, he said: "That's good; but before I take this whisky, I want you men to smell my breath and testify, if need be, that I had not been drinking when this happened. All an engineer has is his record," he said feebly, "and he cannot afford to have anything against that."

He worked for the Southern for 30 years.

Workmen Leave Gary.

Chicago, Ill., Aug. 16.—Laborers are deserting Gary, Ind., the "marvelous steel city," in such numbers as to threaten embarrassment to the United States Steel Corporation in the operation of its big plant. Unofficial reports are that more than five hundred unskilled men have left the town and that more are preparing to go because the "lid" is on tight and it is virtually impossible to buy a glass of beer or a drink of any kind in the town.

Company Won't Negotiate.

Montreal, Aug. 16.—James Ross, president of the Dominion Coal Co., wires an emphatic denial that any negotiations are in progress with a view to settle the coal strike.

He also reiterates the company's absolute refusal to make any possible concession to the strikers.

A Man to Buy Her Trousseau.

Vancouver, B.C., Aug. 16.—To buy gowns and frills and furbelows for the marriage of Princess Fuhi, third daughter of the Japanese Emperor, to Prince Asaka, next March, the vice-master of ceremonies of the Japanese Court, is to leave Japan on Sept. 7 for America and France.

Little Girl Burned.

Toronto, Aug. 16.—While playing with matches about noon Saturday the 2-year-old son of James Penrice, 190 May street, ward seven, set fire to his clothing and received injuries so severe that the two doctors in attendance are doubtful of his recovery.

Trains Collide; Eight Killed.

Colorado Springs, Aug. 16.—Eight are dead and fifty injured, some fatally, as a result of a head-on collision between train No. 8, northbound, and train No. 1, southbound, on the Denver & Rio Grande and Husted, 13 miles north of Colorado Springs, Saturday morning. The trains, both running at terrific speed, met on a curve. No. 8, drawn by two engines, telescoped the baggage car and smoker of No. 1, and all three engines, were thrown into the ditch.

With more than 400 passengers on the two trains, the excitement following the accident was indescribable.

First Samples Arrive.

Winnipeg, Man., Aug. 16.—The Ogilvie Flour Mills Co., received on Saturday the first samples of new wheat. They consisted of about ten pounds each and came from Rosenfeld and Rathwell. The Rosenfeld sample was a beautiful one of pure red fyfe wheat of a deep amber shade and would grade extra No. 1 hard, and will make a very strong flour. This farmer will have a yield of 35 bushel to the acre. The sample from Rathwell is fine plump wheat and will grade No. 1 northern. Both farmers cut this wheat last Monday.

Canadian Vessel Burned.

St. John, N.B., Aug. 16.—A despatch from Yokohama to Troop & Sons, shipowners here, tells of the loss of the British bark Howard D. Troop, at Yokohama. She is afire and has been scuttled. Capt. Durkee of Yarmouth was her commander. It is believed the officers and crew are safe. The bark was owned by Troop & Sons and others here. She was a four-masted steel vessels, built at Glasgow in 1892, of 2,020 tons. She sailed from New York in March for Yokohama, and was to go thence to Portland, Oregon, and the United Kingdom.

Robbery in Owen Sound.

Owen Sound, Aug. 16.—The robbery of a residence was reported to the police at five o'clock yesterday morning when headquarters was called up by James McLaughlan, a well-known manufacturer, and was informed that some time during the night his room had been entered, and a gold watch and over $50 had been abstracted from the pockets of the vest and pants. These articles of clothing were found at the foot of the stairway. The police have no clue.

Killed on the Railway.

Oakville, Aug. 16.—The mangled remains of George Tomlinson, a farm hand, were found lying beside the Grand Trunk tracks a short distance east of Oakville Station by sectionmen. He had been seen in town under the influence of liquor and it is supposed that while going to his boarding-house he stumbled over the tracks, was unable to move and was run over.

1,000 Auto Victims In Chicago.

Chicago, Aug. 16.—Automobiles have killed 51 persons and injured 1,018 within the limits of Chicago during the first seven months of this year.

Thousand Chinese Drown.

Victoria, B.C., Aug. 16.—According to advices brought by the Empress of India, there were recently disastrous floods in Manchuria and Korea. At Kibin 7,000 houses were washed away and over a thousand Chinese drowned. Ping Yang and Antung, in Korea, were also submerged, the latter place being flooded by a sudden rise of the Yalu. Many lives were lost.

Many soldiers and workmen at Nigata Village, in Okayama, narrowly escaped being killed, when a coolie made three ineffective attempts to dynamite the barracks, in revenge for non-payment of wages by the contractor. He secreted some dynamite in the barracks and laid a train which he fired, 15 workmen being hurt by the explosion. The soldiers were absent when the dynamite was exploded.

Nuremberg Forbids Women's Trains.

Berlin, Aug. 16.—Following the example of other municipalities which have recently passed edicts against the wearing of long hatpins the police authorities of Nuremberg also are starting in to regulate the question of woman's dress. They have issued a regulation forbidding any woman to wear upon the public streets a dress which is provided with a train. Violations of the rule, which, it is said, has been passed in the interests of the public health, will be punished either by a fine or imprisonment up to two weeks.

The idea of the authorities is that trains not only stir up but collect microbes, and thus subject their wearers to risk of infection.

PARK STREET TEAM SLAUGHTERED THE WEST ENDS ON SATURDAY

Losers Fielded Miserably and Were Beaten 13 Runs to 3---Errors Were as Thick as Dust After a Dry Spell---Small Crowd Saw the City League Engagement.

The City League tangle is not yet unravelled, as many thought, but is just as badly mixed up as before. On Friday President McWilliams took it unto himself and re-admitted the T. A. S., and ordered a double-header on the Riverside grounds for Saturday afternoon. For the first game the T. A. S. and the Strathconas were to have been the contestants, but the Straths are nearly all up the lakes holidaying at present, and they were sent word Thursday that the T. A. S. had withdrawn and there would be no game Saturday. When President McWilliams' ultimatum was issued Friday afternoon it was too late to get word to them then, so the game had to be cancelled.

The West Ends and Park Street, who were to have been the gladiators in the second affray, ignored the President's ruling, and played their game on the Oval. This they should not have done, for what is the use of having a President if the teams are not going to abide by his decisions.

The contest, which was a farcical one, was annexed by Park Street—13 runs to 3. The losers played a wretched fielding game, having no less than fifteen misplays chalked up against them.

In his unobtrusive way Dusty performed well on the hill for Park Street. He allowed seven hits and not more than his usual quota of passes, and was not in any immediate danger, except in the eighth session when three hits and other things netted the West Ends their only tallies of the encounter.

Kirn, who did the heaving for the West Ends, twirled good ball. He gave Park Street nine safeties, and caused an even dozen to clout the atmosphere, but his team mates handed out the poorest article of ball seen around here this season.

Park Street got a brace of runs in the first on a base on a hit and a trio of errors. They added the same number in the second on three misplays, a pass and a triple by Manager Pilling.

A couple more counters crossed the plate in the fourth for the Southerners, as the result of two fumbles and a pair of safeties.

In the fifth they again went over the pentagon for two more tallies, with the assistance of Menzies and Rose's dumb work, coupled with Bell's bingle and Simmons' sacrifice.

In the sixth Park Street piled the score still higher by the annexing of another pair on hits by O'Brien and Crowe, Kirn's charity and Menzie's muff.

In the eighth chapter the church boys put on an additional three, so as to make the game safe. Rose's error, hits by B. Dusty and E. Pilling, Bell's two-sacker and Kirn's wild pitch doing the trick.

The West Ends were retired in the first seven rounds almost before they had well ensconced themselves alongside the rubber. In the eighth Smith led off with a single, Simmons booted Kirn's grounder. Halpin fanned, but Dobson hit safely, sending in Smith and Kirn. He stole second and third and scored on Dickie's bingle. King grounded out N. Dusty to J. Pilling. "Bill" Shaw, of the Straths, handled the indicator to the satisfaction of all.

Y. M. C. A. Team Secures First Honours In City Tennis League

The final round of the inter-club matches was concluded last week, leaving the Y.M.C.A. as winners of the tournament with the Golf Club and the West End Club second and third respectively.

The total sets won by each club during the tournament out of a possible of 40 are as follows:

|---|---|
| Y. M. C. A. .. .. .. .. .. .. | 33 |
| Golf Club .. .. .. .. .. .. .. | 27 |
| West End .. .. .. .. .. .. .. | 24 |
| St. John's .. .. .. .. .. .. .. | 19 |
| Nicholls Oval .. .. .. .. .. .. | 11 |
| Collegiate .. .. .. .. .. .. .. | 6 |

The tournament has been most successful in every respect giving each club the fullest opportunity to compare their best men with the best of their opponents. And with the healthy rivalry resulting from these games, undoubtedly there has resulted a better style of play among all the participants.

More tennis has been played in Peterborough this year than ever before and it is quite generally acknowledged that the game has been better played. With the game in such a healthy condition this year, it may confidently be expected that Peterborough will be heard from in the near future.

THE BENEFITS OF BEING A REAL BASEBALL FAN

The baseball fan is a childish joke to a lot of hard-headed old mummies who pride themselves on their practical horse sense and have never wasted any time on foolish nonsense. To these misguided dubs it is mere childishness to allow any part of your interest to be taken up in a pennant race that means nothing to you personally, and to forget your own interests in life and more serious affairs for a couple of hours of valuable daylight. To sit in the stand and live for the time being in an empty struggle between two teams of ball players and to allow your interest to become so completely monopolized by such small things that you forget the big things of life for the time being, is to a lot of serious-minded old money-grubbers the biggest exhibition of childishness that the grown-up world could present.

And so it is. But take my tip, the guy who never becomes too old and too serious to allow himself to hark back down the vista of the years and become a child again for a portion of his time as the occasion presents itself, is going to retain his mature usefulness and keep out of his second childhood a blamed sight longer than the dub who quit being a child and indulging "foolish whims" as soon as he crawled into his first pair of long pants, and he'll be a blamed sight more of an ornament in the world while he lasts, too. The guy who forgets mortgages and bonds and loses his enthusiasm over stock market reports at 3 o'clock in the afternoon and spends two hours before supper time concentrating his powerful intellect on base hits and clean-up wallops and venting his enthusiasm over the score board reports may be indulging a lot of childish nonsense, but take it from me, he'll be a blamed sight fresher and have a greater degree of concentration for the big things when he hits the office next morning. And his wife won't have to crawl out of bed and sleep on the floor to give him room to drive his nightmare over the bolster that night, either.

It's a mighty good thing to be interested in the big things of the world, but if we don't take a whirl at the little nonsensical things occasionally we are mighty apt to go into the ring with the big things overtrained and they'll put us down for the count. The guy who goes to bed with his ledger isn't going to crawl out of the hay as fresh as the one who went to sleep with the sporting page under his pillow.

And you can take it from me, there are too blamed many serious-minded and old-fogy parents who hug the dope that they are rearing their children to a sensible and useful maturity by plugging their kid days so blamed full of serious thoughts and pampered home ideals that the mysteries of throwing an out-curve and capturing the festive chipmunk are too small a matter for them to waste their time on. Take my tip, the goody-goody and serious-minded boy usually grows up into a namby-pamby man, his thinking machinery having all temper taken out of it by too much grinding. And the kid who spends the halcyon days of his youth tied to his mother's apron string and having the ten commandments and the mysteries of cube foot and Julius Caesar chucked into his childish ears from morning to night, instead of being given a chance to get a few ornamental knobs hung over his eyes by the town bully and to forget his school room dope while he digs grounders out of the dirt on the cinder dump, isn't going to carry any of my bets when he hustles out to stab the world in the face.

When it comes right down to cases, if a lot of these guys who go plugging through life with a face long enough to lick the bottom of an ice cream freezer and keep harping all the time about the serious side of life would only get over on the sunny side of the street occasionally with the foolish things, if they would only find occasional periods in which to reverse the machinery in their think tanks and take the foolish things more seriously and the serious things more foolishly, for instance, to sit up in the grand stand or out in the bleachers and for the time being let the breaks of the game play a more important role in fixng their state of mind than the fluctuations in the marts of trade, take it from me they'd find the world a better place to live in and the world would find them a blamed sight better ornaments to have hanging around.

TO STRAIGHTEN OUT LEAGUE AFFAIRS

Effort Will be Made to Wind Up the Season's Games.

A readjustment of the City League affairs is expected to be brought about this week in a manner satisfactory to all. President McWilliams has tried to make the best of every opportunity that has been presented, but nothing has yet been accomplished. The wind-up of the League depends entirely upon the teams. If, as is desired, the scheduled games are played, including T.A.S. there is no doubt that some of the best ball of the year will be seen and in all probability at Riverside. The feeling among those who have followed the League from the commencement is that all the games should be played. It will leave no doubt in the minds of any, and will be much more creditable to the players themselves. The four teams are going strong and at least two Saturdays will be required to play off the games that are still on the card.

TENNIS.

The second round draw of the mixed doubles in St. John's Tennis Club is as follows:

H. Rudolph and Miss Horsfield vs. M. Drysdale and Miss Drury.

C. Devey and Miss Smith vs. V. N. Greenhalgh and Miss Hall.

C. Downes and Miss Dean vs. C. Cossey and Mrs. Frederick, or Mr. and Mrs. Evans.

Mr. and Mrs. Richardson a bye.

Games to be played off as soon as possible. If not played before the 28th inst. names will be struck off.

SPORTING NOTES

Sporting Editor of The Examiner:

Sir,—Does Saturday's game at Nicholls Oval give the championship of the League to the Park Street team? —Fan.

Ans.—That is some question now. There was a meeting of the league last week and the managers were told to settle the matter of the T. A. S. protest among them. The magnates decided not to allow the protest and on Manager Quinlan stating that he would withdraw his team, decided to allow him to do so, threw out the games the T. A. S. had played and announced that a win for Park Street over the West Ends, would give them the championship. Next day the T. A. S. notified President McWilliams that they decided to stay in and accordingly the president gave orders that a double-header should be played at Riverside Park. This was impossible as the Straths couldn't get a team together and moreover the Park Streets and West Ends paid no attention to the orders and played their game off on the Oval. There is the situation just now. You will have to figure it out for yourself.

T. A. S. Team Meeting

A meteing of the T. A. S. ball team will be held at the T. A. S. hall on Tuesday evening at 8 o'clock.

MEMORIAL TO IMMIGRANTS UNVEILED AT GROSSE POINT

Quebec, Aug. 16.—A monument to the Irish immigrants who died in 1847 was unveiled at Grosse Isle, 27 miles below Quebec, yesterday. It takes the shape of a handsome Celtic cross, erected by the Ancient Order of Hibernians. Perfect weather attended the unveiling ceremonies on Grosse Isle. A fleet of six large steamers carried the crowd down the river. There were visitors from Washington, New York, Boston, Toronto, Ottawa, Kingston, Montreal, and other places.

The Canadian Government steamer Druid was at the disposal of the committee in charge, and the steamer Allen had on board the Lieutenant-Governor, Chief Justice Fitzpatrick, and Hon. Charles Murphy, Secretary of State, with whom were Mgr. Sbarretti and Archbishop Begin. The scenes on the island were impressive. A small temporary altar had been erected on the flat ground back of Telegraph Hill, near the cemetery, and there a low Mass was said by Rev. Father Hanley, Redemptorist, rector of St. Patrick's Church, Quebec. Mgr. Sbarretti and the archbishop in their robes attended, and after the Mass the archbishop sang the Libera, or prayer for the dead, assisted by a fine choir from St. Patrick's, Quebec. Under the blazing sun, in the swampy flat and up on the hillside, the congregation knelt in wrapt devotion. They listened to a sermon by Rev. A. E. Maguire, chaplain of the Hibernians, who, making no effort at all at eloquence, told the story of the famine, but dwelt with reiterated detail upon the performance of the forty-two priests, most of them of French extraction, who during the prevalence of the disease, went fearlessly among the dead and dying. Father Taschereau, afterwards cardinal, was one of that band. Father Hugh McQuirt of New Brunswick was another of those priests. The spirit of the French clergy also animated the French-Canadian people, who took into their families and reared as their own children six hundred of the orphans of Grosse Isle.

Mgr. Sbarretti having imparted the Apostolic benediction to the vast congregation, Archbishop Begin delivered a short address in English, in which he said that the monument was an appealing pageant between the French and Irish Catholics in Canada, who had both learned upon that spot the lessons of bitter hardship, and for whom the symbolism of the Cross had the same meaning.

The unveiling of the monument was then performed on top of the hill. The majestic Celtic cross of Canadian granite occupies a most commanding position and can be seen at a distance of ten miles from the river. It was flanked yesterday by the banners of Ireland and Quebec, these being the only flags in the immediate vicinity, although Canadian and American flags were elsewhere abundantly in evidence. On the three sides of the stone bears the following inscription in English, French, and Irish: "Erected to the memory of thousands of Irish emigrants, who, to preserve the faith, suffered hunger and exile in 1846-48, and, stricken by fever, ended here their sorrowful pilgrimage. Erected by the Ancient Order of Hibernians in America, and dedicated at the Feast of the Assumption, 1909."

Amongst with Mr. Charles J. Foy of Perth, Ont., national president of the A.O.H., were the Lieutenant-Governor of Quebec, Sir Charles Fitzpatrick, Hon. Charles Murphy, Hon. L. A. Taschereau, William Power, M.P., C. J. Doherty, M.P., Montreal; Hon. Charles Devlin, E. Devlin, M.P., M. Turcotte, M.P., Dr. Guerin, Montreal, Matthew Cummings, and E. McCrystal, representing the national board of the Hibernians.

Mr. Foy's opening speech was a masterpiece, and when he called upon Mgr. Sbarretti to draw aside the veil from the front of the stone, the apostolic delegate spoke a few sentences praising the popes for their love of Ireland.

The fourth inscription on the stone read: "Memorial tablet to the priests who voluntarily ministered to the typhus-stricken emigrants."

After Mr. Matthew Cummings had spoken, Hon. Charles Murphy made a fine plea for the erection of a tablet to the Canadian clergy, both Protestant and Catholic, who had died in 1847 by the contraction of typhus.

A Novelization of the Play of the Same Name

By BOOTH TARKINGTON and HARRY LEON WILSON

"Ha!" he said eagerly. "She returns from the kitchen with that national dish."

Michele emerged from the hotel walking backward and carrying a covered dish, while Ethel turned with a little shudder of disgust to the countess.

"How horrible!" she said, and the Frenchwoman patted her shoulder reassuringly.

Immediately following the servitor came Pike, the same self possessed Pike, clad in a linen duster and a straw hat that was decorated with a bright ribbon. If there was anything distinctive about him it was his scarf, which was of that type known as Windsor and much affected by artists in the east and every one in the west. He carried a towel with him and dropped it in one hand as he glanced about.

"Lawf" he observed, startled, but amused. "I didn't know there were folks here. Reckon you'll have to excuse me. Here, sonf" he called, tossing the towel into Michele's hands and walking over to the table. Hawcastle, Lady Crumb and Horace stared unbelievingly. Ethel hid her face with one other little shudder, as Pike, without removing his dust coat, sat down opposite the German.

"You are a true patriot," laughed Von Grollerhagen. "You allow no profane hand to cook your national dish. I trust you will be as successful with that wicked motor of mine."

Pike laughed heartily.

"Lord bless your soul, doc, I've put a self binder together after a pony engine had bucked it halfway through a brick depot," said Pike genially, tucking his napkin inside the collar of his shirt and falling to on the ham and eggs. At the table where sat the Hawcastle party there were expressions of pained agony.

"You have studied mechanics at the university, then?" went on Von Grollerhagen. "Is it not so?"

"University!" returned Pike. "Not much! On the old man's farm."

Hawcastle turned at once to Horace.

"Without any disrespect to you, my dear fellow, what terrific bounders most of your fellow countrymen are!"

Horace mentally writhed under the veiled taunt, but turned quickly with an assent in effect.

"Do you wonder that we and I have emancipated ourselves?" he asked, and the noble earl, with a softened glance as he thought of the dollars, replied blandly, "Not at all, my dear boy," and turned once more to his paper.

Von Grollerhagen glanced at the three with slight amusement and held out the caviare to Pike.

"Can I persuade you to try one of my national dishes," he asked—"caviare?"

"Caviare?" replied Pike. "I've heard of it, but I thought it was Russian."

"It is also German," answered the other, recovering himself from the start he had given. "Will you not?"

Daniel looked him straight in the eye quizzically.

"I'd never get into the legislature again if any of the boys heard of it," he remarked, "but I guess I'm far enough from home to take a few chances."

Quite slowly and hesitatingly he placed some of the caviare in his mouth and then turned a vacant and pained look upon the German. The latter smiled and observed quickly:

"You do not like it? I am sorry. Here! A taste of the vodka will destroy the caviare."

Mariano quickly filled a glass and passed it to Daniel, who seized it eagerly. This time he sat bolt upright in the chair and exhibited real distress. Then he quickly seized another forkful of the caviare and ate it hurriedly.

"But I thought you did not like the caviare?" said the German.

Daniel breathed quickly for an instant, and the flush died from his face.

"That was to take away the taste of the vodka," he said weakly, and Von Grollerhagen lifted his head and laughed heartily.

"I lift my hat to you, my friend," he said, and Pike looked at him genially.

"You never worked on a farm, did you, doc?" he asked, and the German admitted that such a pleasure had been denied him.

"I guess that's right," went on Daniel reflectively. "Talk about things to drink! Harvest time and the women folks coming out from the house with a two gallon jug of ice cold buttermilk."

Horace shuddered convulsively, and Von Grollerhagen asked:

"You still enjoy those delights?"

"Not since I moved up to our county seat and began to practice law, ten years ago," Pike answered. "Things don't taste the same in the city."

"Then you do not like your city?"

"Like it! Why, sir, for public buildings and architecture I wouldn't trade our state insane asylum for the worst ruined ruin in Europe—not for hygiene and real comfort."

"And your people?"

"The best on earth. Why, out my way folks are neighbors!"

Horace rattled his paper sharply and glanced angrily at the disturber of his harmony. The German went on.

"But you have no leisure class," he objected, and Daniel smiled.

"We've got a pretty good sized colored population," he replied.

The German lifted his hand protestingly.

"I mean no aristocracy—no great old families such as we have, that go back to the middle ages."

Pike laughed seriously, if one might imagine such a thing, and returned instantly:

"Well, I expect if they go back that far they might just as well sit down and stay there. No, sir; the poor man in my country don't have to pay any taxes to keep up a lot of useless kings and earls and first grooms of the bedchamber and second ladies in waiting and I don't know what all. If anybody wants our money for nothing, he's got to show energy enough to steal it, Doc. I wonder a man like you doesn't emigrate."

To Be Continued.

SMUGGLERS ARE ROUTED

Windsor, Aug. 17.—A band of Chinese smugglers, using a deserted island ten miles down the river as a base of operations, is believed to have been broken up by the capture of three young Detroit men and two Chinamen in Lansing, last week. With the knowledge gleaned from the prisoners, it is believed a temporary check, at least, has been put on the bold gang. The headquarters of this gang of smugglers, according to assistant U. S. District Attorney Bland, is on Fighting Island, inside the Canadian border. It is the belief of the Government authorities that the gang, checkmated at every point, hit upon the deserted island as their headquarters, and that Chinamen to be smuggled were taken in hand upon their arrival in Windsor and secreted on the island, probably in one of the fishermen's huts, until an opportunity arose to take them across the line in a launch. But the scheme went wrong on its first trial, it is believed, and all because the white men involved were unable to control their hunger. They stopped in Lansing to ask a policeman the way to a restaurant, and the officer saw the Chinamen, insufficiently covered by a rug, in the bottom of their automobile. He accordingly seized the machine, the two Chinamen, and three of the four white men in the rig. The Chinamen were remanded for a hearing by U. S. Commissioner Davison, and the white men are making an effort to obtain bail.

UNION OF AFRICA NOW

Constitution Bill Is Unanimously Passed by British Commons at Second Reading—Race Problem Will Be Left for Provinces to Settle Blacks Held Down—Are Not Whites' Equal, Says Balfour.

London, Aug. 17.—The House of Commons last night unanimously passed the second reading of the South African constitution bill.

In the course of the debate ex-Premier Balfour said that the House in dealing with the question of a constitution for the federation of South African colonies — the Transvaal, Cape Colony, the Orange River State, and Natal—was discussing one of the most important events in the history of empire.

The bill, he declared, was a most wonderful issue from all the controversies, battles, bloodshed and difficulties to peace, and he believed the world could not show anything like it.

The race problem, Mr. Balfour said, was but a fractional part of the great question Parliament was now deciding.

He strongly denied that it was intended to give the colored races equality with Europeans, declaring that so far as the Government, society and the higher forms of civilization were concerned, it would be impossible to give equal rights to the colored races without threatening the whole fabric of civilization.

HON. ARTHUR BALFOUR.

In the opinion of Mr. Balfour, the best hope for the solution of this great problem was to place absolute and implicit confidence in the representative institutions the South Africans are now creating, and for the Home Government not to meddle with it.

He added that he desired to do nothing that would hamper the Government in carrying out a measure so essential to the future of South Africa.

DAMAGE BY THE STORM

Roofs Are Blown Off and Many Persons Have Narrow Escapes in Windsor — Walkerville and Sunderland Men Lose Barns and Crops—Distillery Plant Suffers by Being Unroofed at Walkerville.

Windsor, Aug. 17.—A terrific wind and rain storm, which passed over this city Sunday night, was augmented by a second storm yesterday afternoon, and together they inflicted serious damage in many quarters.

It is more than probable that at least two persons have been drowned by the overturning of canoes in the rivers.

In Windsor roofs were blown off several houses, chimneys blown down, trees damaged, and several people had narrow escapes from being injured by flying debris. Lightning also struck in several places, and at Belle Isle, directly across from Walkerville, one man, Noble T. Bristow of Cleveland, was struck and instantly killed. The rapidity with which the storm came up caught many sailboats and canoes out on the river, and reports of overturned boats are numerous. There is some apprehension that two Detroit boys named Starr may have lost their lives.

Walkerville probably suffered the most severely. Three iron warehouses of the Walkerville Distillery plant were unroofed and thrown to the ground.

Two large barns, owned by Francis Pratt, above Walkerville, and filled with the season's crops, were struck by lightning and destroyed.

Loses Barn and Crops.

Sunderland, Aug. 17.—During a heavy thunderstorm yesterday afternoon, the barn of Thomas Mulligan, two miles northwest of the village, was struck by lightning and burned to the ground. Mulligan lost all the season's crop of hay and fall wheat, a small quantity of alsike feed, all the fowl, three pigs and a calf, also some of his implements. Mulligan carried some insurance, but his loss will be heavy.

Two Barns Burned.

Abington, Aug. 17.—During the electric storm that passed over this district Sunday evening, the barn of Albert Cox, a farmer in Brooke Township, was burned down. Yesterday afternoon during another storm, the barn of W. F. Armstrong of the Township of Euphemia was destroyed.

Knocked Out of Bed by Lightning.

Brantford, Aug. 17.—George Snaale, residing on William street, Paris, was knocked out of bed by lightning on Sunday night. There was a severe storm in that vicinity. Snaale went to bed, and about eleven o'clock lightning struck the house, tearing away part of the roof, the bolt crashing into the bedroom, tearing off the plaster, and throwing Snaale to the floor, where he later recovered without serious effects.

GYPSIES OFF FOR THE UNITED STATES

Have Shaken Dust of Ottawa From Their Feet.

Examiner Special.

Ottawa, Aug. 17.—The Mexican gypsies have departed from their temporary resting place near Hurdman's Bridge. According to all accounts they left on Saturday afternoon, going in a southerly direction. Queen Esther on Friday said that their destination was the United States, so it is likely that their route will be in the direction of Kingston.

Their chief reason for stopping over at Hurdman's Bridge was to have a wheel of one of their waggons repaired. That job having been completed to their satisfaction by the blacksmith at the bridge, they proceeded on their way.

Complaints have been sent in to the police concerning their doings, but the band was there for so short a time that no action was taken.

HOW THE COUNTRY GROWS.

As an indication of the growth and prosperity under the present Government a few figures would be interesting. In 1896, Canada exported farm products to the value of $50,591,008. In 1908, this had increased to $121,171,199. Exports of manufactures in 1896, $9,365,284. Increased in 1908 to $39,807,194. Exports of forest products in 1896, $27,175,686, increased in 1908 to $44,170,470. Bacon and hams exported from 1895 to 1896, twelve years, $39,627,285, increased from 1896 to 1908 to $135,156,911. Butter in same period $10,513,348, increased to $51,-660,095. Cheese, in same period, $127,-611,636, increased to $247,790,332. Wheat in same period $45,338,791, increased to $213,877,659. These figures illustrate the expansion of trade from an agricultural standpoint since the present Government came into power, and no reason can be found for changing such a satisfactory condition of things, apart from the desire of politicians to secure office.

OUT OF POLITICS.

It is not probable that the Ross Rifle will again be made a political target, except for the guerilla partisans of the Conservative party. Mr. R. L. Borden has "come down" under its fire. Speaking at Bisley, where he and the other Borden, Sir Frederick, happened to meet, Mr. Borden acknowledged himself converted to the Ross Rifle, by the wonderful work done by it at Bisley and he added that so far as he was concerned the political attacks on the Ross Rifle would cease. The political significance of this attitude by the Conservative leader arises from the fact that one of the chief "scandals" used by Conservative politicians in the last general elections, as well as in the preceeding parliamentary session was the fact that the Ross rifle was a "useless weapon," and that the whole transaction between the Ross Company and the Government was a game of fraud and "graft." Here, however, we now have Mr. Borden, after personally witnessing the triumph of this rifle, in the most exacting competition, the world can afford, quoted as declaring that so far as he is concerned the matter is out of politics. It would be difficult to demand a more complete vindication of a Government policy. Mr. Borden's manly attitude is all the more praiseworthy in that it declares that the party he leads, with the honourable exception of Col. Sam Hughes, were pursuing a false scent when they sought to decredit the Government on the head of the Ross rifle.

VENICE TRANSLATED

If the writer of "Venice Preserved" —good old seventeenth-century Thomas Otway—had wished for a concrete illustration of his subject he could have found it in Peterborough yesterday. In an article on Saturday the Examiner made reference to the failure to provide outlets in the pavements intersecting pavements laid on certain short streets, to provide for the outflow of storm water. St. Joseph street, where new pavement was laid a few days ago, on each side, several inches above the driving level of the street, was quoted and the effects of wet weather in spring and autumn pointed out. The illustration has come sooner than expected. After yesterday's rain the street was a huge pool, caused by the water flowing in from Gilmour street, held in by the water-tight pavements on either side, in default of an outlet to the south on Charlotte street. After yesterday's rain some lads got some boards from an adjacent lane (which was also a-flood, but too narrow for navigation) and constructed a raft upon which they paddled about gleefully—Venetion conditions in Peterborough—improvised gondolas sailing the streets of the city. If a summer shower produces such conditions, what will happen with autumn rains and the melting snows of spring? This matter, which deals with actual fact, is referred to, to show how the money of the people is expended—to show how little foresight is exercised. The object of constructing and maintaining a street is to provide travel with ease and comfort. To the extent that money is spent that does not serve this purpose, it is wasted. Why these things are done is difficult to understand; why they are permitted by the authorities is an insoluble conundrum. And the long-suffering taxpayer pays for it all. Under the circumstances, who will not say that his money is obtained on false pretences?

A SUPPLY OF CLEAN MILK.

(Toronto Globe)

No subject is more vital to the health of town and city dwellers than an ample supply of clean milk. In this and other Canadian cities the consumers are now paying sufficiently high prices for their milk, and they have a right to demand that the supply be pure. A few days ago several gentlemen went together to a hotel for their dinners. During the course of the meal it was noticed that one, a veterinary surgeon, did not take cream in his tea. As he was the only one of the group who manifested this peculiarity of taste he was questioned as to his reason. He said: "The demands of my profession in recent years have made it imperative for me to study and investigate the health of dairy herds, the sanitary conditions of dairies, and the handling of milk intended for city consumption. Since I have been brought into intimate personal contact with the dairy business I have refrained from using milk in its raw state unless I am certain of its source and know how it has been handled. I am extremely fond of milk and cream, but I must know that it is clean." Such a statement by an authority raises a question of the first importance.

How is the average town or city consumer to know that his milk supply is clean? When milk is produced at remote rural districts, shipped to the cities by trains, hauled to local depots and there bottled, and hours afterwards distributed to the consumers, there are so many points at which it may be contaminated that the problem of keeping it clean becomes almost hopelessly involved. Or when milk is produced at nearby dairy farms and is brought to the city in waggons and is distributed from house to house out of large cais it is almost certain to be more or less spoiled. It matters not how cleanly the milk may be produced or with how much care it is delivered to the city if finally distributed to the consumer in this way. The can top is opened, to dip out the consumer's amount. This is put into the open top or bucket, which is again emptied into the consumer's pitcher or crock. All this is done in the open, dusty street. It may be stated without fear of contradiction that among all sources of contamination there is none from which comes more opportunity for dirt and disease than the distribution of milk in open cans from the street.

To secure clean milk of good quality for city consumption means that every step in its production and distribution must be guarded with zealous care and trained intelligence. In the first instance no amount of skill will produce wholesome milk unless the cows are in good health, and are able to consume large quantities of food. In the second instance the stables must be kept clean and the surroundings sanitary. The four essentials for a proper cow house are: (1) Abundance of light. (2) ample ventilation, (3) a floor that has good drainage and is easily cleaned, and (4) a comfortable stall and tie. These necessities are not expensive to provide, but are usually absent. Then, much of the dirt in milk comes from a filthy barnyard, in which the cows are allowed to wade. Before milking, the cows must be cleaned and all loose particles of dirt removed. But this is not all. Not only must the stables be free from bad odors and floating dust and the cows clean, but the milkers should have clean milking suits and clean, dry hands, and should use clean milk pails which are so constructed that no falling dirt can get into them. All cans, strainers, coolers, and other utensils that come into contact with the milk should not be only washed clean, but ought to be sterilized before using.

The ideal method for preparing the milk for delivery is to cool it to forty-five degrees Fahrenheit, immediately after milking, in a clean dairy room, separate from the stable, and then bottle it in sterilized bottles and seal the bottles with paraffined paper caps. It should then be shipped to the city, either packed in ice or in refrigerator cars. There is no reason why it should not be in the consumer's hands within twenty-four hours from the time it comes from the cows.

Milk for town or city consumption should be free from disease-producing bacteria, and all other germs should be reduced to a minimum. The fat content should not vary outside narrow limits, so the consumer may depend on the milk always being of good quality. Cleanliness and low temperature should be the only preservatives used. It should be reasonably free from foreign odors and objectionable flavours. It should be the natural product of the cow, which has not been subjected to any treatment which affects its digestibility or changes its character. It should always be a safe food for infants and people with delicate digestion. This is no more than a reasonable standard for city milk. City consumers are to-day paying a price that justifies them in demanding clean milk of a standard quality. Are they getting it?

The foregoing is written from a Toronto point of view, but the same conditions and requirements to secure absolute purity and cleanliness apply to the preparation and care of milk intended for our own use.

THE MYSTERIOUS NERVES

How like electricity is the mysterious nerve force which courses through the body, controlling the movement of every muscle and the working of every organ. The secret of keeping the marvellous nervous system in health and vigour is found in the use of Dr. Chase's Nerve Food, the great blood builder and nerve restorative.

CASSELS' PUBLICATIONS.

Cassell's Magazine for August is a delightful number, full of well-illustrated material, not heavy, but of high literary character, and of well-judged variety. Of special interest is a finely illustrated article, "Some Canadian Women Artists," with portraits of the women artists of Canada, who have won distinction with brush or chisel, including two who have local associations—Miss Sydney Strickland Tully, daughter of the late Kivas Tully, and Miss Katherine E. Wallis. To the latter is devoted an interesting paragraph, which is reproduced in another column. At the bookstores; 15 cents.

From the same prolific publishers is received "The Story Teller," for September—a splendid holiday number containing over a dozen most entertaining short stories and a complete seaside novel. A delightful group of stories to fill in the odd hours in the pleasure pursuits of a holiday outing. Fifteen cents at all the bookstores.

LATE FRASERVILLE NEWS

Examiner Special.

Fraserville, Aug. 17.—Mrs. A. Reynolds and her daughters, of Springville, were the guests of Mrs. Right on Tuesday last.

Miss Olive Seabrook is spending a week in Peterborough visiting friends.

Miss Cora Scobell has gone to Peterborough, where she has accepted a position.

On Thursday evening last three prominent Fraserville young ladies and a young lady from Rochester, were very badly frightened when returning home, after spending the evening with Mr. and Mrs. Bert Cunningham. The young ladies thought they would go across a field of oats for a short cut and when about half way across, they thought they were being chased by an angry bull, belonging to Mr. Cunningham, and which was in an adjoining field when they started.

When the young ladies were convinced that they were chased, they started a Marathon across the fields, which terminated in a halfway track, where they assured themselves thoroughly, that they were not pursued. They came nervously and breathlessly to the village, very tired after their exertions.

Mr. R. E. Delahey has been laid up for the last few days with a sore foot.

Miss Elsie Henkle was the guest of Mrs. W. A. Kidd on Thursday night last.

Mr. Wm. Cruikshank has been laid off work for the past few days, owing to slight illness.

Mr. Harry McIlmoyle, of Toronto, spent Sunday with his cousin, Mr. James McIlmoyle, here.

Miss Clara Robeson left Tuesday morning to spend a few days with her parents at Norham.

We all join in issuing a vote of thanks to Mr. George Berry, of Centreville, for his trouble in getting the plank for the new sidewalk, and we hope the people of this village will show their gratitude by casting their vote in favour of Mr. Berry at the next election.

Miss Jessie Laing, of Otonabee, was in the village on Monday.

The re-opening of the Fraserville school took place to-day, August 16th. Miss Weatherilt in charge. We extend to her our best wishes for success in her duties for the coming term.

We are sorry to see that there are two or three families in the village, who kept their children home from school in the past years, going to do the same this year. There are at least six or seven children, ranging from seven and eight to twelve and thirteen years of age, who have not gone to school a whole month in their lives, and some of them do not know what the inside of a school room is like.

Some of the interested villagers should notify the trustees and try to do something for the good of, we may say, for the good of the country, for is it not a loss to the country to allow her sons to grow up and not know how to write their own names or look out for their own interests?

What may we expect from these entirely uneducated people? What kind of citizens will they make? They never were under a teacher's rule, and at home are allowed to do principally as they please, so what good can we expect from them? They will be worse than the men who ride in airships; they will never get a chance to leave their mark (foot prints) on the "Sands of Time."

Miss Luella Hogg was the guest of Miss Pearl Scobell on Thursday last.

Miss Ethel Waterman was in the village on Thursday evening last.

CANADA RECEIVES BUFFALO HERD NUMBERING FIVE HUNDRED OF THE FORMER MONARCHS OF WESTERN PLAINS

The Celebrated Pablo Herd Is Delivered — Concluding Sequel to Series of Articles Examiner Published in Connection With This Purchase—Restocking the Old Stomping Grounds.

A FAR-SEEING INDIAN

Mr. R. C. W. Lett, of Ottawa, now colonization agent of the Grand Trunk Pacific, tells in an interesting fashion in The Evening Examiner to-day of the return of the great herd of buffaloes—the largest herd in the world—to the Canadian prairies. Says Mr. Lett:

"The mighty bison of the priaries shall not become extinct." Thus said our Canadian Government, and forthwith set about to secure Pablo's great herd of Montana buffalo, the largest in the world.

Realize if you can, what a tremendous piece of work was entailed, rounding up and loading for shipment this herd which comprises, so far, five hundred and twelve head.

Many were the risks taken by the buffalo boys, who were obliged to pull their revolvers various times, on some of the unruly beasts, to save their own lives. Mr. Howard Douglas, commissioner of parks, to whom a great deal of credit is due for the manner in which he supervised this great task, related to me a thrilling incident which occurred during the loading down in Montana.

One of the largest buffalo refused to be driven into the chute leading to the line of waggons which were teamed thirty-six miles to the railway, and the animal charged every horse and rider who approached too near. Finally one boy, more daring than the rest, closed in on his lordship, thinking the horse could clear himself before the bull's sharp horns could touch him. In this he was mistaken, for like a flash the brute wheeled and drove his rapier like horns into the belly of his horse, and raising both it and the rider, tore across the enclosure for the distance of a hundred yards. The boy tried in vain to pull his revolver on the now thoroughly infuriated beast, but for some reason or other it stuck to its holster. Galloping to the rescue two riders arrived only in time as both boy and horse were down, and the infuriated bull stood ready to kill the rider, as he killed the beast, which never regained its feet.

It is said that Madam Pablo vied with the most expert boys on the range in feats of daring, and many were the interesting feats she performed.

Mr. Pablo, from whom the Canadian government purchased the herd, is considered the wealthiest Indian in America. His business foresight was certainly great in realizing that the day would come when a single live buffalo would be worth from two to three hundred dollars, and that by rounding up a few from the rapidly decreasing herds he would in the course of time be able to pull out for a tidy fortune.

It is however regrettable that there are among us men of very small calibre who would criticise the move just made in securing to our country this magnificent herd, and would ask questions, such as, "What is the price of buffalo hides?" or "What is a mounted head worth?" etc. All these petty questions should be treated with contempt. These vast remnants of a once mighty multitude were not bought for speculation but to preserve for all time to come one of the grandest creatures that ever roamed the vast prairies. Let us, for God's sake, have some sentiment.

The other day as I wandered down the valley of the Battle River in a noon day blaze of the sun, I gazed about me, and the words of that old song came into my mind: "The valley lay smiling before me."

I was alone, and was sad to think that other lovers of nature could not stand with me and look down upon the enchanting scene.

Having eaten my lunch I shouldered my camera and scaled the neighbouring hills for suitable views. Off to the north stood outlined against the sky the great Battle river bridge of the Grand Trunk Pacific, one mile and a quarter in length and 185 feet in height. As I reached the small gully my foot struck something hard and stooping down among the wild flowers which abound in the locality, I discovered a large buffalo skull. I looked at the skull and then at the great bridge which ties together the high banks of the Battle River valley, and from the buffalo age my mind reverted to the present with all its wonders of railway construction.

The whole vast west is wrapped in romance and the buffalo, which is now almost extinct may not be lightly passed by, but rather looked upon with feelings of deep veneration.

Pablo held his herd on an Indian reservation in Montana. One day it came to his ears that the reserve was to be thrown open sooner or later so he journeyed to Washington and offered his herd to the United States government. His offer was not entertained. Then at a later date, when it was decided definitely that the reservation must go, an offer of $75 a head was made, but Pablo just laughed and refused.

Now came our turn for a bid, and by good judgment Howard Douglas closed the deal for the whole herd, bosses, heads and tails. This, I may say, required tact, as Pablo, who cannot talk English, looks with suspicion upon the English-speaking race. Everything was so quietly arranged that for more than three months it was known to but a few.

The first shipment of 325 head was delivered on the 10th of June last, and on the 3rd of July the second contingent with a train of 15 cars containing 180 head, pulled into Wainwright at 6.30 p.m., and I was on the spot with camera in hand. Taking into consideration that I fired my first shot at them at 7 p.m., and the last at 8.30 p.m., the result was not so bad.

Our train pulled up to the buffalo chute, one mile west of Wainwright, and the work of unloading began. Such a crowd of interested spectators as there were on hand to view them. Indians and squaws vied with each other for a place of vantage. Here and there were scattered mounted groups of men and women, most of the latter wearing divided skirts. From far and near the people came and I wondered how they knew a train load of buffalos was to be unloaded.

On top of the car to be unloaded stood a man with a long pole, on the end of which was a long hook with which he jerked from around the buffalo's neck the loop of heavy rope with which the animal was held fast in its place, and which a man with a sharp knife had severed at the first stage of the operation. After this the wooden partition was pushed down, and with poles and shovels Mr. Buffalo was driven down the chute to the enclosure.

The first to touch the ground was a great big brute with a large bell and wattle. Down he came into the arena, as it were, with his tail crooked like an interrogation point. Man alive, but he was a noble sight—fire was shining in his eyes, and his mane was full of trouble. For a second he paused to look about him, then like a flash he charged the fence where the crowd was the thickest. The strong fence crushed and sang like the song of the sword but suffered no damage. The bull then turned around and saw for the first time he was walking on buffalo grass, and immediately started to feed.

When a goodly number had collected in the unloading enclosure, I felt that it would be but a short time until the old buffalo trail would be accepted and then the bunch would follow the leader down the three quarter mile lane-like enclosure which led to the great park of one hundred and fifty six square miles. So with all speed I made a detour of the spot and came out under the crest of a hill, and under cover of a small clump of trees, I waited for my quarry. I have hunted big game and small game with gun and rifle, but in no place with the pleasure so keen as when I drew a bead through my camera sight on the line of buffaloes coming down the trail in single file. Cows and calves went galloping by, and great shaggy bulls tossed their tails in mid-air when they got to windward of me. It was a sight for the gods.

The 22,000 acres which comprise the park make an ideal spot for the propagation of the buffalo, scattered, as it is, with small clumps of willows, poplars and elms. No less than eighteen lakes provide an abundance of water. In the enclosure, which is fenced with sixty eight and a half miles of wire fence eight feet high, there are about twelve deer, and an abundance of wild water fowl and prairie chickens, so that for all time to come the park will be a resting and breeding place for various sorts of game. It will be but a short time until five thousand or more will be in the enclosure, for the rate at which they increase is very rapid. At times a cow will give birth to twins. The young are particularly hardy, and will in some instances run about one minute after they are born. The time will come when every park of any consequence in Canada will have its share of buffaloes from the great Wainwright buffalo herd.

It will be only a few days more till the Grand Trunk Pacific Railway will be into Edmonton, allowing tourists from both east and west to see this vast new country of ours with its many attractions.

Eaton School Book Contract To Be Used As An Advertiser

Reader of Dry Goods Review Makes Enquiry---Asks for Information and is Sent a Batch of Mail Order Directions and a "Money Saver" Tip.

The following from the August number of the Dry Goods Review should be read with a great deal of interest in Peterborough and the truth of the statements will be readily seen:

"What may be regarded as a preliminary though none the less significant evidence of the use which the T. Eaton Co. intend making of the school reader contract, recently awarded them by the Ontario Government, has been brought to the attention of The Dry Goods Review by an enquirer for information concerning the new books. Accompanying the reply which he received was a batch of Eaton mail-order literature, samples of which are here reproduced.

An Advertising Lever.

No more forceful confirmation of The Dry Goods Review's contention that the contract will be employed as an advertising lever for the huge departmental store could have come to light at the present time. It is striking proof that those who let the contract, though properly impelled by the consideration of cheap readers for the schools, entirely overlooked the possibility of unjust application of advantages of enormous value when placed in the hands of such a concern as the T. Eaton Co. Hon. Dr. Pyne, Minister of Education, cannot fail to recognize, in the face of this latest evidence that it would be only reasonable to the hundreds of retailers throughout the country to take such steps as may be necessary to prevent the discharge of the contract in the manner described. As already pointed out by The Dry Goods Review, the Government can stipulate that the imprint of the Education Department be placed upon the books. Instead of that of the T. Eaton Co. The Education Department also has power to take over the distribution of the books. By requiring the observance of these clauses in the contract, the Department would greatly modify an evil foresten by country retailers, and one which is already taking actual form, judging from the manner in which the enquirer's letter was treated.

School Book Monopoly.

A very considerable number of those newspapers in which the new contract has been commented upon hold that steps should be taken whereby the sale of school books will not become a monopoly. The Hamilton Herald for example, states, that "it is not only unjust to the retail trade of the province, but also to the general public, to give any one retail firm the school books in its own hands by making the sale of them by any other dealers unprofitable. Evidently this is what may be done under the contract. The Eaton company has the legal right to refuse to sell books to retail dealers at any but the retail price. Probably it will take advantage of this right. The result will be that retail dealers will be obliged, for the convenience of the public, to sell school readers at a loss, or the people of Ontario will be obliged to sell their readers from the Eaton company only. Such a condition would entail a great deal of inconvenience. The contract should have stipulated that the contracting firm must sell the readers to the retail trade at a reasonable discount. The objection to the school books being used to advertise the retail business of the Eaton company is also a sound one. No advertising matter ought to be allowed within the cover of these school books."

Patronizing Home Merchants.

Every country newspaper in the Province has, from time to time, exhorted its readers to patronize home merchants—the men who pave the streets, who contribute to the maintenance of schools, churches and charitable institutions and who help out the local newspaper by advertising. Yet there are newspapers who see no injustice in this contract, who have not noticed how it will undoubtedly endanger the business of country merchants, and who claim, like the Ridgetown Dominion which presumably voices the opinion of Phil. Bowyer, M.P.P. for East Kent, that the contract is not an advertising coup pulled off by the T. Eaton Co., whereby another means of access to the homes of the people in smaller towns and cities is obtained, thus extending the mail-order business, and cutting in upon the trade of the local mercantile houses.

To those who have not sized up these phases of the matter, The Dry Goods Review presents this latest proof. Every enquiry, every order will undoubtedly bring a bunch of Eaton advertising literature. No person is interested in Dr. Pyne's free information to the effect that so-called electric corporations are responsible for the opposition to the contract. This line of talk is rendered somewhat nonsensical when ranged alongside the serious weakness of the contract, and the absolute freedom from political consideration with which the matter has so far been considered. The Dry Goods Review is entirely ignorant of any such influence. It feels that it has taken a stand well within its province as a trade newspaper, and that the injustice of the proposition made its duty in the matter imperative. The Dry Goods Review advocates no course that would detract from the public benefit to which the Department of Education so commendably pledged itself in this matter. At the same time, it strongly disapproves of any action by which a public contract might be employed to the serious disadvantage of a large section of the mercantile community.

THE MAID AT SWEET SIXTEEN

Winning, pensive, and sweet, with delicate grace and charm in every movement, but that lovely color that once shone so rosily has gradually faded away. Her eyes are expressive but listless, that lightness of step and buoyancy of spirit which once were hers are gone.

This girl is in danger. Her system demands nourishment: her blood must be renewed. She needs Ferrozone—needs it badly—because it will bring back the nerve energy which rapid growth and study have exhausted. New strength and old-time vigor return with Ferrozone. The delicate maid is energized and given the endurance and vigor that means health.

SHE NEEDS FERROZONE

Parents, think it over. In Ferrozone there is wonderful power for strengthening and rebuilding. Every child needs it—every boy and girl will improve on it. Get a few boxes, 50c each, or six boxes for $2.50. Sold by all dealers.

WHEN THEY WERE YOUNG

"When I was young—with frantic air
The father bellows from his chair,
"One never heard of little boys
Creating half such fuss and noise
As nowadays! Why, bless my heart,
We never caused our sires to start,
With fear at every madcap game,
That now the boyish minds inflame;
Gentle we were—and curbed the tongue
And used some sense—when I was young.

The mother cries "when I was young,
My parents' hearts were never wrung
With anguish for an erring child,
Who lost her heart to lover wild.
No, no indeed, in my young days,
We closed our ears to Cupid's lays,
What parents bade us do we did,
And meekly sorrowed when they chid;
But now, aside our words are flung,
Ah; times are changed since I was young!"

Ye merry children, blithe and gay,
Take heed to what your parents say;
Keep quiet o'er your romps and toys,
You noisy little girls and boys.
Your parents always did — and you,
Bright girl, so sweet, so fair to view;
Mark what your mother's words attest
And spurn all longing from your breast,
For 'tis a baneful passion, sprung
To hateful life—since she was young.

INJURIES FROM KICK RESULTED FATALLY

Mr. J. J. Cain, of Toronto, who, with his wife was spending a holiday with Mr. and Mrs. Wm. Henry, Hilliard street, received the sad intelligence of the death in the Orillia Hospital of his brother last evening. The late Mr. Cain, who resided about fourteen miles from Orillia was kicked by a horse about a week ago and his death was due to injuries received.

Mr. Cain left for Orillia this morning to attend the funeral. His friends here will sympathize with him in his sad bereavement.

Children Had Eczema

SUFFERED AGONY UNTOLD

Treatment prescribed had no effect—DR. CHASE'S OINTMENT made thorough cure.

Many a mother's heart has been torn by the suffering of her little one who has fallen a victim of eczema. Only such mothers appreciate to the full the value of Dr. Chase's Ointment as a cure for this horrible ailment.

Mrs. Oscar Vancott, St. Antoine, Sask., writes:

"I have found Dr. Chase's Ointment to be a permanent cure of eczema and other skin diseases. One son, while nursing, broke out with running watery sores all over his head and around the ears. Many salves were prescribed to no effect. The child's head became a mass of scabs and he suffered agony untold. He became weak and frail and would not eat and we thought we would lose him.

"Providentially we heard of Dr. Chase's Ointment, and it soon thoroughly cured him. He is seven years old now and strong and well. An older boy was also cured of eczema by this Ointment, and we hope more people will learn about it so that their poor little ones may be saved from suffering."

Chafing and irritation of the skin, from which nearly all babies suffer more or less, is a frequent source of eczema. There is no treatment for chafing so satisfactory as Dr. Chase's Ointment. Pore-clogging, unsanitary powders are being discarded by all who have once learned the value of this great Ointment in keeping baby's skin soft, smooth and healthy.

In scores of ways Dr. Chase's Ointment is useful in every home in the treatment of pimples, barber's itch, scalds and burns, poisoned skin, sore feet and every form of itching skin disease. 60 cents a box, at all dealers, or Edmanson, Bates & Co., Toronto.

Impromptu Regatta Held At Viamede Was Source Of Much Amusement

Special to The Examiner.

Viamede, Stony Lake, Aug. 17.—On Friday evening, directly after tea an impromptu regatta was held at Viamede and it was quite successful. The double skiff race was won by Messrs. Sweeny and Douglas, and the boys' race was won by Cameron Urquhart, the double skiff race was won by Miss Bonner and Mr. Leo Urquhart.

Card parties continue to be as popular as ever. Bridge and five hundred being the most popular games.

The dances in the pavilion still keep on and afford great enjoyment to old and young.

A touring party went to the Blue Mountains on Saturday and report a fine time, but they did not reach the mountains as they had no guide, and no one knew the way.

Service on Sunday was held by Rev. C. Lord, as usual.

The guests registered at Viamede during the past week are: G. A. Stewart and W. H. Jamison, Toronto; Mrs. Wm. Miller and Miss Julia Miller, Beatrice, Neb.; Miss Minnie Burley, Rochester, N.Y.; Mrs. Dr. Kerr, Miss Kerr, Miss C. Kerr and Miss Dorothy Kerr, Toronto; J. B. Hall, Waterloo; A. G. Hall, Toronto; Mr. and Mrs. Geo. L. Schaus, Rochester, N. Y.; Miss Luella Jobbitt, Peterborough; Mr. and Mrs. T. W. Aagaard, Brandon; Mr. and Mrs. F. M. Pratt, and Bernard Pratt, Toronto; Charles Heinroth, Pittsburg, Pa.; A. L. Emmons and wife, Elyria, O.; A. R. Lutchford and O. J. Nagle, Rochester, N. Y.; Miss Frances Crames and Miss Anna Crames, Syracuse, N. Y.; Miss Ada Athoe, Miss Ethel Patterson and Mrs. T. Athoe, Toronto; Mr. and Mrs. D. H. Chisholm and Miss Hudspeth, Port Hope; Miss Chadwick, Toronto; B. M. Faragher and R. E. Faragher, Rochester, N. Y.

CAME HOME TOO SOON AND SPOILED CIVIC RECEPTION

Telegram to Lieut. Morris Miscarried and Bisley Hero Arrived in Bowmanville Unexpectedly—Was Honoured by the Citizens.

HE WAS GIVEN A MEDAL

Bowmanville, Aug. 14.—Mayor Mason and a committee of representative citizens called at the home of Lieut. F. H. Morris last evening, and after a round of speeches of a congratulatory nature by Reeve Tole, Chairman of the reception committee; Mayor J. J. Mason; W. F. Stearns, representing Durham Rubber Works; Christian Rehder, the Bowmanville Foundry Co.; J. B. Mitchell, the Dominion Organ & Piano Co.; Councillor J. H. Cryderman and M. A. James, the citizens generally, Mr. W. F. Stearns, on behalf of all the people of the town, presented Lieut. Morris with a handsome gold medal bearing the inscription: "Presented to Lieut. F. H. Morris by the citizens of Bowmanville for creditable shooting at Bisley, 1909." Lieut. Morris acknowledged the donation and the appreciative addresses in a modest but capital speech. A letter was read from Thomas Yellowlees, Toronto, conveying greetings from Durham Old Boys' Association.

It was intended to have given him a great citizens' reception on Monday evening on the town square, but the committee's telegram sent to him at Montreal miscarried in some way and he came home early Saturday instead of remaining at Montreal till Monday morning, as the message requested.

Lieut. Morris expects to participate at Long Branch next week in the Provincial rifle matches, when his record will be watched with great interest.

WEST IS CRYING OUT FOR MEN FOR THE HARVEST

Regina, Aug. 16.—Already there are incipient signs of labour famines in connection with the gathering of the Saskatchewan harvest, and at points on the Arcola line farmers are offering as much as three dollars a day and board, without obtaining the required help. The great heat of the last ten days has brought harvesting on with a rush, with the result that cutting has started at scores of points in southern Saskatchewan at least a week earlier than was anticipated, with the result that no labour is available. The handful of men who arrived here yesterday from the east were at once snapped up, and at the present time there are points south of the C. P. R. main line which could easily absorb one hundred men each with no prospects of the want being supplied until the next excursion arrives from the east. And even with the arrival of the remaining excursionists, judging from the information received by the Agricultural Department here from Winnipeg, it appears doubtful whether the supply will be equal to the demand. Certainly there should not be an idle man in Saskatchewan for the next two months.

Rancher's Cleverly Rope a Wolf And Drag It To Death

Medicine Hat, Aug. 17.—While timber wolves are notoriously rapacious, they are just as notoriously shy, and although the ranchers state that their depredations this year have been very costly, auguring an increase in numbers, still comparatively few of them have been taken. On Thursday of last week, however, Edmund McKay and A. L. Fitch jumped up a big fellow while working on Addison K. Walker's ranch between the Twelve and Thirty mile Sand Hills, some seventy miles northeast of the Hat. They had no weapons, but, nothing daunted, went after the quarry with their ropes. After about four miles' hard riding they were able to get within roping distance of the wolf, and McKay, being an expert, made an effort to rope the brute, while Fitch circled round him, holding him at bay. After several trials, in which the wolf was always able to go clear through the loop, McKay got him by both front feet and started over the prairie with him. Fitch soon had his rope over the animal's head and short work was then made of him.

Messrs: McKay and Fitch have every reason to feel proud of their feat, and as this particular wolf has been a source of great trouble amongst the calves and colts for some time the ranchers will heartily approve the service done.

As the wolves are very wary it is next to impossible to trap or poison them and the only way to get after them seems to be by taking the cubs in the spring or by roping. The number of riders who can claim the credit of roping a wolf in this district can be counted on the fingers of one hand, and even then there would be a finger or two to spare, so the feat of McKay and Fitch will be the topic of conversation in the cow camps for many a day to come.

Young Prisoner Tried To Escape By Picking Lock With Razor Blade

Eli Dion, the young man arrested yesterday by P. C. Meharry, came up before City Treasurer Frank Adams, who acted as Magistrate in the absence of Mr. Dumble. He was charged with unlawfully breaking into and entering the office of the Collier-Cunningham Co. and stealing the sum of four dollars, three gold watches, one silver watch, a quantity of postage stamps and a number of lead pencils. He did not elect nor plead, and he was remanded until Friday next.

Dion, who is only fifteen years of age, during his incarceration in the cell at the police station yesterday afternoon, made an unsuccessful attempt to escape. With a broken blade of a razor he tried to pick the lock and in doing so broke that part of the lock that fits into the barrel of the key. Chief Roszel experienced considerable difficulty in unlocking the cell when he wanted to bring the prisoner into court. Dion denied having tampered with it, but the razor blade showed that it had been used in the above mentioned way.

Horses Sprang Forward As Man Passed Beneath The Tongue

Examiner Special:

Fraserville, Aug 17.—Mr. William Hutchinson happened with a very painful accident on Thursday last. He went to assist Mr. Wm. Smith at the school and after tying his horses, got down to go through under the tongue instead of going around the waggon. When he was half way through, the horses sprang forward, his arm below the elbow.

Mr. Hutchinson did not know his arm was broken till the afternoon, when it became very sore and swelled. Dr. Russell, of Bailieboro, was called and set the arm, but owing to the swelling he was not sure whether it was properly set or not and Mr. Hutchinson was taken to Peterborough, where the X-ray was put on the broken limb, and it was found to have been set correctly.

REV. FATHER CASEY HOME FROM EUROPE

Visited in England, Ireland and France—is Looking Well.

Ven. Archdeacon Casey arrived home on the G. T. R. flyer this morning from his trip to Europe, looking the picture of health. During his sojourn on the continent he visited England, Ireland, and France. His many friends will welcome him back again and will be delighted to learn that his health has greatly improved.—Lindsay Post.

MISS CATHERINE E. WALLIS AND HER ARTISTIC WORK

The following from "Some Canadian Artists," in Cassels for September, referring to Miss Katherine E. Wallis, will be of interest to local readers:

Turning to Canadian sculptors, a story going the round of the studios aptly illustrates some of the large miseries and small rewards of the colonial artist's life. An eminent Canadian sculptor who had a beautiful stone statue in the "Societe Nationale" was invited by the Canadian Government to send it on view to one of the leading Colleges. The Director—whose acquaintance with sculpture was evidently limited to plaster casts—on the pretext that it was dirty, actually had the work, whose particular colour and surface naturally were part of its charm, painted!

Miss Katherine E. Wallis, a well-known Canadian artist, however, differs from the general run of sculptors in that she is not content with modelling her work and then handing it over to a workman to cut, as is the common practice, the result being a copy, sometimes a bad copy. She executes the whole thing herself, whether in stone or marble. This labour is heavy, no doubt, but the completed statue gains immeasurably in clearness and finish.

We first find Miss Wallis as a winner of a modelling scholarship at South Kensington, and exhibitor at the Royal Academy in the same year (1897.) Then Paris claimed her, like so many other girls and boys of promise, and in 1900 she showed at the Salon and also at the great Exposition. Since then success has followed success at the Royal Academy, Salon, and all other well known galleries, for this distinguished daughter of the snows. Miss Wallis, who had three exhibits in last year's "Nationale," is visiting her native land at present, and the Canadian Government lately purchased her life-sized statue, "Mercury Charmed by His Own Invention," for the National Gallery.

PRESENTATION MADE ON HIS DEPARTURE FOR THE WEST

Mr. Howard Taylor, who for the past two years has conducted the Taylor Optical parlours, left yesterday morning for Victoria, B.C., where he will engage in a similar occupation in that city.

On Saturday night his fellow members of the Belmont Club banquetted him at the Dominion Chinese Cafe, and incidentally made him the recipient of a beautiful ring, suitably engraved. About twenty were present, and after partaking of the supper, Mr. W. E. Martin made a few brief remarks, expressing regret at the departure of Mr. Taylor, and wishing him all future success. The presentation was made by Mr. Gordon Miller, he and Mr. W. T. Belleghem both speaking of the valuable services Mr. Taylor had rendered the club. He would be much missed, but the best wishes of every member went with him into his new home.

Mr. Taylor replied, expressing his thanks and kind appreciation of the Club's remembrance.

BIG FROG AT McCRACKEN'S IS THREATENING TROUBLE

Monster Menaces Property and Residents Take Preparations to Put an End to Him---Guide Secures Flannel for Bait---Big Fellow is Creating Considerable Excitement.

Comes William Henry Hudson—ichthyologist of the old school—with "hefty" and timely contributions to the season's output of fish tales.

Mr. Hudson, whose venerable whiskers and recognised prowess bespeak for him the title of dean of the Kawartha Lakes guides, has found the season fruitful, both as to black bass and the tales appertaining thereto.

Yesterday he had an off day. They weren't biting. Mr. Hudson, in consequence, found time to put into execution plans formulated some weeks ago. This explains a somewhat hurried trip to Peterborough in the midst of a busy season.

His mission is one of rescue, for, returning he carries with him a large basket, plethoric with red flannel, dynamite, and gang-hooks.

"Come what may," quoth he, swinging himself on the rear platform as the Lakefield train pulled out this morning, "I'm determined that no frog's goin' t' wreck McCracken's boathouse"—this parting observation merely in amplification of a hasty and kaleiloscopic review of the early season's events in Kawartha waters.

On the evening of July 14, it appears from the narrative, Mr. Hudson was resting easily by the structure mentioned, idly gouging an eye out of King William's white charger which continued to prance on a 12th of July poster, though the glories of the day at Warsaw, as set forth in 72-point Gothic, were past and gone. So suddenly and unexpectedly did the first shock come, Mr. Hudson asseverates, his knife slipped, carrying away a section of the north end of the steed and altering materially the topography of the River Boyne.

To use his own words: "'Twas like a see-ismic disturbance—as near as I can describe th' low, rumblin' noise; but Peter Samuel Little, ez I wuz talkin' to, he jumps up an' says, excited like, 'There's that hired man of Picking's eatin lettuce again!' But Peter's a little deef, y' know.

"Peerin about kinda cawtious ez I went, searchin' for th' origin of the noise, which grew in volume till it resembled the exhaust of the Empress, I wuz surprised t' see th' boathouse a-quiverin like a earth tremor wuz in progress."

Breaking off at this point to light his pipe, Mr. Hudson spoke parenthetically to the effect that while he had enemies, of course, should John Doe, Richard Roe, or other party or parties, unnamed, cast aspersions on his simple, straightforward narrative, there was them as knew the facts and would gladly come to the front. He would refer them one and all to Mr. Sam Hunter, who was prepared at all times to bear witness that the bull-frog, which had made its bed beneath the boat-house had an aldermanic waist-line, and tipped the scales something over six pounds.

"He croaks as lugubrious as Hon. George E. Foster after a bye-election," continued Mr. Hudson; "an' also at th' most unseemly hours, puttin' th' full force of his hoarse diapason into his "mo-o-runs". I tell you it's not at all soporific at 5 a.m.

"Why, I been a-baitin' hooks sence last Friday, an' Mr. Hunter'll tell you that critter's masticated a piece of red carpet, between five and six Stars an' Stripes, an' a large number of Canadian red ensigns.

"As I said before, I'm not th' kind as can stand idly by and see valuable property ruined by a frog. I'm takin' back enough flannel to bait 150 more hooks and 'll have th' dynamite and th' hotel man's red vest in reserve.

"Mebbe" Mr. Hudson grew penaive—"Mebbe you'll get an invite to th' barbecue."

Belleville Girl The Dupe Of Sharper Who Married Her

DISAPPEARED SUDDENLY

Belleville, Ont., August 17.—All Belleville is taking of the heartless and cruel deception practiced by an unscrupulous adventurer upon Miss Dora Frost, a daughter of the late John Frost, who was during his life one of the foremost Liberal politicians of West Hastings and a prominent merchant of this city.

At her father's death, Miss Frost, one of Belleville's most beautiful and cultured young ladies, inherited a small fortune. Soon afterwards she made a journey to California and and there made the acquaintance of a young man who gave the name of Kelly and claimed to be a member of a well known English family living at Stratford-on-Avon, and the prospective owner of a large estate there. His bearings and credentials bore out his claims and when after a very brief but ardent courtship, he proposed marriage, the young lady accepted him and the union quickly followed.

In Belleville the romance attracted considerable interest and everyone who knew the young lady was rejoiced to hear that she had made such an excellent match. Some of the facetious ones were quick to reproach the marriageable young men of Belleville with their want of enterprise and gallantry in permitting such a desirable belle to be won by an outsider.

The reputed Englishman brought his bride back to Belleville and soon charmed a large circle of friends by the graciousness of his manner and the stories of his connections and possessions in the Old Country, to which he announced that he would remove with his wife as soon as their farewells were made in Belleville. He, however, put off the day of his departure and absented himself for a time, ostensibly going to Cobalt to look up some mining adventures. When he came back he reported that he had found some wonderful chances to make money and upon the strength of it, induced his wife to put her property into his hands for investment. Then on some pretext he took her to Denver, and word has since reached Belleville that he left there stranded and helpless, without a dollar to her name. He disappeared, and no one knows whither he went.

Investigations of his claims as to his standing in the Old Country have proved them to be false in every particular.

It appear that Miss Frost has fallen a victim to the wiles of a shrewd man good-looking sharper, as so many other young women have done, and great sympathy is expressed for her. Some of her friends are taking of swift measures to revenge should the young man ever be located. She is now quite certain that not only is her pseudo husband a swindler, but travelling under a factitious name, but fears that she may be but one of many persons he has duped in like manner.

HAIL STORM REPORTED TO HAVE DONE DAMAGE AT INDIAN HEAD

Mr. McConnell of Gilmour street, received a very discouraging letter from Mrs. McConnell yesterday in which it was stated that practically his whole crop of wheat had been destroyed by the recent heavy rain and hail storms.

Mr. McConnell has a very large section of land near Indian Head, which is worked on shares, and Mrs. McConnell and son have been out there for several weeks looking after the business. The crop gave promise of being a bumper one, and to bind his share of the harvest. Mr. McConnell had ordered 3,500 pounds of Binder twine. That will give some indication of the extent of the wheat fields he had under cultivation. He estimates his loss at about $9,000.

Reception Of Young Ladies Into Sisterhood Of St. Joseph

The Retreat of the Sisters of St. Joseph, which has been held at Mount St. Joseph during the past two weeks, was marked this morning by the beautiful and impressive ceremony of the reception of eight young ladies and the profession of five novices.

The beautiful new chapel at the Mount was filled with the relatives and friends of the novices and postulants who assisted with the greatest reverence at the holy ceremony and listened with marked attention to the touching sermon delivered by the Rev. Father Naish, S.J. The ceremony opened with the procession of the eight young ladies robed in bridal attire carrying bouquets and followed by the little maids of honour. These came forward to the altar rail and made the request to be allowed to lay aside the vanities of the world and don the poor habit of the Sisters of St. Joseph. They were followed by the five novices who had successfully passed the two years of their novitiate here. The mass was celebrated by His Lordship Bishop O'Connor, assisted by Rev. Father McColl, of the Cathedral, and Rev. Father Scanlon, P.P., of Grafton, In the Sanctuary were also Rev. Father Naish, S.J., of Loyola College, Montreal, who preached the retreat; Rev. Father Dowdall, P.P., of Eganville, and Rev. Dr. O'Brien, Father Kelly, and F. C. McFadden, of the Cathedral. During the mass, and also at the conclusion, the Sisters' Choir rendered several beautiful anthems. The postulants who received the habit were:

Miss Elizabeth McGrath, of Mt. St. Patrick, Ont.; in religion Sister Mary Adelaide.

Miss Mary Gertrude Flanagan, Montreal, Que.; in religion Sister Mary Euphrasia.

Miss Mary Garvey, Douro; in religion Sister Mary Barbara.

Miss Margaret Fitzmaurice, Bracebridge; in religion Sister Mary of the Angels.

Miss Julia Ellen Foran, Eganville, Ont.; in religion Sister Mary Isaiah.

Miss Margaret Grier, Eganville, Ont.; in religion Sister Mary Winnifred.

Miss Martha Stashick, Eganville, Ont.; in religion Sister Mary Emerentia.

A Detective In Peterborough

To the Editor of the Examiner:

Sir,—I understand that the defeated candidate or his party has a detective engaged to work in the city to hunt up evidence for the coming trial in the election protest pending against Mr. Stratton. That must mean an expenditure of money. I would like to know if it is legal to engage a detective for that purpose when the defeated candidate has not paid all his legitimate expenses incurred during his election campaign?

Yours truly,
AN INQUIRER.
Peterborough, Aug. 17th.

Yes. It is perfectly legitimate for a candidate to engage a detective, under the circumstances, or to incur any expense, and not pay his legitimate expenses, so long as he can get anyone to give him credit.

TAKE A COLD SERIOUSLY

The possibilities of every cold are dreadful to contemplate. Bronchitis, pneumonia, consumption, usually begin with a simple cold. Why not fight the cold from the start and ensure success by using Dr. Chase's Syrup of Linseed and Turpentine. It allays inflamation, keeps the cough free and loose and protects the bronchial tubes from danger.

SAWMILL BEING RAPIDLY REBUILT

The new saw-mill being erected by the Peterborough Lumber Co. is going ahead rapidly, it having been commenced a little over a week ago. The frame work has been completed and the shingling of the roof was begun yesterday. No time is being lost in getting the mill completed as the company intends getting a large number of logs out this season. The machinery is beginning to arrive and will be installed at once. The most modern in saw-mill machinery will be placed in the new mill.
